Whether Municipal or Provincial List Used Not Decided

SHORT SESSION

Parking By-law to be Discussed at Future Meeting

The electorate of this municipality will be given the opportunity to register their feelings on the question of Daylight Saving Time at the coming municipal elections in December, but whether chairvote will be taken on the municipal or provincial list has not been decided by the council. The City Solicitor was requested to prepare a by-law to take the vote at the first meeting of the council since the summer holiday, on Monday night, and another recommendation was passed asking the co-operation of the City Solicitor if it would be legal to use either the Municipal or Provincial list. If the Provincial list was used every person in Belleville, who is qualified to vote could register his ballot, but if the Municipal list is used only those who are assessed as tenants would have the opportunity.

Alderman McCreary told to sponsor the resolution, that would allow all to vote as he believed, that the people of Belleville should have their views benefitted by the time change adopted the city in more ways than one, yet those who have their own property or were not tenants, could not vote, or register their opinion. Alderman Ballow stated that he supported Daylight Saving this year with the distinct understanding that a vote would be taken on a local list. City solicitor says that the Provincial list is "legal," said Alderman Ballow, adding that in this case could to choose the list they "Provincial or Dominion" Alderman Salt thought the Provincial list was a fair one to take the vote on as the Dominion did not involve money or taxes.

A recommendation that power to act be granted the council in referring to placing insurance on buildings owned by the city, was revised by the city solicitor, who stated that Mr. Creary to read "that the committee have power to act." This course City Alderman Bailey stated, that the council could choose the list they "Provincial or Dominion". Alderman Salt thought the Provincial list was a fair one to take the vote on as the Dominion did not involve money or taxes.

Repair Pails Contract

An item of $60.00 to repair the Police Court room was vigorously opposed by Alderman McCreary, but the council accepted the statement of the Mayor and Alderman Marshall, that the room was a disgrace to the city. Alderman McCreary believed, that the building some day would be removed and that it was to use spending the money but the other members were inclined to side in with the proponents of the scheme. The item will be passed and passed. Again the Board of Health requested the council to insist, that the practice of selling milk be published in the monthly report of the Health Officer. The council will meet the Board on this matter.

The movers of this petition stated that the required number according to the statutes and the council, it is understood must comply with the petition before the by-law, which has been drafted by the solicitor and which was laid on the table. The City Clerk will check the petition to see certain if the signatures are sufficient to do so and if found in order, the council will submit the by-law in the same and it becomes law. There were a few, who did not sign the petition, but the majority rules according to the statutes in Ontario.

SEEKS FRIENDS AFTER 50 YEARS, CHANGES SEEN

LAND MARKS SEEN

When the first pilings were being placed in the Bay of Quinte at the initial step toward the construction of the Bay Bridge, back to the year 1881, Mr. Joseph Graham, then a confident youth of 18, residing on the Trent Road just east of the city, and employed here by various firms that have long since passed from memory, left the district to make his own way in the world in the new West.

Yesterday after an absence of over fifty years during which time his only contact with Belleville was through the medium of occasional correspondence, Mr. Graham, well-known citizen of Aberdeen, Washington, came to the city to the delight and surprise of many of the former friends he used to know.

Many of the changes which moved during his absence he admitted, when viewed by the writer in the course of the daily Ontario Intelligencer. "Except for the city hall and the new post office buildings, I hardly have known the place," he added.

Flagstone Streets

The flag stones that used to comprise the greater part of the sidewalks of the city and the dirt surface of the streets have long since been replaced with up-to-date concrete paving and asphalt, but the flags that Front Street have been covered with the latest approved asphalt; the business section of the city is lighted with the color of old time familiarity the neighborhood groups around the pot-bellied stove have given way to modern steam or electrician heat fronts and marbleized entrances; the Bay Bridge has passed from the realm of the "if" and "and" budget and toils to a more abbreviated iron structure over which whizz motor cars and heavy trucks whine and rumble unimpeded. Even the faces that were so familiar about the old main section have long since disappeared, the visitor has found.

Still spry and active, and possessed with a keen, alert mind, and body that is marked in spite of his splendid seventy-two or three, Mr. Graham found himself greatly interested with early life in the district.

Old Landmarks

"Even though it has been a long time since I've been able to get back here I still remember vividly many of the old stores and places and people," he declared, pointing out Stuart Hoyt, for example, who used to operate a little grocery and meat store on Front Street; Wesley Bullen, Dunnett's grocery store. "I don't just can call them off-hand, but if I wanted to sit and think for a moment, I could recall many of them. Oh yes, the late Sir Mackenzie Bowell was another one that was well known around here. My father always had a great admiration for him, and had often spoken of him".

Mr. W. J. Graham, his father, was one of the old time pioneer residents of the district, and for many years he carried on the business of blacksmith and was for a time associated with the late Mr. with the A. S. Paige Lumber Company. "Dad was always on the 'take will" with this job and was instrumental in getting me started on somewhere else beside Belleville.

"After leaving Belleville, I went to Quebec, Ontario and worked on the railroad and finally landed up in Aberdeen, Washington in 1884. After a few years I continued out West and finally located on the coast. Since then I've been down to visit some back," related yesterday's visitor.

Lumbering City

When Mr. Graham first landed in his adopted city, Aberdeen was then forest hemmed town of lumbermen and sawmills. Today it has a population of hundreds it has grown to a thriving industrial and is turning year by year from the lumbering and fishing to dairying, agriculture and berry growing.

For the last many years Mr. Graham has been in the United Service, and during the war was retired on pension. He still retains his badge of honor, the Order of Walla Walla. (Washington) State Penitentiary, and has to his record many commendations and recognition gained during his police service.

Motoring Reminiscences

Now on a tour of the country from the Pacific coast to the Atlantic, travelling alone and stopping when he feels like it, has completed the tour of the United States from his home in Washington, through to Minneapolis, Boston, Maine, crossing the border at Saint John, and through to Montreal, Mrs. Graham, whom he met and married in the west, he pointed out, is not fond of travelling. Leaving here he expects to visit Trenton for a brief period again, seeing out some of the old friends he used to know and then to the Soppa are still living and able to recognize him. The visit over there he will pass the old Sidney Street factory, he pointed out, is another old landmark that has long since disappeared. At this stage of time. "I particularly noticed because I used to work around the cheese factory, helping Jack cheese sometimes," he added.

From Trenton Mr. Graham will go to London, Ontario.

"I have a particular reason for going to that city," he declared, in terminating his brief interview. "Why?" asked the interested reporter.

"Well; I have a brother, John, living at St. Mary's. I've been figuring up that it's been quite a while since I have seen him, too. Let's see now". It would be along about 1906 since we last met and I want to see if he is the same old Jack I used to know."

SKELETON KEYS ADMITTED USED
Juvenile Says He Entered Two Homes on East Hill

Repeatedly complaints regarding the theft of food stuffs and canned goods from the homes of persons residing on the east hill have been registered in Belleville of late, only a comparatively few being reported to the police, it was disclosed today. For the past week the authorities in the north end, by the numerous entrance and thefts, that have been perpetrated in this particular section of the city. Late yesterday afternoon Plainclothes Constable Fred Isard responded to 19 year old Jack Kelly's police station, however, after questioning he had admitted using skeleton keys to enter homes and garages on the east hill, from which he removed foods and canned foodstuffs, that were reposing in readiness for the winter. He would not admit the wholesale theft of canned goods, however, claiming ignorance of such.

Reports have been prevalent at the residents of the district of the theft or canned goods from various cellars in the north section of the city, where an entire fall's canning would be practically wiped out in a night. Only a few days ago one was reported, however, only a small amount of canned goods was taken. Entrance in the majority of cases was made by means of pushing out one of the glass panels in the cellar door to key and unlocking the door. Further inquiries are being made and the youth questioned yesterday had to do in breaking in himself, before moving to Belleville with his parents. The lad is 13 years of age, and although the police admitted, that he could not be responsible for the majority of the thefts, although he admitted using a skeleton key on two occasions.

'LOOK FACTS IN THE FACE'

1929 upheaval, wondered what it was all about, Canada took up the task of uniting the broken threads under the leadership of Mr. Bennett, he pointed out, So successfully did she chart her course, that the recent report of the League of Nations told the story all too well known by other countries, that Canada was leading the world back along the road to normalcy.

Some Little Effort

Political fears are there, who would belittle the efforts of the Bennett government, in this respect. There are those who even now hope to belittle the story of Canada, for political reason of their own, so that she appears to be still struggling deeper into the depression," he charged, "Let me remind the latter, that while times may be temporarily bad, you know, that the record of Canada is in the same shape. It has been very easy for the opposition to say that the government has done nothing, but it has been a long, uphill pull to bring her this far on the recovery she has made."

One of the most complex, intricate situations to be faced by the Conservative government, was that which, in 1930, Bourassa's economic problems had sprung up, trade had fallen away, the bottom of the market after another had been lost," declared Mr. Massey. Themployment was a figure, that could not then and has still not been overcome. Such was the result of the King administration, he added, "For the Conservative government took over from them a country in the most terrible condition. Mr. Bennett realized the necessity for a definite and happy purpose when the Ottawa Agreements were signed—and from thereon the conditions commenced improving."

Reform Coming

Reform is coming in this country and the Conservative Party is looking for it, but in thinking of reform, voters must realize, where reform has come from in the past two years, the speaker reminded.

"We must face the next five years from the point of view of the nation. We must realize that Mr. Bennett far from being a dictator, has had more Cabinet meetings, more consultations than any other government during the past term. We must realize that the rate of recovery in this country has been greater than that of any other country of the world, except Japan during the past few months. We must believe that the government that has been in power under Premier Bennett has been responsible for all this, and if we wish to continue this rate of progress, we must vote accordingly to accomplish those ends," declared Mr. Massey in his stirring exhortation. Following his Desoronto address, Mr. Massey left for Napanee and, later, Kingston.

Dr. W. E. Tummon, introduced by the chairman of the evening, Mr. T. L. McCullough, president of the Deseronto Conservative Association, in his brief appeal for further support from electors of the riding pointed out: "Your job, and mine, is to save Canada."

In defending the present leader from attacks now being made from inspiring messages at both services him, by the opposition parties, Mr. Tummon declared, that "no finer or more sincere man lives in Canada today than the Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett," Mr. Bennetts tariff policies are also strongly defended by the speaker who charged, that without their protection, Canada would have been made the dumping ground of all the world's commodities and that hundreds of firms, that had located here would have been lost to the country. He replied vigorously to the statements that the Conservative government had "strangled trade" with figures showing, that the greatest increase in foreign trade had occurred only during the years of King's administration.

Company Parties Is Plea

Mr. Cecil Frost, Lindsay, declared that throughout the history of Canada voters had turned to the Conservative party again and again, when faced with the same crisis that now confronts the country. In a brief review of the four parties in the field, Mr. Frost dismissed the Liberal party as chiefly "a company" more man who was being misled, promising claims, also, that never could be carried out and which the very laws of the country would prevent their ever being put. The C.C.F. Party, it was declared, contained no danger to the Liberal party, the Conservatives, while "the Liberals were cited as a government once elected on a platform of promises, which were never carried out and which they will not attempt again. Every argument that could be put forward, would naturally favor Mr. Bennett with his constructive policy, which already had made a record for him among nations, declared the speaker.

Dr. J. P. Bell, M.P.P., speaking in support of Mr. Tummon likened the recovery to a gigantic operation of facts. "We are all trying to do our best for the country in which we live and during the depression Mr. Bill scored the opposition partly with their statements made in radio and on the platforms in which the Conservatives were given the blame for everything that had or could happen to place the country in an unfavorable light. From their statements, that farmers were being forced to pay more for farm machinery was untrue, he declared. "I checked over some of the implements with the agents and the dealers. I found even here, that prices on implements were much lower than they were during the Liberal administration." He further defended the cheese bonus system as an actual assistance to cheese factories of the country when they needed it most of help at the time it was put into effect, and which has already resulted in considerable good to the industry.

Theories Won't Work

Miss Florence Gibbs, Desoronto, again rendered several epigrams in her brief appearance.

"Just as another phenomenon of the present election, women are taking a keen interest and intend to speak," she remarked following her introduction.

In a nine-point analysis of the various parties she declared that so many of the political theories being advanced were like a good many people—"they wouldn't work."

Referring to the remarkable strides made by this country in spite of economic turmoil and that had a business with a manager who was a good business man, I would'nt want to sack him and hire someone else who didn't know the trade."

"Mr. King wrote a book and put all his ideas into it; Mr. Bennett wrote his legislation into the books, of the country, with the statute books of the country."

A party is an organization of people, not just some aim and the same methods of gaining that end."

"If you are pleased with the picture of achievements of the Conservative Government," declared Miss Gibbs, "I solicit your vote for Mr. Tummon," invited the speaker.

During the evening several vocal solos were contributed by Mr. Reg. Woodley, assisted by Mrs. Mitchell on the piano.

Little Benny's Note Book

After supper ma said to pop, I didn't finish reeding my sister Fanny's letter—to you this morning, pop, she's afraid that Albi is very easy to live with and that we'll hardly know he's around after we once get accustomed to his little ways, I read you this morning how he keeps his alarm clock going for 15 or 20 minutes in the morning before he gets himself from going back to bed, ma said.

Yes, has he any more cute little tricks? pop said, and ma said, Why, I think Fanny's letter, she writes, 'you dont need to fear that Albi will ever keep you waiting at meals, he's very prompt and is the soul of punctuality. In fact he is always the first one in the dining room. And if you happen to be a quarter of an hour or so late yourself you'll note that Albi has been sitting patiently at his own place all the time, and the ever unresentful smile with which he greets you will be sure to make you more punctual after that.

I may not be home much for dinner, I may have a busy week, pop said, and ma said, Fanny writes, I must tell you of one of Albi's most original little customs. He thinks it's unlucky to sit too long at one time in any one chair, not that he's impressitious but he just has feelings about certain chairs, and he'll come about from chair to chair in the course of a conversation, so occasionally if you or your husband happen to leave your chair for a moment to get a magazine or something and find Albi in it when you turn around again, you needn't be surprised.

And if Albi finds me sitting rite on top of him he needn't be astonished either, pop said, and ma said, That's not quite the end of the letter.

It's the end as far as I'm concerned, I'll retreat into my tent if you dont mind, pop said.

SOUNDS THAT PASS IN THE NIGHT

What the campaign to muffle noises on the street of a city means can be learned by those who walk in milk wagon delivery in New York City. One milk company of two thousand horses has announced its operation.

Seventy per cent of the volume of noise heard and delivered to the earth is attributable to the clatter of horses' feet, the clangor of the iron-rimmed wheels of the trucks, of signal chains will be eliminated; it is estimated scientifically. The reason is that the horses will wear rubber shoes, and wagons will have rubber tires.

Scientists have measured the sound of steel-shod horse by the decibel, a unit of loudness of sound. The noise of a steel-shod horse is rated at 15. The noise recorded as a rubber-driven drill at a distance of ten feet was fifty decibels above the minimum street noises, while the rubber-tired rubber-equipped horse made a noise fifteen decibels above the minimum noises.

The decide reduction means that a fleet of horses than the part-perch will be used, the smaller animal being 200 pounds lighter. The rubberization of the shoes will reduce the weight of the vehicles of one company from 1900 to 900 pounds, allowing a greater ease of motion which will permit the use of smaller horses.

Rubberized shoes for horses, contain plates of malleable steel and will produced at the rate of 2500 per week. It is estimated that seven ounces of metal the iron shoes of three pounds seven and a half ounces and will last twice as long. A special non-slip tread has been provided for the shoes so that horse will not slip in wet or icy streets.

The blacksmith shop will suffer it is said as the shoes can be hammered into ape cold, not requiring the forge as in present metal shoe.

The ball-bearing wheels will have lower bearings. The wagons will be lower milkmen can load and unload more easily.

It is figured that the life of the horses will be extended by two to three years by reason of the rubber shoes.

The milk wagon noise is not the only one that the cities of the United States and Canada are trying to eliminate. But they show what a transformation the quieting of noise ultimate will make in poetry as well as in noise reduction.

NIGHT DRIVING PERILS

"One disturbing factor in recent accident records, which must have struck readers of the news, is the number of serious accidents that occur in the night hours between midnight and dawn. Not only are such accidents increasing in frequency, if we may judge from news reports, but they are also far more serious than those that occur in daylight hours," says Rockes-Democrat and Chronicle.

"Another disturbing feature is the fact that laws and policemen and traffic lights are not of much use in preventing accidents during the night hours.

"Policemen cannot be stationed at every intersection all night to warn reckless drivers. Laws and traffic signals do not enforce themselves. The responsibility is in the hand at the wheel; the only safeguard that will really prevent accidents is unwavering sense of caution that refuses to take chances merely because traffic is light.

"The special temptation to speed and other violations of traffic at night are obvious to all. For that reason the price that must be paid in case of accident is especially heavy. Theoretically, night driving is safer than day driving, so far as traffic conditions are concerned; yet no conscientious driver will forget for a moment that the night has its special dangers which demand unceasing vigilance, also."

A PRESCRIPTION FOR A BROOK

It need not run through grassy glades,
Nor through a birches grove
It need not flow in soft cascades
Down past a woodchuck's den.
It does not have to wander through
A dell where pines grow thick;
In fact, most any stream will do
Just so it is a "crick."
A "crick" that runs out like a rhyme
Through all the happy summertime.

There must be birds along the shore
And forces here and there,
And in the fall wild geese must soar
Till Autumn chills the air.
There must be rabbits quite near by
And squirrels in the trees.
There one can watch the world go by
With quietude and ease.
And wonder why men break their hearts
Contending in the noisy marts.

A stream like this I've always known,
Where willows swing and sway,
And cedars lend a monotone
Throughout the placid day;
There one may see a dappled deer
Come down to take a drink,
And pause without a bit of fear
Beside the river's brink.
Find that, my friends, and you will find
Contentment, ease and peace of mind.

"LOOKING BACK ON LIFE" is an interesting contribution to current biography by Stephen Leacock, Canadian English comedian, about himself. It is the story of his life before the footlights, his contribution to winning the war effort and considerable about "THE BING BOYS ARE HERE", the laughable revue in which he starred in London during the war, and which he remembered with pleasure by Canadian soldiers who brought with Robey while on leave in London during the war. Robey visited Canada after the war with his own vaudeville company. "Bits and Pieces" and "Between Ourselves", and in his book expresses keen appreciation of the wonderful reception accorded him. In the book Mr. Leacock mentions his dislike of American Jazz music and the type of topical song which became popular on the Halls, the type of song which is popular in the London Music Halls such as "Over the Garden Wall", "The Man Who Broke the Bank at Monte Carlo", "After You With That", "Wait 'Till the Clouds Roll By", etc. "Looking Back on Life" is easy to read and very entertaining, more especially if you know the stage and the pleasure of seeing and hearing George Robey, "The Prime Minister of Mirth."

WE ARE INCLINED TO BELIEVE, says the editor of the Peterborough Examiner, "that reasonable amount of heckling adds spice to a meeting, and to feel that no political speaker should object to a fair question courteously asked by a member of the audience". Organized demonstrations meant to disrupt the meeting or interfere with its effectiveness is unhesitatingly condemned by the same writer. In this age of education with many newspapers and much campaign literature available it seems as if a person could get all the information needed without having to ask questions at political meetings. Skilled platform speakers, as a rule, do not object to intelligent heckling for they quickly turn tables on their interruptors, but unskilled speakers have some uncomfortable moments if subjected to this infliction.

When the world stood still—when back in that nebulous age of steaming swamps and scaly monsters—a stream ran through the warm seas of the lakes and the bays doting this tropical region one might have seen before mile high glaciers ground inexorably southward, before them living world as they travelled onward, leaving only on their retreat behind, this section of Hastings County was one of the most populous regions of any, a recent study of rocks in this district show.

A mile or so west of the village of Roblin on a farm now owned by William Morgan may be found one of the strangest rock formations in this country, a delight to the heart of any scientist or geologist. In one of the fields some distance from the highway is a stretch of limestone in a sloping hillside of nearly half an acre, running down in a spring or creek, the water which flows out from under the limestone ledge. On the top of the ledge, and standing out in bas relief, while said to have been carved by the hand of prehistoric life which once teemed in this region, most clearly defined are the coarse-scaled fish and other lower forms of life which existed in the days when the glaciers ruled. Prehistoric snakes, lizards and even the outlined skeletons of strange fish may be chipped from the hard limestone. The remains of fish the same as those displayed in the Royal Ontario Museum, Toronto, reputedly millions of years old.

And following the glacial age, with this part of the continent in process of formation, there is also sentiment the county in the vicinity of Roblin, a number of cairns, heaps or relics and souvenirs that have been piled up. Some of our cowheads, flint-pointed spears and even ordinary utensils used by Indians of long ago have been found on the same farm. Mr. Stewart Morgan, who has lived on the farm within a short distance of the village possesses a most interesting collection of arrow heads and other relics of the Indian days of long ago. Several of the heads are inches long cleverly made and as sharp on the edges as razors, while the rarity-ferity of some is that they have been fashioned from stone or flint stone that is not native to this district, having been at some time brought from some other district. The most interesting relic, however, was the antlers of an elk of enormous size which was found on the farm and which had been preserved over by the wind. Well over six feet in length, the antlers are evidently come from an animal that was gigantic in size.

HEALTH and PSYCHOLOGY

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.

Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

Copyright, 1935, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

All boys are not alike. Some are timid and retiring; others are bold, domineering and adventuresome. And dependent upon the type of nature your son happens to have different methods of upbringing are called into play.

A parent should decide at the outset what kind of man he wants his son to be. For it must be borne in mind that a man's success depends in large measure upon his confidence in himself, his fearlessness, his energy and persistence in overcoming obstacles.

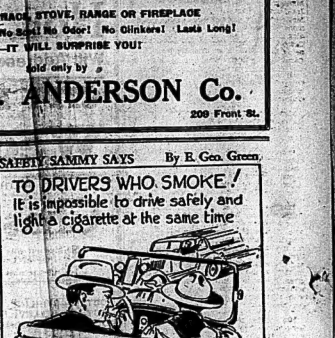
In other words, the aggressive type of masculinity is more likely to get ahead than are seclusive type, to be sure, we do not want our boys to grow up to be rough, hard, too self-seeking. A certain degree of tenderness, of kindly feeling and sentiment, even of day-dreaming, are distinct advantages. A man who is always practical, forever looking for a new battle to fight and a new field to conquer, often lacks the imaginative, thoughtful qualities that go with true greatness.

Toughness of mental, as well as physical fibre is better than too little strength in either. A tender, over-sensitive lad is handed too readily in these days of stern competition. Such a boy should invariably be encouraged to try to overcome such handicaps.

For boys who are timid, all games where they must match themselves against others are excellent. Athletics act like a tonic especially when the shrinking boy finds himself winning or excelling. Such a fearful boy loses, he should try again and again until he proves to himself that he is just as strong and capable as his companions.

It is significant to me to note how often a decidedly tender – minded boy can, through proper training, be developed into a mentally robust lad, even to the point of fearlessness and daring when the average boy of his age.

On the other hand, I have found, a rough and fearless by nature, he may become very timorous. Here the mother's influence is of inestimable value. The tenderness of a woman, her kindness and sympathy go far toward making a rough boy in the open air should be careful not to eat an increased amount due to the resultant increase of appetite.



Memel Vote Delayed For Second Time

Memel, Oct. 1.—German Memelanders, angered by the prolonged voting in the territory's first election, sent a telegram of protest last night to the German delegations of Great Britain, France and Belgium, signatory powers to the Memel convention.

Still another day will be devoted next week-end to voting in the District of Juknaical, where a polling station was wrecked in an election row Sunday. This meant still more delay in announcement of the results of the balloting.

YOUNG WOMEN'S GUILD

Last evening the Young Women's Guild of John Street Church held their annual meeting at the home of Mrs. John McPherson on Fraser Road, Sidney Township. About thirty members and their guests motored out and a very enjoyable evening was spent. After the business was disposed of by the President, Mrs. Roger Thompson, a delightful period was given by Miss Bertram on the subject, "The Noble Jesus Puts On Woman." The subject for discussion was "Women, Whither Bound." This was led by Mrs. Chambers. Four short papers showing the status of women of other countries were given by members, Mrs. Mac Hill spoke of the unfortunate position of the black women of India. Mrs. Fergusson told of the All India Women's Conference held early this year when fifteen very advanced resolutions were adopted. The women of India are on the way to better things, Mrs. Brooks told of some of the wonderful changes that the last fifteen years have brought to the women of Japan. Mrs. Mitchell's paper dealt with the very advanced way in which women of Canada are enjoying their new status of equality with men in duty and opportunity. After these papers a short discussion was led by Mrs. Chambers on the part that the women of Canada was compared with that of other countries. At the close of the meeting dainty refreshments were served by the hostess.

Correct Manners

POST-NUPTIAL PARTY

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. We would like very much to give a party for two girls who were married recently. My daughter slipped off two months ago and was married but is coming home until the Fall, and her friend will have their own home. The other day brother's wife was here and visited quietly when he had his vacation — no other than was expected.

Both girls missed the fun of showers and such things before marriage. Might we not have a party for both girls on the same evening, and suggest that friends bring gifts? Or would it be better to have separate parties? Or should we wait until they go into their own homes and have a housewarming?

2. How should the invitations be worded?

Mary.

1. It would be a grand idea for you and your friends to join in giving a party for the two recent brides, but I can't give my approval of your last suggestion. Either showers or any other kind of gifts should be out of the question in this case, and one is apt to have showers and gifts when one is married, and I never like the flavor of having a party for the purpose of a shower. If you elect yourself hostess for a party to which the guests are asked to bring gifts, I'm sure you will not receive many. It looks like a promotion for gifts for these new homes that are being started.

I can't get quite over the fact that these girls missed the fun of showers and such things before marrying", and I'm apparently they were married as they chose to be, for a circumstance doesn't mean that you should not have a party and ask for belated shower gifts. If the friends of your son's wife and your son-in-law wish to give them wedding presents, that is their own business, and you have no social right to suggest that they send or bring gifts of either sort on any occasion whatever.

Also, when these brides and grooms move into their new homes, they may each, properly, give a housewarming, but for the friends friends may bring gifts, if they wish, but there is to be no suggestion and by widely left to the "discretion" of the friends. In no case is it becoming for you, the sister of one of the brides and the sister-in-law of the other, to give such a party. Do you agree with me? 2. You might write your invitation as a note!

Dear Mary,

We're running a little party for the two new brides and groom — Nina and Ted, and Dorothy and Jack—and we hope that you and Bill can come. It is to be a buffet supper at my house, on Friday, the first of October, at eight o'clock. Do say you'll come.

Nina.

BEAU GESTE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My best friend is married to my self friend and her parents have given to his home for a Sunday dinner. Now, I think that it is proper for his boy friend to go to the dinner and take them back to his home, even though he has no car? Should the parents have one, or else go to their son's home and pay them to his home in their boy brother's friend dinner. I'm great, saying that he should not take them as he has no car.

What do you think?

Jack.

It's pleasant to hear of such a courtly and polite point of view as that of your friend — and I applaud him for it. Of course it isn't necessary for your brother's friend to go to this girl's home and accompany her and her parents to his home, but I think it is polite of him to do so, and I'm sure the parents would be very much pleased if he should not take them as he has no car.

Unhappiness of Children Often is Hard to Detect

By LISA GRENVILLE

It might never have happened if children's parents had known how to detect unhappiness.

But how could they? Robert never complained. Consistently he never cried. On the contrary, in most instances he appeared rather than ever-laughing, cheerful. Only a few days before visitors came he had to be punished.

He was more brilliant and less boisterous than his brother, Tom, who cried, "Boys change," his father said. "They go through stages."

His mother apparently resigned. Robert had always been so sweet and thoughtful, so unlike Tom. Nothing to her that Robert was suffering.

Dr. Hosack's first indication of broken-hearted. He was easy—never bothered him.

It occurs to so few people that if child becomes unhappy it is difficult he is probably in trouble. Children are so reticent. The things they feel most deeply, speak of last. And, contrary to common belief, even small children sometimes try out their woes burden.

Trouble with Teacher

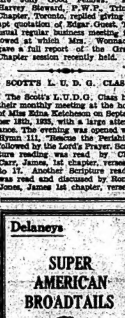
Robert's trouble was at school. They "picked on" him, as school children of a sensitive child do. Found it hard to take. Gradually, more and more it undermined his friendliness, he lost his confidence and his self-respect.

If he had received support and comfort at home, he might have overcome it. But his mother, his chief influence in behavior gave his parents no inkling of his trouble. He was only a cause for disappointment, a reproaches.

But how, then, can we know positively when our child is unhappy? If he will not tell us, or show us a sign of grief. But we don't recognize it because we still cherish the conventional idea that tears and a long face must be present during a period of suffering.

This, of course, is not true. Sometimes in child or in adult, Rosetta laughter is much more apt than ready tears.

To be sure, all children don't react to happy or unhappy experiences in the same manner. What must be looked for is a change in mood. Again, all changes do not mean grief, for many of antagonistic changes usually do.



Indications of It

Roughly speaking, the first indication of your misdevious child is the unhappy child. Resulting tantrums, defiance, exhibitionism, depression, digestive disorders, touchiness, irritability, resentment—especially the latter two. Sometimes apparently these are indicative of unhappiness, the cause should not be hard to find. There are many possibilities. And when found, it should be corrected.

An occasional defeat or squelching is good for not most children. But prolonged unhappiness is destructive and dangerous. The child's reasoning is absurd or of time, a child is unable to handle a situation, or adapt himself contentedly to conditions, that situation should be modified or removed—at least until the child's mind has learned and is prepared and ready to defend himself against it.

Minerva Chapter Enjoys Banquet

A jolly banquet was given by Mrs. Wetmore's and her officers of Minerva Chapter, O.E.S., on Saturday Friday night, Sept. 27th, which had been arranged for all the former provided, Mr. Garnett Dobbs was in great humor and spoke so interestingly that he was asked by Mrs. Wetmore at the piano.

Rev. Allan Pepper, Shannonville, proposed the toast to the King, short program of toasts following, concluding with the retirement of the Governor-General, whose final words were "To repeat what the King is no honor more than an honor, an inspiration." All sprang to their feet and sang, "The King".

Mr. J. Rowland toasted the Grand Chapter and officers mentioning that among those present were Past Grand Worthy Matron and Assistant Past Grand Worthy Patron of Ontario. "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows" was sung by the company. The response was given by Mrs. Alma Boyd, P.G.W.M. She in happy vein gave a glimpse of the work of the various officers of that order ending on the "Princess Nightingale Home. Everyone sang "Let Me Call You Sweetheart."

Mrs. A. Wetmore toasted "We" as was just herself in a few happy words. Wally Bonnis Lee Over the Ocean" was sung to an echo.

Mrs. Charles Hyde toasted the visitors responded with an original verse. Again was sung, "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows." Rev. Mr. Harvey Steward, P.W.P., Trinity Chapter, Tyrone, replied giving an apt quotation of Edgar Guest. The usual regular business meeting followed at which Mrs. Rowland gave a full report of the Grand Chapter session recently held.

SCOTTS L. U. D. G. CLASS

The Scott's L.U.D.G. Class held their monthly meeting at the home of Miss Edna Colchoun on September 18th, 1935, with a large attendance. The evening was opened with Hymn 311, "Faith of our Fathers" followed by the Lord's Prayer. Scripture reading was read by Miss Clara Carr, James, 1st chapter, verses 13 to 17. Another Scripture reading was read by Mrs. Ronald Jones, James 1st chapter, verses 2 to 4. A hymn was then sung. Reading was given by Eleanor Chapman, which was followed by Miss Edna Ketcheson (teacher). Next was a recitation by Retha Paul. A reading was read by Miss Dorothy Paul. Boy and His Blossom" which was very much enjoyed by all. Another reading was given by Miss Betty M. Ketcheson (teacher) then favored with another solo. Harry Paul gave a recitation, "Remember To Take Off Your Hats, Boys" and was certainly right by everyone. Hymn 284 was sung. The committee for October are: Miss Edna Ketcheson, teacher. Miss Eva Thrasher, Chapman. Miss Edna Smith. Contents were then given by Miss Jean Badgely. Mrs. Ketcheson and Miss Edna Ketcheson and Mr. George Brown. The second was a musical contest and won by Miss Edna Ketcheson (teacher) and Miss Dorothy Paul. Synopsis of the Class goes out to Eilah Ramsay as he was called home to Hamilton: to the sick bed of his brother who is very sick. The evening was then brought to a close. Lunch was served by the girls.

FALL FASHIONS PASS IN REVIEW

Interesting Event Sponsored By Girl Guide Council

Again the theme of style, development, gowns, wraps, furs and millinery, claimed the attention of a large audience last evening as the Girl Guide Council presented an Autumn Fashion Revue in John Street United Church Hall. Gowns by Nellis Smith, furs by Woodley's, millinery by Miss Campbell and an interesting musical program made the evening one of keen enjoyment.

Gowns glamorously supplying the answer to the familiar question, "What's New This Season" followed the latest trends for sports, business, afternoon and evening wear. Short-er skirts for daytime, clever drapery of fine fabrics and a lovely range of tones made the gowns most appealing. Lanaca sportswear was very smart and was followed by daytime and formal afternoon gowns, dinner and dance frocks.

Mrs. A. Seymour showed among other models, a Queen-evening dress of black velvet with rhinestones in raspberry rose tone. Red silver metallic cloth was used in a beautifully draped model. For afternoon wear Mrs. Seymour showed a black velvella gown with top in fine black new suede velvet.

"French baby", a rich red tone fashioned a striking frock of beautiful cloth caught with brilliant straps and worn by Mrs. John Kerr, who also showed a black velvet evening gown with interesting sequin top. Renda green jacquard crepe showing the new use of metallic lace in green and silver made a graceful afternoon gown.

Trends showing satin with cape effect struck a new note in evening wear in a gown shown by Miss Rena Rainbird. The importance of trains was demonstrated in Mrs. Stanley Wells' evening dress while a similar material in brown for afternoon wear showed the vogue for gold and brown metallic trimming.

Miss Harriet Gordon wore an unusual gown of Olympic blue uncrushable velvet, and also for evening, the electric blue shade reflecting the Grecian influence. Simple of line was the model, trimmed three gown, the draped neckline outlined with sequins.

Accentuating the "elegance" motif, the rich beauty of furs from Woodley's added to the interest of the gowns. Silver fox, single and two-skin, white, natural and Stone Marten neckpieces were worn with distinction on afternoon dresses. A new fur trimming novelty quirk is the introduction of fur cape-collars, cut-out models in furs that blend or contrast with afternoon wear.

The coats showed Persian favoring the windblown collar, the wide sweeping tight, high sleeve. Black broadcloth with silver pointed collar, two-skin white fox with pointed collar, oyster gray broadtail with gray siberian squirrel, a black velvet coat with white fox collar with brown Persian lamb and seal trimmings were among the furs that lent feminine audience a picture of fur fashions for the season.

Capturing, perfectly, the shades of coats, fabrics and gowns for frocks, the hats by Miss Campbell were a revelation of millinery art. Lady Baltimore shapes and Gainsborough models were featured as well as intriguing little bandeau interpretations. By Miss Campbell of Paris and New York creations. Fancy velvet ribbons were also most popular fabrics.

Creating much interest was the use of feathers as trimming, heron, osprey and cog. These iridescent feathers on deep-toned fabrics made a stunning effect in millinery. The vagaries of the mode, militaristic hats, the forward models, were all cleverly shown in original hats.

The interesting program included a delightful reading, "A Man's Description of a Woman's Dress", a vocal solo, Chamber and Tree", by Stan Wilbur; "Villa's Love Song" and "Yesterday's Dream" sung by Mrs. Alex. G. S. Stobie and a vocal solo, "Come Into the Garden" by Janet Rankin. Mr. Lee D. Ross accompanied Mr. Alex Gordon acted as accompanists for singers and during the evening Mr. Riggs' incidental music was greatly enjoyed.

Crime of Beauty

By HELEN Follett

Some gals don't play according to beauty Hoyle. Think of the prosecuted complexion that is powdered and painted in the morning has more loads of make-up added during the day — the powder and rouge pads grimed — the atmosphere dust—and then goes to bed as is. It is a beauty crime of the first degree.

The beautifying half hour at bedtime pays high dividends. It begins with a bath—not a hasty dip but a bath powder that gives fragrance and freshness to the skin. Time should be a 10-minute scalp mauling, a rearranging of the finger wave which should be put to bed in a net.

The complexion needs a thorough lubricating and if it gets a little pasting and tapping it will be grateful. Hands are benefited by oil, so they get the cold cream leavings. Working a cuticle cream into the creases surrounding the finger nails will insure against hangnails.

A bit of olive or mineral oil on eyebrows and lashes will help them a feast, keep them in up-top form.

While spots on the finger nails are probably caused by injury to the matrix, that soft substance just below the nail base under the skin from which the new nail material pushes forth.

The beauty of steel instruments. Lift the cuticle gently with an orange wood stick after bathing the hands. If the cuticle is thick and hard, soak finger tips in hot soapy suds, rinse well and apply olive oil. Or mix pumice and powdered alum alone and use that with the stick.

It stands to reason that the habit of holding the head erect will keep strong the muscles in the neck. Strong muscles mean that only the right amount of obvious tissue will cover them.

The woman who keeps the head lowered is the one who is likely to develop twin chins. There's no work to do on the chin, so they get lax and sag, inviting fat cells which bring great havoc. To combat a double chin, stroke upward, roll the head from finger and thumb, apply cold compress.

Cleansing the skin surface with an oil-free cologne will disperse blackheads, soften the deposits in the pores and stimulate circulation which is necessary for the well being of the complexion.

Use a soft cloth dipped into the eau de cologne, go over the surface lightly, being careful to keep the cloth away from the eyes.

THREE CANDIDATES SIT TOGETHER AT ROTARY CLUB

Speak on Policies of Three Parties at Club Meet

HILARITY REIGNS

Annual Political Meeting a Field Day for Benefit of Candidates

A unique feature of many Rotary Club meetings is the presentation of the political views of candidates in the general election campaign, and last night a full house of Rotarians and guests heard Hon. Dr. Forbes Godfrey, Conservative candidate for Prince Edward-Lennox; Hon. Peter Heenan, Liberal candidate for Hastings East, and Mr. Harold Fraser, C.C.F. candidate for Hastings West, speak in the order named. Each was introduced by a member of the club who had formerly supported the party which the candidate represented. Dr. Godfrey was introduced by Dr. Charles Ponton, Mr. Heenan by Mr. Ernest Hubbs, and Mr. Fraser by Mr. Ernest Bird.

Each speaker was allowed twenty minutes, and the time was strictly adhered to. Each was given a rousing welcome by the members and guests present, and each was heard with close attention. Hilarity reigned throughout the meeting, and the speakers were not spared in the humorous digs they received from their opponents. Each speaker was allowed to ask one question of each of the other speakers, and the answers were received with much laughter.

A Complete Picture

Each speaker dealt with the policies of the party he represented, and the result was a complete picture of the platforms of the three parties. Dr. Godfrey dealt with the record of the Conservative government during the past five years, and promised to restore prosperity if returned to power. Mr. Heenan dealt with the record of the Liberal government during the past five years, and promised to restore prosperity if returned to power. Mr. Fraser dealt with the record of the C.C.F. party in the province of Ontario, and promised to restore prosperity if returned to power.

Sad Sea Story

One humorous incident occurred during the Conservative speech. Mr. Heenan, in favor of selling the Canadian navy to Australia, told a humorous story about a sailor who was on board the Welland canal steamer Welland when she was commanded by a Scotsman. The sailor was ordered to paint the ship, and when he asked for paint and brushes was told to get them from the paint locker. He found the paint locker, but could not find any brushes. He returned to the captain and told him that he could not find any brushes in the paint locker. "Ye fool," said the captain, "ye'll find them in the paint locker." The sailor returned to the paint locker, but still

Casey Combined Cannot Operate

The directors of Casey Combined Gold Mines Ltd. have decided to temporarily cease operations at the company's property in the Sturgeon River area according to President H. W. Purdy. This action was found necessary owing to the difficulty of financing under the market conditions as they now are.

The trend locally is most indecisive. One thing is certain. Two weeks from today, following the influence, namely the elections, will be out of the way and if any radical party comes into power, business men will be by no means in a position to plan for the future with more confidence. It is hoped that a better attitude will develop, towards the security markets.

The events of the past month present a startling contrast to those of August, when investors were optimistic over business conditions and prosperity on the one hand and on the other the threat of interference with this progress which might result from conflicting legislations, rivalry and distrust, all operating the ability of the material world to carry on without friction, to work together in the common cause. States the Financial Daily News of New York in its issue of October. Latter. The best evidence of progress in the United States is in the fact that used good business reports and the signs of improvement. In price fluctuations and other economic conditions, and in sentiment. The safest conditions in the history of business are related to European affairs.

Two Canadian industries that appear to have a very favorable outlook for business both for the last quarter of this year and for the next period and also for the future are the base metal interest is dormant in the securities of the industrials mentioned, but any revival of public participation in the Stock Market will no doubt result in good buying of the leading issues in the two groups.

Narenda Mine

Very few people realize that Noranda Mines Limited has over 600 pounds of copper and two ounces of gold claimed for every ton of ore outstanding, with a great deal of the property still to be developed. Commodity prices are rising and the coming more and more partial to Noranda Mines Limited.

Broadcasts Consumer

"Improving business conditions continue to provide a strong basis for the stock market. While it is conceivable that the unfavorable political effect of unsettled European conditions could cause a temporary sharp setback of minor proportions, the broad trend still appears upward. Investors should continue the policy of keeping funds fully employed." In this week's issue Broadcasts recommends the purchase of Briggs Manufacturing and Hudson Motor Car.

WALL STREET FINANCIAL

Financial markets started the new month today with a show of confidence among the leaders.

New lops for the year were registered by General Motors, Murray Corp., Bullard Co. and Glidden, with advances of fractions to a point. Other gainers of as much included Chrysler, Electric Auto Lite, Hood-Allis-Hendey; Auburn; U. S. Steel; American Can; Westinghouse; Du Pont; Case; Consolidated Gas; Johns-Manville; New York Harbor-Hanover and preferred and Western Union.

In the Canadian section of the list International Nickel improved slightly while Dominion Steel and Canadian Pacific ruled about even. On the curb, Hirsh Wallace was up 1-2 point but Lake Shore yielded as much. Government bonds were steady. Canadian funds eased 1-32 of a cent at 96 31-16 cents.

Home Left Who Played in Series Back in 1908.

MORIARTY UMPIRE

By Howard J. Nall, Associated Press Sports Writer)

CHICAGO, Oct. 3 (AP)—Forward pitching, heavy hitting and sparkling fielding, the Detroit Tigers, champions of the American League, invade the baseball stronghold of the Chicago Cubs, scrappy Mickey Cochrane's National League pennant winners, tomorrow—it's a far cry back to the days of Hughie Jennings and Joe Cobb, the Cubs of Frank Chance, Johnny Evers, Joe Tinker, and the Detroit Tigers of Ty Cobb and Sam Crawford.

They pick up again tomorrow, modern 1933 model baseball, when Detroit's Tigers and Chicago's Cubs—the 1908 set, off their World series batting just 37 years ago, "Hughie" Jennings, of the Tigers, for the first of two games they lost by control a brilliant picture of the changes that have come over baseball and its annual fall extravaganza in the course of the last quarter-century. When it ends, all probability, a 42,000 semi-hysterical faithful the north will hoist in the final score of temporary bleacher seats, yet the Cubs' Charlie Grimm and Manager Cochrane will mark the capital of the baseball world at the entire sports world, the immediate future total attendance in 1908, when the Cubs and five games, was 81,265.

Million Dollar Gate.

It's almost certain to top the $1,000,000 mark again following the dismal abortive great Capitol Field, Joe Jackson and the Terrible Swedes in New York a week ago. Max Bentley, Percy Jones and the second game fighting part. This time today date—but the two fighting players better than $6,000 each, the loser more than $4,000 each, yet the Cubs of 1908 drew only $1,217 for the victor's share and the Tigers had to be content with a paltry $670, almost enough as an allotment would today for use of his name by a sheet writer.

But this series may not lack through the general regret of Detroit and Chicago, that there will be no chance to see scores with Cardinal Gas Dean and Pepper Martin, Louis, their conquerors last year. It more likely to be the interest of the background of former World series between the Tigers and Cubs.

Only one link with these days, Jennings' manager, remains to-day across the field remains it Charley Gehringer, the Tigers' veteran second base for the Tigers immediately after the 1908 series, one of the American League's outstanding players in the series.

To this baseball mad metropolis, where the Million champions of the American League live the gridiron's first baseball pennant winners over their daily name, the Tigers are quite naturally favorites to win the title.

GIBBARDS LOSE IN 12 INNINGS

Sandwich Scored Sixth Straight Win by Score of 9-8

Napanee, Oct. 1—(CP)—Scoring two runs in the twelfth inning and breaking a 7 to 7 tie, in the twelfth inning, Sandwich emerged a 9 to 8 victor over Napanee in the first game of the Ontario Amateur Association baseball play-off finals. The second game will be played here on Wednesday.

It was the sixth straight play-off victory for Sandwich. Joe Costigan, Moose Jaw baseball pitcher who received a no-hit performance at Copper Cliff in his first game, toiled throughout the game against Tommy Polster, local southpaw ace.

Polster sadly chalked up a season's strikeout record for play-off games by fanning back 21 of the batters with his fine left hand. He had one or more in every inning but the sixth. Starting the tenth with the score a 7-7, he fanned Chapman, Mann and Costigan in that order, and repeated on Malcohe, McMillan and Craig in the eleventh. He fanned Aitch, first up in the twelfth, to make it seven in a row.

Smith drew his third walk and Reaume singled cleanly to right to send Smith to third. Costigan and Wilson a difficult fly back on the grass and scored, and Reaume came after the catch. Wilson, off balance threw the ball into the Napanee dugout, however, and Reaume and Mass followed with his third hit.

Polster struck out Costigan for the fourth time to retire the side. Napanee scored its first runs in the fifth when Bentley led off with a hit over short. The visitors' infield was unable to field the ground balls of Wilson and Gibbard. Pointer scored two with a clean single to centre.

Sandwich went into the lead by scoring two in the sixth. Costigan's double, a walk to Craig and Smith's fourth consecutive hit, a single to Jack Gibbards went after Costigan to the seventh. After two walks, Costigan's double scored Smith with his safety. Brennan followed with a long fly to deep left that clinched it five-run rally that put Napanee four runs to the bad at the time.

The visitors came back in the next to tie the score. Walks to Bentley and Wilson followed by hits by Reaume, Chapman and Costigan did the trick.

Chilly weather affected the defensive work of both teams. Costigan pitched his way out of trouble from the seventh to the end. Polster, who pitched steady ball for seven innings, while Malcohe and Scarlett in relief, both had two doubles for the only extra-base hits. Above is the box score:

The wily Indian gained an unpopular decision over Hart last week when the 2,000 fans showed disapproval when the bout was awarded to the Redskin. Hart, fans also were impressed by the showing made by Irish Shamus Tracie, local wrestler, who meets Milan McGinn, Toronto middleweight in the opening bout at the Arena. For a semi-final bout the promoters have Jack Kogut and George Richards in a 45-minute bout. The Hart-Lyon main bout is the best two out of three falls over the hour limit.

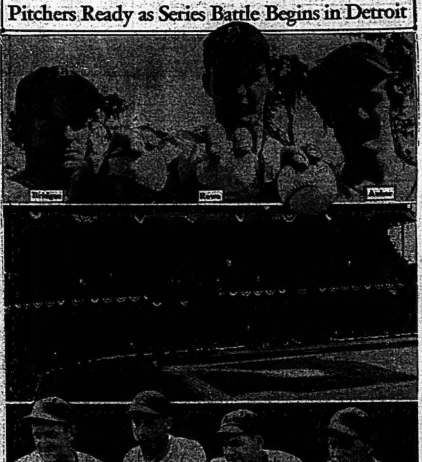
Thousands Wait For Tickets at Wrigley Field

Chicago, Oct. 1 (CP)—A thousand or more fans who wanted World series tickets but were not lucky enough to stay up all night out in the open, arose early today, formed long queues in the streets and even the sidewalk that Wrigley Field ticket booths, when at Wrigley Field ticket booths, when at 8 a.m. a long, orderly line of waiting, but most of the standees in the lines were equipped with blankets, food, thermos and other things intended to help the time pass more quickly. The opening of the wickets ended a 36-hour vigil for the numbers one until.



It was a friendly mob. Standees who had not taken or had run out of patience with the long wait fell in line in care of neighbors for the duration of the wait, while they were at nearby lunchrooms or purchased food.

All these patient souls were in line for the seats at $10.50 in strips of three and grand stand seats at $16.50 the set.

The line's only way where near-ever for the "line" in front of the stadium where the $1.10 seats will be sold. Art Folsch of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, to-day and early today in taking his stand Sept. 19, the day the Cubs won their 16th straight victory, and Harry P. Thomas, a Cub fan from Detroit, will have to wait on until Friday, when the bleacher sale opens.

They were pretty well fixed however, they had a pup tent, a radio and electric lamps along with a deal with policemen to shoot out each claim-jumpers as might appear, while they ate.

Pitchers, as usual, may be the deciding factor in the 1933 world series which opens at Navin Field, Detroit and moves on to Chicago after the first two games have been played.

Both managers, Mickey Cochrane of the Tigers and Charley Grimm of the Cubs, have selected their mound staffs, but will not announce their selections until just before the game. Cochrane will choose between Tommy Bridges, Schoolboy Rowe and Elden Auker are pictured above with a view of North Field, Detroit.

Grimm will choose between Lon Warneke, veteran Cub hurler, and Bill Lee, a recruit from the Pacific Coast league.

Both managers have said that they will not start a pitcher unless he is in the best of condition. Cochrane has indicated that he will start Tommy Bridges, veteran right-hander, in the first game at Detroit. Grimm has said that he will start Warneke in the first game at Chicago.

Cochrane: "I believe that the Cubs are the best team in baseball."

INTERLOCKING SCHEDULE UP

International Loop Proposes New Scheme For Eight Clubs

London, Ont., Oct. 1—(CP)—A proposal to divide the eight International Hockey League clubs into two divisions of four teams each in an interlocking schedule of sectional and international games has been advanced, Jack Anderson, president of London Tecumsehs, has requested John D. Kirk of Windsor, Ont., league president, to call a special meeting of league governors here Friday to consider the matter.

It was reported here, President Kirk favors a meeting here Friday instead of the scheduled meeting at Pittsburg later. Jack Anderson maintains Pittsburg should be officially granted a franchise before the question of drawing up a schedule is considered.

London, Detroit, Buffalo and Windsor may form one section if the plan goes through, with Pittsburg, Cleveland, Rochester and Syracuse in the other. Proponents of the plan claim club travelling expenses would be materially reduced with few long jumps in order the plan teams would play other in their own section more often than those in the other division.

DAY BY DAY

With the largest pre-sale of tickets for a wrestling bout ever known in Belleville, all roads lead in the Belleville Arena for tonight's all-star wrestling card. "We have procured sufficient additional ringside seats to take care of the unusual crowd, that has been indicated," stated the attendants at the Arena this afternoon. The promoters have advertised 25 free tickets for the show to be given to the holders of the lucky program numbers and all is in readiness for the big show. Of course the feature attraction of the night is the main bout, a return grudge fight between Frankie Hart and Count Lyon, the ferocious Mama Reserve Indian, who gave Hart an unmerciful beating last week, much to the chagrin of the patrons of the show. Then again the fans are interested in learning how much Irish Steve Taylor, the local wrestler trained to defeat last week. Taylor is matched with a fellow country-man, Mike McGuire (no relation to Mickey McGuire). The semi-final bout is on a par with the other two as it brings two stars of note together. George Richards, the Jewish dancer, and Jack Kogut, be of the return grudge match between Hart and the pugnacious Indian is the centre of attraction.

Directly on the heels of the wrestling bout comes the opening of the inter-city season, when Present Glen Allen, of the Present-Hayes A.C., presents the second inter-city card. Last spring the Belleville boxers defeated the city card that brought together Ottawa and Belleville boxers in the finals, and the card was decided nearly the best ever staged in Belleville. Tuesday night's card is a par-Belleville inter-city card is as a par the one staged last spring, and the two would not hesitate in recommending a whole show. It is a matter of fact Present Allen feels he has a better all around show than the Ottawa-Belleville card. They have such outstanding boys as Mel Hennessy, ex-Belleville champion, Billy Handy, Frankie A.C., Jack Rayner, who was a champion in the Belleville elimination and Pee Wee Pease, flyweight of the city. Allen stated "we intend to stand local boys" stated Glen as he handed us in the pass and it will be a battle to the finish." "It's a natural," he says.

Ernie Gilbard's Napanee Intermediates ran into an attack yesterday, when the Sandwich nine downed the Gilbardsmen by a 9 to 8 score in 12 inning struggle. The only chining light of the entire pastime was the steady hurling of Tommy Polster, who allowed only 10 hits and struck out 21 batsmen. Tommy Polster was slightly shaky in the middle innings, but settled away to pitch masterful ball for the seventh until the twelfth. In the ninth, tenth and eleventh Polster retired the side via the strikeout route, but it was started in trouble in the 12th and followed by Wilson's wild throw that let two runs in score. In the third overtime frame, as he threw to the batsmen one-by-one, with the third out the second of Costigan, Sandwich's pitcher of no hit fame, toiled on the hilltop for the winners and pitched steady ball throughout. Costigan did not strike out nearly as many opposing batsmen as Polster, but the pitcher he repeatedly made the Napanee batsmen hit for easy outs. Two runs down, Napanee staged a rally in their half of the 12th to score a run and had the tying and winning run on the base pathe as Manager Gilbard struck out to retire the side, out of the game. The second game of the intermediate O.B.A.A. finals will be played in Napanee on Wednesday afternoon. Yesterday's game was played in fairly extreme cold weather in evidence.

The sporting fraternity is vitally interested in the World's Series this year many different opinions being heard in the game. The series opens to-day with the first two games being played in Detroit, starting between Manager Cochrane supplying his hopes on pitcher Lon Warneke, while Manager Mickey Cochrane will send his ace "Schoolboy" Rowe to hilltop, so by the two managers today. Navin Field at Detroit will house about 50,000 fans for the classic, while Wrigley Field at Chicago can accommodate about ten thousand more. Advance notices are to the effect that a sell-out has been registered in both cities.

For the benefit of those failing to observe the list of lucky program numbers published yesterday, we have been asked by the Arena management to republish the list of numbers, the holders of which will be given free ringside seats for tonight's all-star wrestling bouts at the Arena. The numbers selected were: 27, 49, 91, 156, 301, 399, 337, 459, 467, 502, 511, 602, 761, 809, 872, 1000,1080, 1131, 1294, 1373, 1393, 1395, 1454 and 1475.

"Mike" J. Bodden sports editor of the Toronto Globe has the following to say regarding Joe Louis' family tree—"Joseph, negro and Indian blood—that is the combination in the veins of Joe Louis, the great Detroit piece of boxing machinery developed in a long time. He's Joe Louis Barrow in his own right. He was born Joseph Louis Barrow in the Rockaway Mountain county of Alabama, where he spent the first ten years of his life, that is to say twenty half of his existence.

The Barrow part of the family name goes back to James Barrow, a wealthy land-owner and. It is said, owner of hundreds of slaves before the United States Civil War. His was great-grandfather of he lad who today is termed the unconvered heavyweight champion of the world. Joe Louis' blood is Cherokee from "away back when." Victoria Harp Barrow, grandmother of the current boxing sensation, was a descendant of Charles Hunkford, a Cherokee chieftain of whom many stories are included in Indian lore.

Louis, who made his reputation while a Detroit resident, lost it when he went to become one of Ottawa's citizens, still has first cousins in the Sandwich district of his ancestors.

It takes all kinds of people to make a world, and the white intermingling of three races to produce a man who appears destined to lift the roof off of the clubhouse. At least Louis will help the sport to knock the roof completely to extend him can be found."

CHICAGO CUBS VOTE SHARES

26 1-2 Full Shares Given at Club Meeting

Chicago, Oct. 1 (AP)—They don't count the finger at the 1933 Chicago Cubs and call them "stingy" because of their World Series melon shares.

Remembering the lassis of New York Yankees last year, when they failed to give full shares to a couple of pitchers, the Cubs, who met in their clubhouse today and voted 26½ full shares of their 1933 World Series melon.

With Captain Woody English in charge, they gave full shares to 25 players, counting Manager Charlie Grimm as a player. Others did not receive full shares. Coaches Roy Johnson and Johnny Corriden, Trainer Andy Lotshaw and Traveling Secretary Bob Lewis were voted a half share, and a half-share was voted to Clyde Sheun, rookie pitcher from Birmingham, who joined the club late in the season and pitched a total of 12 3-3 innings.

Even the clubhouse and batboys were cut in. Joe Berardi, clubhouse boy, was voted $1,000, Eddie Shapiro, batboy, was voted $600, and the assistant clubhouse boy got $500.

Under Harris' management this year the Senators finished in sixth place in the American League.

Perhaps it's his wedding just before the bout, perhaps it's his fourth-round knockout of Max Baer in the Yankee Stadium ring, or perhaps it's the fat purse he garnered as his share of the prize money, but anyway here is Joe Louis really smiling. It's a relief to see him smile—he's so deadly in earnest in the ring that it's positively painful—especially for his opponent.

Harlem Celebrates

Joe Louis, the negro youth who came out of Alabama, via Detroit, with the appleton "Brown Bomber" is the idol of his race; so what more natural than a celebration of his sensational knockout victory over the great Livermore Lobbario, Max Baer. That is just how Harlem celebrated the occasion — and we see here a bus-load of celebrants riding through Harlem, and making the well-known welkin resound to their enthusiasm.

Eagle-American Merger Rumored As Hockey Pot Starts Boiling

FEW PLAYER TRADES DURING OFF-SEASON

—MINOR LEAGUE CHANGES LIKELY

By W. M. CLARKE
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer.

Toronto, Oct. 1.—The hockey cauldron will start to boil over when the N.H.L. executives conclude their gathering on Tuesday at the major league meeting, to set the big task in order for the 1935-36 campaign. Many of the problems have been solved over the past two months, however, and the session will take off as speedily as a well-oiled football because of the new rules governing the game.

The complete package, it is expected, is that the Ottawa Senators, Leaf castoffs will formally pass out of the picture, after three mighty years, and will be replaced by the New York Americans, thus tending to make the "America" once more standing. This is expected to be the big announcement at the meeting of N.H.L. owners to serve as the publicity broadside for the revival of hockey in the States.

With the shifting of New York's rivals to the Rangers by the absorption of the ragged Maple Leafs, the N.H.L. will automatically restore itself to eight clubs, divided into two equal sections. The Canadian group will comprise Toronto Maple Leafs, Montreal Canadiens of Montreal and the N.Y. Americans. It is believed that the United States section will include Chicago, Detroit, Rangers and Boston. All teams are to play an equal number of games with other clubs this time.

Draft Trading Season

The finding of the Eagles with the Americans will also close out an extremely dull period of player shuffling. Apart from the appointment of "Red" Dutton as manager of the Americans in succession to Shingler, and the recent handing of Sylvio Mantha as pilot of Canadiens after the latter had been purchased by Ernie Savard of the Montreal Maroon Club, the only big news in N. H. L. circles for weeks and weeks was the exchange of "Cooney" Weiland and Walter Buswell of Detroit Red Wings for Marty Barry and Art. Gibson of the Boston Bruins. The N.H.L. annual should be the signal for a boom on the hockey player mart, however.

Changes in Minor Loops

Rochester and Pittsburg are not actually into the International League as yet and the annual meeting may not develop into an eight-club affair at all. The trouble is that Rochester hasn't an ice rink while the present clubs are looking askance at the mileage to Pittsburg. The only actual change so far in the International has been the return of Frank Neighbor as coach of the Buffalo Bisons after a sojourn with the London Tecumsehs. Neighbor brought four tilties to the Bisons, practically all in successive years before he fell out with the then owner.

In the Canadian-American Hockey Association there has been one important development with the transfer of Quebec Bears to Springfield, Mass., where they will automatically become the "Indians."

The amateur hockey situation appears to be in for a stretch of turmoil—even more trouble than that which marked the activities of last season. Players have been migrating to the United Kingdom in dozens while others have taken up residence in the United States. Already Canadian and English officials have held a conference in a move to regulate the traffic and the claim is made that many of the pick-chasers who have gone to England may find themselves out of luck, in much the same way as the tourists who established themselves in the maritime provinces one year ago. In any event, the clubs of Ontario and western Canada are filling themselves greatly weakened right now.

Many Amateur Emigries

Among the amateur organizations, the outstanding surprise has been the transfer of Coach "Red Stuart of the Halifax Wolverines to the Wood Mine seniors in the Nickel Belt Hockey League of northern Ontario. With Stuart having piloted the Halifax Nines to the Allan Cup and the Canadian senior title last April, it might have been thought that he would stick with the club but still it had made its bid for the Olympic title in Germany next February. The only suggestion is that he saw a break - up of the Wolverines shortly team before the opening of the playing season.

In the Intercollegiate hockey picture, Toronto Varsity frankly gets a distinct break in the appointment of Irvin "Ace" Bailey, former Leaf star, as coach of the senior squad in succession to Warren Stevens of Upward pass fame in football. The former Syracuse grid star made a dismal failure as a hockey tutor during the past two seasons, frankly because he had never previously known the ice sport. The answer was that Varsity only tied one game in the senior O.H.A., lost all other fixtures and did not complete its schedule last winter. Even at that time there was a cry for a new coach and now the Blues have a real one in Bailey.

One important step in junior O.H.A. ranks has been the appointment of Happy Day of the Toronto Maple Leafs as mentor of the West Toronto Beau Jacks which is already being touted as the club to beat for the Memorial Cup. The Toronto suburbanites made a good run for it in the O. H. A. playdown last spring and the same boys are now a year older, or will be when the 1936 tests roll around. The Kitchener Juniors also look good but the Sudbury Cub Wolves, who lost out in the last cup game at Winnipeg will probably be nowhere this time because they have lost all but two players through age graduations.

When Winnipeg Sprang Surprise By Defeating Sarnia

The Blue and Gold Winnipegs from the Manitoba metropolis sprang something of a surprise when they took the Sarnia Imperials's powerful machine into camp to register the only defeat against the champion Imperials in the pre-season series. The Winnipegs beat the Sarnians 3-1 to serve notice to all and sundry that they must be reckoned with in the 1935 Dominion rugby wars. The rebuilt Manitobans had a commanding lead in backfield play and their line resisted the best efforts launched by the Sarnia's steam rollers. They block-

FRANK DEMAREE

Here we have righthanded Bill Lee, who in his second year with the Chicago Cubs earned himself a place as a starting pitcher and has proved himself a tough hurler to beat. Lee's pitching has been an important factor in the Cub's rush to the top with an unprecedented string of straight wins, and Manager Grimm is depending on him to supply some hurling strength when the Cubs face Tigers in the world series. At the RIGHT is one of the Chicago big guns, set for firing. Frank Demaree, who had a great swing upward in batting ability when he was shifted from centre to right field, has done such yeoman service at the plate that veteran sluggers like Cuyler and Klein have been kept on the bench. Demaree swings righthanded.

2,000,000 MEN MAY BE MOBILIZED

Addis Ababa, Sept. 30.— (AP)—Emperor Haile Selassie was prepared tonight for a general mobilization of approximately 2,000,000 fighting men.

All that remained in the way of such action was to determine from representatives in Geneva whether the League of Nations would fail in efforts to prevent an Italian attack.

The Government was kept busy issuing official denials of unfounded rumors. Among the rumors denied was the general mobilization would be Tuesday or Wednesday.

SINISTER SHADOW

by JOHN GOODWIN

"At 9.30 on the morning of the 6th, you found, Mr. Bannister, Cooke's body in the Devil's Elbow section and position."

Howe did so. His statement was tersely confirmed.

Photographs were produced, enlargements of them taken by Doctor Crisp. They showed in outstanding detail Cooke's body lying on the track, the arms extended, the sodden riding-boots over the black dress-trousers, the black incense of stocking-pleater on the dead white hand, the dreadful ruin of the head. Peculiarly horrible and yet fascinating were these pictures; the jury, indeed, as they examined them.

Another photograph showed the sheer thirty-foot cliff of the railway cutting from which the dead man had fallen, the broken strand of the wire fence hanging loose above, outlined against the sky.

"Your investigations were made at the time and on the spot, sergeant?" said Stanforth. His wife broken. You concluded that Mr. Cooke's body broke its fall?"

"Yes."

Step by step Howe's answers, through Stanforth's skilled questioning, drew for the jury a vivid picture of the struggle between Bannister and his unnamed assailant on the brink of the railway cutting; as Howe had given it at the inquest, but sharper, clearer still.

The evidence was based on the hoof-frenzied tracks of Bannister's horse, the dug-in heel marks of the opponent on roof who had caught the horse by the bridle, hauling Cooke out of the saddle and flinging him down the steep slope on to the line.

Howe added no comments to his replies. He answered only the questions Stanforth put to him, curtly and formally.

"No other explanation occurs to you sergeant?"

"None."

"You had the doctor's declaration that the jury will hear him presently—that deceased's neck was broken by that fall?"

"Yes."

"And that he was dead when the train passed over him?"

"Yes. How long he had been I will not say."

"Not being a doctor, but a police-man, we will keep to the subjects on which you are expert, shall we say? These heel-marks on the brink of the cliff, sergeant. Were they the only footprints you found in the neighborhood of the body?"

"There were other footprints—three hundred yards away."

"Footprints?"

"By the old shed in the mine gully, further along the line. Two marks of crepe-soled shoes; in soft chalky soil close to the shed wall and under the eaves: the only place sheltered from the rain that fell that night."

"You say, sergeant, that these shoes were?"

"James Selby's. Selby, when he left the house that night, were crepe-soled house shoes. All had rubber soles; Mr. Cooke required his servants to move silently."

"We will not discuss Mr. Cooke's tastes, or the rules of his household. Could Selby's shoes have made the tracks left by that man who accompanied Mr. Cooke on the brink of the cliff?"

"No. Those were made by sharp leather heels, deeply dug in."

"Could they have been made by the man Barber, who we shall hear, was presumably at the mine that night?"

"Barber, on the night of the 8th, wore sailor's rubber boots."

"Which, having soft heels, would not have bitten deep into hard, turf? You agree, sergeant?"

"Certainly," said Howe.

The tracks of the man who flung Bannister Cooke over the cutting, were neither Selby's nor Barber's. That is definite. Now, before proceeding with Barber any further, why did you, Sergeant Howe, when you searched it?"

"A bench of keys," replied Howe; Cooke's desk keys, his signet ring, and a smashed watch that had stopped at 10.4. Stanforth questioned him closely about the watch.

"The dead man lay face downwards; the watch was in his vest pocket, which resting on the sharp edge of the timber "tie" to which the metals of the railroad track were bolted.

"At what time," asked Stanforth, "did that night express, which travelled over those metals on which the body lay, pass that spot. You ascertained this?"

At 10.07, according to the sight-man at King's Elm, a man who checked the train through at 10.08; the speed was approximately sixty per hour; the distance one mile."

"It follows, therefore, that the body lay on the metals three minutes before the express passed along them—assuming, that the watch was stopped and broken by the fall. It was not until later, that you discovered that there were other things amiss?"

"Later on the same day."

"At the time, on your first discovery of the body—which had been examined before you arrived—you know nothing about Barber?"

"Nothing, except that he was lodging in the Pig Dog Inn at King's Elm."

"When you searched the body, Mr. Cooke's groom Ted West, was with you? Did he tell you about the quarrel between Mr. Cooke and the defendant, the night before, and Miss Sonia Neil, that very morning?"

"Yes."

"Did you, after examining the body, go to the Ring O'Bells Inn?"

"Yes. Did you find there?"

"Miss Sonia Neil."

"Alone?"

"Yes."

"She established the defendant's alibi? Did you ask her where Challenges was?"

Gardner rose.

"Mr. Granger, may save himself the trouble of objecting," said Stanforth boldly, "if I submit at the outset that any statement the defendant's wife made to a police officer may be admitted here and heard by the jury, whether she be called or not?"

"Certainly, said the judge.

"Provided that the statement was definitely made to an officer of the law."

"I am perfectly content with that," said Granger coolly. "But I submit that the state counsel should confine himself to the evidence and not try to put his comments into the mouth of the witness. There should be a limit!"

"Mr. Granger eats himself now!" retorted Stanforth. The judge smoothed the dispute over with a brief caution. These two giants of the bar, fighting for a verdict, took liberties that no junior would have dared take.

Howe, replying to the questions which were heard, on his own written report to Inspector Fyvie, gave Sonia's statement in full. It was made public for the first time. It appeared to clear—if it was true—that Chalmers could not possibly have been at the Stanbury mine or near it, on the night Cooke met his death. It was backed only by the evidence of Mary Stubbings.

To Sonia's version of the quarrel, to her story of the interview with Samuel Barber, his presence on the ship, his appearance at the window of the inn, the jury listened intently, and in dead silence.

"So," said Stanforth, "it was after Sonia Neil, who, on hearing that Bannister Cooke was dead, first put you on to this man Barber?"

"Miss Neil did not suggest that it was Barber who killed Cooke," replied Howe, "if you mean that."

"Did that idea enter your brain, sergeant, at the time? That Barber had killed Cooke?"

"No," said Howe quietly. "It did not."

"What measures did you take concerning Barber?"

Howe described his tracing of Barber's record, and his movements. Howe came very well out of that.

"Barber, you found, had a previous convict," said Stanforth, "was afterwards known as far as Elm?"

"That is so."

"In fact, on the man disappeared completely within an hour of Mr. Cooke's death, so far as you know. Nothing seen or heard of him from that night on?"

"Except the recovery of his oil-skin jacket, three days later," said Howe.

"It is in court now. We shall come to it. Now, keeping for the moment to one vital date, October 8th, the day following Cooke's death. What time did Brian Chalmers return there?"

"Seven o'clock, that evening."

"You had no account of him, we have heard, from Miss Sonia Neil and from Mary Stubbings, the landlord's daughter?"

"Yes."

Stanforth leaned forward.

"I will put this question to Brian Chalmers! You understand? The room last night at 9.35 with Miss Neil; are you sure you didn't leave it before eleven?"

"Yes," in those words."

"What did the prisoner answer?"

"He said: 'After eleven . . . two or three hours after.'"

"If that meant anything, it meant that he was at the time of Cooke's death in the neighborhood of the Stanbury mine, near the place where Bannister Cooke was found dead?"

"I did not ask Mr. Chalmers that."

The state counsel put his hands behind his back.

"How long have you been in your present post, Sergeant Howe?"

"Five years."

"On routine duties. I presume. Not, hitherto, in charge of a case, or a murder hunt?"

"A little unusual too for a provincial sergeant to be left in charge of a murder hunt, even for six days? You turned the hunt upon Barber and the Selbys, accepting without question Chalmers' alibi which was vouched for only by that one witness. That your reasons?"

"That," said Howe, "was the reason."

Stanforth shrugged his shoulders.

"Mr. Cooke was flung on to the railway track," said Stanforth heavily, "were neither Selby's nor Barber's. Chalmers returned to the inn, did you notice his clothes?"

"Yes."

"What boots was he wearing then?"

"Thick, brown walking shoes."

"With rubber heels?"

"Leather soles and heels."

"Could they have made those deep heel-prints left by the man who flung Cooke over the cutting, and therefore sent him to his death? Thinking it over in the light of your investigations, is that your opinion now?"

"Yes. That is my opinion now," said Howe.

Amid a murmur of excitement, Stanforth sat down.

Granger walked a second or two till the murmur had died, and resumed his examination.

"Referring for a moment or two to Barber or the line, Sergeant Howe," he said confidentially, "in the two pocket you found the dead man's watch, broken and stopped at 10.4. Now, a train passed along the down line that night. The fast express at 10.7. If he was lying on the track at 10.4, that was the train that struck him and crushed the head of Mr. Cooke from minutes interval, as the state counsel so intelligently observed?"

"Yes sir."

"Anything on the engine wheels to show that was the train?"

"No. No trace on the wheels of any of the four trains."

"Nothing to prove he was lying on the metals when that train came along? Nothing to show that? All we know at present it that it stopped at 10.4."

"Nothing more than that."

"But somebody had searched the body, before you found it?"

"Undoubtedly."

"Would it not have been possible for the person who searched it, finding the watch, to set the time back from whatever it might be to 10.4; then smash it? Before you and your men were found it—in the dead man's vest pocket? To mislead the police—it deceive them or, rather, so as to the actual time of death?"

"It is not merely possible," replied Howe, "it is exactly what he did do."

"Did it deceive you?"

"No."

"It did not suppose it would. Why are you so sure that he did this? Because his finger-prints were on the watch?"

"No. Because there were no finger-prints on it whatever."

Political Issues Canvassed At Nominations at Marmora

Three Candidates And Three Supporters Address Electors

INTEREST IS KEEN

Marmora, Sept. 30—(Special)—At 2 p.m. Monday, Sept. 30th, the official nomination of candidates for the riding of Hastings-Peterborough was held in the Marmora Town Hall for the election of standing for election on October 14th.

Dr. Abel Thomas Embury, physician, Belleville.

Judson Armstrong Gunter, lumberman, Bancroft.

W. E. Bradshaw, Norwood, Returning Officer for the Riding, called the meeting to order and declared the three mentioned as candidates duly qualified in the coming election.

Mr. J. C. Neal, reeve of Marmora Township, was elected chairman.

Dr. A. T. Embury

Dr. A. T. Embury, ex-M.P., was the first speaker to mount the platform. Dr. Embury mentioned this was the fourth time he had had the pleasure of accepting the Conservative nomination, and was prouder today of the Party than ever had been any time in the past. The old Party with which have always served the people of Canada in the past, through good times and bad times, through war and peace, and now being attacked down by a third Party which is trying to make a scrap-able economic depression as a bell to blow its true, unobtainable and accomplishments of the present Governmental Party which, had they been entrusted under different circumstances would have won the acclaim of all the Dominion people.

"Tariff," said Dr. Embury, "is being used as a political football. When Mr. Bennett came home from the Canadian Trade was cut off more than three times as much as ever was before. The C.N. Railways which had not met their interest fixed attacks from the Opposition, were then a disgrace and the soldiers' pensions, great sources of political promises and feelings were being administered in a way to create manner. "Mr. Bennett has applied himself to each and every one of these worries from day to day. In spite of the allegations we find these trade being abandoned and consideration shown, as never before."

Dr. Embury then thanked the audience and amidst much heckling and many interruptions retired to his seat.

Rourke Ferguson

Mr. Rourke Ferguson, Liberal candidate was the next called. Mr. Ferguson was given a great ovation, his speech being interrupted often by loud clappings and cheers from his supporters. In a brief address, Mr. Ferguson stated that conditions were very much the same today, as when the great Sir Wilfred Laurier came into power in 1896. As every one could easily see prices were not going to be compared with those of 1930. To-day the farmer said for his wheat he had received as much for $1.00 under the Liberal administration.

"Speaking of tariffs," remarked Mr. Ferguson, "why should we refuse to trade with our neighbours and make the farmer suffer. Take 1929 in Canada today are higher than they have ever been but the history of the country regardless of the attitude of the majority and the international good-will."

Judson A. Gunter

Mr. Judson A. Gunter, introducing to the audience the party of the time, Mr. Stevens stated that there is no reference from both the former speakers outlined the birth of the party and the cause and reasons which led up to its being founded. Mr. Gunter declared that without any assistance from monied sources the Party has won out of past sales, Mr. Stevens would put the country right, disclaiming any connection with the Conservative Party, Mr. Gunter maintained. The Reconstruction party would fight for the people only with the interest of the common person uppermost in mind.

Major Bedford

Major Bedford, Conservative candidate for North Hastings, then took the platform and gave a fine exposition of the Conservative policies, being very pointed in his reference to the new party. He called on the two old parties who had served the country since confederation had provided each other with the same opposition and each had worthy traditions to look back and live up to.

W. A. Fear, Ex-M.P.

"You have just listened to the best liberal speech of the day" were the words with which W. A. Fear, ex-M.P. and Liberal candidate for Northumberland, introduced himself to the audience, referring to his friend his political enemy Major Bedford. Mr. Fraser argued with and rebuked heckling as he described two parties as "the right and left wing" of what he had known as the way party. Speaking at length on the King policies, he ridiculed and dismissed those of the opposition parties. An invitation to the back guard was his response to an insistent heckler as he retired to his seat amidst cheers of approval from his supporters.

John R. Bennett, Ex-M.P., a veteran of the Conservative party and for 13 years M. P. for East Peterboro, next took the platform in support of the Stevens candidature. Mr. Bennett stood the fire of questions unperturbed and asserted that his experience as a politician, he had observed both old parties catering to the big money interests.

The meeting was given an short period in answer statements made by his opponents after which the meeting was closed with the National Anthem.

HOWEY MINE SUPT VISITS CITY

Robert Bassermann in Four Years After College Reaches Coveted Post

To enter one of Canada's largest teenage mines after graduation from college (as a shift boss) and to be, in short space of four years from the smallest position as mine superintendent has been the happy experience of a young man who has been visiting in the city for the past few days, Mr. Robert Bassermann, of the Howey Gold Mine in the Red Lake District and with his wife has been visiting Mrs. Bassermann's mother, Mrs. Jas. Cunningham, 213 Front Street for the past week.

This morning Mr. Bassermann gave a short interview to the Ontario Intelligencer but as he had to leave on the noon train for Montreal and was somewhat constant to give out much information about himself it was not possible to get many details of his experience.

Prior to his attendance at Queen's he spent some time working with different mining companies of Northern Ontario which proved very valuable to him both when he was at college and after his graduation when he went with the Canadian Malartic Co. in Northern Montreal and attended Queen's Institute of McGill as one of the lecturers who was a graduate of the Montreal school. It was while he was doing this with the minimum of expenses and the co-operation of students occurring to miners who were residing in the area, that he being taken from the thousand foot level and up at present although he had shaft to the approximately eighteen hundred feet. The ore runs about three and a half dollars and the mine and the above length is twelve hundred feet long. The ore runs about three and a half dollars at present gold price, while milling costs are a little over two dollars.

Mr. Bassermann attributes much of the low cost of milling to the mine manager Mr. Pattinor who was formerly connected with some of the large copper mining companies working in Chile, South America.

The Howey Mine lies about one hundred miles north of Hudson and Great Lookout on the Transcontinental northwest of Port Arthur. However, the water route is one hundred and seventy miles and includes four portages. Two hundred and twenty-five men are employed at the mine and quite a little town of nine hundred people is located on the shores of Red Lake which is quite a size being twenty-five miles in length and is a fine canoe and pickerel. Mr. Bassermann does not care greatly for fishing but said that the average size trout was around six and seven pounds and very rarely does any go under and not return with a good catch.

The town boasts of a talkie theatre with programs changing twice a week, two hotels—one a forty thousand dollar one just completed and a power plant. The mail planes call every day so that they have daily communication hundreds of miles away from any centre of population.

It is fourteen months since Mr. Bassermann has been away from his work an that he is now enjoying a well-earned holiday before returning to his work which he so evidently enjoys and in which he has been eminently successful.

Demaree, Smashing Homer Into Stands in Ninth Frame

By ALLAN GOULD
Associated Press Editor

Navin Field, Detroit, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Under cloudy skies and in a more or less chilly setting, sharp pitching and fielding with the riotous finish to the ball were given here, the Detroit Tigers and the Chicago Cubs renewed an old baseball argument today.

Upwards of 48,000 fans, apparently filling the park, turned out for the opening game of the 1935 championship series despite cold and sheet, intermittent rain. They saw Lon Warneke, the Arkansas Hummingbird, baffle the Tigers with four hits and no runs, and they saw Gabby Hartnett, the Cub catcher and manager, hit a mighty home run, fiery leader of the home club.

The start of the game was delayed a few minutes by a protracted conference between managers and umpires at the plate. Ground rules were discussed, a hurried inspection made of the field, a relief crew put in front of the right field bleachers and temporary seating to take their seats from the railings in front of the field boxes. Finally agreement was reached on the ground rules applied in the case of all most points and the game was on.

Rowe struck out, Warneke to Cavarretta. Three left in order. Cubs scored in the first inning on a double by Galan, a long drive to the right field corner. Galan scored on a single by Hartnett. 'Meet War With War' Il Duce Tells Italy; Doubts Sanctions Used

Emperor Will Proclaim General Mobilization on Thursday

PROTEST TO LEAGUE

Clash is Reported Between Italians and Native Ethiopian Tribes

Rome, Oct. 2 (AP)—Benito Mussolini, Premier of Italy and Fascist Leader, today pledged his nation to meet force with force and to be exempt to sanctions "with discipline."

"War," he said, "would be met with war." He told his listeners that he did not believe "real French" or "genuine British" would execute sanctions against Italy.

"We will take pretext. To economic sanctions we will reply with the discipline of our people. To military ones, we will reply with military action."

Mussolini said that the League "instead of recognizing Italy's rights, talks sanctions." He spoke of the "real French" he said:

"I refuse to believe that the genuine fictions will associate themselves with sanctions to protest a barbarous people."

Senator Salvatore Sichee, the French Premier Mussolini told his millions of fervent followers that "a solemn hour is at hand in Italy's history."

That made the declaration by the multitudes of Italians assembled in all their cities and villages—the vast, well-ordered throngs of speakers which conveyed their inflection to the expectant thousands.

A few hours before Il Duce began his speech, Emperor Victor Emmanuel of Ethiopia decided to the League of Nations that Italian troops already had crossed his frontiers.)

MOIRA CHAPTER WELCOMES SUPT

Revival Forecasts Interest In Fraternal Organizations

Moira Chapter No. 7 Royal Arch Masons, the oldest, and one of the outstanding units of Prince Edward District, board last evening Right Excellent Companion C. D. Kenny, Grand Superintendent of the district, welcome on his official visit and the confident hope that during the coming year it would experience a great revival in Masonry. As all fraternal meetings in these times the attendance was not as large as it should have been and this condition prompted the Grand Superintendent to remark that a great deal of stress is laid on the depression but he wondered if that after all was the real cause of the diminished interest in fraternalism. "We realize that Masonry is suffering not only from the depression but also from the rival attractions in the radio in the home, in the excellent class entertainment, of the high moving pictures, the rapidity moving motor car and in the dancing parties for the young people. I am well aware of the fact that other orders have experienced greater losses.

"I feel that once some of these have spent their force, Masonry will rehabilitate itself."

Speaking about the future of the fraternal order, the grand superintendent said: "It is the duty of Masons to visit the well as well as the sick members. So it is in the fourth degree that you must make your appeal. The work of the degree has been fine, splendid, but in the fourth degree there is the infinite possibility of friendship. What we need is not more members in Masonry but more Masons in the members."

Rt. Rt. Companion Herity made a brief reference to the anticipated of the chapter house of Masonry in Belleville. No. 8 Chapter was formed here in the year 1797 as Hiram Friendship Chapter, and it continued for six years. After it ceased to function, there was no chapter in Belleville until May 7th, 1856, when Moira Chapter No. 7 was established.

It was also interesting to note he said, that Belleville was the strongest Masonic city in Canada on the basis of membership. Companion Harold McBrinsh, Music, he said, was the feature in the initiation in life which had vast possibilities both in the moral and social development.

The members of the orchestra made no remuneration for their services at this time to music for his charm and its possibilities. Just before the meeting closed the toast was proposed by Comp. Harper McBrinsh, the orchestra, piano and violin selections were also dedicated to the Grand Superintendent.

Most Excellent Companion W. N. Ponton who could not remain for the meeting owing to a previous call spoke briefly but feelingly of the passing of one of the greatest Companions in the district, Comp. Ampthill, who held an honorary membership in the Canadian fraternity. He referred to the fact that just three weeks before he died Comp. Ampthill had been the means of tribute to another great British Mason who had just passed away, a song he pronounced his own eulogy," said Rt. Hon. Comp. Ponton, "and the sentiments of those men whom the order had "loved long since and lost awhile."

The Past Grand Z. read a few words which he had been requested to compose in memory of Lord Ampthill on his association with the Canadian Masonic order.

Rt. Comp. L. C. Patrick, past grand principal, occupied the chair in the lodge and at the banquet in the absence of Rt. Comp J. Barber, Grand Z. Letters and addresses were made by Rt. Comp. Victor Cook, Rt. Comp. G. R. Thompson, Rt. Rt Comp. W. T. McKenzie, former grand superintendent, Rt. Comp. Wm. Thompson, Rt. Comp. Mont. Barlow.

In the lodge room the Marked Master's degree was exemplified.

SAY CARETAKER DISARMED MAN

Provincial Constable Price Morris of Bancroft reported to headquarters yesterday an act of violence on the part of a caretaker of a number of cottages at Bancroft. Constable Morris, when he is alleged to have disarmed two suspicious characters, one of whom, he stated, carried a revolver, when he found them upon the property and in a camp not owned by them. Unfortunately he had not the caretaker or the names of the men taken in custody by the caretaker were not transmitted to the officer in full. It was stated that the men are being held in jail at Bancroft and will appear in court on Thursday.

Information reported to the Provincial Police was to the effect that the caretaker on the same round-up disarmed a number of summer homes, owned by United States citizens, came upon two men, who were allegedly ransacking one of the cottages. It is understood he entered the cottage and faced them, revolver with the warning to "throw up his hands." The caretaker instead of acquiescing to the demand leaped at the one carrying the gun and disarmed him and then, after a brief struggle made them prisoners, the officer said.

It takes more than good food to make dining truly pleasant. A cozy place, . . . a pleasant setting . . . and a real meal . . . all to be found here at any time.

BANNER WAVES DESPITE SNIPS

Mr. Laurie Lewis, well known Front Street merchant and Reconstruction party candidate for the riding of South Hastings, had the election admitted with a sigh today that he was carrying on his campaign under difficulties.

Chief among these today, it was pointed out was the fact that the guy ropes of a wide advertising banner stretched across Front Street from above his store to the club rooms opposite was being snipped with a pair of scissors in the hands of a female tenant occupying the quarters from which the banner was strung.

Placed in position after he had obtained permission from the city engineer and the owner of the building, one end of the banner's ropes were quickly snipped by the tenant who objected to its presence. The banner fluttered sotily to the ground impeding traffic on the city's main street temporarily.

Loyal workers rallied with ladders and repaired the damage. Again the ropes were cut.

Police were called by the candidate. They surveyed the situation and stroked their chins thoughtfully. One lone constable took up a position on the nearby corner.

PICTON HEARS DENTON MASSEY

Declares Hepburn Gov't Added 65,000 to Unemployed Lists

Picton, Oct. 2—Three thousand jammed Picton armouries yesterday afternoon to hear Denton Massey, Conservative organizer for Ontario, speak on behalf of George J. Tustin, the Conservative candidate for Prince Edward-Lennox, whom Mr. Massey addressed as the great agriculturist, as the next member of Parliament for this riding."

The meeting, the largest to be held here in years, was a most orderly gathering and was ably presided over by H. D. Cleaniew of Wellington. Every part of Prince Edward County was represented with many present from Napanee and district. The platform was a bower of beauty, the ladies having furnished twenty baskets of flowers.

Mr. Massey flew to Picton, his plane landed on the bay. Immediately following his speech, which he left for Deseronto, speaking there at 7.45, then later at Napanee and finally at Kingston. These four addresses in one day bring his talks since January to over 400, yet his voice showed little ill effects.

"I congratulate you on having a candidate such as Mr. Tustin, a man of all round ideals, sterling character and principles. He is a man who realizes that there is more to the election than the mere getting elected on. He realizes that to be a representative of this county entails responsibilities, you may have every confidence in Mr. Tustin as your representative," said Mr. Massey. Prolonged applause followed.

Attacks Billboards

A stirring part of the meeting came when Mr. Massey referred to billboard outside of the armouries which read "vote for Kelso and restore the trade Bennett and Sterling lost." "That billboard is a thundered Mr. Massey amid applause, and went on to show that markets were closed to Canada before the Conservatives came into power. "The Liberals lost the markets, Bennett found new ones." The speaker dramatically challenged the Liberals to get up and back this statement. (Cheers).

Thousands Discharged

Mr. Massey dealt with the record of the Bennett government, holding his audience spell-bound. His references to the thousands of men discharged from the C.N.R. and the added road workers, elicited cheers. In alluding he declared Mr. John M. Macdonald, one of the Liberal candidates, was "a good fellow, but he's misled."

A speaker who held his audience's closest attention and brought forth evidence of applause was Frank of Lindsay. He attacked the slogan of Premier Hepburn "Ontario pays" to what? he asked, pointing out what could be expected of a government with such slogan. He also charged that Ontario debt was rising rapidly, now being on a greater rate than under Henry.

Mrs. Rose Mon Smith spoke to the women to support Mr. Tustin and the Conservative party.

The candidate, George J. Tustin, Mayor of Napanee, was tendered an ovation on rising. He spoke of the responsibilities of the position he sought. "I will only ask that the best for everyone of you," he declared. The government's record was briefly touched upon.

It was announced that on Wednesday night, Oct. 9, Premier Hepburn would speak at Wellington.

Kiwanis Club Given Report By Members Attending

A detailed report of the recent Kiwanis Convention held at London, was presented by the three delegates from the local club, Capt. Barrager, Eddie Logan and George Griffith at the weekly luncheon of that organization held on Tuesday at the Queen's Hotel. The speakers told of the various sessions held and the inspiration they derived. Cliff Barrager was in chair with Ross Silver as song leader and Phil McKee as secretary-treasurer.

Frank Domenico, chairman of the Kiwanis Carnival committee, stated to the members, that all was in readiness for the big event and that lots of assistance would be needed. The Arena will be decorated on the Saturday before the carnival due to an election address on the Saturday before. The ladies will assist in the work and a meeting to that end was held on Tuesday afternoon. Rotarian Joe Ostrett asked the co-operation of the club for the Y.M.C.A. Hockey League and this was forthcoming. George Fordyce was the booster of the day and the Radiager of Loblaws' Groceteria invited all the members in for a visit at his store during business. The lucky winners of the booster prizes were Reg Gardiner of Cornwall and Davey Davison. "Davey" was welcomed back to the city and in a short address thanked the members for their kind interest in his recent trouble and assured the club his daughter, Bernice was on the road recovery.

Gordon Bray also gave a report on the activities of the advertising committee and hoped that members would boost the carnival from now on until the time of its opening.

Coughlin and his followers behind President Roosevelt in his drive for the presidency, led by Senator Elmer Thomas, Oklahoma Democrat, left Washington in a conference schedule for later this week-end. Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking with an unctuous sprakle expression on account of thinking about Uncle Abbe coming to stay for awhile a week, and ma said, You folow, Willyum, the thaut of him coming makes me glad but take it all round, there's no outside reason why I should be glad to stay with Claddis and Harvey instead of with us, I mean after all Claddis is his mum.

Now by golies that's such a brite thawt, ma, said Claddis, that's a noble sentiment, pop said. Why didnt you think of that from the beginning? he said, and ma said, I fawzed it over with Claddis and it dident seem to make a grate drawback to the ideer, I mean she explained to me how much better guest room as a store room while they're been waiting to furnish it so a spare room.

That doesn't sound so good, I admit, pop said, and ma said, You know I've always thawt I'd like to help the children out with their guest room, and this seemed like a prtden opportunity looming up out of a blue sky, so I offered to give Claddis the furniture out of our own guest room, and pop jumped at the offer like a fish to its bait. In fact she didn't lose a minnit, she had the local express man drive around the after lunch to get the things, and now our spare room is as bare as a cupboard cubbord, but I can have it all refornished with the latest modern effects at comparatively little expense, in fact I'm just itching to get started on it, ma said.

It's a costly way to put the skids under Abbe, but it's worth it, pop said, and ma said, O, well have Abbe just a same, I mean Claddis be as it happens, has asked a former schoolmate of hers to stay with them for a week, and she was going to put her upon a divan, but now she's delighted at having a real guest room for her, and of course anyway she could hardly be expected to ask Abbe while she was already entertaining a guest, we mustn't be unreasonable, Willyum. I must go down town the first thing in the morning and get things under way so the room will be all ready for Abbe, what did you say, Willyum? she said.

It just made a little remark to myself, pop said, and he put in back of the sporting page and made some more.

Police And Revenue Men on Hunt For The Speculators

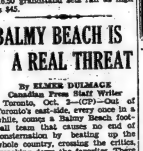
Chicago, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Ticket hungry Cub fans, police and the United States Department of Internal Revenue joined in a big hunt for World Series ducat speculators today.

Thousands of fans, disappointed yesterday, when the entire supply of 37,000 reserved seats grand stand and boxes—was exhausted in less than four hours of an over-the-counter sale at Wrigley Field, were willing to pay premiums on numerous pasteboards reported to be in the hands of scalpers.

Police, however, were out to see no scalping was done. The Department of Internal Revenue was alert to see the government receives its share of the money in tax, should scalping be accomplished in spite of police.

Capt. John Prendergast, Chief of uniformed police, and Chief Detectives John L. Sullivan, ordered their men to "get any scalpers you find into jail."

"Hoopers" were said to have received fees, running as high as $10, from speculators to stand in line and purchase tickets.



Speculators early last night offered strips of three box seats tickets—one for each game in Chicago—which cost $19.80 at Wrigley field at $75. Quotations on the $18.50 grandstand seats ran as high as $45.

BALMY BEACH IS A REAL THREAT

By ELMER DULMAGE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, Oct. 2—(CP)—Out of Toronto's east-side, every once in a while, comes a Balmy Beach football team that causes no end of consternation by beating up the whole country, crossing the critics, smacking down the favorites. There is talk just now of another such parade by the paddlers from Kew Beach.

While a tendency exists on the part of many observers to smile at the enthusiasm and sky-high hopes of the Beachers, who barely won from Queen's and then lost to University of Toronto in pre-season fixtures, it is a fact that fingers are being kept crossed until Saturday's O. R. F. U. opener at Sarnia.

Down in the stronghold of the Imperials, 1934 Canadian title-holders, the Beachers will make one stab for glory. If they beat the mighty Imperials Saturday, even if it is only the opening game, the chances are nobody will stop the east- enders this season.

Those great days, when Red Moore and Yip Foster first shot the Beach to football's top rung in 1927 would be back. The east-end would be as joyous as in 1930, when Ted Reeve and Art Cox led the way to another Canadian title. On this occasion, it is only fair to mention, that Balmy Beach will not be an even-money bet in Sarnia.

There is real hope in Coach Alex Ponton's camp, that the good days will return. But, who wanders away to punt for Argonauts in the Big Four, is back with the neighborhood lean.

His presence means Sarnia will have no advantage in kicking exchanges, because Abbie boots them as far as Bummer Smith.

SCHMELING DEMANDS MINT

New York, Oct. 2.—Max Schmeling German heavyweight, and Mike Jacobs, promoter of the Joe Louis-Max Baer fight, were only $62,500 apart yesterday in their effort to come to an agreement which would match the former champion with the Detroit sensation next June.

Schmeling called his American manager, Joe Jacobs, that he would come to the United States for a match with Louis for $250,000, with the privilege of 35 per cent of the gate and $2,000 training expenses. Mike Jacobs countered with an offer of $200,000 and $5,000 training expenses, but refused to consent to the 35 per cent.

THIS TIME OF YEAR

At this season of the year there is the greatest attention paid to those foods which can be put away against the winter time and the spring. What a setting of the season's riches in the autumn — and canning and preserving, the people in the home are kept busy.

It is one of the times of the year when people are very sensible as to their food plans. It is the part of wisdom to eat freely of the products of the farm and garden at this time and it is also the sign of wisdom to preserve the food so that the cold and severe weather of winter may be bettered by the food so well put away in the preserving days.

Autumn ought to be a time when the human heart is most grateful for man never has so much of plenty about him as at this time of the year. This joy reveals itself in local festivals in churches in harvest thanksgivings, in our great Thanksgiving Day celebration, in chicken suppers where not only chickens but the whole of a year's product seem to have been placed on the tables at which city and country meet in jovial gatherings.

CLAIMS ANGELS REAL

Angels are real, Rev. Roelif H. Brooks said at St. Thomas Episcopal Church, New York in a recent sermon, "despite doubts of the practical man, they exist as the messengers of God. The conception of life or power grouped under the head of angels is among the most unfathomable. Angels are unseen but not unfelt. Speculation has been rife about them and they have been ridiculed in terms of religion. We think of them as beautiful things with wings flying about. The eye which finds beauty accepts this picture; the mind which analyzes welcomes the idea that God reveals the truth through His messengers."

Dr. Brooks said that empty speculation about angels is no more spiritually filling than if one told a hungry man to be satisfied without food. He told how the Jews had a land of milk and honey, but dwells in an unapproachable realm, with the result that two poles resulted — God and man—with a path between that has to be crossed. Angels are the messengers that cross this path, he said.

"There are times when we on our lives feel a hidden spiritual influence. That is true after thought the practical man, basing everything upon what is part of his personal experience, says that the talk about angels is nonsense. But on our journey through life and the way from earth to heaven is difficult. In many resting places a rock may be one's pillow. The road is full of seemingly insurmountable obstacles. But there is a ladder between earth and heaven, which the angels descend and ascend conveying truths if we will but look.

"Current psychology adds to moral alibia," said Rev. Dr. Cotton, president of the Union Theological Seminary, preaching at the Jane Memorial Church on Sunday night. "Men and women themselves analyzed and find emancipation in banishing the ugly names which a healthy religion fastened on sins, when these are translated with labels to which no guilt attaches. As fertile as psychology in furnishing these drugs to relieve men is the preoccupation with social conditions. A man who accepts his work or loses his position blames not his own laxiness or want of skill but the inadequacy of the programs of recovery or the President's reactionary forces which delay his millennium.

"We live in a terrible world. Titanic forces, nationalism, the sense of race, the subtly concealed pull of economic interest, traditions, lay mastering hands on us. They are human forces composed of the greed and pride and lust of power which dominate human nature.

"Discard, if you will, the conception of Satan as a personage. There are sinister factors mightier than himself, with which every man must grapple. Few men are sufficiently fiendish to want war, but whole populations are swept into it by emotional waves beyond their control. Most of us sincerely wish a kindlier world where all have a chance from childhood to the grave but a paralysis stalks over us and prevents our ending the most obvious wrongs. It is not merely our own lusts, our greeds, our laxiness, our ignorance with which we have to reckon. There are malignant forces, call them trends, obsessions, collective movements or collective inertia, more dangerous than we are at our worst. They are disguised so that we do not recognize them, but not to recognize them is to spend our days in a fool's paradise. Healthy religion has always insisted that our world is spiritually dangerous."

A true man never frets about his place in the world, but just slides into it by the gravitation of his nature and swings there as easily as a star.—R. H. Chapin.

THE CROSS CAT

He is a tiger; I can tell,
No little cat could hate so well.
Twice every day he will express
A condescending friendliness;
Then when he eats and drinks his fill,
He growls and glares at me until
I turn the knob and let him out
To fight and woo and prowl about,
He is a tiger.
Though he purrs
The jungle in his spirit stirs;
Released, he stealthily would go
Where Tigris tawny waters flow
And seek a dim primeval lair
With some sleek-bodied mate to share.
He is a tiger—I have seen
Twin furies in his pale eyes sheen.

CRIMES OF VIOLENCE MAY OR MAY NOT BE INCREASING, but the variety of crime committed seems to be on the increase. The latest tale of super-horror comes from Bucharest, Rumania, with the discovery of the bodies of twenty-one murdered men, and the confession of a youth that he murdered them after they had been lured into the woods one at a time by a girl accomplice. No motive was shown but that the girl-accomplice of the girl influenced him like a demon and he was compelled to carry out her orders. She helped to bury the bodies. If there is anything more gruesome in criminal annals than that we do not care to hear it.

MOVING PICTURES ARE BEING MADE IN TORONTO, which may be news to many. The Booth Dominion Films, Limited, use the Ravina Rink as a studio. "The King's Plate," a film of 7,000 feet, has been made and released, and work is now progressing on a story about the Northwest Mounted Police, which hasn't been given a name as yet. A scene will be laid in one of the British Isles and negotiations are under way for distribution in the United States.

SOUTH MOUNTAIN HAS ATTAINED FAME AND THE FRONT PAGE. South Mountain is a village, somewhat south of Ottawa and somewhat north of Morrisburg. There is a bank there and the banker found it necessary to refuse a loan to a settler who applied for one. Both men came together later in the village barber shop and the banker was attacked by the borrower. Two broken ribs and several cuts and bruises resulted to the banker, and the case was taken to court. The accused was given one year's suspended sentence, which does not mean that he will be suspended by a committee for a year, or that his credit or liquor will be suspended, but simply that he can roam at will for one year provided he does not attack any bankers. Seems like a close season for bankers.

PASSENGER TRAINS SPEEDING AT EIGHTY MILES AN HOUR HAVE ARRIVED IN CANADA, in an effort to compete with air travel. Michigan Central "Wolverine" express between Chicago and New York which travels through Canada from Windsor to Black Rock, is now on the eighty miles per hour schedule. The "Twentieth Century Limited" on the New York Central, is also making the same time. Verily high speed mania spreads. What price grade crossings now?

Far Too Humiliating

Mike was "down and out." The pastor of his church, meeting him in the street one day looking very threadbare, took pity on him.

"Come with me, Mike," he said, "and I'll give you a good rig out of the poor box."

But Mike was on his dignity at once. "Indade ye won't!" he exclaimed. "Sooner than accept charity, I'll beg."

"Pardon me," said the stranger, "are you a resident here?"

"Yes," was the answer. "I've been here goin' on 50 years. What kin I do for you?"

"I am looking for a criminal lawyer," said the stranger. "Have you any here?"

"Well," said the other, "we're pretty sure we have, but we can't prove it."

Amphibian Boat for Jungle Tour

Capt. John H. Ulique (yachting cap) , Nathaniel Stirkigfellow, and Daniel William Kelleher are testing their amphibian boat on Lake Toland preparatory to an expedition through Colombia and Brazil. The hull is made of steel. The motive power in water is furnished by the conventional propeller. On land the caterpillar traction takes effect. The strange vehicle is equipped with a new type secret motor which manufacturers feel as it goes along. Windows are heavily screened against jungle beasts, and a shortwave radio is part of the equipment. The expedition is known as the Ulique, who built the land-and-water boat. The expedition will start up the Canca river, Columbia, from Barranquilla.

HEALTH and PSYCHOLOGY

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.

Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

Copyright, 1935, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Woman has been the question mark of the ages. She continues to hold first place in novels, plays and critical studies—all of which try in vain to throw some light on the mystery that surrounds her being.

Curiously enough, most of the studies on women are not written by women, but by men. And, of course, the mere man who tries to understand the psychology of woman should realize that, not being a woman, about all he can do is guess. He never can be sure of his observations.

But do women themselves have an insight into their own souls? That, too, has been questioned and debated. There are a few truths about women that seem to be held as actual facts by both sexes, here are a few points upon which all agree.

One is that women are more emotional than men. Another is that they are more individual than collective in their instinctive reactions. A third is that they are more pragmatic in their tendencies. A fourth is that women are more adaptable than refractory.

Whether these four traits—emotionalism, individualism, pragmatism, adaptability — and you produce a combination that is decidedly dynamic and changeable.

A line of action that does not tend to stay put, it is bound to change, to evolution. It may give rise to a viewpoint today that is quite different from the viewpoint held a month ago or a week ago it is, of course, a highly interesting and intensely living type of personality.

But would it be possible for an organism possessing that type of machinery to understand itself? Does that explain why women so seldom analyze their own character traits and still less frequently write about them? Is that why women remain "the riddle of the universe?"

Women should try to understand themselves better than they do. Understanding makes for better and more efficient living. It may be interesting and somewhat fascinating to be a conundrum to everybody, as well as one's self, but is it not better to know oneself, to avoid the pitfalls which lack of knowledge is bound to lead one into.

As a rule, women do not seem to be as interested in their own mental machinery as men are. In fact, they find it more difficult than men do to make gender a predispositionate and unbiased perspective on themselves. Not being nature's adepts at abstract thinking and speculation—being more their own creations than creators of facts. They show very little interest show such reactions are related to each other.

All this does not mean that they consult study psychology, the science of the mind, if they want to. Everybody knows that a woman can do as she likes—if she so desires.

Rugby sweaters, zipper fastened windbreakers, hats and caps, garaged oil, shot gun shells, glazed decoy ducks and blue-barrelled shot guns in the sporting goods window. Straw hats have gone, derbies and fedoras again in style. Rain coveralls and topcoats have unwittingly let the prolonged fine weather assisted maple leaves and tiny outdoor campfires. The world looks today through clean windows, but two weeks off. Home and apartment house janitors are accessible on haunts and the napthha odor of a last cleaning shop just end outside. Hear the squealing in a state truck threading its way slowly along the crowded artery and the darkness of a still evening. The frog chorus has ceased its nightly serenading as succeeding frosts rim the edges of ponds, ditches, the gawky crane whose domain for the past summer has been his lonely little island has vast of the lighthouse, still remains perched on one foot in the shallow water, scanning fish-less perch and minnows which venture too far. Investigation of the rattling his sabre-like bill at the gulls and terns who come too close to his fishing grounds. Another duck does he wobble off in clumsy flight to his unknown roosting place by the side of the bay. Not yet has Old Hooter, guardian of his flock low covered in the west marsh, given the signal for the southward flight of the black ducks, and ever yet the call of Loude the waterworks loon echoes from his summer sanctuary in the lagoon near the dumping place in the full moon streaks its path of silver across the shimmering water of the bay.

Along Front Street a little Scotch terrier looked in a parked car at the curb, grumbles in his beard at the Presbyterian who later on for a long in front of his machine, farmers in overalls at the bank on the corner stop and compare notes with other overall-clad friends and the cut of town license plates on visiting automobiles become more infrequent. Flappers and flaming youth with colored suspenders and coats throw open to the breezy the windows. Straw hats have gone, derbies and fedoras again in style. Rain coveralls and topcoats have unwittingly let the prolonged fine weather assisted maple leaves and tiny outdoor campfires. The world looks today through clean windows, but two weeks off. Home and apartment house janitors are accessible on haunts and the napthha odor of a last cleaning shop just end outside. Hear the squealing in a state truck threading its way slowly along the crowded artery and the darkness of a still evening. The frog chorus has ceased its nightly serenade in each and 10 friends to sign a paper, may run for the House of Commons. In short, at last, he doesn't need party endorsation, a platform, campaign funds, or anything else—the field is free and open. In comparison to the complicated electoral system of the United States, Canadian laws are simple and easy. Every two years Americans go through intricate primaries to elect 435 House representatives and 32 Senators, one third of the Upper House. Nominees are chosen either by conventions or by primaries, sometimes by both, as in New York State. The electoral machinery for a president is still more complicated. Party candidates are chosen every four years at national conventions and the president is elected by a scrolled electoral college, consisting of representatives of each State. If any Canadian believes he can run the country better than the present member for his constituency he will encounter few obstacles preventing him from trying to convince his neighbors of his qualifications. In the first place he must obtain nomination papers from the returning officer of his riding, which might cost him only a three cent stamp. Then he induces 10 qualified voters to sign the papers. The next consideration is the fact that which the law compels every contestant to post as a guarantee of good faith. If he wins the election, or secures half as many votes as the winner, the money is returned. If he finishes far in the rear the money is confiscated. Only 11 candidates have been written into the Canadian electoral law, five Liberals, a man may run for Parliament whose name is not on the voters' list. He must live in Halifax, N.S. and contest the riding of Victoria, B.C. Having said that it is not to be recommended during the campaign. One of the few things he has not been able to do is to run in more than one riding at the same election. That might land him in jail instead of Parliament.

Fashion Flashes

Cold winds don't bother the woman wearing a new ensemble that includes one-piece dress in rust-colored woolen and a tunic jacket of matching fabric collared with brown fox fur and banded with it. A double bow pleat gives fulness in the tucked back.

If you like two-piece frocks you'll find many smart models this Autumn. Jersey in matchless fabric is a smart peplum frock with a kolinsky fur ascot. Borders of the same fur are on the pockets.

Just one woman in a thousand could look smart in the extravagant tailored suits made of metal fabrics and some are unbelievably lovely. Such a suit is done in gold metal tight mesh, with a tiny bolero tucked hovering the deep V in back of the severely simple frock.

Never, enough lace frocks for those fortunate women who travel a great deal. A charming frock that's on a recent cruise was of fine black lace with an off-the-shoulder decolletage; the skirt was a mass of tiny pleated lace ruffles.

LIBERALS HOLD JOINT MEETING

Stirling, Oct. 2.—Mr. S. S. Ferguson and Chas. A. Cameron, Liberal candidates in the forthcoming federal election for the ridings of Hastings-Peterboro and South Hastings respectively addressed an enthusiastic gathering of supporters in the Stirling Community Hall on Tuesday night, October 22nd. Among the prominent speakers of the evening besides the candidates themselves were Mr. Fraser Aylesworth of Madoc and Mr. P. C. MacLaurin of Belleville, other gentlemen on the platform where Mr. J. E. O'Donnell of Stirling, who acted as chairman for the evening, Mr. H. Heath also of Stirling and Col. Roscoe Vandervoort.

Mr. R. S. Ferguson was greeted with loud applause as he rose to address the gathering. In his address he stated, "That long looked for days of prosperity need not be looked for until the farmer's opportunities were improved. Interested in agriculture and the farming industry, I look at the present condition from the farmer's angle. The cost of manufactured goods to the farmer has increased 50 per cent. in the past five years, and the marketing value of farm products has remained the same. The farmer can't buy, he can't afford it. The manufacturer can't sell, and therefore must reduce the staff at work in the factory, and create an happy unemployed, want and need. "It is quite true" he went on, "that Canada has it within her to be the greatest nation in the world. With its rich expanse of natural resources to provide for the needs of half the population of the world, and our total population barely larger than that of the city of London, England. "Improve the spending power of the farmer and the rest will come ahead to its right place in the world of trade", he continued.

"What Canada needs is reduction in the costs of governmental bodies," stated Mr. Ferguson. "We can't afford to gamble with any experiments in Socialistic spending such as recommended by Mr. Stevens. We are striving for a balanced budget, to get farther in the hole. "Reform in office the man who realizes the need of foreign trade, the exchange of one commodity for another, Mr. King, and in so doing you will make sure of future security for the farmer and good times for all."

Cheese Wisely is Advice

Mr. P. C. MacLaurin of Belleville was the next speaker. "In times of emergencies such as these, who Canada was now facing," he declared, "it would be the greatest thing for the nation, if we could banish from our minds all thoughts of the phrases commonly used in the political field, and clear our minds for sane thinking". "Such phrases as grit, and tory, which have been passed down through the years, serve only to create false interests which under ordinary conditions, are superior to those of any people of the world. We owe it to ourselves and our neighbours to exercise that intellect and forget old worn out traditions and vote to send to Ottawa men who are true representatives of the men back home, men with a personal feeling of the responsibility, which is theirs; servants of the people. We must put on the fare of our home life and our children first and in so doing we will examine the records of Conservative men, one of whom must become the first man of the nation, our leader, after October 14th. Let us choose wisely and place those men in their ability, not because they represent the party for which Dad voted all his life. Let us be full grown men and women think for ourselves and the answer to the problem will become apparent. No community ever had finer gentlemen offer their services than these two outstanding men Mr. Cameron and Mr. Ferguson. Give them the opportunity to be your servant by offering your support," stated the speaker.

Loud and long hard clapping and cheers from the hall was given as greeted Mr. Cameron as he was introduced as the next speaker for South Hastings". In his opening remarks he paid a great tribute to story for Mr. Ferguson in the North riding, and proceeded to state, "that glorified pictures are not sufficient to lay before the voters in this day and age but facts must be based on the ground of past service, and that was to be found in the members of the King. He likened a federal election to an ocean voyage and invited the voters to imagine closely the craft upon which they would sail for the next five years. The first craft was the Conservative ship, with Mr. Bennett as captain and master. The boat shows the wear of the past year, and the crew; some have left. It looks like a risky trip for the voters. So they look for another boat, and they see the Liberal craft with an inexperienced captain and no crew at all, and finally they see the Liberal craft with Mr. King at the old Bluenose and a captain and crew of experienced men, ready to stick together through any kind of weather, and Mr. Dorothy Thomas offers clear sailing to better times. "As for the Stevens' party," said Mr. Cameron, "I am afraid that the man with great political ambitions, has made the leader of a Socialistic party or he won't play. He wanted the leadership of the Conservative party and couldn't get it, and the Reconstruction party is the result. There is only one logical man to lift use out of this slump and that man is Mr. King", stated Mr. Cameron amid cheers. Mr. Fraser Aylesworth of Madoc, also spoke briefly on the ability of the two candidates, one, he stated was a good practical man and the other would well represent the farmers of the Hastings-Peterboro riding Mr. R. S. Ferguson.

"ALL WOOL and a yard wide"

■ In the days of our grandfathers the highest praise a fabric could receive was: "All wool and a yard wide." Buyers couldn't tell by appearances if they were getting "All Wool." They trusted to a stamp on the fabric, or to the dealer's word,

■ So with laundry soaps . . . they may look alike, but Sunlight is the only one stamped "guaranteed pure" and having a $5,000 guarantee of purity printed on every carton.

■ Being all pure soap Sunlight dissolves readily, and billows up into rich lasting suds that go to work quickly. You are always sure of a snowy-white, clean-smelling wash.

■ And Sunlight makes wash-day a lot easier because hard rubbing isn't necessary with this pure safe soap, which is so gentle on your hands.

■ Yes, it is real economy to use Sunlight. It protects your garments—keeps them out of the mending basket. Get a supply of Sunlight for next wash-day.

CHINA TRIES TO STOP SUICIDE

Mania for Self-Destruction Reaches Alarming Proportions

TRIBULATIONS ARE TOO MUCH TO BEAR

By Le SELLE GILMAN
Central Press Correspondent

Peiping, Oct. 2.— Self-destruction among the Chinese is rapidly becoming a mass mania that is assuming alarming proportions through-out this country. The suicide rate in 1935 has grown to such a degree that the national government at Nanking today considers it a serious problem and one that must be dealt with immediately. Provincial and municipal authorities have been asked for action though just what they will do regarding it they themselves hardly know.

The falsified Chinese have the highest suicide rate in the world. Death has no sting so far as the average Chinese is concerned; death brings oblivion to the Buddhist, complete annihilation, and in his psychology it is a commonplace and ever commendable way to meet a difficulty and to his trials and tribulations. And his trials and tribulations are probably the most unbearable of any race in the world, it is not surprising that almost 60 Chinese out of every 100,000 should seek to end their own lives.

The chief reason why Chinese kill themselves is family troubles, which is natural in this country where one realizes that the family, to the Chinese, is all important. Society is based on the sanctity of the family, the relationship between father and son, mother and daughter, husband and wife. When quarrels arise in the family death is the easiest disgrace. That is why, in all China, women are more prone to commit suicide than men, for the woman usually gets the worse of it in the Chinese family; if she is a wife she may have to put up with a villainous mother-in-law and a couple of her husbands concubines.

But the second chief reason for this high suicide rate is the usual economic one — poverty coupled with large families and very often much disease. China is a land of extreme poverty, where the average coolie lives from day to day just on the dividing line between life and death due to starvation, and yet he must support the usual big family. Due to incredibly filthy conditions and ignorance of hygiene, disease of every description is more prevalent than anywhere else in the world. No wonder the despairing man in the street seeks a way out at times when the Chinese feels his misery the keenest, feels most the humiliation of his country's national disgrace.

Consider the case in Shanghai alone: there were in the first half with nearly 4,000,000 Chinese. Last year nearly 9,000 succeeded in committing suicide most of them women. There was an average of six suicides a day Many of these were mass suicides of whole families, driven to despair by poverty. In one case some 15 young girls escaped from a well into a swirling river, holding hands, because they were all pledged by their families to marry men whom they had never seen and did not want to marry. The custom or arranged marriages by Chinese families is the cause of much grief.

Most Chinese are too poor to own a gun, and they do not dynamite their houses with gas. They have a horror of physical mutilation — therefore violence is not popular. Opium is the best drug for ending opium, a box of sulphur matches usually does the trick.

A Chinese says, noting this increasing suicide rate, recently wrote to the nation at large, declaring that if they must die because of humiliation, let them arm themselves and go on the property before the advancing Japanese armies. But the Chinese are apathetic; they continue eating opium and hurrying on into riverseeking Nirvana in their own way.

NEW YORK FINANCIAL

New York, Oct. 2 (AP)—Critical conditions in the African war situation depressed the stock market into aloom today.

Active shares lost 1 to around 3 points under heavy selling that encompassed every division of the list and there were few issues that put two minutes behind floor transactions with a good understanding of the forenoon.

Canadian-Canadian stocks small losses appeared in Dome, Dominion Stores, Canadian Pacific and International Nickel. In the American list Chrysler "B", J. I. Case, General Electric, Public Service, Columbian Carbon, General Motors, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, American Telephone, Montgomery Ward, Chesapeake & Ohio, Schenley, U. S. Smelting and Sears Roebuck.

NEW YORK CLOSE

Early forces of 1 to 3 points were first thrust through. At the final hour though trading tapered off only when the selling flurry followed the forenoon war scare died up.

Active issues showing 1 to 8 points decline included Allied Chemical, Columbian Carbon, Consolidation, Westinghouse, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Steel and Standard Oil. Transfers approximated 1,900,000 shares.

DUCKS IN BAY ALREADY PLENTIFUL

Wary wild ducks, veterans of many a blasting volley of scattered buckshot, have adopted a new technique in this district during the past few weeks, according to reports which was inaugurated by city and district gun-loters on Tuesday.

Ducks have been seen flocking placed in the marshes and weedy pools surrounding the Bay of Quinte, but the ducks now take wing to the open spaces of the lake, returning only to feed hurriedly during the sunset hours and through the evening. This is the reason why at the first streaks of dawn the birds then take to the lake.

Up to the present, although ducks were reported fairly plentiful, bags of the limit were unusually few, it was stated by returning sportsmen.

RAIROAD GANG MAKING PROGRESS

Making rapid progress with their work of lifting the road bed and tracks of the spur line of the Canadian National Railways on Pinnacle Street, the large force of men now employed have passed the Bridge Street intersection and the new busy near Campbell Street. A cold wind which blew during the night lowered the tracks and the road bed levelled with brick and cement.

ONLY SIXTEEN RUNS DURING SEPTEMBER

The month of September just ended will be chalked up by members of the local fire department as one of the lowest on record for fire loss. During the thirty day period a total of only 16 runs were answered by the department, mainly as the result of chimney and grass fires. Last year for the month the men were compelled today by Fire Chief Lynch at only $50.00.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Oct. 2—(CP)—Mining shares on Toronto Exchange were featured by considerable volume today as holders anxiously contemplated the possible result of Italy's war plans. Such issues as Pickle Crow, Central Patricia, Cook's Lake, San Antonio, McKenzie, and Macassa, all recently active golds, sold down 10 to 20 points, with no buying coming out in substantial volume. Base metals and silvers weakened also.

Occasional strong, but fitful gains in golds, ranged up to more than 10 points. Dome, Lake Shore, McIntyre and Hollinger were included in the advance. In the base metals Rowanda slipped 10 points, while Noranda and Consols each for Sherritt, Pend Oreille Mining Corporation and Falconbridge Nickel showed the weakest of the silvers, losing 6 cents.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 2 (CP)—The war news put the Toronto Industrial Stock Market in a nervous condition today and spotty selling was the order throughout the morning and early afternoon, trading carrying prices to losses and ranging up to points. Mining, oils metals and steels all suffered in the decline.

Recessions in the Interlisted group included 1-4 for International Binsfert, 1-4 for International Nickel, 1-2 for Walker Gooderham, 1-8 for Distillers-Seagrams, 3-4 for Ford A and 1-8 to 3-4 for Imperial and International Petroleum.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Biggar and Crawford by Financial Service.

Everything Normal at McKinnon Red Lake.

Mr. H. Fairlie, managing director at the property, reports that everything is proceeding normally at the property. Pacific Coast characterizes recent rumors as to a shutdown of mill operations, etc., as "no absurd to deny," and states that the mill is operating at capacity to exceed the previous month. The regular quarterly report to shareholders will be going forward about October 10.

If one is to accept the news from abroad as entirely authentic, war in East Africa is only a matter of a few days and the world is wondering whether this conflict will spread to embrace Europe in another titanic struggle for "Democracy." Italy's invasion of Abyssinia that a most cautious attitude has been adopted on the part of investors. In the event of hostilities of such a pronounced character that even the so-called "war" stocks are likely to record any appreciable advance.

When consideration is being given to "war" stocks, one stocks that should be mentioned is Shawinigan Water and Power. This company controls Canadian Chemicals. Canadian Chemicals, Limited, a wholly-owned subsidiary which has shown a most successful operation for a number of years. Shawinigan Water and Power owns Canadian Chemicals, Ltd. for the year 1934 resulted in a profit of $774,915 before depreciation and depletion, and the amount thereof was applied to Depreciation $178,000, Depletion $290,000, leaving $306,915, leaving $378,126, from which there was paid to The Shawinigan Water and Power Co. a sum of $367,414 in part payment for interest on bonds held by the latter company.

"The Trader in Barron's points out that the speculative buying in Wall Street is still active, which is the hallmark of the late stage of a prolonged rise in prices. For the quarter but on fourth-quarter figures, the popular automobile, motor-accessory, and amusement issues being bought—results of which will not be known for a month or so, according to present-day market precedent, but likely to be discounted far in advance. It would be more natural to assume that the discounting of first-quarter prosperity at a time when some 4½ million Canadians were employed.

Clue to the Administration's fiscal policies should be available soon, certainly by the end of the month. The President must make his decision whether to attempt to balance the city of governmental spending, with the budget for 1936 fiscal year, or at least partially to reverse his policies—the possibilities of which are that he will ask for further investment of direct expenditures and the preparation of a new budget on presumably a quassi-balanced basis. Any reversal in fiscal practices of the New Deal might make an impression upon business. That is why every action and attitude of the President will bear careful analysis from now on in their possible bearing upon the future of trade and industry and business venture.

American investment houses with foreign connections are considering a close contact with office abroad. One house has sent a prominent London firm after the close one day last week and in the course of some other business transactions asked how war possibilities were regarded in London. A cable against a European entanglement were placed at 20 to 1. Despite such general British optimism, which seems quite genuine in view of the lack of financial support that certain of many commission houses in the City have indicated to remain doubtful until the situation shows signs of clearing up.

Warneke And Rowe, Two Boys From Arkansas to Do Hurling

FIELD SHORTENED

By EDWARD J. NEIL
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Detroit, Oct. 3 (AP)—The long, lanky right arms of a couple of tough farmer boys from Arkansas—Lonnie Warneke, ace of the Chicago Cubs, and Lynwood "Schoolboy" Rowe, the pet and hero of Detroit—headed back the clamor of baseball's big show today, the World Series of 1935, a production F. T. Barnum would have envied.

In a setting of mad enthusiasm, crowds jamming the streets, battling for tickets, the high and low sound of shouts alike in the whirlwind of hysteria always stirred up by the Fall climax of the diamond sport, Prediction - and speculation gave way to reality, and everyone that could, headed for the ball park.

It seemed certain to be another $1,000,000 spectacle—this duel of the young, high-flying Cubs, still winging along on the impetus of a 21-game winning streak down the National League stretch, and the slugging Tigers, who swept the American League boards for the second straight year. It was a case of "quit arguing, now, and get out your money"—the youngest Series scenes and cash hitting the Cubs from the unsettling rois to even money favorites.

Scalpers Quite Active

Around the park swirled the front ranks of the throng heading through the gates at 9 a.m., the 10,000 individual perches on the vast expanse of prize seats stretched beyond the left field walls, encroaching on that part of the playing field as the Commissioner's office has been cut to 301 feet in that direction. Every reserved seat was sold, and scalpers demanded $75 each for choice box location, originally priced at $6.60. There wasn't the slightest doubt in anyone's mind of a sell-out; the biggest crowd ever to see a ball game here, and a fine financial start toward the record for series receipts, $1,207,000 taken in at the seven-game series between the Yankees and Cardinals in 1928. Radio rights started the pot off with $100,000.

Despite the fact the big Rowe, who'll always be a schoolboy to the ranks of baseball, cannot raising a family, has the advantage of a veteran World Series hitch behind him, his friends packed around him, his surroundings perfectly and naturally familiar, the Arkansas Cub, behind their great rifleman, Warneke, were also favorites to win the first game.

Tigers Feared Peak?

It was a case of youth and drive on the side of the Cubs, their spirit and speed showed through the National League stretch against a team that many of the experts think passed its peak about the time it clubbed the last Athletics from position that a American League shout a month ago. It was Mickey Cochrane's job early in the day to try the bootstraps the identical team that fell before the Cubs a year ago from the last Fall, shook off those defeats to win the American League flag from the Yanks in the stretch they won only 12 of their last 36 games.

Mickey weatherman, after a shaky start, promised clear, warm skies for the classic, and if nothing not even their beliefs in the ability of their stars to win. It was Cochrane, sharp-shooter, who won seven games for the Cubs in their season's stretch drive. A Giant who is big with success he is good, terrific when he is bad, and lately has been afflicted with illness.

EAGLES MAY OPERATE

St. Louis, Oct. 3.—The St. Louis Eagles, National Soccer League club whose owners announced it would not operate here this year because of poor financial returns may play here again under the auspices of a group of St. Louisans has made an offer for the club. It is under consideration by the Redondo club, representing Ottawa interests, which control the club. A provision of the offer is that franchise was refused.

One of the stipulations of a purchase offer worked out by C. D. F. Hamilton, jr., director of the Ottawa club, and Chris Cohen, business manager of the club last year, that Canada supply more and better players; for which a reasonable sum would be paid.

'Dizzy' Dean Picks Tigers

Springfield, Mo., Oct. 3.—(AP)—Dizzy Dean said today "the Cubs will be lucky to win one game from Detroit in the World Series."

The great St. Louis Cardinal hurler, who did much to bring about the downfall of the Tigers in last fall's classic, thinks "the Cubs are very poor their heads." "They can't expect to go on getting the breaks in the World Series they did in that long winning streak," he said.

ORILLIA TERRIERS MOVE TO FINALS

Winnipeg, Oct. 3—(CP)—Like a steamroller out of control—one that won't be stopped east of the Canadian Rockies at least—Orillia Terriers, Dominion Lacrosse Champions, set but for the Pacific coast today with the scalp of the Elmwood Pats, Manitoba titlists, dangling at their belt. They beat the Pats 23-4 here last night.

Now the only contenders for their Canadian title and the Mann Cup for the Richmond, Maple Leafs of New Westminster, champions of the Pacific coast.

Little black haired Timmy Cooper was the only Pat player who bothered them much. He was good enough to account for four goals in the Manitoba goals against Frank Carter.

The Terrier's rapid and intricate passing system had the Manitobans baffled and in the last period the champions scored almost at will.

INDIAN PLAYS ON SORE ARM TO WIN MATCH

KOGUT, DRAWS

For the second time in successive weeks Howard Anderson, better known to the wrestling world as Chief Lynx, the Razna Indian from Montreal defeated Bellville's favorite wrestler, Frankie Hart, into submission and won a third and final fall at the Bellerville Arena last night as nearly 1,000 patrons of the ancient art stamped their disapproval on the method used by Chief Lynx in victory. Hart won the initial fall with an old country hold, the Dutchman's Windmill, but following concerted attacks on Hart's right arm, the pugnacious Indian took the second and third fall as he all but severed Hart's arm. Chief Lynx was escorted from the ring to the dressing room under a cordon of police as the patrons of the game left their seats after approval on the manner in which the Indian subdued Hart. In the opening bout Irish Steve Taylor, the local wrestler, won his first professional bout in his career as a maiman, when he defeated a fellow-countryman, Joe McCabe. After 45 minutes of rough and tumbling, the Irishman and Joe Kogut battled to a draw as the timekeeper's bell terminated the bout as Kogut was applying the pressure.

Smart Main Bout

The last or main bout of the evening was by far the most exciting as Chief Lynx, the Indian, and Frankie Hart, the people's choice, lost to Chief Lynx, the Razna Redskin Indian. Hart in the bout was held up as it commenced, when Referee Wells waved the Indian aside and forced him to wipe the oil or grease from his body. Chief Lynx having greased the upper portion of his abdomen well for the occasion, the referee kept Hart from procuring a proper hold. Once the grease was eliminated, Hart went to work, much to the delight of the fans, and applied many punishing holds, such as the flying lock, head scissors and ended up by burning the Indian's shoulders in the ring. After 12 minutes of ferocious wrestling Hart had the Indian all but in a Dutchman's windmill hold. As the second round commenced Hart was still in command and looked to have the bout well in hand, however, suddenly Chief Lynx, who had apparently been playing possum, ferociously attacked Hart's right arm, twisting it so as to leave him prostrate on the mat. Recovering from the unexpected attack, the Indian procured a very punishing armlock and forced Hart to the ropes. Breaking the hold Hart got a body press in 13 minutes. So badly was Hart's arm injured that he requested an extra five minutes rest period, but refused to continue after the third rounds, but even this extended period did not assist him as the Indian, using the same tactics in the ferocious manner and centred his attack on Hart's injured arm, had to win the third and deciding fall after some six minutes in the third round. In Irishman's corner the fans that Chief Lynx refused to leave the ring, as the fans called for his scalp and threatened him after the bout. Eventually he was escorted to his dressing room by the police escort, as the fans shouted disapproval at the Indian.

Local Boy Wins

The opening bout saw Irish Steve Taylor, local wrestler, win his first professional bout, when he threw over Mike McGuire of Toronto. Taylor proved the superior throughout and floored McGuire with an armlock to open the bout. On the occasion Taylor had Mike, the Toronto adversary out of the ring and finally won after applying the famous Irish wild hold, the Irishmoss by Dan O'Mahoney, the world's champion wrestler. Taylor used his excessive strength to wear McGuire down and win.

After 45 minutes of tardy wrestling the timekeeper's bell terminated the semi-final bout between Jack Kogut and George Richards. The bout between the two grapplers previously won a fall and the bout was declared a draw. Although the fans were anxious for more Joe Kogut battled through gamely and absorbed considerable punishment at the hands of the Jewish champ. Richards winning the first fall after 20 minutes of the most punishing wrestling bout seen in Bellville. Richards continued his aggressive-ness in the second round opened and hurled Kogut body over the ring. Following a subsequent series of punishing holds Richards won the second round with a headlock and body press in exactly 19 minutes and 19 seconds. With nine minutes of wrestling left in the 45 minutes limit for the bout for the third and deciding fall without results as the limit's bell terminated the bout, the fans still favouring Richards. Kogut left the ring amid boos and cat calls. The bout will be held on Thursday next week.

Duels for League Pennants Fattens Baseball Purses

Magnates Welcome Tight Race as Boon to All Clubs—Financial Stress Less Than Complainty Indicate—Had Profitable Season

DUELS FOR LEAGUE GAY NDY
By DAMON RUNYON
(Copyright, 1935, by Central Press Canadian)

New York, Oct. 3.—One of these ding-dong finishes that delight the stony hearts of the baseball magnates featured the finish of the National league schedule this season.

It is something the magnates are always praying for, but seldom get. It is not often that three clubs are blanketed going to the wire late in September and who fight out the leadership deal down to the closing games.

The sort of thing means money for the magnates, not only in the towns that are in the tangle, but even in the spots where the front runners appear against the trailers. You understand, of course, that baseball magnates are not interested in the pennant aside from getting true blue sportsmen, yet a little money naturally adds to their zest.

Profit For All

It is said that every club in the National league, with the possible exception of Boston, will show a profit this year, and for all you hear of the financial troubles of the Boston club, the owners have shown no disposition to give it away. Horse racing and baseball are hard Boston baseball, as it hurts baseball in every town where there's conflict, but as between the two, you may be sure that baseball will last longer, and the Boston club would be a good buy at the right terms. Baseball magnates are a good deal like race track bookmakers in that they were always crying the blues, yet it is very curious that few baseball clubs ever go into receivership. The same magnates are found in there, year in and year out.

Sympathy Wasted

For many years, as a baseball scribe, we were always hearing about "poor old Clark Griffith," the Washington magnate, whom, even in those days were always neatly involved in last place.

They used to talk about what a tough time he was always having in Washington, standing off the wolves of poverty. People used to almost sob when they spoke of "poor old Clark Griffith."

Then one day we made a casual investigation of the matter, feeling that it might perhaps be time to inaugurate a government appropriation, or something to that effect, for "poor old Clark Griffith", and we came upon some surprising facts.

We learned that "poor old Clark Griffith" who was in Washington many years ago as manager on a comparatively small salary, and with very little money of his own, lives in one of the nicest houses in the district of Columbia, owns a good share of the Washington club, is accounted a wealthy man, and entitled to be known and thought aptly, financially as J. Pierpont Morgan.

Margin Cut Somewhat

Of course, "poor old Clark Griffith" has had his ups and downs, but more ups. And, of course, he has handled baseball money really bad their downs, too.

It is said that the Louis Cardinals were on the market no longer ago than last winter, with a handsome figure on tag that was last winter. They have made money this season, Chicago and Pittsburgh have, so has the National league are generally prosperous, and several other times. Cincinnati occasionally. Philadelphia somehow always manages to hang on without making any signal of distress.

Salaries Higher

Detroit, in the American league, has had the same old before for past two years, and this season probably all the American league clubs have made a profit, but Detroit stood it off, with the possible exception of Boston. They would make money if they could get a winning team together.

Of course one of the baseball magazine asks as much money as possible, and the old before for competition from racing, golf, and other sports is very hot. Despite the cost of maintaining big league clubs has materially increased, especially in the salaries paid to players.

Twenty-five years ago, the player who got as much as $10,000 per season was a rarity. Now that is a very ordinary salary.

Recreation Alleys

The O.N.R. League opened the bowling season last night at the Recreation Alleys. The scores in full for 30 weeks and the team having the highest total pin on the season play will win.

GEORGE BOUCHER IS LONDON PILOT

Was Manager of The Sha Louis Eagles Last Season

LONDON, Oct. 7. — Acceptance of the managership of the London baseball club in the Inter-City league John Anderson of the local International Hockey League club announced today by George Boucher, last year pilot of the St. Louis Eagles of the National League.

President Anderson also announced that the meeting scheduled for Pittsburg Friday had been shifted to Cleveland, Ohio, headquarters of league president, John Chick.

Boucher was offered the London job yesterday and has accepted terms to think the offer over since the future of the Eagles was in doubt. Boucher succeeds Frank Highbee, a former manager of Toronto Maple Leafs who piloted the London team for the famous Ottawa Senators. He should fill in nicely here, for Boucher is a native Ottawan. Years ago Boucher was a star with the Ottawa Senators.

The league heads will first take up the franchise of Pittsburg and it is indicated here Pittsburg interests have a set-up that will justify their admission to the I.H.L. Cleveland's entry, making an eight-club loop, is being considered by Bongard Cleghorn's return to the hockey wars.

The two-section scheme will also be given much attention, though the league's franchises in Buffalo, Detroit, Windsor and London in a three-city group find some opposition. The eastern end may insist that Buffalo, rather than Cleveland, is a more logical choice for its section.

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

With two games scheduled the senior section of the Bay of Quinte interscholastic football union swings into action on Friday afternoon, when the Belleville Collegiate squad meet Eddie Schrieder's St. Michaels grey cup at the Pats Grounds, with the game in the Albert College Field, Frank Cunningham's O.B.I. twelve tackle Coach Pete Beachy's Albert crew. Incidentally each squad has been working out quite hard for the other over-flow seen locally, but he can absorb plenty of punishment and then again portion out his share of misplaced knees, elbows and fists. This is exactly what is needed to tune the Rama Reserve Indians and if the matchmaker would only see the light of day and bring in a good man to beat the Lynx, there is little doubt but that a capacity house would hang with glee. After all is said, Hart should have conceded the second fall last night and saved himself, not only more punishment, but perhaps the match. Frankie Hart is a game guy, but no even the most rabid fan would ask him or any other wrestler to take the punishment he absorbed last night in the second and third round. In reality it looked as though his Indian adversary was about to use his arm loose from the sockets, at times.

X—X—X—

What should be a newspaper heading for last night's bout is "local boy makes good". Our own Irish Steve Taylor not only won his first professional bout, but took the honors in big league style to win over another Irishman, Mike McGuire, with an Irish hold. Taylor used the Dempsey-Tunney famous hold the Irish whip with success and is the only wrestler known to have won a bout with that hold, except the heavyweight world's champion. Taylor is a fad advancing in the pro ranks and providing the promoters do not match him with an opponent, that outweighs him too much, he will undoubtedly be a success, and should the promoters should bring in Frank Razar, the Hamilton flash and provide Taylor with a bout, then a return bout with Mike Andrew Irish Mickey Walker is a headliner, the Richard-Kogut bout, will be not forgotten nearly as much as the Hart-Lynx affair of last night's show. The slow and methodical Kogut was outclassed throughout and it was only a matter of time when Kogut's excess weight would have taken its toll. We still would like to see Kogut matched with Chief Lynx, however.

Regarding last week's football game here the Oshawa sport scribe of Oshawa Times "Evils" came through their game with Belleville in fine shape and injuries were very scarce. Thanks to the fine condition info which the Motor City girls had been clothed by Jack Sartor, they were able to absorb the bumps without serious harm and Belleville emerged the end victors for another "go."

Groundwork Laid For Player Deals In Off Season

(By Alan Gould)

(Associated Press Sports Editor)

New York, Oct. 3.—Like all Major League magnates and managers, taking a blessed holiday for the World Series, already have seized opportunities to lay the groundwork for one of the biggest baseball shakeups any off season has witnessed in years.

It appears today at least a dozen of the big league teams will figure in the wholesale swapping session before the call is sounded for spring training.

Most of the trade talk revolves around the Philadelphia Athletics who finished last in the American League and St. Louis Cardinals, victors of the National League race by the sensational Chicago Cubs.

The Cards, still a great ball club, undoubtedly will make a few strategic shifts designed to build up another pennant winner.

All reports to the contrary, the celebrated Dean brothers, as well as Pepper Martin, Leo Durocher and Ripper Collins are not for sale.

Gas thats on the fire"! would send Dolph Camilli, slugging first sacker of the Phils to the Giants in exchange for Roy Parmelee, erratic righthanded pitcher, Hank Leiber, centerfielder, outfielder-first baseman, and a bundle of cash.

The Giants also would like to get Burgess Whitehead, utility infielder of the Cardinals, but the stumbling block is Manager Frankie Frisch. Just as O'Mahoney's famous hold the Irish whip with success and is the only wrestler known to have won a bout with that hold, except the heavyweight world's champion. Taylor is fad advancing in the pro ranks and providing the promoters do not match him with an opponent, that outweighs him too much, he will undoubtedly be a success, and should the promoters should bring in Frank Razar, the Hamilton flash and provide Taylor with a bout, then a return bout with Mike Andrew Irish Mickey Walker is a headliner, the Richard-Kogut bout, will be not forgotten nearly as much as the Hart-Lynx affair of last night's show. CHAPTER LIII

"We have seen, sergeant, that you are thorough in your methods. A watch, inspected by our owner, will certainly carry his fingerprints," I hinted for them. A gold watch is as open a thing for finger-prints as a blade of a knife am I not right?"

"Did this watch you found mean, What did that suggest to you?"

"That before I found the watch, I had been handled by somebody who took the trouble to clean it."

"And then replace it in the dead man's pocket?"

"Yes."

"Having robbed the body of everything else of value, he replaced the watch. He had been, from what you stopped at 10:06 but its case perfectly clean of finger-marks. One rub over with a dry cloth would do that?"

"Yes."

"Whoever he was, he must have been particularly anxious that his finger-prints should not betray him. A very careful fellow. Who would take such a precaution as that?"

"It would be the first thing that would occur to a convicted criminal whose finger-prints were in the police records," said Howe, "if he were cautious—and intelligent."

"Samuel Barber, for example? He was a convicted criminal. Was he intelligent?"

"Not very, I think. Desperate and reckless, rather than intelligent."

"Was he cautious about his finger-prints?"

"On the contrary, he left plenty of them—not only all over the cab at the Dun Cow, by which I was immediately able to trace his record, but—as on the last letter he sent to Mr. Coote, though it was unsigned."

"I have his finger-prints here." Grainger held up four black photographed enlargements from the records. "And here are Selby's. Selby was also a convicted criminal. Would you call him cautious and intelligent?"

"Very."

"Not a man to leave finger-prints behind him? Did you, by the way, find any of them on that Joe Maine' letter of warning that you sent to Selby's wife?"

"None, of any kind."

"You didn't expect to find them there? No. The interception of that letter was your work, wasn't it?"

"It was," said Howe.

"You, as had for a village sergeant! It doesn't seem, after all, that you had much to learn from Scotland Yard. Now, I am going to ask you a question that has not been put. It concerns the shed at the back. Between the door, close to it, as we have heard, you found footprints that were undoubtedly Jamie Selby's. Did you, the following day, find anything more there?"

"Yes," said Howe. "A bullet from a .45-calibre revolver, embedded in the wall of the shed. It was concealed by the ivy. That did escape me, till I found it at a later examination."

Stanifforth had not asked that question. He knew the defense was bound to raise it; he preferred to leave it to them. He would then have the best word with the witness.

"A heavy revolver bullet. Did you find any signs of blood near by?"

"Yes. Five yards from the path. Slight blood stains on the stones."

The scraps of porous stone, whose stains had never been washed away, were produced. Howe, adroitly questioned, described the direction of the shot.

The jury listened intently while the picture was presented to the counter between two men in the darkness, the position where they must have stood, the thudding of the bullet into the shed wall. So cleverly did Stanifforth handle the jury that it that it was completely convincing.

"Before lodging in the shed, that bullet passed a man, did it not, that is proved by the blood-stains?"

"Yes."

"The foot-prints by the shed prove Selby's presence; they don't prove where he was when he fired the shot was fired? Whoever was struck by that bullet, was standing farther down the path, fifteen feet below the shed, as shown by the blood-stains?"

Howe agreed:

"What I want to arrive at sergeant, is this; didn't that shooting occur after Mr. Coote fell over the cliff on to the Three Brothers, yards away, those appreciable time after, in fact—actually not before it. Any direct proof of that?"

"Only Mr. Coote's fall on to the line, certainly." Howe gave his reasons.

"I am not differing from you, sergeant, but it is a very important point. After that fall, Mr. Coote's robbing of the body . . . Now to a point still more vital. Those stones we spill on those stones by the shed?"

The witness was silent.

"Who fired that shot? Selby, Barber, or some accomplice unknown? Wounding or killing . . . the deliberate intention to commit murder is a question which, by one side or the other in this case, must be answered. Can you, from your investigations on the spot, and very ably indeed as it seems to me—arraign the jury?"

Stanifforth watched Howe's face, he heart beating swiftly. She was close, with all impulse to stand up in the witness box and cry the truth aloud. Sir every one in court to hear —the truth as it had been told to her. She wanted to signal Howe and implore him to speak.

"You must of course have formed an opinion—a belief," continued Stanifforth, "on this point. Opinions are not admitted. Fact should evidence only. Can you lay any vestige of proof before—for once was the poor hands—they—fired that bullet? You took from the shed wall . . . Have it in before us?"

"No," said Howe quietly. "No proof, no."

"So, for the moment, that man must remain, my learned friend declared emphatically. His location a mystery to be explained by the prosecution. You had an extremely difficult case to have. One more question, and I have done.

"You interviewed Mr. Brian Challmers immediately on his return to King's Sim. You have admitted, sergeant, that you did not ask him this question: 'Were you at the Gannary Mine or near it, at any time on the night of the 5th.'"

"That is correct. I did not ask him that."

"It was an omission, wasn't it?"

"I have been told so."

"You ought to have asked it, so my friend Mr. Stanifforth suggests, in your your suggestions have told you the same thing?"

"They have?" said Howe.

A laugh ran through the court.

Everybody in authority was there because Mr. Challmers was not arrested at once. You waited six days. If you had asked Mr. Challmers that simple question, and he had replied, 'No,' did you go to the Gannary Mine, . . . what could you have done?"

"There are many things I could have done, being in charge of the case."

"But if you were satisfied that Bannister Coote was murdered, here was Mr. Challmers with a motive for that murder so obvious that it shouted aloud, and a cloud of circumstantial evidence piled against him. One woman had already accused him. Another woman touched for his innocence. Why not have asked him the question?"

"Because I had no need to ask it."

"Why?" Grainger spread out his hands. "Here was a simple issue. Why not have arrested Mr. Challmers? You know you were dealing with a case of homicide. You were the officer first on the spot, and you were in constant touch with him for six days. If you had any doubt, why not have arrested him at once and if not at once, then?"

Howe paused only a moment. His eyes met Scoda's as she watched him from the witness box.

"Am I required to answer that question, sergeant?"

"Yes. Since it has been opened, he is entitled to have it fully answered."

"Because," said Howe deliberately, "I had no use for Mr. Challmers under arrest. I knew that I was dealing with a case of murder. The man I intended to track down and arrest was the murderer. I was convinced of the fact the first and sure still later that Mr. Challmers was not only in no part in the crime himself but that the murderer had framed the whole of the evidence so as to fix the guilt on Mr. Challmers and get him arrested and convicted. I knew it was a man in Howe's voice and fire in his eyes; he was letting himself go.

"So, instead of playing the murderer's game for him I left Mr. Challmers free. I arrested—and kept him along with me right on the job, so he could help me—the man I wanted—the murderer. And help me he did, like a straight man, a man with brains in every sense. And Miss Neil, who is now his wife—"

"Really! he exclaimed, "if counsel is to harass the views of a hostile witness to the jury, in the face of the evidence, it is a thing unheard of! Is it the defendant whom the court is trying, or is it this sergeant?"

"My friend has only himself to thank," replied Grainger haughtily. "He first opened this question, the omission to arrest Mr. Challmers on his return from the mine. He should not have opened it; it was an unfair reflection on the witness and still more so on the defendant. Since he did so, the jury are entitled to hear—"

"I do not need these comments on my conduct in the case!"

"Then you will get them every time you interrupt me!" returned Grainger. "And I repeat that now there was nothing to arrest him for. Mr. Stanifforth's sneers about country policemen are unasked for as well as beside the point; my experience of entering, he had raised the gravel as the state counsel's."

"Mr. Howe," he said, "I must ask you to wait your turn," said the judge quietly. "Mr. Grainger, any views you may have on the conduct of the witness may hold as to the innocence or guilt of the defendant are beside the issue, as you know very well. You have carried your point too far."

Grainger bowed, and turned to the witness box.

"Sergeant Howe, you need say no more. You have given a most splendidly a difficult case, was the detection of the crime of a murderer. You failed, in six days to arrest the murderer."

"Yes."

"You declined to arrest Mr. Challmers, and it was done for you Have you made any further investigation into the matter of Bannister Coote's death, since then?"

"Not since the 13th October."

"The day Mr. Challmers was arrested. Have you made no inquiry since that date?"

"I have been confined to my quarters which I shall always blame myself."

Stanifforth was conscious of surprise. The answer took him aback. But his eye became wary, and he didn't ask what the mistake was He had already conceived a respect for this witness.

"We will leave that, and turn to this revolver bullet," he said grimly, "which you dug out of the Gannary shed with. Here it is. Did you, sergeant, discover that bullet-hole for yourself, or was it pointed out to you?"

"It was pointed out to me."

"By whom?"

"By Miss Neila Neil, who was at the shed when I arrived."

"So she pointed it out to you. Evidently a lady with keen eyes; a helpful collaborator. And the discovery of the shot on the stones? The deductions which apparently showed this bullet had wounded a man before it struck the shed—were those hers?"

"No. My own."

"Your own." Stanifforth laid the bullet on the desk. "I will not trouble the jury with these. Now, when Brian Challmers returned the day after Mr. Bannister's death and established his alibi, did you ascertain whether he carried a revolver?"

"No. He had no revolver."

"How do you know?"

"I searched him."

"You searched him! And this was before you knew anything at all about the bullet—you didn't find that till next day . . . is that so?"

"That is so. I didn't actually find the bullet till next day," replied Howe quietly.

"And though you didn't arrest Mr. Challmers, you searched him. Why?"

"Because it was clear to me that there had been two killings on the night of the 5th. One 'of them—"

"That was not my question! I asked you why you searched Brian Challmers—which unless he was arrested you had no right to do—and for him; and as he wished it. I did so."

"He made no objection to being search at all?"

"None in fact, he was laughing."

Laughing! Did you join in the laughter?"

"I believe I did," said Howe. And laughter rippled through the court, so swiftly in a murder trial does tragedy turn upon a jest. Stanifforth waited until it had subsided.

"A most unusual occasion. A pity the dead man could not be there to hear it! Somebody would have amused him," he said acidly. "Did it strike you that Mr. Challmers was a particularly cool hand?"

"I always found him that."

"But you found no gun . . . That appears, in your report, I see," Stanifforth looked less comic there. Did you ask him if he owned a gun, though he was not carrying it? . . . Yes or no?"

Stanifforth held up a slip of paper. He read it aloud. It was a police permit to Brian Cooke Challmers to be in possession of a revolver, specified. Webley 45 calibre, No. 677253, dated twelve months back.

"I obtained a copy of that from headquarters the following day," said Howe . . . "No, he did not deny that he owned a gun. . . He said that as he frequently dealt in diamonds on behalf of Mr. Coote, he never carried it except for self protection, and when on a dangerous errand."

"He—he was not—on a dangerous errand that night! One more question, and I have done with you. Do you know what became of that gun —where it is now?"

Grainger let his feet, sat with a face as expressionless as stone.

"No", said Howe. And Stanifforth sat down.

"No questions," said Grainger. "I have done with you, sergeant."

Amid a commotion of eager whispering, Howe left the stand. His ordeal ended. The judge bid down his pen.

"Have you other witnesses to call, Mr. Stanifforth?"

"Yes, my lord. I shall conclude the case for the prosecution tomorrow."

The court will resume at ten-thirty in the morning."

The session broke up. There was a babel of voices as the audience crowded out.

TARZAN THE INVINCIBLE

(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

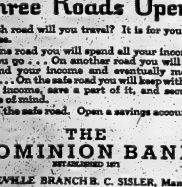
Trenton and District

Trenton, Oct. 2.—(Special)—Mr. W. S. Timmon, Conservative candidate for South Hastings, was given a large ovation here on Monday night, the first opportunity since his recent illness that confined him to the hospital. The Capitol Theatre was filled to the doors when the candidate and Dr. Jno. D. S. Netherwood, who presided, heard Mr. Timmon and Major Belford, candidate in Northumberland county which is situated on the shores of Trenton.

The chairman of the evening was Major Howard D. Graham, K.C., president of the Trenton Conservative Association. A business man's views were espoused by Mr. Mc. A. Simmons, Trenton druggist. He spoke of the trade improvements in Canada since the inception of the Bennett government in 1930. He spoke in glowing terms of the Imperial Conference and stated that it would go down in the history of Canada. He also said that Canada did not need reciprocity, it needed protection. He referred to Mr. Bennett in the pegging of the price of wheat and showed how it had risen each one cent raise in the price of wheat meant three million dollars in the pockets of the Canadian farmer. He finished saying, that he was supporting the Bennett party for the return of the Bennett government at the coming election. Mr. Simmons did not speak as a politician, but as a business man.

Major Belford was the next speaker and he delivered one of the finest addresses heard in Trenton for some time. He spoke of his ideas as to the cause of the depression and the trade practices since the World War. He mentioned the election of Mr. Bennett as premier and said that without the uniting efforts of Mr. Bennett in the past five years, we could not imagine what distress would have been with-out Mr. Bennett. He told of the recent piece of legislation, that will look after the working men and the butter. Mr. Bennett, he said, is the best and soundest man in public life today". He urged everyone to vote and work for the return of the present government. He also complimented the work of Mr. Timmon in his efforts in the House of Commons for which he was associated with Major Belford, The people of Canada were given a real and dampening when they heard Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King open his campaign. In closing he impressed on his listeners that if they wanted Canada to go ahead, they must get behind and stand behind Mr. Bennett's campaign.

Candidate Greeted



Major Belford, in his usual witty way, told the audience that he had not seen an election with so many side shows such as the C.C.F. and trade unionism. He told how hard for opposition in his riding in Northumberland but it was a good fight between himself and Trenton's citizen, Bill Power". This remark caused peals of laughter throughout the audience. As a closing remark, the Major told each person to think of their own welfare and vote Conservative.

Chairman H. D. Graham then called Merle Timmon to the front of the platform and presented him with flowers. He spoke briefly on the trade advances during the King regime and its upward flight after the Conservative party was elected in 1930. He said that in the year 1929, the wheat crop was 567,000,000 bushels and that in the year 1930, the wheat crop was 566,000,000 bushels. He also said that the farmer was suffering by the low price of wheat since the Liberals were in power. He said that the Bennett government at the coming election. Mr. Timmon did not speak as a politician, but as a business man.

"Dante's Inferno"

Scenes that baffle description and sights that stun the senses and stagger the imagination, are the larger part of an unforgettable drama of today, "Dante's Inferno", which is the sensational new Fox feature attraction on the same program, the story of a woman who desperately strives to save the man she loves from destruction.

This million element writhing in eternal torment, labyrinthine furnace chambers, rain of fire, lakes of flame, and craters of doom make the supernatural thrills of Dante's hero and eternal with the challenging truths.

"Dante Alighieri's "Divine Comedy", the greatest of all literary masterpieces, is the basis of these astounding specials ever attempted in theatrical history, but it is not the purpose of this picture to preserves to express a modern theme.

Spencer Tracy, the screen's strongest, played by Spencer Tracy, who also directed it, and which he produced and rises to a position of wealth and affluence by chicanery and trickery. He builds a fortune around sex, amusement concession depicting the horrors of the "Inferno" and launches a floating palace of pleasure, a gambling ship. Behind him he has left a trail of broken hearts and betrayal.

Lola benefactor, played by Henry B. Walthall, a saintly man, tell him that the "Inferno" as the horrors and tortures of Dante's tale are revealed on the screen.

Claire Trevor, played by lovely Claire Trevor, leaves him when he shows his true colors, but comes out of the most spectacular climaxes in modern drama, she returns to him ....after he has found out his lesson.

"Dante's Inferno", has everything that a picture should have to combine in one picture for realism, romance, mystery, philosophy, ambition.....all built on a foundation of inspiration.

"Los Angeles", is the title of a new picture which will be presented to audience to be exhibited on the same program.

BRIDGES BREEZING

Fans Shiver, Weather Being Cold And Raw

By ALAN GOULD

Associated Press Sports Editor

Navin Field, Detroit, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Baseball's fabled hardiness proved small enough to cause a prompt suspension of activity on anything but a world series weather, this Chicago Cubs and the Detroit Tigers resumed their battle for baseball supremacy today. Upwards of 45,000 fans, wrapped in heavy coats, furs and blankets, defied the chilling breezes to see whether the Detroit Tigers' hot bats or the pitching of Lon Warneke, League champions, now tune up and strike.

Greenberg, spelled on their eastern right-hander, Charley Root, to pile up, when they resumed play yesterday with a 3-0 shutout. The Tigers countered with Tommy Bridges, the ace-in-the-hole with the big curve.

Otherwise the line-ups were unchanged.

The sun tried hard to take some of the numbness out of the situation, but the game time but it was a losing issue. The skies were partly cloudy. The fleecy clouds were moving up from the thirties to the forties, was the lowest for any world series game in ten years. The last game played in this kind of weather, so far as baseball records can recall, was during the Washington-Pittsburgh series of 1925.

Dust clouds were picked up off the infield by the terrific blast of cold wind and swept into the lower boxes off the right field foul line. To remedy this situation the sand was brought out to sprinkle the infield, not only for the benefit of the spectators who were being dusted off but also to make the situation easier for the infielders.

The batting order:

First Innings

CUBS—Galan walked, the fourth ball being low and inside. Bridges was trying to bear down and having trouble keeping control in the gusty weather. Jurges lifted a high fly to Fox. Hemsley bolsted a short fly to Gehringer caught after a hard run in short center field. Galan lined to White in right center.

TIGERS—Gehringer walked, as Hemsley missed the plate by a foot on a low curve. Greenberg grounded to Jurges and the Cubs pulled a double play, Jurges to Herman to Cavarretta. Goslin lifted a high fly to Galan in left center.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Second Innings

CUBS—Bridges was applying a sharp-breaking curve ball to the right field foul line. Hack grounded out, Gehringer to Greenberg. Cavarretta lifted a high fly to Goslin in left. Bridges was out to a nice play as Bridges came over to take the toss from the first baseman.

Bridges was employing a sharp-breaking curve ball and a fast ball that was zipping around corners. Hack had the Cubs hitting into the dirt.

TIGERS—Owen fanned, swinging hard at a low curve. Bridges grounded out, Hack to Cavarretta. White walked, the fourth pitched being low. Cochrane lifted a short fly to Galan, who had to come in fast to prevent the wind from blowing the ball away from him.

Third Innings

CUBS—Hack walked, the fourth ball being low and inside. Bridges was trying to bear down and having trouble keeping control in the gusty weather. Jurges lifted a high fly to Fox. Fourth Innings

CUBS—Hack singled on a called third strike that broke sharply over the outside corner. Hack stroll lifted a towering fly, that Goslin caught in short right. Harnett smashed a line drive through centre for the first base hit of Bridges. Demaree struck a fly was caught by White.

League Committee Will Recommend Action To Council

LONDON IS NOTIFIED

Samuels And Churchill Speak Strongly on Issue

Geneva, Oct. 3 (CP Havas)—The League of Nations Committee of Thirteen was in session here this afternoon to recommend action to the council in the light of today's developments of the Italo-Ethiopia situation.

Geneva, Oct. 3 —The dreaded war between Italy and Ethiopia started today, in the view of the League of Nations, with official Ethiopian reports of an Italian air bombardment of Adowa and Italian and Ethiopian battle raging in Agame province.

That a state of war existed, if Italy refused to cease, was considered by League officials to be implicit in the unanimous endorsement of Premier Mussolini, recently declared warlike and aggressive spirit" tomended by leaders of Ethiopia "who have long been dreaming war with Italy and who have succeeded in imposing war."

Legation, 3 p.m. (CP Cable)—There can be no possible doubt it is the duty of the League of Nations to intervene effectively, Sir Samuel Samuels, speaking at the National Liberal Club this afternoon in regard to the Ethiopian dispute.

Report of Bombing

The British Government was officially informed by the Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie's declaration that Italian planes had bombed Adowa with civilian casualties.

One well-informed source stated: "It (the bombing) is tantamount to a declaration of war and is probably the first example of war that will be made. Things will happen now."

Bournemouth, England, Oct. 3 (AP)—Winston Churchill's assertion that Italy had clustered to the point of danger" today stirred the Conservative Party to unanimous adoption of a resolution calling upon the Government to speed the expansion of its defences.

Support of the Government in its defence of the League of Nations Covenant also was unqualifiedly given in a unanimous resolution.

Europe," said Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty during the opening of the Great War, "probably would not be in its present position had we not disarmed to the last extremity. It is the duty of His Majesty's Government immediately to repair the serious deficiencies in our defensive position.

"This is the eleventh hour and I say it is not too late."

The resolution on the defence policy was moved by Sir Edward Grigg.

Financial Economic Rupture With Italy Is Agreed Upon

Paris, Oct. 3—(AP)—It was announced today that Premier Laval of France and Anthony Eden of Great Britain had agreed at the League of Nations action for the immediate application of financial and economic relations with Italy.

Officials said that at the end of their conversation Monsieur Laval French Premier had agreed on the following points:

1—The immediate rupture of financial and economic relations submitted to the approval of the League of Nations.

2—Blocking of the arms embargo against Ethiopia with financial assistance to the country for material fees if necessary.

3—The prohibition of the purchase of Italian goods by members of the League and likewise the sale of goods from the latter country to Italy, also forbidding the sale or transhipment of any war munitions to Italy.

MRS. E. TILFORD TO HANG DEC. 17

'Framed, Absolutely Framed' Shouts Convicted Woman in Court

Woodstock, Ont., Oct. 3 (CP)— Mrs. Elizabeth Tilford awoke today to a doomed woman, convicted of the murder of her husband—a verdict Mr. Justice Kingstone said he concurred in—and sentenced to hang December 17, but she was not led from the courtroom last night before she had time to shout, "Framed, absolutely framed!"

After six hours of deliberation over the evidence of 33 Crown witnesses and the arguments of Crown and defence counsel—there were no defence witnesses—the jury found her guilty of poisoning Fred Tilford with arsenic.

Trials' ended on the last act in the drama that has occupied the attention of this district for many months. Tilford died March 26 after he had told his mother his wife had poisoned him. Several weeks later his body was exhumed. Mrs. Tilford was charged and committed for the trial that began Sept. 30.

Last night Mrs. Tilford, silent during the long trial, spoke after the death sentence: "Your Lordship it's not right. If I'd only had a chance to give my evidence. Framed, absolutely framed. May God have mercy on the Tilfords' souls.

"Gentlemen, I can say I concur with a verdict of this kind," His Lordship told the jury.

To Mrs. Tilford, who collapsed after the jury had retired, he said: "You have had a fair trial. You have been defended by an able counsel and everything has been done that could be done for your interests."

Mrs. Tilford was alternately composed and highly nervous throughout the last day of the trial as she heard C. W. Bell, K.C., her counsel, conclude an address which had occupied three hours of the previous day's session. O. L. Snyder, Crown counsel, and His Lordship followed.

Tree Falls on Bowling Green

It was fortunate that none of the members of the Stirling Bowling Club were on the green on Thursday afternoon, or some one might have been seriously injured. The large elm tree on the north side of the bowling green came crashing down to it was not the light branches that was sowing. Slow decay inside the trunk of the large tree at last did its work and the lovely pin is now a sorry sight with half of its wide spreading branches gone. The limb that gave way reached all the way across the green and the weight of its fall dug deep holes in the grass and tore up small pieces of sod here and there. It is fortunate the bowling season is nearly over and that no one was on the green at the time.

Albert Registration is Markedly Improved, Governors Told

The annual meeting of the Albert College Board of Governors convened Thursday in Ashburn Hall at the College, with almost all members present. Reports were received from the College dining hall at 12.46 following which the business meeting of Rev. Frank Langford, Secretary of the Board of Christian Education of the United Church was chairman and reports of the various departments of the College work were received.

Registration Increased

Particularly encouraging was the principal's report showing that the registration was almost double that of last year. Principal Howard told of the splendid response with which the plan of bursaries, scholarships and commerce course has been received. Every enrolment is proceeding his most hoped for expectations. The academic work of the past year was most encouraging, the College having a pass record of approximately 90 per cent. in all departments. The Principal paid a splendid tribute to the unswerving loyalty and co-operation of the Faculty which has rendered him every assistance in his labours.

During the summer he stated the College had been thoroughly painted. The boys' rooms and recreation rooms in the basement are inviting and attractive. All major repairs have been cared for, and new equipment installed to meet the requirements of the new departments operated by the United Church. The new activities have also sprung into new life. Just as the year was drawing once again be seen on the campus, an efficient basketball line-up is also ready to battle for the honours.

H. W. Ackerman, the College Bursar, presented the financial report, showing a very encouraging improvement in the financial standing of the College. The year's operating costs have been met and a small surplus on income hadebeen has been converted. The report was highly commended and unanimously adopted.

Tribute to Principal

Before concluding the business of the day, the Board took occasion to express its appreciation of the untiring efforts of Principal Howard as shown by the marked improvements in registration and the financial status of the College. By a standing vote, the members of Conference rose to the Principal their appreciation of his work and by resolution pledged themselves on record as standing behind him whole-heartedly in the work, and to lend their aid in every way to creating deficit at the end of the year, to undertake that it is well cared for.

The splendid atmosphere of faith and optimism pervaded the entire meeting, the Board pledging itself most whole-heartedly to the continuance of their ability the work and ideals of the College, and looking forward to the future, they feel that Albert College is destined to do even greater work than ever before.

POLICE BLOTTER

One drunk and nine transients occupied the cell block at the police station last night, all being liberated this morning when the police were instructed to appear in Friday's police court, however.

Arthur Rogers, 97 West Bridge street, reported the loss of top coat and fedora hat from last night. Mr. Rogers had left his wearing apparel in the parlor of a local boarding house, while he proceeded down town on business.

A rather unique accident, that subsequently developed into a serious affair, happened on Campbell street yesterday afternoon, when fortunately no person was injured. Everett Pinkerton, 178 Lewis street, parked his truck on Campbell street, leaving the vehicle in gear to assure its being stationary. Mrs. Pinkerton was left in the cab of the truck by Mr. Pinkerton, while he proceeded to do some shopping. Although it is not definitely established, it is believed that the little child in some way released the clutch and the truck started down the street colliding with Mr. T. T. Wills' automobile, that was parked nearby. A slight dent we noticed in Mr. Wills' car by a C. P. Evans, who investigated. Although the drivers cars were somewhat frightened, no injuries were reported. The matter of damages was amicably settled.

TWO YOUTHS IN BANCROFT JAIL

Both Charged With Breaking And Entering Summer Home.

Inspector Frank Gardner of Ontario Provincial Police today revealed the names of the two youths who the police allege attempted to hold-up the caretaker of a number of American owned cottages at Lake Combermere on Monday. The names given by the two youths were Wilfred Smith, 17, Montreal, and Earl Miller, 20, Gange, Que. The two were lodged in the local county jail yesterday charged with breaking and entering.

The caretaker of the summer homes at Lake Combermere, Clifford Hoare, found two youths in one of the cottages but as the latter entered the building one of them is alleged by Hoare picked up a revolver and endeavoured to hold him up. Fortunately, however, Hoare was familiar with the firearms left in his custody and knew the revolver was not loaded. Immediately he grappled with the intruder, one of his weapon, subsequently holding the pair up with the same revolver. The pair were taken into custody, neither knowing the revolver was not loaded.

The men were turned over to Provincial Constable Price Morris at Bancroft and later charged with breaking and entering. They were lodged in the county jail and on Saturday, when they will appear in court at Bancroft.

The Translucent Rays—a Radiant Ruby Diagnosis

Advised Radiology is the diagnosis and treatment of disease by the measuring and restoring to normal of the vibrations of the human body.

Diagnosis is accomplished by connecting the patient to the electrically controlled Radionic Instrument, which registers accurately the patient's condition.

It will reveal the condition of every organ of the body, and if disease exists, will indicate the necessary treatment.

It will discover blood, tumors, bacteria, pus or any other source of infection that is undermining the system.

In the treatment of disease by Advance Radionics the body is flooded with health-giving vibratory energy that is generated by the Radionic Instrument. Impaired tissues are thus vitalized, harmful bacteria is destroyed, and the nervous system made normal.

WHEAT PRICE IS SET BY CABINET

Secretary of State Reveals Inside Story of Pegging

By The Canadian Press

Some inside history of wheat prices was disclosed last night by Secretary of State Dandurand as a Conservative rally in Montreal. He said before the minimum price of 87 1-2 cents was set Sept. 7, the government rejected a recommendation of the Wheat Board to peg it eight to 10 cents higher.

"My Board did not fix the price of wheat, minimum or otherwise," the Secretary of State said.

The price of 87 1-2 cents a bushel "become legal, had to be approved by the cabinet not by the Prime Minister alone, Mr. Cahan explained. "The Board suggested the price be set at from eight to 10 cents higher than it was fixed, but the (cabinet) council felt it should not be fixed so high and finally the Board fixed it at 87 1-2 cents and the council approved."

"For men of the eastern townships who are working, ask yourselves when you come home . . . at night would I have a job if Mr. King's policies had been put into effect in 1930," Mr. Bennett suggested. "The answer is 'no'. There never was a clearer issue for you to decide upon at he polls."

At the last session Mr. Bennett said a vote of $1,000,000 had been passed to stabilize dairy prices. "I regret to say the first cheques will not be paid until Oct. 15 and I hope you farmers within sound of my voice, when you get your cheques the day after the election, will not have qualms of conscience because you voted against the government, that gave it to you."

Make No Alliances

At Wrentham, Liberal leader Mackenzie said he would make no alliances with other parties after the election. So far as he was concerned then would be no hookup between Liberals and Conservatives if neither party gained a House majority. He was commenting on Reconstruction leader Stevens' prediction of a union government.

The Liberal leader foresaw changes in Canadian election laws if political parties continued pouring money to electors as well as work. "Where is the difference between offering a great body of people $25 a month and going into a man's home and putting $25 in his hand in exchange for his vote?"

The Bennett government had been in power five years, time in which to make all the trade agreements it liked, Mr. King said. And yet there was no treaty with Washington. The Liberal party would do in one month what Mr. Bennett had failed to do in five years.

Minto, Oct. 1.—Holy service was held here on Sunday with a good attendance. The topic being "The Church's home and putting $26 in his hand in exchange for his vote?"

She received many beautiful and useful gifts, after which Marion thanked them all and invited them to visit her in her new home. The remainder of the evening was spent in dancing.

Mrs. Eddie Golden, Teddie and Gilbert, spent Wednesday with Mrs. George McMaster.

Obituary

LATE CHARLES S. FOOTE (Madoc)

Wednesday afternoon the funeral of Charles S. Foote, 70, of Madoc, who died in the Belleville General Hospital on Tuesday, Oct. 1st, took place from the Thos. C. Thompson Funeral Home, Bevan Street. Service at the funeral home was conducted by the Rev. T. B. Naylor, pastor of the Tabernacle United Church, at the close of which the funeral party proceeded to Madoc where interment was made in the Madoc cemetery. The service at the graveside was conducted by the Rev. W. A. Hunter of Madoc.

Two Station Street residences were raided by R.C.M.P. and local authorities under a search warrant yesterday. Police stated they were in search of illicit liquor. Over one thousand gallons of home made wines and a small quantity of what police say is illicit liquor was discovered. Lance Corporal J. C. McPhee, of the R.C.M.P., along with two of his constables and Plain-clothes officer Fred Isard made the search.

A quantity of the alleged moonshine and some of the native wine was confiscated and will be sent to headquarters for analysis. No charges have been laid as yet, but authorities today revealed that charges would be preferred, however.

MEANING OF PRICE RISE

Throughout the world commodity prices are on the rise.

This is accepted as a sign of recovery from the dark days of "twenty-nine." Wallis sooms may say that the threat of war in East Africa is the cause, yet critics believe that this element can easily be exaggerated.

According to Prof. Fisher's index quoted in the New York Times, the price average based on 100 as the average for 1926 was 86.6 last week, compared with 85.5 the week before, 86.1 two weeks ago, 84.5 three weeks before, and 84.3 four weeks before. Steadiness is indicated.

Prices according to this index are the highest since July 6th, 1930. Other indices are said to show similar advances. The U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics shows the commodity price average at 81 per cent of the 1926 average, the highest point for the year, 4.5 per cent above that of a year ago, and almost 13 per cent above that of two years ago.

British price rise is given by an index which shows last week's price average at 85.5 of the 1926 level, the highest for this year. The last issue of the Economist indicates the highest prices since Britain left the gold standard in 1931. Italian and German prices are up. French indices show a right-about-face from the downward trend.

There is in this uniform and general rise an evidence of a growing world demand for goods. The New York Times says "It must tend to give an employment by increasing and restoring margin profits. It will help the gold bloc in its fight against devaluation. The fact that it has occurred simultaneously in nearly every leading country illustrates once more the essential economic unity of the modern world. If recent gains are to be held and extended the policies of individual nations must recognize that interdependence."

That brings up the possibility of war and the opportunity it would bring for cheap employment. The general feeling is that the depression is steadily passing away and that if the restorative forces are allowed to proceed and if proper measures are taken to help that trend and if war does not interfere, there is every sign of much better days ahead.

SPELLING, PRONUNCIATION

The average spelling and the pronunciation of the average word are said to be growing worse and some persons are wondering if the talkie and radio are the cause. The average level in spelling and other phases of English composition has been on the decline among college students, it is reported. Is it that the students read less and listen more?

That the young read less is challenged by others. Publisher declare there is no falling off in the juvenile department. All Hollywood is talking about such like "Little Women" and "David Copperfield" are helped by the motion pictures of the same name. Newspapers and magazines report greater reading than ever.

Then is it the reading without attention to spelling because of lack of time and of haste that is at fault? Or do people feel that what counts is not the spelling which changes from age to age but that it is only the thought that really matters. Then a cynic may ask "Can you prove that the people are thinking so much that they do not take time to learn to spell? Are you sure it is the amount of thinking that is responsible?" Or is it the telephone and telegraph?

So the statement is questioned on every hand. But the fact remains that there are some fixed rules in every person knows, and some bad pronunciation as an occasional error in a radio address or announcement proves.

ON THE OPENING OF WAR

Was there ever a war with so much advance notice?,

Unless all reports are amiss, war between Italy and Ethiopia has been begun in real earnest. "A solemn hour is about to strike." Duce told his millions of fellow countrymen yesterday, in broadcast which carried into the smallest settlement in the country and to the farthest fishing huts. His voice was heard at the ends of the earth as he announced that the Italian armies were marching and were accompanied in mind and action by the rest of the forty-four millions of his people. He declared that his people would oppose to economic sanctions their discipline and to military sanctions war.

At last the beginning of the Empire of the Caesars seems to be within his grasp. What does fate hold in store for this venture? The world asks in grave anxiety and Mussolini might well ask himself.

Outside of Italy, the world believes that Mussolini will bear on his shoulders the blame for whatever blood flows to which his warshipping compatriots will contribute, probably more than they drain from the veins of the backward Ethiopians, whose only fault to him is their barbarism. The world thinks and rightly so that Italians think so too that Ethiopia's backwardness is but the excuse for aggression.

Now as the war is on even if victory perches on the Italian arms or eagles as the ancient forefathers of the Italians used to say in their grandiloquent way, what will be the fame? Slaughter of a dark race, unboosted and scantily armed, strong only in their native country's physical characteristics and in their indomitable fire and fanaticism. Races should scorn to quarrel with a race like this under the pretence of civilization. If the Ethiopians fight off the Italians it will be a proud day for the black race. In the meantime what of the rest of the world with one or two countries still looked upon with suspicious doubts? Sanctions are promised if there is aggression. Will they be economic merely or military? It is no wonder the world is vitally interested.

And what of the League? Will it stand the terrific test to which it is to be put in the coming days to prove that it means something?

LURES

Life would defeat us as we go by
Yet, can she cheat us, though she may try?

Though she forget the promises made,
Think, can we yet be wholly betrayed?

For all her scorning,
Of hope's bright gleams,
In youth's glad morning
She sets fair dreams.

She gave us laughter
And love's sweet cheer;
Then what comes after
We need not fear.

Though youth must perish
This boon endures;
Brave hearts still cherish
Bright, bygone lures.

THE ELECTION CAMPAIGN HAS BEEN CHARACTERIZED AS A PINK TEA AFFAIR by some who prefer the strenuousness of election contests in the past when everybody got hot up for their particular parties and ready to argue, fight or shoot pool for the drinks. Signs of a rift in the fleecy clouds of amity seem to be visible and "the first shot was fired in anger" on Wednesday when a large Stevens banner, stretched across the street at Front street and Victoria Avenue, was cut down. Not once but twice was the banner separated from its fastenings and dragged in the mire in front of the street. The candidate affected did not like it, naturally, and the police were called in. It was found that the lady who occupied the flat to which was attached one end of the banner objected to the banner of a third or fourth party being flung as it were from her window, as she was not in favor of the party so advertised. She decided to take the measure into her own hands and cut the rope, not once but twice. She also said that she had seen several people kill their cat and hanged on a city across the border where she lived before coming to Belleville. The Stevens candidate states that he has permission from the owner of the building to attach the banner, and he shall be flown if he has to hold it up himself. Reminds one of the Barbara Frietchie legend of the civil war in the United States transformed to verse by Whittier. A memory serves us right, where the grayheaded mother flaunted the Union flag of the northern states in front of the marching men of the rebel south, and shouted "shoot of you must this old grey head but spare your country's flag, she said." Then the reply of the gallant Southern general, yes sir, we all understand—"Who harms a hair of you grey head dies like a dog, march on he said." And so the first phase of the battle of the banners rests in an armed truce—and the banner still flaunts its invitation so that all who run and walk and can read.

GRAPE FRUIT FROM BRITISH HONDURAS is now arriving in Canada, another indication that trade within the empire is increasing, as it should be. The Canadian Fruit Trade Commissioner, Rodney, stated at Montreal this week with the initial shipment of between thirty and forty thousand boxes of grapefruit expected this season. This shipment, it may be of general interest to tell, was made from an estate at Stann Creek, south of Belize, capital of British Honduras. All the trees from which the grapefruit was harvested were planted since the Canadian-West Indian Trade Agreement was signed ten years ago, and total imports this year are expected to show an increase of three hundred per cent over those of last year, according to the Montreal Gazette shipping editor. Experiments are also being made in the culture of lemons in British Honduras. As far as known lemons are not grown in any other part of the British Empire although limes are cultivated extensively in the various countries bordering on the Caribean.

KINGSTON DOCTOR REPORTED MAKING HEADWAY IN CANCER RESEARCH

The Canadian Medical Journal, current issue, carries a report by Dr. Hendry C. Connell of Kingston General Hospital on his work with "ensol" (a series of biological products which he discovered last July) in treatment of cancer. The journal editorially comments on the work being carried on by the Kingston doctor and his assistant, Bertram Holsgrove. Dr. Connell, who gave up research UPPER LEFT, Dr. Hendry C. Connell examining cancer cells in the microscope. RIGHT, Dr. H. C. Connell with Bertram Holsgrove, technician, he has aided in the long research into action of enzymes on proteins. He is holding a test tube of ensol. In this tube of saline solution invisible micro-organisms or bacilli are working on a cancer base in order to further the research. The layout of pictures and screening in this solution the enzymes with which experiments on cancer in the human body are being carried out. LOWER LEFT, Dr. C. D. T. Ensol, Chemical Ferment For Treatment of Cancer Kingston Doctor Reports

MONTREAL, Oct. 2.—(CP)—The protein product developed by Dr. Hendry C. Connell for treatment of cancer and its action when injected into human bodies are described today by the 40-year-old Kingston physician in the Canadian Medical Association Journal.

Since his first public announcement last July when he told of his method of dissolving cancerous material, Dr. Connell has given up his private practice and devoted himself to carrying out further his research work.

By means of the solution he has developed, which he believes is an enzyme, or chemical ferment, Dr. Connell found that malignant cells underwent a breaking-down or digestion much the same as natural digestive processes of the body.

This digestive fluid he termed "Ensol", the first two syllables of "enzyme" and "solution".

In his report Dr. Connell recites the case histories of 29 persons, with detailed treatment and results. The report covers four months of treatment beginning last May. All the cases were considered hopeless when intra-muscular injections of "Ensol" were given. Two of the patients have returned to work, apparently well. Four died, but in each case pain has disappeared. In nine others the pain is less. In some cases the growths seem shrunken and in others little change is indicated.

Advances No Claim of Cure

"No claims of a "cancer cure" are advanced by the Kingston doctor. Continued research work and study of reactions to the treatment are necessary.

"It is altogether too soon," Dr. Connell reports, "to assess the ultimate value of the method. Weeks or months must elapse before we can determine if the cancer masses continue to show shrinkage and absorption till their complete disappearance may occur."

In an accompanying editorial to Dr. Connell's "preliminary report," the Journal says he has associated with him "a number of men of high repute in the profession, representing various aspects of medicine, and that "we are sure his work is being thoroughly and scientifically carried on and that his conclusions, whatever they may eventually prove to be, will be accepted as accurate."

"Certainly," states the editorial, "his work cannot be lightly passed by."

Though Dr. Connell's report is confined to his study and treatment of cancer, it is hoped the principle may be applies to research work in other diseases, notably tuberculosis.

Eye Cataracts Early Work

Dr. Connell's early work was concerned with study of eye cataracts, which he found disappeared through dissolution of the cataract proteins by enzymes, but the healthy proteins also were dissolved.

The question then arose what would dissolve only the cataract. Dr. Connell then experimented with bacteria in making an enzyme to perform this dissolving.

He found it worked and then set about applying the principle to cancer. Cancer proteins from a woman's breast were "fed" to bacteria named B. Histolyticus and the proteins were broken down. This was the usual process of germs that destroy proteins and are known as "proteolytic micro-organisms".

In the same way he destroyed cancer. Dr. Connell began developing an enzyme that would "eat up" or digest only cancer protein, provided it differed from healthy flesh. The liquid remaining after the germs fed on cancer protein appeared to contain something that destroyed cancer cells.

Dr. Connell than had his "Ensol" — an enzyme solution left by the hungry germs after they had feasted and he found it could be made sterile and injected safely into the human body.

Attacks Vigorously

A period of incubation of four to six days is necessary in producing the solution, which must then be purified. In action then, reports Dr. Connell, when placed in fresh cancer tissue is to attack the latter vigorously with observed reaction and "the immediate effects were most remarkable."

Since Dr. Connell's first announcement two and a half months ago, patients have flocked to Kingston from all parts of Canada and the United States. A shipment of "Ensol" was sent to Australia on a telephone request from that continent. One of Dr. Connell's early patients was a prisoner from Kingston Penitentiary, pronounced in a dying state from cancer and given, at his own request, the observed injection of the solution. He has now left Kingston apparently much improved.

Saturday night a motor was sitting on the wall near the upper bridge when he accidentally lost balance and fell a distance of 12 feet into the river. SAFETY SAMMY SAYS By E. Geo. Green

CITY PICK-UPS

The old-time ship carpenter who built his handful of rough tools for cladding a hand axe, adze and other implements could convert his stock of oaken timbers and cedar planks into a sleek, mechanically perfect ship of beauty upon the water. While present day builders work with spring over the blueprints, like the blacksmith's apprentice, has disappeared from the scheme of things in this district. No longer may he be found in his favorite haunts among the waterfront, and the ship tales of ships afloat and others whose scattered bones litter the graveyards of the lakes are gone with him. Steel and iron and electric welding machines have replaced the white oak and the hickory and cedar which in the days of sail and the tools with which he so deftly fished and fitted have long since gone to rust in his brass-bound cedar tool box. Mine prints, intricate in their construction and the bellshounds have replaced the rough cuts of wrapper paper on which he was wont to scribble the dimensions of his ships and garboard and the pitch of the planking which curved to the bow. Copper nails have replaced the wooden pegs with which the timbers were fitted, and a pot of white lead and the skein of cotton caulking now make up the combination which makes the modern ship. The hefty timbers were joined with invisible rivets. Boat building still goes on apace on the lakes and ships are the craft produced in the hands of the same master artisans of factory lofts and home basements, but there is missing from their shirts the hefty timbers and the master's touch which set each craft apart as noticeably as the personality of the builder. There is today a different leech to the sails, and the rattlines seem loose and bulk where tightness is required. There is a pitch to the decks, amidships in the lift, and a rake of the spars and mast is askew to the old timer's eye. Not so quick to the helm, may be the latter day craft, and sweeping in fine but there is a different wash to the waves which curl and hiss aft from the less sharp-clavring bow and a different song is heard from the taut taunt rigging as the boat leans to the weather in a summer squall. The harp-like chords which were music to the ears of the olden day skippers are missing. Soft wood has replaced the sturdy, hard-to-work white oak and hickory hewed from the forests of North Hastings and the decks are like as not just painted canvas as inseit in the old time carpenter's eye." The tarred ropes and the tarred seams which from time immemorial have kissed and sulked from the heat of a July sun have been replaced with the latest model of spar varnish and the hand-hammered anchor with its fir wrought on the standing anvil by the brawny-handed smith has given way to the new adaption with patented flukes, like as not brass tipped and bright in appearance. The old time carpenter has gone and in his wake has come a new breed of ship builder who has yet to test the waves in a bow that is really worth calking.

England is accused over the matter of the old school tie.

Baskets of letters are being written editor-wise from them in an admirably bellicose spirit—and the subject is liable to reach the House of Commons any day now!.

Unscrupulous haberdashers who hooking genuine old school, old regimental and old club ties to unattributed persons like postmasters and operators of pneumatic drills are being called hard names in print.

Maybe the clothing merchants aren't doing it purposely. Perhaps the purchasers lie like troopers about having attended Eton in order to obtain one of the coveted cravats. All the same, it's the merchant's responsibility, declare an outraged people, and the problem is finding a solution.

Old Hominis, old Harrovians and old Gordon Highlanders are busily tired of walking into their favorite pubs and being confronted with bartenders upon whose chests gleam the dear old red, green and pink stripes, or the equally hallowed blue, orange and brown stripes. It's disconcerting.

There would be similar chaos in this country, for example, if the five and lens began giving away a Phi Beta Kappa key with every purchase, or if some reputable university diploma could be bought at any grocery store.

"Since seeing my school tie on a check drive I have a mine of and never expect to wear it again," writes one signalled victim. "Is there not something that can be done to avoid such painful situations?"

"I was a clothing merchant in the city for two years," writes another, "and in all that time I can truthfully say I never knowingly sold a school or club tie to an unauthorized person. I made it a point always to ask the customer if he had privileged to wear the tie, and if he were not, I never hesitated to refuse its custom".

Such a practice, if followed 100 per cent. by England's merchants would curb the grand conspiracy, point out publishers of even the larger papers who have interested themselves in the matter and have taken up the cudgels in the wearer's behalf.

"Men Without Names"

Thrilling Story of Adventure in Underworld and Love-Lots of Fight Added Feature

Here is a real action story of the true adventures of the scientific sleuths who are "waring against crime, and succeeding very well.

With Fred McMurray, Madge Evans, Lynne Overman and young David Holt heading the cast, "Men Without Names" is a dynamic punch-packed film hazed on adventures that have really happened.

The brutal perpetrators of a daring mail robbery are the enemy in the picture. From Brooklyn, where they pull the job, the gang is traced to a small Kansas town through a trail of bills.

McMurray, masquerading as a business man is sent to the town by the Department of Justice. It is his job to dig out the criminals. Impeded by a newspaper woman played by Madge Evans, and by a local "big-shot" who is attempting to cover the gangsters, McMurray finally finds their hiding place.

Lynne Overman, another Department detective, is sent to aid him, and between them they begin to forge the chain of evidence that will send their men to prison. But Overman is slightly overzealous, steps into the gangster's trap and is cruelly murdered. The gang flees, but some on their trail are the government men. How the special agents finally get their revenge, catch their prisoners and help McMurray win the girl, is revealed in a thrilling, dramatic climax.

"Men without Names" boasts of a most capable cast, besides the above players, there are J. C. Nugent, Herbert Rawlinson and Leslie Fenton.

Best-Loois Film

Of paramount interest to sport fans of Belleville, particularly those who have been following the fistic gang, is the first showing, of the 1935 Sar-Joe Louis championship fight films.

Those who have seen these pictures of that memorable fight, which was attended by the Yankee Stadium in New York the night of the fight, say that they are perfect pictures and a far more vivid and detailed view of the two fighters than was possible from any but the choicest ringside seats at the Stadium.

Time of the film showing the four rounds of fighting, fifteen minutes, due to the numerous slow motion "shots" taken when Louis knocked down the mighty MAX.

Besides these two excellent films the Capitol offers an amazing comedy entitled "Behind the Riddle" in which Bobby Hope is featured. The picture has happened throughout the world are brought to the Capitol screen by Fox Movietone News.

Three complete shows are given each day, at 2.30 p.m. in the evening at 7 and again at 9.00 p.m.

AT THE REGENT

"This is The Life"

Two Quality Features On One Great Program of Laughs and Thrills

A bundle of surprises, top-notch comedy entertainment is now at the Regent until Friday. The picture, "This is the Life" which features the talents of little, nine-year-old Jane Withers, is the comedy sensation who is remembered for her part as Little Imogene in "Bright Eyes", and recently in "Ginger".

Little Miss Withers sets a new style in comedy entertainment. In "This is the Life" which kept Hollywood and New York perview audiences in continual guffaws and caused the prediction that the film is a great beginning for what looks like a greater career.

Jane Withers registers a million dollars worth of personality and talent in her new picture and Regent theatre audiences are assured they will love her as much in this story as they did in her previous hits, "Ginger", that delighted her many Belleville and vicinity admirers. John McGuire and charming Sally Blane are the romantic interests in the story, other favorite stars in important roles are Francis Ford and Sidney Toler.

"Dante's Inferno"

A gripping mammoth drama, with romance and breath-taking spectacle consistent in super-entertainment is announced for exhibition on the same program.

It is "Dante's Inferno", which creates for the first time on the talking screen the thrilling adventure of Dante in his journey through Inferno serving as the extraordinary background for the drama.

As pictured, this becomes the great spectacle ever attempted in theatrical history. The vision of Dante delightful, while the film realized in epic poem the terror that awaited those who died in sin, may be fully appreciated by the horrors of the "Inferno", owned by Henry B. Walthall, with Claire Trevor, actr as his cashier.

Tracy marries Claire Trevor and sets down on the road to ruin. His master stroke is the launching of a floating gambling palace for gambling and pleasurewith. His scheming of wealth, however, leaves a trail of death, misery and betrayal of men whom he has ruined in his rise to power.

Walthall, injured when the "Inferno" burns, is taken home in his arms to take Tracy in hand and tells him the story of the inferno, as depicted by Dante, the most dramatic scenes of this picture . . . and some of the most spectacular ones ever produced are seen here.

It is then impossible to force the emotional feeling of the picture further after the Inferno scenes. But the picture progresses at a fast with great power to the climax in which Tracy, still spurned by Claire Trevor leaves him when he shows his true colors, but after one of the most spectacular climaxes in modern drama, she returns to him

. . . after he has learned his lesson.

The higher cost of living and learning was virtually wiped out by the arrangement, declared the students, Raymond Pound and Harvey Hahn.

Expenses are $1.50 a month for electricity, for which the trailer has been connected with Berkeley's regular power system, plus $50 a year rent for the ground.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

(Copyright 1936, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When buying a gift for a bride-to-be which are the correct initials to have put on the gift— the girl's name Vicki R. House, or the man's name, Howard G. Crane?

2) Which three initials should the girl put on her bedspread?

3. What is the correct way to register in a hotel.... Mr. and Mrs. John Smith or Mr. John Smith and wife?

Thank you.

There is no definite answer to this question as to whether the bride's letter and those marked with the initials of her maiden name go first or the name-to-be. It is the bride's right who must decide which she prefers, and which ever she prefers is right. Formerly, as you know, the initials of her maiden name were always the ones that were used. But now, just as often, she chooses to have the initials of her name-to-be used.

So the wisest thing for us do, when we are planning to give a wedding present that is to be initialed, is to inquire of the bride-to-be which type of initials she prefers. Or when we buy the gift, we may make arrangements with the shop where we buy it, that the bride may take it to the shop and have it marked as she chooses. And this of course, must be made after the bride.

If the bride chooses her maiden initials, she will use all three, V. R. H., or only V. H. if she uses the initials of her name-to-be, she uses V. H. O. —Vicki House Crane— not the initials of her husband's name, but the initials of the formal name of her husband-to-be, R. G. C. not the initials of her husband's married name.

2. On her linens and bedspreads, if she has them marked with her maiden name initials, she uses V. R. H. If she uses her married name initials, she uses V. H. O.

3 The husband registers for himself and wife: Mr. and Mrs. John Smith, Baltimore Maryland.

It is very poor form for him to use the form Mr. John Smith and wife.

Small Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I am planning to be married at the minister's home in the afternoon with no one present but the two who have been wondering if it would be absolutely correct to have an informal reception afterwards at my home? How should the invitations be issued, by note or simply by asking the guests to come? As the wedding will be small, I want it to be as simple and as informal as possible.

2. Should announcements be sent out?

3. Should one have an attendant at the ceremony?

M.

1. Yes, it would be throughly correct, and very delightful, for you to have an informal gathering of your relatives and friends after your wedding at your home. Notes written by your mother, who is to be the hostess, or invitations given verbally, would be the appropriate form.

2. It is correct, and a very convenient way of making the announcements to those who are not invited to the wedding, to send formal engraved announcements. The announcement should be all ready to mail directly after the ceremony has been performed.

3. Whether or not the bride has an attendant at her informal wedding depends entirely on her own choice. Usually there is a maid of honor or a matron of honor, but this is not at all necessary, if the bride prefers to dispense with an attendant.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

(Copyright, 1936, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Says his failure is love is Inferior Complex

She told me to go away and not to come back till I got over my inferior complex. Wasn't that rich, when she gave it to me? Or is it a despairing young man, who has many times been telling of inferiority when he got her letter.

The letter and the girl's decision is one of those unrecognized tragedies which occur in such forbidding guise as to seem more like a death sentence than reprieve.

The young lady's about whom he has written me six typewritten pages, look with both hands of his time, money, opportunities and when he had nothing else to do gave turned him down flat and married someone else with more money.

She was really his inferiority complex. She robbed him of courage, ambition and friends, and made of him as himself as a failure. Yet he was so dependent on the whim of her eye she exercised over him that life seems pretty flat, now that his Galsworthy has turned up new complications to someone else.

In simple language an inferiority complex is a feeling that you can't quite make the grade. And making the grade, my dear sir or madam, is up to you. If you fail to arrive, it's not because of someone else's mother or father did to you when you were little, or that your teacher singled you out when she was in her least amiable mood. It's that the girl you think would never dance with you in dancing school. It's so convenient to have Nervousness, worry and ill health take a heavy toll from the glorious crown. Hair, like every other part of the body, is dependent upon hygiene and health.

Keep the scalp scrupulously clean. Loosen dead skin scales by using a lukewarm the night before the shampoo. Mineral oil is good for the purpose. Brush the hair often, brushing acts upon the blood vessels and nourish the roots. Take the hair strand by strand, and give it a hard brush. The weekly shampoo serves as a scalp treatment, too, if the scalp is rinsed vigorously.

Chaperonage No Longer Stylish

So, Some Substitute Must Be Found For It, States Writer

By LISA GRENVILLE

In our mothers' time, perhaps also in our own younger years, chaperonage was a daughter of prime necessity.

No girl went out without a chaperone. The time and the whereabouts of her coming and going was dictated or at least supervised by her parents.

The personal character and prospects of any suitor for daughter's favors was examined by every conscientious father. A young man had to satisfy father before he could even offer his attentions to the daughter. He had to have a good stable and reasonably handsome. He had to be considered a desirable match. He could hope to be looked on as a possible husband.

A young man would have been ostracized from society, in that period for indelicate behavior in the presence of respectable young ladies.

Sounds Absurd Now

All of which sounds very obsolete and ridiculous to us now. So much sheltering, so much superfluous protection! Why, even in love match, father and the lady of mother, had a hand in the selection. Certainly father and mother should heed it—to break the thing up.

Nowadays, a girl does her own choosing. She seldom gets a chance to do any passing on his prospective son-in-law. Mother is our mothers' opinion is asked. Often the parents know nothing about his daughter's selection.

All that may have its advantages, but, we are learning to our grief, it also has its disadvantages. No doubt father in the old days, was unfair to the young man and expected too much of him. But is daughter always right in her choice? Is love too casual sometimes?

It is rather hard, perhaps, not to allow girls to associate with any but the boys of their own set in everything, through the individual may rise above a poor or unknown background, the average runs fairly true to its breeding and environment.

Build a Defense

In these times, many young men are jobless through no fault of their own. With many, it will obviously not be a question of "will" at all.

Yet, in times of depression, the sheep get mixed with the goats. The unemployables become confused with the unemployed. It would, perhaps, be a matter of facts to wait until she at least is sure to which class her suitor belongs.

—Tom Belongly

However, she won't. Listen to fathers' counsel, she will depend on her own good sense— if she has any.

Somehow, by careful instruction, we must teach our daughters an adequate defense against a complete lack of external supervision and protection.

Hat Must Conform To Design of Hair

By HELEN POLLETT

Nothing is more distracting and carries a young girl as a new coiffure. Sometimes thereby a radical change in the whole ensemble just because the old one doesn't suit the new hair style. Unless millinery and coiffure are on friendly terms there will be a false note in the beauty ensemble.

Just what the wisest one had looked precisely like the next one. Designers are now kinder now. No strict rule; it is a sort of go as you please race. Each has the prunned or just coaxed. You can wear a helmet of a cartwheel But the hat must conform to the arrangements of the tresses.

Latitude in length of hair is also a help toward individuality in appearance. One can be fairly close clipped as the year of the hair is generally undulated. One can have locks long enough to pigtail, do them on the crown of the head and still be long.

Treatment is pretty much as it should be, if you ask us There's no excuse for looking dusky or dowdy these days.

Whether or not the bride has an attendant at her informal wedding depends entirely on her own choice. Usually there is a maid of honor or a matron of honor, but this is not at all necessary, if the bride prefers to dispense with an attendant.

Record Crowd Rewards Efforts Directors Madoc Fair, While Quality Exhibits Excellent

More Than 5,000 Pay Way to View Over 6,000 Exhibits

GOOD ATTRACTIONS

Ideal Weather Prevails For Great Fair of North Hastings

Agricultural fairs in Hastings County are over for 1936. The last to be held was the best was that held in Madoc village on Tuesday and Wednesday. The first day was devoted to the placing of exhibits and judging in some classes. On Wednesday a record crowd estimated at 6,000 was in attendance, and there well awarded for their presence. This fair has had an enviable reputation for a number of years and this year was no exception to the rule. An idea as to the popularity of this fair may be judged from the fact that the secretary's book showed that there were 227 exhibitors with upwards of 1800 more exhibits than last year. Shortly after noon hour on Wednesday roads leading to the fair grounds were crowded with cars and other vehicles laden with humanity. Hundreds of cars were upon the grounds and thousands of spectators thronged the buildings and stalls. The unanimous expression of opinions were that the fair was the best in its history. This certainly is a credit to the officials who are to be congratulated upon its success attending their efforts.

A visit to the buildings upon the grounds was a revelation to the uninformed. All exhibits were arranged in a manner that were artistic and attractive. The main hall was utilized in the display of handiwork by the ladies, flowers, canned goods, home baking, domestic science products, collection of minerals and specimens of school children's work. This building was thronged during the afternoon and many favorable remarks were to be heard in references to the exhibits.

The dairy and seed product building was an attraction for many. One of the principal exhibits was the that of cheese where upwards of 50 cheese on display, judging the same was by no means an easy task. Vegetables of a high class were also shown. The display of apples was all that could have been desired. It was a class of fruit that to say the least was tempting. Other fruits seen were pears and grapes.

In the poultry building over one hundred pens of chickens, geese, turkeys, ducks, pigeons and rabbits were shown. Competition was strenuously keen in these classes and especially chicks and geese.

Although the grounds are well provided for the housing of cattle the numbers were such that all stalls were filled to overflowing. Some fine specimens were shown with Holsteins as usual predominating. There were also some excellent breeds of other cattle. Sheep and swine were quite numerous in the various classes all of a superior quality. Horses were many with Percherons not a few. Carriage animals were also shown with a number of beautiful specs. A few ponies were upon the grounds.

As an attraction for many, especially the younger visitors present was the midway, which we all that could have been desired. The speeding events detailed elsewhere was at usual the main spot for the afternoon with hundreds lining the enclosure whilst each race was in progress. Other special attractions were the saving contest, old time fiddlers, step dancing, music for which was furnished by an orchestra. Another event of interest was the drawing contest which was not completed until late in the afternoon.

Notes

Whilst all the officers of the fair did their bit in promoting the fair special mention might be made of President J. Kincaid, Hon. President Fred Curry, Treasurer Samuel Rollins and W. J. Hall the genial and efficient Secretary.

It was learned that the receipts for the day were about $300 in advance of those of last year.

Fortunately no accident occurred to mar the days proceedings.

BUTTERFLY KILLER

Entomologists at Harvard university now claim that the New England hopkyre butterfly is to be listed in the "evil" class of nature. And to prove their claim they show this picture of a butterfly of that type in deadly combat with a wasp. The scientists say the butterfly is capable of killing wasps and even small birds. The normal diet of the butterfly, however, is milkweed blossoms and nectar.

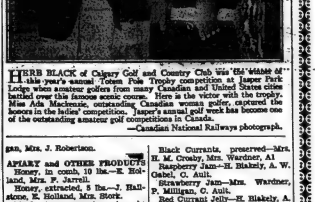
Pile Sufferers
Can You Answer These Questions?

Do you know why external remedies as applied to sore and painful Piles are only local in effect and do not reach the true circulatory cause?

Why Piles may "come back" even after a first removal by cutting?

Do you know the cause of Piles is internal?



That there is congestion of blood in the lower bowel—the veins flabby, the parts lifeless?

Do you know that there is a painless internal remedy for itching, bleeding and protruding piles discovered by Dr. Leonhardt, known as HEM-ROID and used with your money back if not joyfully satisfied with the forty one bottle gives?

HEM-ROID banishes piles by relieving congestion, shrinking and helps to heal and restore the sore surfaces.

HEM-ROID is so successful in even the most stubborn cases that J. S. McEwen and other good druggists advise every sufferer to get a bottle of HEM-ROID Tablets today—take them as directed—then if not completely satisfied with results—your money back.

Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, (AP-Tel-Wad)—Emperor Haile Selassie tonight ordered Prince Asfaw—Wossan Tafari, Crown Prince of Ethiopia and commander of the Eastern army, to place his men in readiness to repel the Italian troops who today invaded Ethiopian territory.

Despite where the Crown Prince's troops are camped, he climaxed near the foot of Mount Musse Ali. There Semitic Mussolini is reported to have concentrated 30,000 Italian troops, 70 tanks and many bombing planes.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was getting reddy to go down to the station to meet Uncle Albit and I said, Do you think he'll bring me anything, ma?

Well I hardly think he'll think that far, pa answered, ma said, but likely have some little token for me. It's the usual thing, she said, and I said I bet he won't, do you says he's so stingy he wouldn't give a penny if he got on the back.

Your father was joking and you mustn't repeet such things, ma said.

And she went out and came back with Uncle Albit in a taxy, ma payed the driver while Uncle Albit was looking around with a absent minded expression, and he had a package in his hand, he slipped the package looking like a present, and Uncle Albit saying, I've got an extra little something here, it's not much.

Whatever it is I'm sure it's quite all rite, you shouldn't of bothered ma said.

And she looked at the package and Uncle Albit put it on the hallrack and when pop came home he pretended to be glad to see Uncle Albit and we started to eat supper, being stuff chicken in Uncle Albit's honour, and the enter package was still on the hallrack and I started to wonder if it must be for me instead of for ma, and I said, Ma'ma, there's a package on the hallrack, whose is it?

O, that, ma said. Why, your Uncle Albit brawt that, she said, and Uncle Albit and I, yes, that's a little surprise in a way.

You realy shouldn't of bothered, Albit, ma said, and Uncle Albit said, It wasn't much trouble, it's a little surprise that I picked up in a little shop when I changed trains. Fanny wouldn't give me a moment's peace for days if I came back without a souvenier for her. The chickin isn't stuffed badly but I think Fanny's stuffing is a little more tasiety, he said.

We'll send the carcass back and let her stuff it over, pop said, and ma said, Willyum such a thing to say, hee hee.

Proving she was more mad at Uncle Albit than what she was at pop.

Stirling and District

Stirling, Oct. 3.—The first regular meeting of the St. Paul's Young People's Society, was held in the church parlors on Monday evening under the direction of the Citizenship Division. The meeting was opened by the President, Miss Mary Mullin, with a short song service of familiar hymns. Mrs. G. White then led in prayer, Miss Irene Bronson read the Scripture lesson found in the 23rd Psalm. This was followed by a vocal solo, "The Sinner and the Song", offered by Arthur Dunkin accompanied at the piano by Mr. G. L. Chute. During the business part of the meeting which followed, the various side leaders were called to the platform and cash in turn read over the names of the members belonging to their particular group. The executive for the coming years under the leadership of Miss Mary Mullin, President of the organization, is made up of: Vice-Presidents, Miss Helen Mallory, Miss Fanny Landon; Sec., Mary Hoskins; Asst. Mr. Reginald Mallinson; Mrs. E. W. Rowland and Mrs. Nora Wescott will continue their offices as pianists and Secretary-Treasurer respectively. Owing to the fact that this was only the second meeting under the leadership of the new officers and the revised form of organization work, no record of attendance was taken. It was announced that nearly seventy-five were present. Commencing next week the attendance campaign will be started and the attendance campaign of former years will be continued.

The speaker for the evening on this Citizenship night was Mr. H. Scollie, science teacher of the Stirling High School, Speaking on the theme of "Citizenship", Mr. Scollie at once portrayed the fact that he was well acquainted with his subject-matter topic. In his remarks the speaker spoke of our influence over the lives of children with whom he has dillsens of tomorrow. "It is well to remember that children acquire habits good and bad, by imitating and we are the models set by which they are to fit to act humanity to live so that our lives have a fruitful bearing on the future welfare of the nation. To develop good citizens is the aim of all Young People's organizations and we should strive ever-to encourage this great work, the value of which can never be truly estimated. Education, too, has a prominent part to play in the development of good citizens; it serves to broaden the mind and give confidence to the student, in expressing constructive ideas for the betterment of mankind. To be physically fit is an aid to good citizenship also, and we have a great deal of fair play which is an essential quality in all true citizens of personal person. To be good-citizens we should also be found active in every community enterprise, and at all times willing to devote our spare time to some worthy cause. After 25 years of youth from the ages of 12 to 20 years we are the middle years which had a permanent influence on our entire life. Provide the right environment, and we will rise; if we will raise the standards of citizenship. In this present day of perplexity all citizens are faced with the problems and to solve them we must be efficient citizens prepared to weigh carefully the thoughts of others and still have sufficient courage to act and think for ourselves. With the coming of the election in the next few days there will be those who for the first time in their lives will be called upon to exercise their right to vote. Before then it would be well for them to know that the first vote they cast will have its influence on the lives of all men in this country.

In closing this fine address which was brimming over with constructive thought, Mr. Scollie said that the qualities essential to good citizenship were: honesty, loyalty, clean living and clean thinking and lastly self-confidence.

Following the address of the evening Miss Grace Pitman and Miss Mildred White offered a very pleasing instrumental duet, "All Full 'Fifth' by IVan Caryll. Mrs. Balmforth then directed an interesting contest, and the meeting was closed in the usual manner of all repeating the Benediction.

Carmel United Church Celebrates 60th Anniversary

(Special)—Carmel United Church passed a very unique milestone in the history of its being, as the congregations filled the building to capacity at both services on Sunday to listen with great interest to messages brought by Rev. I. B. Naylor of Tabernacle United Church, Belleville, who was the special minister for the very important day.

The church itself was the talk of all, who were present that day with its many lovely decorations. Hundreds of cut flowers banked the pulpit and windows and back—ground head at the front of the church was a large panel done in the form of a little corner by Mr. Thos Ward of Stirling, bearing the name of the church and picturing a large (diamond, symbolic of the sixty years of the church's existence. In response to the many invitations sent out by the managing board to former members of the church and former residents of the district, who had moved to other places, to be present on this unusual occasion, the church was filled for both services on Sunday and over four hundred guests were present at the special birthday chicken dinner given by the ladies of the congregation on the Monday evening. In addition to the fine messages delivered by Rev. I. B. Naylor, The splendid work of the choir under the able direction of Mrs. A. Pavel added greatly to the services. Offering two anthems for the morning, "This is the Day of Light" and "The Lord Will Care for You" Mr. Ed Pavel, bass soloist, offered a fine solo also at the morning service. In the evening the special music included two anthems by the choir, "Move Upward Ye Children of God" and "Exalt Ye the Lord." Miss Nina Carlisle sang a very delightful soprano solo.

Anniversary Dinner

The great celebration was climaxed on Monday evening, when slightly over 400 guests gathered for the sumptuous chicken dinner given in the church hall which brought the kindness of the Brooks brothers to mind, for the tables were brightly lighted with a temporary lamp system. The beautifully decorated tables were very pleasing in appearance with their burden of tasty dishes, and the largest crowd in the history of the church was served.

Midway through the sumptuous repast the singing was called to order by Rev. R. W. Rowland and a large cake bearing 60 candles was brought to the head table. Rev. C. W. Barrett of Brighton, former pastor of the church, was then called upon to light the candles. Mr. R. W. Brooks the oldest living member of the congregation was then asked to blow out the candles and cut the cake. Mr. Brooks, who is now past his 82nd birthday, turned the first sod when building operations were started on the present sixty years ago. The property on which the edifice was built was donated by the father of Mr. Brooks, one of the well-known pioneers of the district.

Following the dinner a large number of the guests remained for the interesting program and congratulations given in the church. Assuming in a very capable manner with this part of the entertainment were Rev. Mr. Rowland, chairman, and soloists, and Mr. Smith and Miss Barnum who offered some fine reading; Mr. Mills of Belleville, also assisted in this part of the program with his musical saw. During the intervening period between dinner and the program, refreshments was scheduled to begin the audience was entertained with selections by an orchestra, composed of Mr. Mills of Belleville (violin); Mr. M. Fraser (harp); Mrs. Arthur Fraser at the piano. Addresses were given by Rev. A. J. Terrill of Gradana, former pastor, and Rev. G. W. Barrett of Brighton, also a former minister. Rev. Mr. Pickel of the Bay of the Rawdon Circuit also brought greetings from the Methodist congregation. Mr. Gilbert Windsor, a former resident and member of the Carmel church who is visiting in the district and who is a teacher in Haliburton, gave the address and response, the honour which he felt was his to be able to speak again in what he always considered his home church.

Rev. R. W. Rowland acted as the very capable chairman of ceremonies throughout the evening.

Detroit, Oct. 3.—(AP)—They had to see them to believe them, the Detroit Tigers of Mickey Cochrane and now it's up to Tommy Bridges, one of the finest curve ball pitchers in the American League, to stop these impertinent Chicago Cubs if they're ever to be stopped short of Seabiscuit's world championship.

Detroit listened to all those accounts of Charley Grimm's young upstarts, or their ill-named whatever-it-was, that rallied the National League championship in the stretch, of the fire and dash, ease and nonchalance of youth, but you can't expect people to take Cochrane, Gehringer, Goslin, Greenberg and Hank Greenberg, Rogell and Owen and Marberry and Fox, and Bridges and Rowe and Auker and Sorrell and Bridges and Rowe and Auker and Sorrell and Bridges and Rowe and Auker and Sorrell assailed the policy of the Bennett government, termed Canada's railroads, and pointed out that the result of the policy "ruined the road and lost a total of $318,800,000 in wages compared with the last four years, when Mackenzie King was premier.

AMALGAMATION NOW IN EFFECT

Facing one of the most enthusiastic audiences of the whole campaign, and speaking on behalf of the local candidate, Mr. Chas. Cameron, Mr. Mackenzie King gave an address, which was repeatedly interrupted by cheers and applause, devoted himself to a review of the record of the Conservative regime, a discussion of the present condition of the country's rail transportation and replied to statements made by opposition speakers during the present campaign.

Railroad men look with alarm on amalgamation. The railways are amalgamated but Bennett don't know it. Amalgamation of service increases, not profits, of freight and passenger trains and other services all have been done. What difference does it make if the boats are tied up in the east or the west. Montreal or Ottawa? asked the Minister.

50,000 Fewer on Jobs

In a review of the present conditions affecting the railway workers, the Hon. Mr. Heenan declared that there were 50,000 fewer railroad men today than there were before the Duff Commission report was presented. During the year 1928 employees had received pay totalling $377,000,000; in the year 1932 the figure had dropped to $146,000,000.

"This is only the fact that Premier Bennett had pledged himself not to interfere with the railways; that he made that historic statement at Winnipeg, 'railroads for the railroads' over two years ago. Yet when he was elected he appointed a committee to look into the railway. They put Sir Henry Thornton on the target—the only man in Canada who ever drew up and defeated the C.N.R. and he employed us (cheers)—and asked him foolish and ridiculous questions (more cheers) even went so far picking the C.N.R. out of the gutter and making it one of the finest railroads in the continent."

"Sir Henry Thornton died of a broken heart", declared Mr. Heenan.

The Ontario Minister replied to opposition charges that the Mackenzie King Liberals had never offered any constructive measures during the past five years.

"In the spring of 1932, Robert Macdonald, Liberal member for Assiniboia, moved for an investigation into the spread of tuberculosis. Mr. Bennett spoke against the idea, and then in 1934 he appointed a committee of his himself and appointed the committee.

"During the session of 1931 I, myself, moved a motion for an eight hour day. A conservative member was given the task of defeating it and talked so much he killed it. Later I managed to get it moved again and it was finally passed but it was not until the eve of the election, that the government took action to carry it out.

Placed Serious Reliance

"On March 11, 1934, I placed on Hansard a scheme for unemployment insurance which provided for $20 per week, for single men and $40 per month for married men. Again it was not until the eve of the election that the government introduced a measure of unemployment insurance which provided $8 per week, after one weeks and continuates into the fund for 60 weeks. Men have appeared before me for 60 weeks under Mr. Bennett is not to be explained.

Regarding the statement that the Liberal Government has given the Provincial government more money than Mr. Bennett received, Mr. Heenan pointed out that the $17,-

REEL LOVE TO BECOME REAL

748,321.30 which the Ontario government received from the Federal authorities to relieve distress, $7,845,698.34 to pay old accounts for relief granted during the Henry regime, Adding this sum to the relief received by the Henry government, nearly $25,000,000 was received, compared with less than $10,000,000 for the fourteen and one-half months of the Liberal regime, added Mr. Heenan.

Statements said to have been made by Denton Massey, that certain trade had increased greatly during the King administration, which he further charged were ridiculous and absurd were denounced by Mr. Heenan with a sheet of figures.

Challenged Figures

"The favorable balance of trade during the five years of King Government exceeded that of the past five years that Mr. Bennett by more than $500,000,000. Between 1926 and 1930 it had reached the figure of $1,347,215,543. During the years between 1931 and 1935 the total was only $1,486,980,907", declared the speaker. "Furthermore Mr. Massey said, that the Ottawa Trade Agreements had been responsible for increased Canadian exports to the United Kingdom and the United States, amounting to some $200,000,000. We exported (the King Govt.) in 1929 to the United Kingdom and $490,812,145 to the United States. By 1934 these figures had been reduced to $237,562,838 to the United Kingdom and $194,600,-000. In 1935 we exported to only $278,-917,278 in total.

The chief speaker defended the Liberal policy in respect to labour.

"While the Liberal government was in office, it has the record of never losing a single hour lost through strikes or walkouts and a sum of $400,000,000 was thus saved the workmen of Canada. Not a single dollar ordered out or a person shot. Every time a Tory government is in office, though, there are strikes and bloodshed. Toryism time and again has demonstrated its inpu bers of pro-ple."

The Hon. Mr. Bennett and Mr. Stevens during the present campaign are talking about everything else except what they have done in the past five years, declared Mr. Heenan in asking his audience to compare the records of liberal achievements, which he added, included a reduction of $257,000,000 in the national debt, the doubling of trade of Canada and the fact that the highest number of men and women since Confederation have been employed under the Liberal administration, and the highest wages ever received had been paid.

"Mr. Bennett said, 'In the last decade I put him in office and he would bring the boys and girls back home. Well, he has them back now and he doesn't know what to do with them. He'll know they are back, though, on October 14."

Claims Trade Slashed

The Conservatives have slashed the trade of this country in two and at the present time they are busy with the realization that unemployment has now mounted to one half million while more than a million citizens receiving direct relief, charged Mr. Heenan in summing up. Referring briefly to Mr. Stevens, he declared the latter was covered by the Reconstruction party candidate as partners each in a boat of different design, but each headed for the same home port and due at the iron—WEAF; WTAM.

Mr. Chas. Cameron, candidate of this riding introduced by Mayor George C. Tice, chairman of the evening previously had drawn the parallel of the Opposition party each offering the electors a passage to the land of prosperity each craft with the trip occupying the space of four years.

The first vessel, a boat flying the flag of economic nationalism and high tariffs, was the Conservative craft, skippered by R. B. Bennett, which had on board part of its cargo a load of dynamite intended for blasting a way into the markets but which had destroyed its own carrier. The second boat was a "scow" built of cheap planks and leaking at every seam, powered by an engine which was "missing" badly and equipped with a rudder which was blowing constantly. At the helm was Mr. Stevens, whose uniform appeared a bit familiar which, said the speaker, was natural considering the fact that Stevens had been second mate on the Conservative boat for the past several years.

"The third boat, was the trim, neat boat of Liberalism," said Mr. Cameron, with cheers up and ready to sail, with the biggest crew ever on board.

The skipper was the weather beaten brave man who has had conquered many a storm before and had always brought his ship and passengers safely to home port. King, the skipper who was not strong on promises, but who had conferred his passengers to "look at his record"—and that record was one of prosperity, united action and happiness.

"King is the captain who believes with his Liberal party that the way to make Canada prosperous is to make the primary producer prosperous, by letting him buy and sell his articles at a reasonable price and exchange with those nations upon channels, unhindered by towering tariff walls, which have barred the markets to legitimate trading. He is a leader, who disavows 'blasting' methods in favor of the more beneficiary agreements, that have brought the country prosperity before," declared he.

"There are three boats, three skippers—now you will you choose?" he asked his audience.

Mr. Heenan was introduced by Mr. A. B. Collins, K.C., while a vote of thanks was moved by Alderman Benjamin Bell and seconded by Ormonde Hulier. During the evening, Miss Lorna Rigg assisted with several piano selections and Mr. Harold Hunter, who contributed his pleasing vocal solos.

Holiday Reflection

On an Island in the Pacific

The following was written by the Rev. A. E. Hibby, D.D., Bishop in the Pacific, of the Western Auxiliary Synod of the Free Church of England, and Chaplain to the Forces (Episcopal Church) once rector of Emmanuel, R. E. Church, Belleville where for many years he ministered. Bishop Hibby now resides at 1176 Burnaby Street, Vancouver, B.C.

He has the warmest recollections of the city of Belleville, and his friends here are ever interested in him and his work. The Rt. Rev. Dr. Hibby thought he left here many years ago and to-day on board the "Tuna" he says "time has dealt kindly with me" he says in a letter. " I am thankful for health and activity and the enjoyment in my work now, almost as I was then" (when in Belleville) Bishop Hibby may visit his old home here next June if his health remains good.

His article will be of great interest to readers. Bishop Hibby possesses a remarkable mind, with the gift of finest appreciation and intuition which captures the soul of things in a few words or phrase.

Holiday Reflection

The summer holidays are over and gone, but pleasant memories remain.

It was my privilege to be one of a party of fifteen, spend a fortnight on one of the beautiful islands of the Pacific.

The topography of the island presents an imposing scene of rugged grandeur. Towering cliffs, mountains and hills, valley and dell, shadowy deep dark forests, lakes and rivers, bays and inlets from the ocean, waterfalls, rich gardens, orchards and vineries; clear and vivid skies.

From mountain elevations may be seen stretches of country surpassing in scenic grandeur the most majestic holiday resorts of the world.

The island is not without a sensible, well furnished house at a quiet and restful spot, which is the centre of the largest city, on the island, in which are found churches, giving opportunity for worship, and thereby combining holidays with worship.

Our dwelling place was beautifully situated for boating, bathing and swimming, there being a soft white sandy beach a few yards from the door.

The building and its lawn were surrounded by a wealth of tropical splendour too varied to find and name with any degree of completeness.

Roses, dahlias, zorgiones, lilies, shrubbery, trees, and flowering shrubs of other flowers gracing the scene, from the front windows and verandah, a short way off the ocean. As Ocean came in view, upon which from time to time, ships and steamers could be seen passing to and fro.

Also the Canadian Pacific steamships that there were the long bodied ocean liners, and numbers of passenger yachts, fisher boats, pleasure boats, freight and other craft innumerable.

The sight of this nautical procession was of increasing interest to us, when resting from more fatiguing duties.

Across the water, breaking the skyline, were the mountains, with the snow crowned Olympic Mountains.

We never tired looking at these lofty, cool looking mountain ridges and summits of the Olympic.

"Long wind strong wind
Sweeping o'er the mountain,
Fresh wind, free wind
Blowing from the sea
Poor forth your vials
Of your streams from airy fountain—
Drifts of snow."

As we look upon these barriers of creation, we are led to think of God, whose "righteousness is like the mountains of strength." Then we remember that we meet Him in the valley as well as on the hills.

"Whether on the hills of sunshine high and fair
Or in the narrow valley where the shadows lie
What matters it,
We're there!"

Very near our temporary home we found opportunity for climbing, on the east end of the bay, a few hundred yards from the beach, a steep hill itself rises several hundred feet above sea level.

On the summit of this rocky eminence stands a large observatory building, well equipped for meteorological work, and also gathering climatic information, also issuing forecasts of the weather twice daily.

Here also, is obtained the correct time (Greenwich) by special telescope, from the passage of stars across the meridian. I climbed this rocky steep, once in the evening and once in the morning. In the evening the sun was setting in his crimson splendor on the western altar fired, flung his flaming banners skyward, clothed the hills and plains with glory, and in the towering the rising sun "Opened the gates of day, and tipped the hills with gold." From this elevation could be seen now covered tops of the Olympics, shining as with Heaven's brightest rays, as we looked upon them in the light of the setting or rising sun.

We found weather conditions almost ideal. Most of the days were sunny, the air soft and mild, and the evenings just cool enough to make it pleasant to sit in the grass at Arabic. However, we did have one day of wind and rain during the month.

It began on Friday afternoon and lasted by evening, the water of the bay was whipped into whitecaps, and monster waves roaring and rolling in upon the beach. Till Saturday from the storm-king had his way; then his forces weakened, and the clouds burnings he left the face of the sky still dark with jostling clouds. The sun, before finishing his daily course, came forth bows of men, with mountains in the hazy distance. Looking upon so much of earth's loveliness, can we not hear a voice speaking unto us, troubled hearts and healing to the clouds and sunshine, a gracious promise that extends beyond mere temporal need? It is indeed a goodly sight to see what Heaven has done for this grand island of the sea! but there-is a better country further on.

One of the things of my holiday to be kept in precious memory is the "quiet hour" of early morning on the beach.

The still light falls from radiant heaven.

The earth lights up her thousand eyes.

To God my heart responds with-praise.

As I the day begin with Him.
How beautifully calm this hour.
The world of men still sleeping.
Silence reigns supremest—and yet,
The very stillness speaks with voices from the infinite; nature communing with nature's God Open-Le spirit, of this quiet morning hour, May with me all the day remain.

A. E. HIBBY.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Hogan and Crawford by Bancroft Chopping Mill

International Nickel Plant, at Port Colborne Increases Output

An additional unit of the electrolytic department of the Port Colborne plant of the International Nickel Company has been put into operation, increasing output by 10 to 15%.

Features in the markets have been the order of the day on the local board for several weeks. The waiting attitude on the part of the majority of traders is responsible for the lethargy. The business picture, both here and in the United States is promising but it is not for such factors as political uncertainty and reassurance over the possibility of war, stocks would no doubt have been discounting the better outlook for industry.

One quarter is of the opinion that the liquor stocks have periodical spurts, not solely on the expectation of big net earnings, but on the anticipation of dividend payments before the end of the year.

Distillers-Seagrams, it is reported, will build a huge distillery in Montreal to specialize in the manufacture of Bourbon whiskey at a cost of $2,000,000. The company will thus have three plants across the line located at strategic points which should give one of the leaders in the production of rye and Bourbon whiskey. Distillers-Seagram is one company that should move into the dividend paying class before the end of 1936.

Lead, zinc and copper have advanced very appreciably in the past few months and there is no doubt but the stocks producing these metals have responded to the upward trend with the improvement in the price of the metals. From an average price of 3.77 cents per pound for lead in 1932, the metal has risen to 4.50 cents as the present time, the highest since March, 1931. Zinc is presently selling at 4.78 cents as against an average price of 3.23 in 1932, while copper is in the neighborhood of 8.25 cents a pound as compared with the average price of 7.4 cents in 1934.

International Nickel

The Financial World, a New York publication, states that International Nickel continues attractive for additional purchases. Quarterly commitments around 30, to yield 7.50% annually. While the third quarter will not be available until mid-October, early estimates indicate a satisfactory gain over the 24 cents a share reported for the September quarter of 1934.

Not only has production of nickel shown a gain of 50%, but it is understood that copper operations have returned to a profitable basis. The company does not like to be classified as a "war beneficiary" because of the fact that progress in peace time purposes, but in the event of a conflict earnings would undoubtedly be stimulated.

FOUR ELECT TRIAL

Smith's Falls, Oct. 3 (CP)—Four conspiracy charges will perjury in connection with evidence they gave at an inquest into the death of William Muldoon, 50-year-old locomotive engineer, today elected to be tried in Lanark County court.

The four, Mrs. Florence Gleeson, Don Miller, Milburn Baker and his wife, were remanded four times on various appearances on charges they swore false evidence regarding the death of the clergyman, who died Aug. 31. The coroner's jury found he had been slain.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Oct. 3 (CP)—It was thought the mining department of the Toronto Exchange appeared today to take a less serious view of the war outlook and a scaling up of prices would be the result of the Board, the golds showing to advantage in the initial hour of trading slowed down on the advance however, suggesting that caution was still in order. Part of the average was slightly up for the day.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 3 (CP)—Soft at the opening and modestly sound midday, the Toronto Industrial Share Market turned definitely strong in the last hour today as the list of Board displayed firming tendencies. Pulp, bronzes, metals and the other interlisted leaders had gains showing at the close.

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS

Toronto, Oct. 3.—(CP)—War or no war, trading on the Toronto Industrial market apparently regarded prices as in a healthy mood and they picked up the oils, liquors and metals in relatively substantial fit quotations above Wednesday's closing range. An early dip was soon reversed and the gains during through the succeeding two hours were still held this afternoon.

Net gains ranging up to ¼ were registered by Walkers common, International Nickel, Canada Dredge units and golds were led by Distillers-Seagrams, Industrial Alcohol A, Loblaw and Bell Telephone. Trading slowed down in the afternoon with prices holding.

WALL STREET

New York, Oct. 3 (AP)—Moderate advances gave the rule in today's Stock Market, but trading was dull from the start.

Wall Street attention was directed almost wholly to the African war crisis and while yesterday's nervousness appeared to have been alleviated today to a less serious view of about 1 each. The late tone was unsettled. Sales approximated 1,400,000 shares.

SINISTER SHADOW

by JOHN GOODWIN

"Never read the Chronicle," he said. "I buy Gen'ral to bring the kitting home to him and Granger saves his neck," said the pressman, pushing up his specs.

Then said his colleague, an old hand who had seen many murder trials, "and when they've got him they'll put 'is 'ds wife too—she'll be in it."

CHAPTER LIV

At ten next morning, Sonia Grant was preparing to leave a note for her husband at King's Rim House. It was from Granger.

Dear Mrs. Chalmers,—

Against my advice you will go to the trial yesterday. You should not have gone.

I can understand your anxiety but you added very greatly to mine; I am defending your husband.

Oh! Ike! Ike! I urge you strongly to keep out of the Assize Court. Please don't go again—particularly not today.

Y.O."

Sonia crushed the note in her fingers. There was nothing for it but obedience. Granger was right.

She caught herself with a light gasp. There was her heart a big thing—she had fall it at the time—of Deborah, ruled by petulant her out, demanding, as from the witness-stand . . . It was just the sort of thing Deborah might do. Making a scene in court that would damage Brian fatally in the eyes of the jury. Such folly must be fused on Junior.

Surely that was what he meant? But it had not happened; Deborah had held her tongue. It was only a note from Granger's handing of the case, in spite of his difficulties, had been masterful.

Or—did he mean that the case was now so hopeless that he wished to spare her the pain of seeing it out?

Anyway it would be folly to disobey Granger. In the face of this she was good at disobeying. It was her first rule in life to strike out her own path, follow her convictions. Not to take any risk of wrecking Brian's chance—that was unthinkable.

Also unthinkable to stay here, out of touch, and do nothing. But after all she had, by going to the trial, decided her policy.

She rang for Grant.

"Grant!" she said, "I'm going to stand off today. Will you get to the Assize Court at once; I want you to watch the trial for me."

Grant's eyes lit up.

"Yes, ma'am," he said eagerly. "It's going well—isn't it?"

"I don't know . . . Not too well; it should rally today. Listen, Grant, it's important. If you see the case closing down, and especially if it's going badly for Mr. Chalmers, you're to hurry right back here and tell me. It's quite as you can make it. For I shall have something to say. Get that?"

"Yes, ma'am." Grant looked startled.

"If with you then. Take the car."

"If Granger refuses," she said when he had gone, "I'll give it to them from the witness-box. I'll make him call me!"

To keep her mind off the tension of waiting, Sonia went through her notes of the case, equating them up with what she had heard yesterday. They were in her desk, filed along with Jude Stubbings' brief memoranda and letters from the North.

Sonia had long since given up any reliance on Jude. After all, she had been set a hopeless task; chasing a phantasm that had no existence except in Sonia's brain. Hunting for evidence which wasn't there to find. But at least Jude didn't worry her with empty and useless reports, like the spoilt Western detective who had to justify their two hundred dollars a day. That search was a folly best forgotten now.

She was sitting at her desk two hours later, wondering what was happening at the trial her nerves so tense that she could almost scream when the telephone rang. She took down the receiver.

"Yes?" she said wearily. "Sonia Chalmers. Who's speaking?"

It was a long-distance call, from Louth, Lincolnshire. She had never heard of Louth. Next moment she was electrified by Jude's voice grating in her ear.

"That you? . . . I got to be sure it's you . . . Can't file mail—cannot back . . . Jude suspected today. It's O.K. this time! You got my letter?"

Sonia gasped.

"I got no letter! What letter—?"

Jude's voice came muffled over the wire. "Well, I wrote last night—you'll be getting it any time now. This is a bit too private to be shouting? It over the phone. Don't give it away."

"I'm waiting to click; if I do you'll get a click. Then you'll know you've got it all right. I got to take care they don't get me. How's the trial going?" he said. "It was all set to acquire for me. Ink 'em for dead-cert and finish. Don't give away anything till we know. So long."

A crazy letter. Sonia had put Jude out of her mind. Sonia rang frantically, but got no answer. It was maddening.

She hung up. What had Jude found? Why hadn't the letter reached her? And why this secrecy?

But that was right enough. Under the trial's false alarm, secrecy was vital. If Jude had anything like a real clue, he would have said so.

Still, it was a gleam of hope; it was horrible to wait like this. What crossed her was the inaction and the waiting.

But a silence later the car came whizzing up the drive, and Grant hurried in, flushed and elated.

"Good news, ma'am!"

"They want me?" she cried. "I'm ready!"

"It's going fine, ma'am—couldn't be better! The trial wrapped up in Mr. Gerrard's favor this whole morning. Not a soul in court but nerves lie did that clinch it. It's all right!"

"Tell me what happened—peak it right!" exclaimed Sonia.

"They stood the doctor up to prove that Deborah was killed by the fall on the line before any gas got to him. Then man Granger had the doctor up in knots—wiped him out. Granger's great! Next idle police surgeon—Granger sewed him up too. Neither of them could say how Cooke was killed, nor who killed him.

"Then the little shepherd chap, Ben Coulter. . . All about the Cooke Diamonds . . . her Barker, the salesman, robbed Cooke and got away. The jury sat up when Granger handed Ben and Gulliver!

"Selby's the man—Selby did 'em both in . . . Cooke and Barker! No, Granger didn't say that, but it's clear as daylight to me. I always have. It is to the jury. And that's her! Let them ask Gulliver!

"Granger, he showed that Barker-Cooke—as you and I know, ma'am—was the worst crook of the three; that besides skinning the trust funds he'd double-crossed everybody including his own side . . . and when he got together with the pair of them that night he killed him, he got what he asked for.

"Then the spooky meeting with Mr. Chalmers out at the dock, and if the case had stopped then I bet the jury'd have been ready to shake hands with him! Then the court broke up—they'll start fresh after lunch, and Stanisforth's nearly done. Done's the word, too, I don't see how it could be going better!"

"The tide's turned!" said Sonia. "Out along back—watch it! And here, Grant—as you have—no letter for me, that I ought to have had?"

"None. I take all your letter in myself."

"All right—get on . . . And don't forget, Grant, if the end comes quick, call me, for there's a surprise coming. I must see Granger before it goes to the jury. Off with you!"

Grant's report gave her new life. But she was not too confident. She knew what a gallant fight Granger was making, and she knew the case was not that threatened. Right or wrong, she still preferred her own line to Granger's.

Twenty minutes later came the postman with the mid-day delivery. Two letters for Sonia. One she tossed aside; the other, in Jude's familiar handwriting, she tore open eagerly:

"Dear Mrr. Chalmers:

"I think this is the goods! Though it's miles away from any of the districts you told me to try out. And right's right on the level, perhaps I am!

"There's a chap lodging at a little country place near . . . Came two weeks back. . . Goes again, but they're expecting him home tomorrow. Won't tell you how I got on to him—too long! It's a fair-dazzling secret!

"Who is he? I believe, he's our boy! Like the missing witness. It's mighty hard to say for I haven't laid eyes on him. But I took a chance, got into his lodgings, and went through his belongings. I'll say he's Yo.

"His name is Smith: Captain Jerry Smith. Does that tell you anything?

"I'll know tomorrow sure. If correct you'll get a wire from me; all I'll say is 'cricket!'

"Then you drop everything and come right away down to the Bull Hotel, Dyrehill, Louth—I'll be waiting for you.

"I'm only praying it isn't a false alarm! Whether it's you and me that's crazy, after all.

"Send to wire you. Now I must be off on the job.

"O.K. It ought to do Mr. Chalmers a bit of good! Hold everything till you hear from

Yours faithfully,

"Jude Stubbings."

What a letter! It was scrawled in a frantic hurry. What had Jude found? "Selby's the man!" Why, if she had not even seen him! No sunny here at all. Jude had found something that might mean everything—something that might end the whole case!

Sonia opened the other letter—from Wolsberg's. It was brief, but at all . . . except that they had McOrmsons under observation; no trace . . . still flung in in the rain. Should she send Wolsberg along to Louth, Lincolnshire? No. She had lost all faith in Wolsberg's. She had to depend on Jude.

She could only wait. Wait for Louth on the off chance; but disaster might happen here if her absence.

Jude had promised a'cadestion "to-day" and it was now 11 a.m. Before the morning it would be too late—the sands were running out. . . The minutes passed swiftly. . .

All the afternoon, the house was silent. The twilight closed in as she sat alone, and hope died. She heard the car come up the drive.

Grant entered the room again, no longer radiant and excited, but like a man who has had a shock. He was white and shaken.

"They've finished!" said Sonia, quickly.

"The prosecution chap has finished," stuttered Grant. He was unable to meet her eye. "He's wound up his case all right."

"Well!"

"I'm afraid ma'am. It's pretty bad. All the rest of the evidence went dead against the gun'ner. An though Granger fought it hard, he couldn't do anything to case it.

"They showed that whatever Dr. Cooke died, Mr. Chalmers was the man that sent him to his death. That having along him over's that cliff he went back, made sure of it . . . Clearing out heart's a murdered man lying there —hid up and kept it dark, never owned to it.

"They couldn't prove all that!" exclaimed Sonia.

"It looked like they proved it—Granger was called. He had it all tasped and filed; red-hot against the master.

"So far's as I could see, they've shown the master was in it—that that you helped him. I dunno—but it's well you didn't go today—it was awful, sitting there listening to it!"

Grant was too overwrought to know what he was saying. A couple of tears ran down his cheeks. "Guilty's not a pair of the gunner's shoes. I don't know how to put 'em —and showed they fit the casts of the heel-marks on the cliff. Granger tried to shake that, but the jury were lookin' black as night. Then there was the telephone woman. They seemed to think that was the worst of the lot."

"What!" exclaimed Sonia.

"Phone girl from Norchester Exchange office, Guthrie dog her out Joe. She was on duty that morning Cooke's body was found. She'd put a trunk call through from the Ring Circle him to Mr. Chalmers' hotel in London. She heard what was said; not knowin' what it meant at the time, till she read about the trial in the papers.

"It was your call ma'am—giving Mr. Chalmers the office! Tellin' him the police were after him till you turned them on to Selby. In a word warnin' the gun'ner that you'd fixed his alibi for him O.K., so he could swear to it. Showin' that you knew he'd done the job, and you helped him to cover it up—right away through.

Sonia turned white. The fatal alibi! She had always distrusted it. Now it came back to her, fraught with destruction for them both—the evidence was unanswerable.

"Stanisforth was all over it. When he'd done with the 'hello-girl,' he puffed himself out like a great toad, and said, 'members of the jury, that is the case for the prosecution.' That finished it. The judge rose, an' the court cleared."

Grant sighed.

"I'm sorry not to bring better news, ma'am," he said as he turned away. "But—they haven't heard Granger's side yet. He opens his defense in the mornin'."

Sonia left Grant, and staring before her in silence. It was her blackest hour. There was a sleepless night before her. No message from Jude. Nor did it come in the morning.

In any case, it was too late.

"Abel," said Granger, "we're sunk! Not a dog's chance left for Chalmers. What can I do?"

Abel Gritch shrugged his shoulders. In the great hall across the passage the jury were already filling into their places. The Clerk of Arraigns had taken his seat. Granger and his colleagues were holding their last consultation in a room behind the court.

"Nothing." Make a red-hot speech to the jury! You've saved his neck—and that's about all."

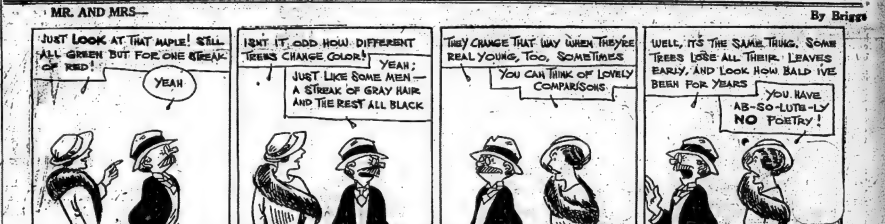
"Have I?" said Granger grimly. "I've—some info."

There was a knock at the door, and Sophs came in. The two men looked at her in consternation.

"Before you go into court, Mr. Granger," she said, "I'll me plain. Is there any hope?"

"Of an acquittal, Mrs. Chalmers?" he said quickly. "I'm not going to lie to you. There's none. The case has turned strongly against Chalmers. I shall do my utmost for your husband, but one thing I cannot do. It's no-kindness to pretend I can.

"There remains only the man whom we reckoned our strongest factor for the defense, our stand-by. Hugo Barker, the Executor of Cooke, trustee for Selby. The Prosecution didn't call McKinnon but left him to us. He'll be in court this morning; when I have him in the witness-stand before the jury I'll cut him to pieces . . . I'll show up the endless case . . ."



"You think that's going to help?" said Sonia.

The government of Ethiopia this morning called the League of Nations Italian military airplanes had bombarded Adowa and Adigrat making numerous victims among civilians, including women and children and destroying numerous houses.

"The battle is at present taking place in the Province of Ayaina. These facts occurring on Ethiopian territory constitute violation of the Empire frontier and a breach of the Covenant of the League by Italian aggression."

The Italians also sent a note to the League charging Ethiopian aggression at Mount Mussa Ali.

The Italian note cited a "general mobilization order by the Emperor September 28" and as reasons for Italian concentration of troops in Eritrea says, "In the presence of the grave situation the Italian government finds itself compelled to authorize the supreme command in Eritrea to take the necessary steps for defence."

Italian Protest

The Italian government at the same time protested to the League the Ethiopian mobilization order of Sept. 28 "represents a direct and immediate threat to Italian troops with the aggravating circumstance of creation of a neutral zone—mentioned by Addis Ababa with specious explanation—which in reality is no more than strategic move intended to facilitate assembly and aggressive preparation by the Ethiopian troops."

The Italian government found itself obliged to authorize the high command in Eritrea to take the necessary measures for defence."

RECONSTRUCTION PARTY ASSEMBLE

Judson Gunter And Laurie Lewis Heard At Stirling

Stirling, Oct. 3—Mr. Laurie Lewis of Belleville and Mr. Judson Gunter candidates of the Reconstruction Party in the riding of South Hastings, and Hastings-Peterboro respectively, addressed an interesting audience on Wednesday evening, at a meeting held in their interests in the community hall at this village. The speakers included Miss Lorna Richards of Toronto, Mr. H. Bigger of Wellman's, Mr. Gunter, Mr. Lewis and Mr. C. Bullock, of Belleville, acted as chairman for the evening.

Mr. Gunter Speaks

Mr. Gunter in his address termed back the years of the history of this period, when Great Britain was faced with the great crisis, and the great statesmen of that land forgot personal enmity and party politics and all joined in co-operation and under the guiding hand of Ramsay MacDonald, brought the Motherland back into healthy condition. We as candidates must do the same thing in this election, put the welfare of Canada first and politics last. Neither of the two old parties can fight the battle and stated Mr. Gunter for those fair same big interests hold the balance and the party can lead be takes orders from no one and is the man who will lead us forth from our bondage. When Mr. Stevens is elected, the top men who have ruled this country will be the only according to their ability, and the common people will now indeed paid will be treadie

Mr. Laurie Lewis

Mr. Laurie Lewis of Belleville was next introduced. Where is the contentment that was so common years ago, he asked, are where put will to office, factory, roadside and ury to find a contented man. There are a few perhaps on the highest level of social standing but not many. The average are discontented and that discontent must be justified when there are so many. We can't have contentment and social injustice at the same time, and we can't have social justice when fifteen individuals control the wealth of the entire nation. Men have to bow before the wealth and dare not express their thoughts for fear of losing their position; only recently two prominent citizens of this organization found it necessary to resign because their associations with us jeopardized their very livelihood. Small business men in the smaller centres were afraid to be seen at public meetings given in support of any party but the two old traditional ones. But you can't stop a man from thinking and voting in the way he chooses. In fact there is left the choice between revolution and evolution, and the same way out of any difficulty is by electing Mr. Stevens who will break the chains that bind us and give us that sense of sentiment that is rightfully ours. A radical change such as this requires not only thinking men and women but stout hearted men who will do what they believe is right for their fellowman. Perhaps we are

Chicago Scores Twice In Second Innings With Demaree Hitting Homer

Hank Greenberg, Tiger Infielder Out With Injured Arm

Detroit Emerges From Tight Hole in First by Double Play

By ALLAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

Wrigley Field, Chicago, Oct. 4 — (AP)—Moving into the camp of the enemy without the service of big Hank Greenberg, their clean-up slugger, the Detroit Tigers challenged the Chicago Cubs for the severe baseball scrap today in another frost-bitten world series setting.

Greenberg, injured in sliding home yesterday in Detroit's war laid up with a badly swollen left arm, 19 spectators, likely the world's champions for the rest of the series, thereby leaving a big gap in the Tiger infield.

Armed to revamp his lineup, Manager Mickey Cochrane decided after considerable uncertainty to shift Marvin Owen from third base to first and send young Flash Gehringer (Pete) Cotton to the hot corner.

Otherwise the first day's drill, practice at last involved the pitchers, playing at Comiskey park Thursday with Chicago's big Bill Lee, freshman right-hander, and Tommy Bridges Alden Acker, the Tigers' submarine ball right-hander, in the third game of the championship battle.

The crowd was far short of capacity but was by no means of 40,000. There were big open spaces in the exposed lower stands behind the batters the walls on either side of the field.

The sun tried hard to take some of the unseasonable chill out of the air but the temperature was in the high forties and the conditions, from the standpoint of spectators, were nearly as uncomfortable as they were at Navin Field yesterday.

First Innings

TIGERS—White fanned swinging but Hartnett dropped the ball and had to throw the batter out at first. Cochrane bounded through the middle and was safe when Lee fell went through Herman for an error; Gehringer grounded out, Hack to Cavarretta, Goslin walked on a 3-2 count on the pitcher. Goslin popped to Jurges, who backed up on the grass to make the catch.

CUBS—Galan lashed a single to right, Herman sacrificed, Stainback to Owen. Lindstrom scratched a hit along the third base line on the hit and run play, sending Galan to second. Hartnett grounded to Rogell and the Cubs pulled a double play, Rogell to Gehringer to Owen.

No runs, two hits, no errors, one left.

Second Innings

TIGERS—Fox fouled to Hartnett on the first pitch. Rogell beat out a roller down the first base line and raced to second as the ball was generally mishandled at the ball. It was a single for Rogell and an error for Cavarretta. Owen popped out, Jurges to Cavarretta. Rogell advanced to third. Clifton grounded out, Lee to Cavarretta.

CUBS—Demaree smashed a home run into the right field bleachers. The ball barely cleared the six-foot fence in front of the stands, the high forties and the conditions, from the standpoint of spectators, were nearly as uncomfortable as they were at Navin Field yesterday.

Miss Hurley extended the appreciation of the ladies' section to the club and gave the opinion that some of the success enjoyed by Belleville bowlers was due to the assistance of the lady bowlers. Miss Hurley was of the opinion that the membership of the lady lawn bowlers could be counted on before the 1936 season rolled around.

George Wasklin, the genial and dynamic president of the club, spoke briefly on the past year for the club and the city. "It is safe to say this is the largest gathering of interested lawn bowlers ever held in Belleville," said the President, extending to officers and members his sincere appreciation of their hearty co-operation. He personally thanked the older and more experienced bowlers for the keen interest they took in the younger and inexperienced bowlers. STORM SWEEPS AT 45 MILE RATE

Bay And Trees Lashed by Terrific Gale But Damage is Slight

A gale that reached at times a maximum velocity of over 45 miles per hour whipped the city and district through the night, gave emergency squads of the local Bell Telephone and Hydro systems stand to orders and repair work of a considerable nature. Trees, also, scattered branches and limbs from trees from their posts on the streets and signs along the business section of the city.

On the lake and bay, declared to be one of the worst blows that has been experienced in years, fishermen were faced today with the loss of scores of nets as fishermen battled in mountainous waves under the fury of the wind. Boats were torn from their moorings in the harbor and in some cases almost wrecked during the night.

Bell Telephone workers reported the break down of several poles and lines on many of the residential streets, caused mainly by huge limbs crashing down on the wires. Hydro officials reported breaks in the electric lines on the Dundas street area which tied up service briefly, and the loss of one pole which fell during the night today.

The gale which raged steadily during the greater part of the night blew directly from the south, piling the water of the bay up to new record levels.

MISS VERA RAY LEAVES SHORTLY FOR WEST AFRICA

Sidney Girl Goes Out as Nurse And Missionary to Nigeria

An ambition which has burned steadily in her since she was fifteen years of age, is believed realized by Miss Vera Ray, Reg. N., who lives a short distance east of Centenary Church in Sidney.

Two weeks from today on October 18th, Miss Ray, graduate nurse of the Belleville General Hospital, will set sail from Montreal for Liverpool and will proceed to the interior of Nigeria, the goal of her youthful ambitions through the years of training and preparation. She will bring comfort to the sick and the gospel to the natives in the dim interior of that faraway land.

Today at her home in Sidney Township, amidst the preparations for that trip of thousands of miles from the peaceful scenes of this rural area, Miss Ray, questioned by a representative of the Daily Ontario Intelligencer, spoke with a slight thrill in her voice of the adventure that lies ahead.

Sent Out by Mission

She will be one of a party being sent from this centre for missionary work in the interior of Nigeria, by the Sudan Interior Mission of Hamilton. Among her companions will be one married couple, two single women and four men, all of Prairie Provinces.

"I've looked forward to this for years," Miss Ray admitted in her soft country voice. "Even since I was fifteen years of age I have waited for the time when I could do my part in bringing some comfort in assistance to the spiritual problems and welfare of those people. I have worked since then to that end."

"Perhaps there will be danger connected with it," she added in response to a question, "but there will also be the knowledge of good done and the fact that I have been able to contribute."

Both Teacher and Nurse

Although Miss Ray will be the only nurse in the party, she is also a professional teacher of high record. She is a graduate of the Toronto Bible College and for the past several years has been active in this work. In Nigeria, however, she expects that her main work will be among the sick. At the present time the mission has only one fully qualified medical doctor—he is 70 years of age—for that district to which she will go.

Early Ambition and Zeal

Fifteen years ago Miss Ray was fired with the ambition of some day being able to go to some remote section of the globe and be busy healing the sick and caring for their spiritual welfare. She was undeterred by the lecture, accompanied with banners of danger, delivered by a returned missionary at Hamilton. Since then her zeal for accomplishment has become undiminished and she has prepared herself constantly toward this end.

Danger? Miss Ray smiles softly at mention of the word. They know in that country are ready for the word of the Gospel. I expect to help in bringing it to them. I anticipate no danger. Our main difficulty will be in learning the voodoo teachings of the witch doctors which hold many of those natives in its thrall. But in our course outlined by the Mission we have studied deeply of these things. Through my being able to minister to the physical needs of the people I shall have a good chance to become more completely acquainted with them."

Study of Language

Miss Ray will devote the first years of her missionary term in Nigeria which must elapse before she is entitled to a furlough home, to the close study of some dialect, depending upon where she will be stationed in that country. Already she has commenced the initial work in Hamilton which will be continued during her sea trip from Montreal to Liverpool and from there to Lagos, Nigeria.

From a carefully prepared list furnished by the Mission, Miss Ray and her mother were busily engaged in purchasing the articles of dress and equipment that will be needed on the overseas voyage and during her term in Africa. The busy needles of the sewing machine clicked as they talked and wardrobe trunks of summery dress goods covered the kitchen table. Luggage stood prominently displayed in one corner of the room.

Mrs. Ray does not share the joyousness of departure. "Frankly I am not so enthused over her going, but up to the present I haven't hindered her ambition and if Vera has made up her mind to go, I would be the last one to stop her", she commented.

During her stay in the missionary field Miss Ray will keep in constant touch with friends and relatives in this district by letter. Sincerely she accepted the invitation to forward scores of her many interesting letters to the Daily Ontario Intelligencer. "Otherwise," she added, "I should never be able to keep up my correspondence with all those whom I have promised letters."

The readers of the Ontario Intelligencer therefore will thus have an opportunity to follow the many interesting facts of a section of the country unknown to them from one who will be in close contact with the natives of that area.

A. Katz of Picton Ordered to Make Compensation to Complainant

A lengthy police court docket was presented to Magistrate Butler, K.C., K.C. today but all cases were disposed of when the court rose. A. Katz of Picton, was found guilty of assaulting and grievous bodily harm and the sentence was deferred for one week, the accused in the meantime to arrange for compensation for George Stapley, the man assaulted. T. C. Wallbridge, counsel for the defendant in the action with R. O. Denison, K.C., Crown Attorney, acting for the Crown. Stapley took a tooth and one was broken, when he struck him on the jaw with a swing his own jack from underneath a truck owned by Katz, on the Trenton highway on September 30th last. Katz was ordered to pay the costs of the court and will receive suspended sentence for six months and if satisfactory arrangements are not made, the Magistrate informed the accused he would receive a jail sentence for six months.

Stapley informed the court he had to receive 60 cents for going to Picton to appear against Katz, charging the tire and putting on a new one in the meantime. He had arranged for another trucker to take him home. Mrs. Laura Hagerman who stated, that Stapley went back to get his jack. He told to the court, when he went to remove it, Katz struck him in the mouth and that he ran to a neighbor's house to call the police and that Katz followed him holding in his hand a handle from a jack shouting "I will knock your head off." This evidence was corroborated by Randall Smith and Mrs. Laura Hagerman who stated, that Stapley left his baggage and after swearing and some of it done by a fight, believed to be an Italian or a Jew, Katz in his testimony, stated he struck him in the mouth and that if the jack was taken from underneath the car, the truck by bringing it down, he would fall. He denied chasing Stapley and this was corroborated by Francis Fitzgerald.

Two children, riding in the car with him were cut by flying glass. Constable Hayes further stated, that the pole had been replaced by Rabbil and that the medical bill for the children had also been paid. Mussolini's Crack Fascist Troops Launch Invasion

A reserve army of not less than 2,000,000 trained soldiers stands behind the several hundred thousand Mussolini is using in his invasion of Ethiopia. Months of elaborate preparations have culminated in actual invasion without formal declaration of war. The ABOVE layout shows Italy's might in Africa. UPPER LEFT, thousands of Fascist troops as they marched through the streets of Rome before embarking for Africa. CENTRE, Mussolini, in supreme command of every move made by Italy. RIGHT, more Fascist troops for Africa. LOWER LEFT: marching off to war. Italian army in Eritrea on their way to the disputed Ethiopian border. CENTRE, King Victor Emmanuel, who has little to say in Italian affairs, but who is said to be opposed to Italy's war plans. LOWER RIGHT, Italian motor lorries carrying supplies to front over new roads in Eritrea.

SANCTION DANGER ITALIANS AVER

Spokesmen Say Economic Efforts Too Late To Stop Us"

Rome, Oct. 4—(A.P. Copyright)—Sanctions can only increase danger of a spread of East African hostilities to a European war, without halting Italian occupation of Ethiopia, spokesmen for informed Italian circles said today.

Italians resented reports Anthony Eden of Great Britain and Premier Laval of France had evolved a three-point program for application of economic sanctions against Italy but insisted sternly:

"These efforts come too late to stop us".

Italy will answer any execution of a financial or economic boycott by League of Nations members, informed Italians said, with application of social and civic discipline for which their nation is ready and patriotically prepared.

Expected by Italy

In this connection it was recalled more than a year ago, Mussolini warned his followers they might have to face a lower standard of living with regard to material things to achieve their universal prestige of a great nation.

To a fitting of the arms embargo against Ethiopia and granting of financial assistance of Emperor Haile Selassie, Italy would respond with the "making of an indelible record of its friends and enemies", informed spokesmen said.

Informed sources spoke bitterly of the idea of member states of the League of Nations preventing sale or transport of munitions and goods to Italy and said this would thrust upon Italy the necessity for seeking friends elsewhere.

They conceded Italy would suffer —but they portrayed the League as only a hollow shell, should another great power, such as Italy, be forced to quit its chambers.

In this connection, it was recalled the German Ambassador to Italy, Ulrich Von Hassell, conversed Wednesday with Premier Mussolini.

France Warned

The authoritative newspaper, Il Popolo Di Roma, warned France in an editorial against an "unimaginable conflict between two sisters of the same blood, culture and destiny, for the benefit of Nordic Imperialism".

It admonished Italy's neighbor, "France has already allowed its fingers to be caught in the gear and wheels of a Geneva which is run from London.

"Beware of allowing the wheels to crush the whole arm. French security guaranteed by England is an illusion which France has already witnessed".

WHERE WAR STARTED

History will record this as the spot (arrow), where Italian troops invaded Ethiopian territory to begin their conquest of Haili Selaisie's empire.

Japan Reveals No Interest in Italy's Stand

Tokio, Oct. 4—(AP)—The historical parallel between Italy's position in East Africa and Geneva now and that of Japan in Manchuria and Geneva in the past failed today to evoke any indication of sympathy from the Japanese government or people.

HOSTILITIES

The long-expected but undeclared war between Ethiopia and Italy has been launched with the fury with which a modern nation like Italy can throw against such barbarous tribes and peoples of Ethiopia, who oppose to the modern slaughtering machines their semi-primitive armies and settlements.

This is the first war of significance since the Great War's carnage ceased, though some time ago Japan in her expansion plans gnawed into China. But that war was not so freighted with trouble as this one seems to be.

The future is in the lap of the gods.

Meanwhile nations ponder deeply and the peoples of the earth tremble, lest the conflagration spread. Tremble not for fear of Mussolini because others are at least as brave as his helmeted hordes but for the sake of humanity and Christian ideals of peace. That gives the thinking world pause. Have all the years since Nov. 11th, 1918 led but to this?

The League Council's Committee of Thirteen will decide on a report to the League. Meanwhile Britain and France have agreed it is said, upon drastic economic and financial sanctions or penalties which involve prohibition of transportation of war materials to Italy and trade with Italy.

MAD AGE OF SPEED

Press throughout the world has been blitting at the terrific toll of the motor vehicle. What a recent list of the great and well-known!

Lawrence of Arabia.

Queen Astrid of Belgium.

Son and daughter of Bernard Wills, British tobacco king.

Mrs. Harold Ickes, wife of the U. S. Secreary of the Interior.

One paper the New York World-Telegram demands several things to end this useless slaughter:

Drivers must be taught and must learn practices and safety rules.

We must reduce our average rate of speed, for studies of speed show that the accidents increase with the average rate of speed. Speed multiplies the hazards of the road. The speed-mad era must recognize this fact.

Has the driver ever realized that the machine is so dangerous? Or does he by his action express tacitly that nothing can be done about it, and that life does not matter anyway?

Is there not, after all this very thing, disregard for life, even one's own if it comes to that? If a driver accepts this fatalistic view of life that he will lose his life when he is fated to lose it, he accepts a situation which greatly increases the menace on the highways. If all drivers drove as carefully with absolute attention to the preservation of their own lives there would not be so much killing of others on the highways.

To do nothing that will cause harm to human life on the roadways is the only motive which justifies the use of the roads, as driver of a motor vehicle.

NEW OPPORTUNITIES FOR LABOR

The age of scarcity of jobs ought to bring in a new deal out of the sufferings and drawbacks of a depression. That is, at all service is noble. Everyone accepts this openly as a rule of life but some at heart do not believe it except as an ideal so far-fetched to be realized.

But whether people believe it or not, service "rules the roost in the wide God". It cannot be otherwise. In an era which promises shorter hours of work, men and women may well ponder whether it would not be better to work at any reasonable wage towards many posts of service. It may be that many will have to enter posts which are looked down upon by the so called superior, but which are necessary and if necessary so are noble.

The day will likely come when many new jobs will be created, that is, that men and women who have the means will employ them to help them about the home or estate, and treat them as nearly as possible as equals.

Last year a technical school trained thirty young men as cooks and everyone of them found a job in vacation on boats, in clubs, summer hotels, camps and in private homes.

These men accepted the inevitable for the time being—they saw possibility of service and filled positions acceptably. Why this could not be extended much more widely remains to be shown?

Training in this instance is worth while, even if the men really never put it to use in employment except in their own homes. Many girls might find jobs, were they but trained for the work.

With industrial machines supplanting labor, new avenues must be found for labor's employ—and some of this will be in the creation of new jobs, rendering very necessary work. Both the employer and the employee would profit and so would society.

PORTRAIT OF A GIRL

She is so tall and straight,
So brimmed with youth's bright fire
In her such graces blend,
Such April blooms conspire,
That any door she seeks
Must open to her hand,
Swing wide before her faith
As at a magic wand.

Her eyes are crystal wells
And deep within lies truth;
She is so strong and proud
And so aflame with youth
That ever, where she goes,
Joy goes along with her,
Till saddest lips must smile
And weariest pulses stir.

AVIATION IS DEVELOPING TREMENDOUSLY. Just now perhaps the most interesting development in aviation outside of increased speed in flying is the success of "glider" flying. These gliders without engines can remain in the air a long time, can travel straight ahead or ascend on spiral currents which exist in the air, and can land on a city street. Gliders are being used to carry freight, and experiments have shown that as many as five gliders have been towed behind a plane and dropped off at various places as required, making their own landings. Thus an aerial train could leave Montreal with gliders in tow loaded with freight for Brockville, Kingston, Belleville and Oshawa—a glider loaded for each place and dropped off at each place without stopping the train. Looks like the air is going to be cluttered up with a whole lot of things nobody dreamed of a decade or so ago.

BUSINESS MUST BE GETTING BETTER when a man seeking a number of men for railway construction work had trouble completing his complement. Pool rooms were invaded and the announcement made to the young men there that so many men were wanted for pick and shovel work on the railway. Some eagerly accepted, others temporized and asked many questions about hours, wages, etc. Told to report at six a.m., some thought that too early, and one man refused the job because he said that he had no place to stay and no regular eating arrangements so he couldn't take a job of work. How he expected to live under conditions which prevented him accepting a job is incomprehensible, and it would be interesting to know just what keeps him in idleness. The point of the whole incident is that there was no enthusiasm shown and no rushing to volunteer for work which seems to indicate that even idleness has its charm for some—as long as relief is generous enough.

STEAMING INTO HALIFAX HARBOR RECENTLY, sturdy little ice-scarred steam Nascopie, supply ship of the Hudson Bay Company, completed its annual trip of ten thousand miles visiting our outlying posts in the Arctic region. The sight of the Nascopie to many weary occupants of lonely Hudson Bay posts in the north must be a gladsome one. For months at a white face to be seen but those of the post staff. An occasional Eskimo or Indian. Endless snow and ice and away below zero weather and all are cooped up. The coming of the visit of the supply ship is always an event. If the ship failed to come with fresh supplies the occupants of the posts would have to go on starvy rations and try and live on the country after that. Hence it is no wonder that the officers and crew of the Nascopie are always hustling along from one post to the other, not to miss any and to keep ahead of the dreaded ice forming which closes navigation. Then there are those who are looking forward to "going outside" and which are anxiously waiting for the Nascopie to bring their relief. The thrill at the post, too, of wondering what the relief will look like, what it likes. Strange faces in the far north are so rare that they carry a genuine thrill such as can hardly be understood by city dwellers who daily see a vast kaleidoscope of faces of every kind and shape and not one familiar face in the lot. When the long winter sets in the radio is now a great source of comfort to the people of the Hudson Bay posts and they are able to keep in close touch with the news of the world as well as current entertainment. Formerly mail arrived once or twice a year carrying the only news available—hence the folks up there were considerably behind the times always. Now the radio brings the news of the world several times daily through the vast Arctic stillness to the lonely dwellers of the northland.

An Obit—

Lucius William Nieman, editor and president of the Milwaukee Journal for fifty-three years, is dead. He was in his 77th year.

In 1918 the paper of which he was editor received the Pulitzer Medal for the most meritorious service performed by any newspaper during the year.

When Mr. Nieman took control of the Journal a few weeks after it was founded, he introduced a type of non-partisan journalism new to his readers. His was also the State's first two-cent newspaper.

Bare facts recite the death of the late Mr. Nieman. There is no obituary outline of the color he imparted to the township, village and city of the '80's, the gradual evolution of the office from the paper shades on the dim lamps hanging above the battered desks, to the mercury vapor lights of the modern newspaper, and the pony service, to the baiter of clicking teletypes, reaching for the news to the far ends of the earth.

Lucius W. Nieman was a member of that diminishing school of newspaper publishers who maintained in the composing room, graduated to the news room as reporter, promoted to city editor, managing editor before he was 22 and when 28 years old became owner of a small paper which was started as a campaign journal, a paper that introduced to its readers a policy of fearless and independent publication.

Its first issues were produced with the reporter-editor sitting on a packing case and writing at a pine kerosene table. During its early years Mr. Nieman often admitted that he worked in reporting capacity during the day and helped set up the story in type at night.

The Journal fought machine politics, started on a campaign against the practice of State treasurers depositing interest earned on public deposits and forced suits that resulted in the return of $824,000 from the former treasurer. The Journal, often with Democratic leanings, came out against Bryan in the free silver issue and within four years had lost half its circulation.

Mr. Nieman regarded the period just before and during the World War as his most effective in journalism. His vigorous editorials attracted considerable interest.

In "The Poetic Viewpoint," a publication dedicated to the interests of aspiring poets, an explanation of some of the phrases of the American poet F. E. Cummings is given.

1. (Made by the nonparenthical phrase) "Spring" is most singular, Spring most singularly is "Smith."

2. (Made parenthically) "Sidewalks are windows where blue flows" or the "name of love", and where occur the kindergarten and impressions of lines 5 through 12.

(b) "Cities are houses, people are flies who enter the windows and the sidewalks of houses called cities" and often crawl under the moon (which) is (as) old as the Jews are", "a moon (which) is as round as Jesus."

Mrs. Casey and Mrs. Murphy were having one of their usual squabbles. Suddenly Mrs. Casey patted Mrs. Murphy's cheek and threw it out of the window, saying, "It's wonderful how time flies."

Thereupon Mrs. Murphy seized Mrs. Casey's nose and said, "Hang him across the room. "Ay, bedad, ay' yonder comes a fine day."

"Did you notice that Mrs. 'Awkins had a black eye last Saturday night?"

"Yes, I did! An' her husband not due 'ome for another week. I don't call it respectable, I don't!"

Liberal Leader Against Joining Railway Systems

(By C. P. Staff Writer)

Fort Arthur, Ont., Oct. 4 (CP)—Railway amalgamation in any shape, whether by voluntary agreement, ownership or private ownership is opposed by the Liberal Party, Liberal leader Mackenzie King declared this declaration of policy here last night. He said there was no "unified" effort to bring about amalgamation lately to come to a head after the general election.

"We believe the best interests of the people will be served by the maintenance of competition between railway systems, one government owned and one privately owned, as at present," he said.

The experience of the Western Canada pointed to the evils of a railway monopoly.

Prime Minister R. B. Bennett now had a different railway policy from that he expressed in London when he said "Amalgamation never, compulsion never." The Hon. C. A. Manion, Minister of Railways, had said he was opposed to amalgamation.

Speaking to a joint Port William and Port Arthur meeting, including several of Prime Minister Bennett's William constituents, Mr. King declared the Liberal and not the Conservative Party would adopt Dr. Manion's views on the railway question now that Mr. Bennett had released it from a pledge against amalgamation.

Steps Towards Merger

Dr. Manion had said he would have to introduce a bill in the House of Commons to merge the express companies and had proposed a bill to merge the telegraph companies. He had said these steps would be taken at the instance of the railway companies but the Liberal Party regarded them as steps towards a railway merger.

The railways might have proposed these bills but a government should not take such suggestions from railways unless it had a reason for doing so.

On the wheat question, Mr. King said, the policy of the past few years had been a holding policy. Canadian wheat had been kept off the markets and the government had delayed its Wheat Board Bill until the last moment. It had lacked a sales policy.

A vigorous sales policy was needed for all grades of Canadian wheat. At the moment there was a prospect of selling Canadian high grade wheat but most of this year's crop was low grade. There were countries in the world, such as China, which needed Canadian low grade wheat. Efforts should be made to develop such markets on a permanent basis.

WIN HEPBURN' TO W.C.T.U. SIDE

Rev. Dr. George A. Little Proposes Strategy to 'Capture' Leader

Barrie, Ont., Oct. 4—(CP) — A "cold stroke of strategy" to "capture" Premier Hepburn of Ontario for the prohibition cause is proposed by Dev. Dr. George A. Little of Toronto.

Addressing the Ontario Women's Christian Temperance Union convention here Dr. Little said he would like to see the Premier "a leader of the temperance forces in the political arena."

"I would covet the joy," he said, "of having him publicly proclaim he will be a total abstainer; that he will use his unique gifts and his position as a supporter and a leader of the forces in the fight for a sober, God-fearing Ontario.

"Will you women of Ontario unite with me in daily prayer for Up Premier of Ontario? By facts and by prayers we may win him to our side and make the victory Christ's victory.

"He has youth, energy, courage, a gift for leadership. There is a great possibility for good in him. Why have our opponents gained such a forceful man for their cause? Alcoholics and influential men in politics, and business oppose the cause and not follow their good example and win Premier Hepburn to our side?"

How to Train Child To Eat Proper Food

By LISA GRUNELLE

Every day on the way home from school, Janie liked to stop at the corner drug store for a hot fudge sundae, a banana split or some delicious fountain concoction.

Of course, it somewhat dulled her appetite for supper. But then, supper wasn't usually very interesting anyway.

In fact, meals, so Janie and her mother both felt, were a bore. At least agreeable, least inspiring way of stilling the pangs of hunger. Many delicacies were eaten snatches from tea-box or kitchen table. Then, with a hasty glance across the street, midnight feasts followed delicacies that were maybe a week old.

Of course, such a delightful and unwholesome diet of feeding had its inevitable results. Frequently Janie didn't feel well and, naturally, headaches pimples, appeared regularly. A bad complexion and an unhealthy air of pallor took away from Janie's beauty.

All of which troubles were obvious to Janie. It wasn't necessary for mother or anyone else to draw her attention to them. She was more anxious than anyone to get rid of these unpleasable handicaps, she said. But how?

Sacrifice Sundaes?

Mother suggested sacrificing a few sundaes and chocolate bars and concentrating on milk, meat and vegetables at the regular hours of eating.

Of course such ideas were ridiculous and extreme, to Janie's way of thinking. How could a chocolate sundae hurt anyone? It was mostly ice cream wasn't it? And didn't they give ice cream to babies.

So Janie argued, convincing herself that her troubles had nothing to do with her eating habits, and that they were caused by some other mysterious malady wished on her by a malicious fate.

Upheld by such reasoning, she saw no need to sacrifice any of her luscious snatches. It was easy, too, to put one over on mother in that respect.

Stomach Not Deceived

However, though mothers are easy to deceive, stomachs aren't. Janie continued to suffer from bad skin and remain stubbornly unconvinced that sundaes and then Aunt Mamie put in her car.

She promised Janie a puppy for her birthday. Only, she insisted, temporarily:

"Don't forget, Janie, he is very young and delicate, as well as very valuable. Neither your mother nor I could afford to replace him. Now the dog doctor will give you directions how to feed him, and I advise you stick to this schedule."

It was quite a schedule, too. The puppy must be fed only such-and-such things at such-and-such hours —nothing between meals. And even when Janie gave him a bit of cake he was very sick indeed.

So, finally through the reactions of the puppy, Janie learned something. She became convinced that regular meals did, after all, have to do with health—and beauty. In fact, they were necessary to it.

"Sloane Boat 'Round The Bend" Will Rogers, Irvin Cobb Rivalry Creates Laugh Panic

The Bells of the century will be on at the Bells Theatre, commencing tomorrow, and Monday, matinee and, where Fox Film's "Steamboat 'Round the Bend" presents Will Rogers and Irvin S. Cobb in a hilarious high-comedy rivalry that is the tops for the season's film offerings.

"Steamboat 'Round the Bend" is warm in sentiment, rich in characterizations, replete with thrills and reveals Rogers in a new and more human light....in what is probably the greatest role of his career.

As Captain of the "Clarence Brown," a remarkable old tub, Rogers is involved in the romance of Anne Shirley and John McGuire. Their happiness is threatened when Cobb, captain of the girl's father's fleet, comes to the girl's aid and is condemned.

Of course, Rogers and Cobb Rogers blame each other for the boy's plight, but their desire to help him draws them together in a rich friendship. While they perform many enough money to pay for the appeal, Rogers is indulging in his old rivalry with Irvin S. Cobb, captain of the shiny "The Pride of Dixie."

The two dramatic currents blend when Rogers steps down to New Orleans to save McGuire and is involved in the big steamboat race. Cobb, the packer, with another explosive comedy, brings the film to a happy conclusion.

In the leading role, Rogers tops the best of his previous performances. Anne Shirley is unusually effective in the romantic lead and round, jovial Irvin Cobb lives up to his reputation as one of the funniest men in America.

"Steamboat 'Round the Bend" owes much of its effectiveness and color to the work of scenarists Dudley Nichols and Lamar Trotti, John Ford, all of whom worked on "Judge Priest" and "Steamboat 'Round the Bend" is a worthy successor to the former.

Special Feature

AT THE CAPITOL

"Men Without Names" Thrilling Story of Adventure in Underworld—Love-Interest Fight Added Attraction

Here is a real action story of the true adventures of the scientific sleuths who are waving against crime, and succeeding very well.

With Fred McMurray, Madge Evans, Lynne Overman and young Cecil Neil heading the cast, "Men Without Names" is a dramatic punch-packed film based on adventures that have really happened.

The brutal perpetrators of a daring mail robbery are the quarry in the picture. From Brooklyn, where they pull the job, the gang is traced to a small Kansas town through a trail of bills.

McMurray, masquerading as a business man is sent to the town by the Department of Justice. It is his job to dig out the criminals. Impeded by a newspaper woman, played by Madge Evans, and by a local "big-shot" who is attempting to cover the gangsters, McMurray finally finds their hiding place.

Lynne Overman, another Department detective, is sent to aid him, and between them they begin to forge the chain of evidence that will send them to prison. But Overman is slightly overzealous, steps into the gangster's trap and is caught himself. The gang flees, but close on their trail are the government men. How the special agents, with the help of the above mentioned young woman, catch their prisoners and help McMurray win the girl, is revealed in a crashing, dramatic climax.

"Men without Names" boasts of a most capable cast, besides the above mentioned, there are J. G. Nugent, Herbert Rawlinson and Leslie Fenton.

Boer-Louis Film

Of paramount interest to sport fans will be the exclusive showing of those who follow the heavyweight fight game, when the showing of the Max Baer-Joe Louis championship fight films.

Fight fans have seen these pictures of the memorable fight, and who attended the Yankee Stadium bout will be glad to view the fight, claim that the motion pictures give a far more vivid and detailed view of the two fighters than was possible from any but the choicest ringside seats in the house.

Time of the film showing the four rounds requires about fifteen minutes, due to the numerous slow motion 'shots' taken when Louis knocked down the mighty Max.

Besides these two excellent films the Capitol offers an amusing comedy entitled "Watch the Birdie" in which Bobby Jones is featured. The latest news happenings throughout the world are brought to the Capitol screen by Fox Movietone News.

Three complete shows are given each day, at 1.30 p.m. in the evening at 7 and again at 9.00 p.m.

HEALTH and PSYCHOLOGY

Famous Authority on Mind and Psychology

Copyright, 1935, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Buried thoughts are forbidden thoughts. Scientifically speaking, the process of forgetting means that offending, distasteful memories or thoughts are suppressed. That is, they are pushed out of the conscious into the subconscious or unconscious mind.

These regions of the brains are spoken of in a figurative way to indicate the lower levels or layers of thinking into which all suppressed thoughts are submerged.

Therefore, although we consciously forget, we never really forget anything that is in the unconscious. To forget a thing deliberately we try to push a disagreeable thought out of one's mind, simply means that the idea in question is supposed to the lower levels or the mind.

We may not be aware of the presence of such unconscious, buried thoughts, yet often they come forth unbidden and re-enter consciousness.

There are many people who can recall experiences that occurred in early childhood. Some can even remember happenings which occurred when they were three-year-olds.

Myriads of suppressed thoughts come into being during a lifetime and these are all more or less arranged, classified, connected by what are known as "association fibres."

What is why an old piece of furniture in an antique shop will bring back a host of memories of scenes, persons, incidents that occurred during the school days. And such recalled memories often astonish or startle.

The old mahogany table or the ball clock, or whatever it may be, by its recognition, has in a sense used to be acquainted with as a boy, a swinging of the pendulum of the other words, nerve impulses are sent along a series of associated fibres that lead down into the deepest recesses of the unconscious mind.

Feeble-minded individuals, those whose minds are defective from birth, have very few association fibres in comparison with normal and average individuals. The more intelligent an individual is, the more association "fibres" they possess. That is because he has more ideas stacked away in his mind.

It is believed that when we study something new, like another language, new associative fibres in order to take care of the added knowledge. That means, however, that we cannot study or know too much, that it is never too late to learn more.

Building memories that are cherished and pleasant is an all important part of everyone's development. The more association fibres there are, the more active and constructive thought impulses, the greater the chances for individual being happy and efficient.

Bride's Thanks

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Will you please tell me from which side a guest should be served—right or left, and from which side should the soiled dishes be removed?

2. I would also like to know what few expressive words might be used in writing to thank the young bride or bride-to-be in wishing her best wishes for her future, married life?

2. How also might the bride reply? How should a bride thank her friends for the gifts she has received at a shower in her honor?

L.

2. Any sentence which incorporates "Best Wishes for your happiness always" is always appropriate to give this message to the bride-to-be or to the bride. Whatever else you add depends on circumstances, but on the other hand, your relationship or friendship with the bride-to-be or bride.

3. To this request of the bride, the bride replies something like this: "Thank you Mary, I appreciate so much your good wishes," or "Thank you so much, George." Your good wishes make the gift happy.

4. As the bride-elect at a shower opens each gift, she thanks the giver for the thought and for the gift. Something like this: "Oh, Mary, how you are Grace, and how very thoughtful. And what a lovely breakfast set...., just the color I wanted. That gay set should go with it quite right." The bride should give the impression of hurry when opening the fine gifts and expressing, adequately her appreciation of the kind and generosity of her friends. As she opens each one she should express in mind and heart the fullness of these friends, the time and care they have considered to the choice and planning of the gift, and should make each one feel her sincere appreciation, and to round off this appreciation the bride-to-bride will, after the shower, write a little note of thanks to each giver.

Announcing the Marriage

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When a couple are being married, is it correct for the bride's parents to announce the marriage as the bride's parents are doing? Should the parents send announcements to the bride, or should her parents send them to his friends? Two people, sixteen years of age, act as bridesmaid and best man?

T.

The wedding invitations and the wedding announcements are sent in the name of the mother and father of the bride. The mother and father of the groom do not send out invitations or announcements. The bride and her mother obtains from the groom's mother the list of the names and addresses of his relatives and friends to whom invitations are to be sent, and the list is then added to announcements to be sent. These lists are incorporated with the list of the bride's relatives and friends, and the bride's family send out these invitations and announcements with their own.

Sixteen is fairly young for these two important attendants but it isn't incorrect by any means to have such young attendants if this is agreeable to everyone concerned.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

(Copyright, 1935, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Doesn't know why his mother dislikes her.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

For three years, Oswald and I have been devoted, and his mother has been everything to him since he was up, one, she even took to her bed when her son said she was dying! She didn't die, and we continued to go together. I haven't the least idea why she objected to me. I live at home with my mother and sister, and don't go around with any scandal about us.

Oswald used to go with another girl before he went with me, and his mother did not object to her at all. This situation is very trying for all of us, particularly for Oswald, who is devoted to me and also loves his mother dearly. Shall I give him up?

Marianne.

Why don't you very frankly ask Oswald if he knows what it's all about? Frankness in such cases is much better than beating around the bush. And if this young man's mother has any real, sensible reasons for not liking you other than your nationality, religion, temperament or financial, and the fact that you don't belong to the Junior League, I should not give him up.

Gave up her Finance to save home

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Mother died about six months ago. She and was hastened by my father's infatuation for a no-account woman. I promised mother I'd do what I could for the younger children, 5, 6 and 7 years of age. So I broke my engagement in order to devote myself entirely to making home comfortable. But it was no go.

My father intends to marry this woman in two weeks. She had moved into the house, thrown out a good many of mother's things, slapped the younger children, and already acted cruel-stepmother to the life. My sister, who is 18, is going to be married almost immediately to engaged to me.

Do you think after turning down the chance to have a proper wedding and saying that I'm sorry we broke up? She has not been going with any girl in the meantime.

Hattie.

Please don't let a day pass without writing a letter to your former fiance and tell him that under the circumstances and in a foolish fruitless attempt to keep the home together, you broke with him and now realize that a mistake was made.

If all goes well, as I sincerely hope you will be able, as an independent matron to do more for the younger children, than you were living in your father's home with a stepmother of this type.

Willing to make any Sacrifice for her Happiness

Dear Miss Fairfax:

In spite of her parents' objection, she indicated that she was willing to accept me. But my plans for our marriage did not go through. The failure was caused by circumstances beyond my control.

He has shown by her actions that she still cares.

I am writing completely to communicate with her. I adore this girl and I am certain that I'm willing to make any sacrifice for her happiness, but feel that it's not right for me to try to communicate with her again. With me there is no other matter that is more difficult to overcome.

Frank.

Frank: I would fix her to speak or phone me?

Frank.

It depends entirely on the barrier and you do not tell me what this is. If you haven't done anything dishonorable, and your prospects are such that you see your way clear to making a home for this girl, I shouldn't give her up.

I wish you had been a little more explicit about her parents' objection to you.

By HELEN FOLLETT

Women have a weather eye on the bathroom scales. Weight watchers, they are all right. But some of them don't look any better when they work off a few extra pounds. The important matter is proportion and harmony of line. Its nonsense to put too high a value on weight, or to be overconcerned with the choice and planning of the gift, and should make each one feel her sincere appreciation, and to round off this appreciation the bride will, after the shower, write a little note of thanks to each giver.

Announcing the Marriage

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When a couple are being married, is it correct for the bride's parents to announce the marriage as the bride's parents are doing? Should the parents send announcements to the bride, or should her parents send them to his friends? Two people, sixteen years of age, act as bridesmaid and best man?

T.

The wedding invitations and the wedding announcements are sent in the name of the mother and father of the bride. The mother and father of the groom do not send out invitations or announcements. The bride and her mother obtains from the groom's mother the list of the names and addresses of his relatives and friends to whom invitations are to be sent, and the list is then added announcements to be sent. These lists are incorporated with the list of the bride's relatives and friends, and the bride's family send out these invitations and announcements with their own.

Sixteen is fairly young for these important attendants but it isn't incorrect by any means to have such young attendants if this is agreeable to everyone concerned.

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

(Copyright, 1935, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

It is worth looking long for the dress that is different. Such a dress is an evening gown of black sheer without elaboration except for four rows of heavy self-cording down the front of the bodice which is a double circular berths, also self-corded, by a cluster of white velvet violets.

Capes were heard from the onlookers when a mannequin appeared on the runway. She was wearing a cocktail suit of black velvet, which let beads woven in to form a narrow widely spaced diagonal stripe. The skirt is bias and has a sleeveless top attached to the waist, while the jacket is top length with a cape.

A pretty picture is made by youngster's dance frock made of pale green taffeta, on full-length lines and trimmed with a deep flounce of tiny taffeta which partly conceals a diagonal ribbon shoulder strap and an off- the-shoulder decolletage. The bodice is made down, and skirt is a swirl of taffeta ruffles.

All set to smarten up a simple frock is a set consisting of short bolero and bag in black velvet ribbed leather with narrow gold kid piping.

A good friend to the between-seasons wardrobe is a printed black and white satin frock in jacquard-spot design, with collar of white chiffon marking the squared neckline. Rhinestones sparkle in the self-belt.

W.M.S. Sectional Rally Convenes at Cannifton

200 Delegates From United Church Hear of Activities

The village of Cannifton was the scene of great activity on Thursday, October 3rd, when over two hundred delegates and visitors assembled at the United Church to attend the Belleville Sectional Rally of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada. Mrs. Merrick and Mrs. H. Twiddy greeted all delegates.

Mrs. Frosts, President of the Belleville Section, presided for both sessions in a very capable and efficient manner. Mrs. Earl Denyes was appointed secretary and Mrs. Percy MacAllister and Mrs. Clarence Holmes were appointed press secretaries for the Stirling and Belleville papers respectively. Mrs. E. Farnsworth was appointed convenor of the nominating committee.

Mrs. F. B. Patterson had charge of the devotional exercises. "O Worship the King" was sung, after which she read and led followed by prayer by Mrs. Homan. Miss Colleen, on behalf of the Cannifton auxiliary tendered a very gracious welcome to the delegates to which Mrs. Earl Denyes replied in a fitting manner. Mrs. Leigh Wheeler, Mrs. Mills and Mrs. Farnham kindly acted as pianists for the meeting.

Short Topics

Six five-minute papers were then given as follows:

"What I Have Learned From Being a Treasurer" by Mrs. Mills. Accuracy was essential and she advised getting receipts and was an ideal way for raising funds.

"Temperance Work" by Mrs. Moore, the retired Temperance secretaries to give some report and information as to what they had done, rather than devote one whole meeting to this topic. The Missionary Monthly will supply all secretaries with needed material and facts for their meetings. Every auxiliary should be up-to-date in their knowledge of the Temperance Act and study all literature published on this subject. The secretary urged the renewed use of pledge cards. The future or our church depends upon the young people. They are our most liquor traffic. Does this mean nothing to us? We have the right example and prayers can ,we as church and W.M.S. members guide these young people safely on the pathway of life. Let us not just pray and let the matter rest, but strive to overcome that temptation.

"The Joy of Being a Stranger" Secretary" by Mrs. J. Daniels. Mrs. Daniels referred to the joy that is made to the stranger, the ill, the lonely, the discouraged and the aged and told what a joy and added satisfaction one received in doing something for others.

"Our Literature:: Its Use or Abuse" by Mrs. Ketcheson. She urged societies and W.M.S. members to make more use of the literature supplied by the department, the blue book and the Missionary Monthly. Every auxiliary should go on for some one else to enjoy. Do not keep good literature by hanging it to ourselves.

"Peace and Politics" by Mrs. Bell. She showed what was accomplished in four steps: (a) Emotional state of peace and love of humanity. (b) Critical analysis of our attitude to other nations as we are only superior in opportunities. (c) Creative love for and it is our duty as Christians to study international affairs and create public opinion into peaceful thinking. (d) Dynamic action. Prayer and love.

Christian women have great, responsibilities and by studying and charging these responsibilities, having active parts in politics so we may adopt the right attitude and endeavour to make the public accept these principles which will help bring the Kingdom of God first, can we hope to establish peace upon earth.

Why Discard the Milk Bee by Mrs. M. B. Sine

The milk bee is to hold grateful thanks to God and to help. Some little bones have many uses:

1 To help in the milk work.

2 To give the gospel to those, who know it not.

3 To encourage giving at all times.

4 To educate people to deny themselves and share with others.

5 To gather in the lambs.

Mrs. Farnsworth Heard

Mrs. Farnsworth then gave an inspiring talk on "Christian Stewardship" emphasizing Stewardship not only deals with finance but with Christian living. To give is a privilege and our religion showering itself in our giving as a natural outcome. There is no limit to opportunities, theatres, etc. in these days, but what about our church savings be less! If we could only see the needs and the calls for things that endure. A noted American, was asked for new ideas for raising funds for the church. His prompt answer was "Try religion," Christian living is the first object of Christian Stewardship and the greater we get to God, the more anxious we are to further God's Kingdom and to save souls, even in all women. All we have we owe to God. We are God's stewards. To have is to give. To give is to receive. The more we give the more we have to give. This is a fitting testimony in our Missionary Society. We have started this year, we can not keep it up? Our success depends on the faithfulness of all W.M.S. members and free will offerings.

Mrs. Allocation has been set for auxiliaries this year but a ten per cent increase is asked from members to the society, subscribers to the missionary monthly and to our givings. A father once bought his little daughter a Woolworth wrist watch. At first she was delighted but that night she told her father that she didn't want any more for she didn't "tick." Is our religion like that? Are we all not acquainted? Instances there but the life of God is in the soul. Are we not in danger turning away from Christianity? Why has the world such a rake over? If the secret of Christ is within us, it will shine out to touch others and win others for Christ.

Reports Received

Mrs. Jas. Reddick then gave a concise report of the work accomplished by the auxiliary, mission circles and mission bands in the Belleville section. The encouraging feature was the splendid and systematic giving and the stressing of our society's motto, Prayer.

Mrs. Reddick complimented Alberts's on their splendid standing, wholly to the study of the mission band. She said to Christ more for their successful meeting.

Mrs. Ketcheson sung while the offering was taken after which Mrs. Bell led the offered prayer.

Mrs. S. Gay had charge of the Worship Service which closed the morning session to a close. After quiet music was played "Breathe on Me Breath of God" by Mrs. Sine.

Place of Prayer

The Scripture Reading was verses on "Prayer" read responsively, Mrs. Gay's Prayer is the answer to prayer—Is Place and Power". What is the place of prayer in the petitions of petitions to God? Prayer is an exercise of our adoration, thanksgiving, confession and supplication to God, when we wonder if there is any place of prayer, let us remember the large part prayer played in Jesus' life. Prayer is the greatest privilege we need to save our neighbour and our community. When we pray earnestly for these we will begin to realize the needs of our church, community. Always be earnest in your prayer. We are always so anxious to tell God what we want, but us not be negligent in thanking Him for His kindness to us. Prayer is the hub on which Christian life revolves. Prayer is the bringer of blessings. Prayer is the soul's kindred breath. Prayer is the heaven-born message. Prayer is the Soul's Sincere desire. Prayer is unuttered or expressed. Prayer is the simplest of all a duet by Mesdames Duff and Bradley, "The Lord's Beautiful Garden of Prayer".

The afternoon session was opened with devotional exercises conducted by the Cannifton C.G.I.T. Mrs. Ketcheson led in the Call to Worship. Nancy Cone read the Scripture lesson, Psalm 100 after which Ruth Garrison offered prayer.

Mrs. F. H. Hubbs then gave an inspiring talk on "Leadership". Leadership means making life more beautiful and others. Leadership puts influence and power. How are we to apply these principles may be the Light of all the World?

A leader needs courage, conviction and vision. A leader gives guidance judgment and inspiration and a leader gains humility, understanding and wisdom.

Tabernacle C.G.I.T. sang a quartette "What Are You Doing For Jesus".

Successful Programs Needed

Mrs. A. L. Crewe then gave a very helpful talk on "Programmes". To have a successful programme at our W.M.S. meeting we must have enthusiastic workers as well as efficient leaders. Programmes should be planned ahead by a special committee of capable spiritual members. Then they should be carried out. Each society has the option of arranging its programme to suit its own particular needs. Freedom of discussion is encouraged but parliamentary procedure in our meetings must be observed. To keep your programmes interesting always be on the alert for new material. Have returned missionaries when possible. Your programmes should always be well balanced. Always be prompt at the beginning and close at the time. Opening and closing and adhere to it. Speak distinctly. Members should be students of history missions and current events and finally pray without ceasing. Freedom should take part in the programme, remember a few words full of expression and meaning are more acceptable than a twelve page address read. Always include a simple service. Secure worship service in your programmes. Try to have all members taking part at different times, different songs and prayer, even though they begin with a sentence prayer. In arranging your programme for Decision Day include special items. Mrs. Crewe urged all to make their Thanksgiving Offerings.

Supplies by Mrs. Reddick:

Mrs. Reddick thanked all who had in the past contributed to the missionary boxes that are sent to home and foreign fields. She read several letters from missionaries that she received these boxes, thanking the ladies of W.M.S. their kindness, generosity and love.

Literature by Mrs. Williams:

Mrs. Williams represented the department and had on display the new study books and several helpful pamphlets on missionary work. She told us the knowledge of the work needed by leaders could be found in her department.

Baby Bands by Mrs. Belcanquel.

Mrs. Belcanquel commented on the lack of Baby Bands in this section and explained how they had successfully started out in their community. When you show an interest in the babies, then the mother will become interested in the W.M.S.

In closing with "The Earmarks of a model missionary meeting. Mrs. Bell gave us the following question, which a model or ideal society would have and for which we should strive in our society.

Perfect attendance.

Be punctual.

Meetings must be interesting—everyone must have something to hear, something to do and something to see.

Prayerful preparation by leader. Use all available literature.

Have a meeting within limited time.

Money received through plain giving.

Members all willing workers.

Evangelistic every meeting.

We must have God's blessing and feel the presence of God meeting.

Each member must feel their responsibility.

Every member must be a growing member —the Kingdom of God must grow or die.

After the offering was received Mrs. Clarke offered prayer.

Talk on Canada

Miss Vera Ray, Regd., who is leaving shortly to assume her duties in Africa, gave a talk on "Why I Become a Missionary". At the conclusion of Miss Ray's remarks the chairman called for a minute to a minute, to show Miss Ray their appreciation of her devotion to missionary work.

Mrs. Haggerty, President of the Bay of Quinte Presbyterial addressed the meeting using as her subject "The Four F's" which represented facts, folks, funds and faith. Faith is a fruit or something that really happened. Faith is a great tool to missionary women is the one using gave "to and tell", which leads our missionaries to go to foreign fields. Our W.M.S. has missionaries in ten countries, one hundred and eighty-two in all—with one hundred and one missionaries in Canada with sixty-four associate helpers. Our work cannot go on without funds. Our past record has been very commendable, surely we are not now going to shirk our duty. As we study missions, we realize more and more God's ownership and our stewardship must be realized. Where there is spiritual service there is no financial deficit. Folks are all human beings all colours and races travelling along life's highway, each with a task, each with a purpose in view and each born with a soul. It is our duty and privilege to give the words of Jesus to all the folk who are less fortunate than we. Faith is the only thing with which we are able to offset the tempter's power. Learn to cultivate faith in God "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and all these things shall be added unto you."

Mrs. Yaleman then gave a paper on "Why I am a Tither". Tithing is systematic giving. All our everyday business must be done systematically so much more important is what we have to do the Lord systematically. Tithing means to put the God first and self last. A new type of Christian is coming into being tithing practised. Then just as necessary as tithing is systematic should remember that we must tithe our time and talents to further God's work.

Reason For Joining

Mrs. J. N. Irvine then gave a paper on "Why I am a Circle Worker". Mrs. Irvine's reasons that had induced one to become a member of the Circle were:

Home training was such that it inspired one to belong to a mission.

The circle is a place where you receive missionary information.

There is pleasure in activity.

One receives spiritual blessings.

There is created in the circle member a desire to serve.

Mrs. Frosts then conducted the question drawer which solved many problems of the W.M.S. and have. The minutes of the meeting were then confirmed.

In regards to the nominating committee, Mrs. Farnsworth expressed that the duties were the unanimous choice for president for the ensuing year. Mrs. Frosts kindly consented to resume office for a term. The hymn "In Christ There is no East or West" was sung after which Rev. Mr. Merrick pronounced the benediction.

This concluded a very education-al, helpful and spiritual rally and each delegate in their home feeling it was good to have been there.

Lightship Breaks Anchorage

Sault Ste Marie, Ont., Oct. 4— (CP)—Buffeted by a heavy gale rising in from Lake Superior the Canadian lightship Isle Royale anchored off Gros Cap at the mouth of the St. Marys River, broke away from her anchorage last night and began drifting in another early today five miles west of Gros Cap Light. On board were 10 men and while the lightship was washed back and forth they were not considered in danger.

HEPBURN SEES TRADE CHANCE IN UNITED STATES
Man-Made Depression
Premier Hepburn was greeted with a volley of applause. He said the Conference was caused not by Providence, but by man, and what man has done, he can undo. He referred to the bond issue floated by Mr. Henry bearing interest at 2½% in the same fiscal year Mr. Hepburn negotiated for cheaper money and issued bonds bearing interest at only 2.37%, saving three million dollars yearly in interest on the issue. Mr. Hepburn said the Budget would not be balanced this year but a special session would be called and the budget would then be balanced as our expenses must be in line with our revenue. Also about a half million dollars has been collected in succession duties from estates that were supposed to have been settled.
The Lower River Outlet
The Premier referred to the Peace River Outlet, the improvement of the St. Lawrence Waterways, the failure of the federal government to assume all the cost of old age pensions, and the fact that unemployment is not as acute as he promises Bennett had broken.
In 1926-28 Australia was in a bad position. Economists were called in and (1) all banks were converted at par; (2) a measure of 33 1-3 per cent. controlled inflation was passed; (3) tariffs were cut as low as possible with all raw materials coming in free. As a result of these reforms, Australia has forged ahead, regained lost markets and is now experimenting. Mr. Hepburn considered their plan our only salvation.
Dairy Situation
The speaker charged Mr. Bennett with putting the dairy industry into chaos. In 1929 we were importing New Zealand butter but receiving for a 9 cent premium on our cheese which was the finest the world produced. Mr. Bennett shut out New Zealand butter, with the result that New Zealand commenced to produce cheese produced a grade as good as ours, and the price of cheese was lowered. We made more butter then, and now have a surplus of butter. New Zealand shut out our manufactured goods, causing more unemployment here. Bennett has voted one million dollars to subsidize cheese exporters in 1-2-3 but the price has dropped 5c per lb. he said.
Slumps Plan Attack
The reforestration promises of Mr. Stevens were ridiculed by Mr. Hepburn when, with 3.7% marketed, placed against our forest products, there was a surplus of these commodities now. "If, however we would send Mr. King to Washington, a new tariff protocol is in power, we might secure a U.S. market for our forest products, providing we are to take thousands off relief, give them back their morale, as well as providing work for our railways, and increasing our revenue."
Mr. Hepburn urged for Canada trade reforms, monetary reforms and the establishment of a National Bank for the Dominion. The people of Canada today are bewildered with national unity. The masses must be agreed on reform measures. He predicted for Grant Clark, the biggest majority ever recorded in this County.
The meeting closed with cheers for Mr. Clark, and the National Anthem.

Bengals With Ferraro Back Will Be Hard to Take

By ELMER DOLMAGE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

While Sarnia's warm-weather run through the west and a two-weeks head-start by the Big Four caused football to steal into the picture earlier than ever before, tomorrow is officially opening day in the east with the Intercollegiate and O.R.F.U. aggregations taking their places in the sun.

The first full five-game program of the year sends Queen's against McGill at Montreal, and Western Mustangs against University of Toronto at Toronto in the Intercollegiate; Rugby Bengals down to Sarnia to the O.R.F.U. and Montreal to Hamilton and Argonauts to Ottawa in the Big Four.

Ted Reeve's college champions, apparently every bit as powerful as a year ago, start the campaign no better than second-choice favorites.

If the tricoloy force fails to upset a highly-rated McGill team tomorrow, Queen's will be real complicators in the intercollegiate scramble.

McGill, under Frank Shaughnessy, lacked only a punter in 1934. The coaching threesome, Joe O'Brien, Muddy Foster and Doug Kerr, combining forces to succeed Shaughnessy, has altered this situation. They will send out Herb Westman, one of the best Kickers in College football, to make sure Queen's has no advantage through having Johnny Munro.

Strong pre-campaign favorites, Toronto Varsity is expected to start Bill Stofen's Mustangs from London without much difficulty. The blue brigade showed amazing all-round strength in its one practice scrimmage against Sunny Beach, while the youthful Storen, lads of St. Michael's college, is riding working with young, untried material.

Big Game in West

Western Ontario's big game is the Sarnia-Sydney Beach battle featuring together two of the game's greatest punting rivals, Ab Kerr and Bernard Ferraro. They last met in the 1933 Canadian Final when Ben, then star of the Argonauts backfield, held a slight advantage in the punting. Argos won that time.

In this case Stirling is conceded to have a mighties force around him including Rocky Farnese, Gordie Paterson and Ormond Beach, but Beach supporters expect much of Ben's brilliant young assistants, Bobby Porter and Art Dyer.

Hamilton Cubs, third team in the O.R.F.U. grouping, will be the only eastern senior team not playing a schedule fixture tomorrow. The young and ambitious Cubs open their campaign the following week at Hamilton against Tigertia.

Having punched out successive victories over Hamilton Tigers and Montreal in the Big Four, the league-leading Argos are slated for a serious test at Ottawa. The Senators will be without Andy Mullan, first-string quarterback and the plunging, placement-kicking Tommy Burns, when they face Roughriders.

Mullan is in a Toronto hospital, feared to have pneumonia, and Burns left several days ago for Baltimore to be at the bedside of his sick wife.

But the Tigers, once again "hot" with Johnny Ferraro to flip forward passes, will take on Montreal confidently. Beaten in the opener at Toronto by Argos, the Bengals outpointed Ottawa last Saturday without Ferraro and are expected to benefit greatly by having the former Cornell ace on the firing line.

CANZONERI TO MEET AL ROTH

New York, Oct. 4—(AP)—That great little fighting machine, Tony Canzoneri, one of the best little men of all time, smarter off in defense of his lightweight crown tonight, when he faces Al Roth, a rugged puncher from New York's Bronx, in a 15-round engagement in Madison Square Garden.

It will be another episode in the chapter of teacher v. pupil. Like Lou Ambers, whom Canzoneri beat for the title last May, Roth served a part of his apprenticeship as a sparring partner of Canzoneri. The smart money, which has installed Tony an eight to five favorite, is betting history will repeat itself and that the old master will give the former gaspi a good boxing lesson.

Tommy Bridges Cools Ardor Of Battling Cubs in Second Game of World's Series

Cold Weather Possible Cause of Collapse of Charlie Root

GREENBERG HURT

Bruised Wrist Sliding Home But Will Continue to Play

(By Edward Neil Associated Press Sports Writer)

Chicago, Oct. 4 (AP)—It took the coldest day in the past 10 world series to cool off the hottest club in baseball—that mad 8 o'clock little right hand curve ball heaver named Tommy Bridges—so today, on a new and perhaps chillier battle front, the Detroit Tigers and the Chicago Cubs might just as well be starting all over again.

They were on even terms, with this difference—the Tigers came to town with their big first baseman and cleanup belter, Hank Greenberg, again the home run hitter who helped blow the American League race apart, suffering from a bruised left arm. There was little danger, though, of the dynamo of the Tigers' power-house being out of action today.

In more ways than one it's a simple question of who's going to break the ice as the Cubs open their home series on the home grounds of Wrigley Field against Mickey Cochrane's Tigers.

If it's any more than it was in Detroit, and the weather-man says it's going to be freezing, the whole blamed shebang is liable to go on the skids.

Maybe that's why Cochrane and pappy Charlie Grimm, a couple of fellows old enough to chill winds and warm slowly have entrusted the vital day and game to the youth, with it's warm blood and rubber pitching arms.

The youngsters are big Bill Lee, from Plaquemine in the Bayou Country of Louisiana, and Eldon Leroy Auker, understanded fellow in a pitching way only, from Noncatur, Kans.

They're new comers to this fright fracas, but as far as records go they were the best pitchers in their respective leagues last season.

They may wind up just more fodder for the frosh free swingers, just as the veteran Charlie Root, little "Pea Vine" Henshaw and a big elemental looking right hander named Fabian Kowalik, finished up all season with times after that 8 to 3 trimming yesterday by the revived Tigers.

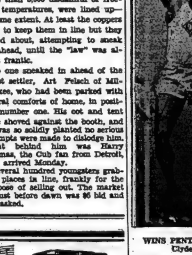
BLEACHER FANS LINE UP EARLY

Place in The Line Could Be Bought For $10



By William Weaver
Associated Press Sports Writer

Chicago, Oct. 4—(AP)—The backbone of baseball fandom—its bleacher customers—stepped up with $1.10 each to purchase the 12,000 seats necessary to produce a capacity crowd of 50,000 today as Detroit Tigers and Chicago Cubs renewed their battle for World Series loot.

The backbone was a big, noisy, well-bundled one, so big and noisy 50 policemen were detailed to watch over them from last night to 1 o'clock this morning. At midnight, more than 8,000 disdainful of freezing temperatures, were lined up—to some extent. At least the coppers tried to keep them in line but they mulled about, attempting to sneak up ahead, until the "law" was almost frantic.

No one sneaked in ahead of the oldest settler, Art Pelach of Milwaukee, who had been parked with several comforts of home, in position number one. His cot and tent stood forward against the booth, and he was so solidly planted no serious attempts were made to dislodge him. Right behind him was Harry Thomas, the Cub fan from Detroit, who arrived Monday.

Several hundred youngsters grabbed places in line, frankly for the purpose of selling out. The market at just before dawn was $6 bid and $10 asked.

SERIES SLANTS

By PAUL MICKERSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Detroit, Oct. 4—The Tigers picked just the kind of a day to cool off the hottest team in baseball. It was so cold the crowd shouted for Admiral Byrd and his penguins.

When the Tigers are down and out they call on Tommy Bridges to "bridge" the chasm of despair to the high road of hope. Tommy pitched the Tigers into the lead last year by beating the great Dizzy Dean after Eldon Auker had tied it up. And he put them back into a tie today by curving icicles around the big lad Bears' necks.

"Grandpappy" Root didn't go to the showers. He went to a charcoal stove. Poor Charlie! His record is one of the finest in baseball but he has yet to finish a world series game. He's started in four of them now and has been a "Good Time Charlie" every time—to opposition batters.

Bridges was such a technical, painstaking workman that he never, aged four pitches to a man. He sometimes ran the count to 3 and 2, and sometimes running up two strikes without a ball, and sometimes pitching three ball and then three strikes.

Babe Ruth, perched in the press box behind the plate, made the star catch of the game. "The Bambino stood up and caught a foul off Frederick Lindstrom's bat in the fourth inning. The crowd gave him a big hand and he liked it.

If Al Schacht doesn't get pneumonia it'll be a marvel of medical science. The baseball comedian engaged in a shadow boxing skit before the game time with Mickey Cochrane and wound up with a shiner.

The scalpers took it on the chin for the second straight time today. The cold weather kept thousands away and the scalpers were begging customers to buy chunks for $1 a throw. One settled on a cup of coffee at a hot dog.

The goose-egg is still following Goose Goslin. He hasn't had a hit yet. But he got on base today.

Though most of the army of Ethiopia is composed of wild, poorly armed tribesmen, a section possesses many of war's latest machinery. The ABOVE layout shows the anti-aircraft guns, a recent acquisition, LOWER LEFT, a machine gun crouched in a trench with a box of dynamite. RIGHT, where Italy's crack troops have speedy motor bicycles, Ethiopia depend on the slower mule to carry supplies to the front. They require no roads, whereas Italy, like the Roman legions of old, must build as they advance.

HOWLING GALES NOW MODERATING

Shipping Tied Up And One Boat Pounded to Pieces

By The Canadian Press

Seamen took a deep breath today the first they've had with any comfort in 24 hours—as gales that lashed the Great Lakes and tied up navigation began to moderate. At least one ship was lost, pounded to pieces as its crew of 30 were rescued, and scores of others lay up to await the storm's abating.

The 50-mile an hour gale, that swept down from Lake Superior and caused repercussions all the way to Kingston was subsiding. The weather man forecast strong west to northwest winds today, but of decreased force. Cold weather would still be with Ontario, however.

The large transport was driven on to a rock, while being loaded with pulpwood near Sault Ste. Marie. Coastguardsmen rescued the crew with a breeches buoy. One man was swept overboard but was rescued.

A freighter broke loose from its moorings in Buffalo and was blown 1,300 feet across the Fourth Line and Thomasburg gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Schwager to bid their daughter Helena goodbye and with her every success at school. The following address was read by Miss Rita Cassidy:

Thomasburg, Sept. 30, 1935.

Dear Helena:—

We have recently heard you have decided to leave us so we are gathered here this evening not only to bid you goodbye, but also to extend to you our good wishes, one and all, wish you every success in your new undertaking.

Mere words can hardly express just how much we are really going to miss you. Most of us have known you since childhood and it is with deepest regret that we have learned of your decision to leave us. Our loss is someone else's gain and though our gain will be future may our wishes spart, we hope you will often think of your friends around Thomasburg, especially Thanksgiving.

We ask you to accept this small gift not for its intrinsic value, but as a token of the regard which is held for you in this community. We sincerely hope that you will soon be settled in your new home and where you are leaving behind.

Signed on behalf of your friends,

Rita Cassidy and Bill Ervine.

Helena was presented with a chiffon set which she carefully packed to all her friends. "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow" was sung and the remainder of the evening was spent in social intercourse and dancing.

Helena left on Saturday for Kingston where she will attend School. We all wish her success and her friends here as she was always a favorite among her schoolmates.

Primitive Tribesmen to Face Modern Italian Invaders

FLORIDA NOT THE ONLY PLACE HIT BY HURRICANES

Storms in Cuba and Florida are a long way from Ot'awa, but they're almost as effective. Only the fact the summer resort at Norway Bay, near the capital, is depopulated saved many lives as tornado struck the colony, doing much damage. ABOVE is shown cottage with roof blown off. The cottage was occupied, but none was injured.

HURRICANE THAT MISSED FLORIDA DID THIS

Tears would have been across Florida coastal cities if Hati in the hurricane which whipped through Cienfuegos, Cuba, and killed 37, hadn't swerved into sea before reaching vicinity of mainland. It took roof and some of walls off this distillery, and did millions of dollars of other damage.

Fascist Air Legions Bomb Deeper Pathway Into Ethiopian Defence

The Italians also occupied Mount Ramat with the Ethiopians resisting the government reported without disclosing further details.

The Governor, however, lacked details as to casualties and the strength of the forces engaged. The battle area is inside the neutral 30 kilometre line in Ethiopia.

These fears did not take into account the fact while Luigi Vince-Giglucci, Italian Minister to Addis Ababa and so many other Italians remained here, the Italian commanders were not likely to order a bombardment.

Natives Less Restless

Many foreigners nevertheless spent the night on cots in the various legations. The natives appeared less nervous, not understanding what an air raid might be.

The utmost confusion and contradiction prevailed regarding what was happening at Aduwa, scene of an Italian rout 40 years ago and present objective of the Italian forces marching from Eritrea.

The government insisted Italian military planes dropped 78 bombs on a hospital there yesterday, killing many civilians, but the Italian Minister said he was authorized from Rome to deny civilians had been killed.

White Flags Waved by Natives

By JOHN EVANS

Copyright 1935 by The Associated Press

Rome, Oct. 4—The Italian forces were reported officially today to have swept forward again in Ethiopia "all along the front."

An official communique announced in yesterday's operations, Italian airplanes replied to Ethiopian artillery and rifle fire in the vicinity of Aduwa and Adigrat by bombing enemy forces.

The Italian advance met little opposition from Emperor Haile Selassie's troops, the communique said.

Inhabitants of native villages along the line of march were described as greeting the invading forces by waving white flags at their approach.

The Italian forces, it was announced, immediately made provisions for distributing food and supplies among the natives who were described as being in a "state of extreme misery."

Italian planes paved the way for the advance of the troops by dropping leaflets on the villages, showing the natives they had nothing to fear unless they opposed the advance.

Bennett Scores Liberals for a Shifting Policy

By C.P. Staff Writer

Saint John, N. B., Oct. 4—(CP)—Scoring the Liberal party for "shifting its policy in every direction where votes may be found," and describing the Reconstructionists as a party "born of a reckless ambition," Prime Minister Bennett delivered two general election appeals in his native province yesterday.

Before a Saint John audience last night Social Credit leader William Aberhart of Alberta was described as "a friend of mine, a great leader who has not yet proven himself a great statesman."

"The Liberal party had only one settled policy and that was to defeat the government. To that end the Prime Minister said, Liberal leader Mackenzie King had embraced practically every policy offered in every part of the Dominion. "I expect him to describe himself, as a Conservative next," the Prime Minister said.

In Fredericton yesterday afternoon Mr. Bennett declared there would not be a Stevens candidate elected west of the Great Lakes. There might be a few successful C.C.F. candidates he said, and for the Liberals he said "the people will give the answer to an appeal based on policies that change overnight."

"Five years has passed since I last spoke to you on political matters," Mr. Bennett began, when he was interrupted.

"And still we haven't got the bridge," observed a man in the audience.

"No, and you never heard me say you were going to get it either," Mr. Bennett retorted. "The gentleman is asking about a bridge. Evidently he doesn't know what has been going on in the world in the last five years."

Alters Policy Overnight

"When I saw the lumber exports through Fort Kent increased as the figures show, I wonder," Mr. Bennett said, "if anybody here would vote against the Ottawa trade agreements as Mr. King has asked you to do."

"Sure," said a voice in the audience.

"To abandon all that trade, that shipping and increased business, why does he oppose them. Perhaps you can answer that." Mr. Bennett suggested to the one who was heckling. "I guess they didn't instruct you on that point," he observed when there was no answer.

Mr. King had described him as a dictator, the Prime Minister said. "He says I don't discuss policies with my colleagues. He says he discusses affairs with Hepburn and all the rest. I wonder whom he consulted on his journey from Saint John to Halifax, from North Bay to Saskatoon, from Saskatoon to Vancouver?" on that journey he said, Mr. King had altered his policies overnight to suit the district in which he spoke.

"He has one policy," the Prime Minister declared, "and that is to defeat a government."

"And we're going to do it," shouted the lone heckler.

"Not you," replied the Prime Minister, "There are too many sensible people in this country."

CHAPTER LV

There was another rap at the door. They thought it was the waiter's answer by the anti-room. But the man who appeared in the doorway was Mr. Griffith's clerk, and he looked deeply disturbed.

"What is it, Meeker?" said Griffiths irritably.

"Bad news about one of your witnesses, sir—thought you ought to know at once," said the clerk. "McGinness."

"What!" exclaimed Griffiths. "But we had him watched—he hasn't bolted?"

"He's dead," said the clerk.

Sonia gave a little gasp. She turned white, and dropped into a chair.

"Dead!"

"They only found him half an hour ago," said Meeker. "In his own house. Shot. Clear enough what way he died. He put the muzzle in his mouth and blew the top of his head out."

He told them as much as he knew. McGinness had not left his house—two streets away from the court—since the trial started. The newspapers were brought him every evening. This morning his servant, arriving, found his bedroom door had not been occupied; his study door locked on the inside. She could get no answer, and rang for the police.

"They broke open the door. Found the windows shuttered and McGinness lying in an arm-chair. Revolver beside him. Done himself in. Hadn't been dead an hour—lot of burned papers in the grate. That's as much as is known, sir. I had it from the police and I came right along with it."

"Get along back—find out anything more you can!" said Griffiths. He turned to Grange, excited, even elated.

"Another point in Chalmers' favour, John—better than having the scoundrel himself in the witness-stand! He knew you'd fix him! Don't claim any postponement—here's the stuff to give the Jury. The guilty man dies by his own hand and didn't dare face it out!"

Grange's face was very grim. He shook his head.

"No use, Abel. We know better than that. We've learned a good deal about McGinness in the past month—besides what Mrs. Chalmers discovered. I'll give you a list of him after again. He was my witness."

"McGinness didn't dare to face the court, because he knew that if his dealings with Chalmers with Selby came out, he was done for. Those dealings had ruined him—left him completely broken financially—on top of that the certainty of a term in Dartmoor. I think he was still more scared of—some one else—than he was of us. I'm not sure that he had to fear we shall never know. His mouth is shut.

"But—that he was guilty of Cooke's murder is not true. I know that for the night of the 5th he had a copper-bottomed court-proof alibi which I couldn't break. He'd have been immensely useful to our case in one way for I could have made him show up Selby and Selby's master; but he is not the man who killed Cooke. For a time I thought he did."

"He did I!" said Sonia. "I was sure of it. But for a fortnight past I've been still sure he didn't. And I struck McGinness off my list; he was not the man."

She had recovered now. She looked at Granger with unflinching eyes.

"What I want to know is— how can this help Brian, or how can it hurt him? You talk as if it would be the worse for him. Do you mean you can save him if you—you do it?"

"Mrs. Chalmers," said Granger, "I'll tell you exactly what I can do. The Crown case had four deadly indictments against the defendant; the first charge which they have gone all in their power to drive home is that he killed Cooke. They haven't proved it.

"I can drive holes through that charge, riddle it with doubt. And that doubt the accused will be given the benefit; there will be no straight verdict of murder against Chalmers when I've done with the Jury. But—from conviction for what he did do, no power can save him.

"What I cannot do, is to call your husband into the witness-stand. If he testifies; he is convicted out of his own mouth. All that he did that night will come out; even to Chalmers' flight after the discovery of the body, and his silence. All that you did, too, Mrs. Chalmers! Even if through a doubt he is to be acquitted of the actual killing, the Jury will be directed to convict him as an accessory both before and after the fact.

"I shall win all the sympathy for him that I can—do my utmost for him. The tragedy of it is, as this case stands, that anything is better than the truth, Chalmers, an acquittal is impossible. And—my dear, I must get to it."

Sonia's eyes blazed.

"That means that he'll be in prison maybe for years—he'll lie under the cloud of this all his life, it will be on him when he comes out. Well, that's no use to me!"

She stood up.

"Mr. Granger, if our backs are against the wall, why not by any way? I put it to you three days ago. Are you afraid of the risk? Even if it fails it can't be so much worse than this. And it won't fail—even without the proofs—"

Griffiths shook his head. Granger was silent.

Sonia pulled Jude's letter out and handed it to him.

"Look at this!" she said.

Granger glanced through it, and his forehead knitted.

"What's it mean?

"He blundered it back to her. "It's a broken alibi," he said contemptuously. "No use to us at all."

"Oh, I suppose you can't use it. But why not try my plan—proofs or not!" cried Sonia. "Mr. Granger, it isn't for me to dictate, and you should know best—but don't you see it will save him?"

She saw the hesitation in Granger's eyes.

"Or break him completely!" he said. He stood up, his lips tight. "It's staking everything on one throw."

"Why not?" said Sonia, "If it wins!"

"Do you know what you're asking me to do?" said Granger. "If I put your plan before the Court and it fails your husband's case will then most certainly be the utmost the law can give him: Risky enough the jury will find him guilty of the murder, without qualification, or doubt. He'll have no defence left."

Griffiths broke in.

"Mr. Granger, the Court turned the plea down, and the Prosecution refused to accept any shelter behind it. They can, you know."

"But if they do that, surely you'll win!" said Sonia.

"That's true—that's right there!" returned Granger. "If I put it up to them and they refused . . . why—five minutes after we have had them throwing the case down and sending Chalmers back to his wife—judged guilty! But Staniforth wouldn't refuse—he holds every card and he'll play my hand. If he beat me at that—then Lord help Chalmers, for he'd be sent any old from me."

Sonia turned to him.

"I believe Lord is on the side of the truth. And I'm not afraid."

"You certainly have faith," said Granger quietly. "I'm afraid how little I can do for him."

"I think you've been great!" said Sonia. "But it's all or nothing, now, Mr. Granger, if you're afraid of it, I'll do it myself . . . I'll claim to be heard as a witness. You're his advocate, but I'm his wife. I think I should you fear the risk if I don't? For I know I'm right!"

Granger strode to the window and back, thinking quickly; the pupils of his eyes contracted to two black pin-points.

"I've thought it over a dozen times, and was scared of it. But Abel, do it right. What's needed for them all!" He struck the desk with his fist. "I've got to put it up to Chalmers, and if he consents—"

"He'll consent!" said Sonia. "You'll do it!"

"I'll try it!"

He had clamped in the corridor outside: a sharp threatening whirr.

"Then you'll win!" said Sonia She gave him both her hands, and turned and ran out of the room.

"Judge is in court, sir," said the clerk anxiously, appearing in the doorway. "They're waiting for you."

"Come on, Abel!" said Granger to his colleague. "My call's in the ring. A knock-out or nothing, this time!"

Sonia ran out among the crowd that was shuffling through a drizzle of rain. Cabs and taxis were lining the Town Hall, where the cars were not allowed. For a second or two she paused.

No use going back to the house. She had failed to stay Granger with the weapon he needed; he would fight alone. Get into the court see it through to the finish—it'll be worth while!

She hurried off to the end of the park where stood the big Bentley saloon she had brought from King's Rim. Passing it, she made for the side door of the court house where a constable was on duty, and a stream of people with passes were filing in, many in official uniform.

Approaching the door came Sergeant Howe, in full uniform. Sonia touched him on the arm.

"Howe! I want you," she said, and drew him aside.

"Miss! Not now, Miss!"

"Jude."

To Sonia it was like a lightning-flash from a black sky, that crashed up the rag of paper in her hand, a little gasp escaped her.

Howe glanced at it, and blinked.

"It's him," said Sonia. "Jude! got him!"

"Jude him!" Howe turned eyes of utter incredulity upon her. "You believe that?"

"Yes!"

"Well, if that little red-headed devil says she's clicked, I'll bet she has!" said Howe. "Here, stop, Mrs. Chalmers. What d'you think you're going to do?"

"Go to it, of course! Get along, side Jude as quick as ever I said make it."

"You can't go alone!"

"Of course I'm not going alone. You're coming with me," said Sonia. "Dont stand here talking — jump into my car."

"Me!" for a second Howe looked staggered. "But they've got obtained here ten different ways. I'm chief witness, Granger—"

"Granger won't want you! He isn't calling any witnesses, if he did you're not the man. Check on Howe—he's not the chief. Sonia was in a blaze of excitement. "I promised you'd be in at the death, Howe. Have I got to go alone?"

Without another word Howe pushed round the back of Sonia's big Bentley, opened the door, and slipped quickly inside.

"Get on with it then!" said Howe, as Sonia climbed into the driver's seat and snapped her foot down on the starter. "You'd better slide me out of this quick—if I'm seen quitting they'll be arresting me! I've torn my ticket here—and done it properly, Mrs. Chalmers, it doesn't matter how many sheep I'm banged for."

"I forgave Oah her former treason," explained Le to Tarman's query, "but she and Dooth spread stories among my people, who have never forgiven my friendship with you. They imprisoned me here with Tarman until I should be sacrificed to the Flaming God.

"How could they bring you food past this lion?" asked Tarman. "They enticed the lion into a narrow corridor leading from this cell by dropping meat from above," said La. "They lowered a gate of iron bars, and while he was imprisoned brought me my food."

"We must look at this corridor," said Tarman. "If it is not a blind tunnel it may offer means of escape." La pointed out entrance to the dark tunnel. "If they capture the lion, they will return him to his cell. We must get out of here," said Tarman.

"They are sure to capture him," said La. Tarman moved toward the entrance. "I had better investigate, he said. "If it is a blind tunnel and if they returned the lion to his cell while we were in the tunnel, it would be fatal." "I can make haste," whispered La.

You can tell it all a way Uncle Abbi, your pork chop, I'll eat pop said, and Uncle Abbi said, What I mean is, I cried it once and that was enough for me, now what is said you deserve a leather medde for getting that stuff down.

You haven't got any in your pocket, have you? pop said.

Meaning leather medales, and Uncle Abbi said, What I mean is, when I look at the pleasure expression on your face and think of the actual taste of what you're eating, it seems like a great deal to me.

Let's all laugh, pop said, giving his plate a small push as if he didn't like the looks of it as much as he thawt he did. By golles when I look at you setting on the opposite of that pork chop I marvel at your courage. When I think of what a pig will eat and when I think that that's what you're eating probably had a last meal of cereal, sugar, swamp apples, ranoid bread acid, moldy potatoes, all washed down with iced swigs of slimy ditch water, well, I dont see how you can do it, pop said.

Now Wilbur stop that kind of town immeedilly, do you want to spoil Abbi's appetite? ma said, and Uncle Abbi said, Dont worry, nothing's ever made a dent in my appetite, yet, except maybe the time I fell into a tank of liver, sowie dont worry me.

I'll bet a second helping of it didn't me, pop said.

When he did with a unsatisfied expression on setting every bone in he looked at Uncle Abbi enjoying his pork chop.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 4—(CP)—With war actually under way, the industrial section of the Toronto Exchange was more composed, and buyers appeared disposed to raise their bids. Metal stocks particularly were in demand and Consolidated Smelters advanced more than five points to 175 1-2 and International Nickel to 31, up 7-8.

Liquor and oil stocks were moderately strong under fairly heavy buying. Distillers-Seagrams advanced 1-3 and Walkers common had a minor fraction to the good while the old issue was up 1-4 on Saturday on the New York Board was a factor in stiffening the price here for C.P.R., Ford A, Bell Telephone and other interlisted issues.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Oct. 4 (CP)—The Base Metal group of Toronto Mines lost ground with the market as metal prices advanced to-day on fear of the war spreading. Hudson Bay sold up 1 5-8 to 19 1-2, a new high for several years and Noranda at 40 was up 1 1-4 for the day. The market was also irregularly higher for the silvers and golds.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Biggar and Crawford by Financial Service.

New Macassa Development Becoming Important Now Over 200 ft. Long

The drift on the 3,900 foot level of Macassa Mines has now exposed the vein for a length of over 200 feet, although no official figures have been given as to average value for the total length of this ore it was previously described as better than mine average. Both faces of the drift are still in ore and early future developments will tell of the full significance of this new ore body. In semi-official circles the orebody is described as the most important one in the history of the Mine.

Current production is at a rate of about $90,000 a month on which basis net profits are running at an equivalent of between 18 and 20 cents per share.

BOARD ROOM GOSSIP

Nervousness over the possibility of a war can now be dispelled. War has formally been declared by Italy on Ethiopia. The only uncertainty in the situation is whether the League of Nations countries, particularly England and France, will resort to sanctions which might embroil them in a conflict and eventually bring about another World War.

While Wall Street has had reason to exhibit nervousness, due to the possibility that a war will bring in heavy European selling of American stocks to establish credits in the United States for the purchase of commodities and munitions, locally the situation is entirely different. With possibly the exception of gold stocks no Canadian issues listed here, the majority of Canadian stocks have nothing to fear from foreign selling.

Comment on particular stocks at the present time is superfluous. The issues in the best technical position will give the best account of themselves. The majority of sellers are entirely disregarding intrinsic worth. One thing is certain, when the buyers pause and reason returns, the better class of security, in good financial position, with satisfactory earnings and yielding 5% or better, will rapidly recover to its true worth in the situation is whether the League level. The bargain hunters will shortly enter the market looking for such attractive situations.

AN ENORMOUS INCREASE

Nickel exports for the month of August were 61% greater than they were in August 1934.

Commercial Briefs

Toronto, Oct. 4—Sales of cattle in public yards in Canada during the first 34 weeks of 1935 were 439,335 more than the total sold for the corresponding period of 1934.

The number of hogs graded in Canada for the first 34 weeks of 1935 ended September 19, was 2,063,291. Of that number, 681,364 were graded at stock yards, 1,232,258 at packing plants, and 64,469 by carcass.

It has been demonstrated at the Dominion Laboratory of Plant Pathology at Charlottetown, P. E. I., that potatoes are severely injured by cracking and, brushing when pouring from a basket into a sack from a height of 30 inches. The injury is slight from a height of 13 inches. Potatoes, therefore, should be rolled or poured carefully into the bag.

The combined production of all kinds of concentrated milk in Canada during August, 1935, was 10,324,753 pounds as against 8,622,647 pounds in 1934. The statistics are based on returns from the 31 companies which manufacture any of the various items of concentrated milk, that is, condensed milk (sweetened, skim, buttermilk), evaporated milk, milk powder, casein, and sugar of milk.

New York, Oct. 4 (AP)—

The stock market developed a slightly irregular trend during late trading today, when selling cropped out against the rally. Mining shares and specialties retained most of forenoon advance of fractions to more than a point but representative industrials cancelled much of their gains. Trading turned extremely quiet.

At the beginning of the final hour shares holding ever or fractionally improved including U. S. Steel, Briggs, Westinghouse, General Electric, Dutham, Phillips Petroleum, Douglas Aircraft and Kennecott. General Motors and Chrysler were unchanged. Union Pacific was conspicuously soft among the rails with a loss of nearly 4 points. New York Central dropped more than 1 and fractional declines were given by Pennsylvania and Louisville and Nashville. The late tone was slightly irregular. Sales approximated 1,250,000 shares.

By The Associated Press

Addis Ababa, Oct. 5.—(AP)—Ethiopian warriors, defending Adwa from the advance of Italy's Blackshirts along a 12-mile front, have reported today to have encompassed Adigrat, seized by the Italians during their drive out of Eritrea.

The Italians were reported to have attempted to bomb Makale, 180 miles southeast of Adwa on the northern front, but their aerial warship was poor and their missles dropped into a forest, setting it afire.

Simultaneously reports reached the capital, but were unconfirmed, that 2,000 Ethiopian casualties were suffered in fighting on the southern Ogaden front, facing Italian Somaliland.

1,000 Reported Captive

One hundred Ethiopian warriors of Ras Seyoum, Governor of Shoa Province, encamped with the defense forces of Adwa, captured Monday Italian Lieutenant Mariotti, Fascist leader of a 30 mile front, determined to avenge the city where the Italians staged reprisals for a defeat 40 years ago.

Ras Mulugueta, veteran War Minister, decided to hasten to the north Monday with reinforcements.

In addition to the northern front at Adwa, and the southern front on the Ogaden, fighting was reported raging in the central Mount Mussali sector with the railway line from Addis Ababa to Djibouti—Ethiopia's only modern contact with the outside world—at stake.

Wild Highlands

The land is a series of jagged mountain precipices, fantastically shaped. While the Italian forces possessed every death dealing device possible, the Ethiopians, who seem believed their natural fortresses would save them from the weapons of man.

Finding use of tanks and infantry difficult in such rugged terrain, the Italian forces were expected to persist in their attack against which the Ethiopians have been virtually helpless.

Cessation of Hostilities Will be Council Plea On Report of 'Thirteen'

Ethiopia And Italy Asked to Send Representatives to Council of League Session Today to Make Final Statements

ETHIOPIA TO ASK SANCTIONS

Report of Committee Likely to Show Italy Clearly in Wrong in Measures Taken Past Two Days in Ethiopia

(Copyright By The Havas News Agency)

London, Oct. 5.—(CP-Havas)—France today said Great Britain that it is ready to support the British Fleet in the Mediterranean.

By WADE WERNER
(Copyright 1935 The Associated Press)

Geneva, Oct. 5.—Ethiopia formally appealed to the League of Nations Council today for the immediate betterment of military, naval and aviation sanctions against Italy.

The appeal was made under Paragraph 3 of Article XVI of the League Covenant which provides it is the duty of the League States, when a League member resorts to unprovoked war—to ask other members for contributions of military, naval and air forces to protect the Covenant of the League.

Emperor Haile Selassie's Government asked the immediate application of this paragraph to "put an end as soon as possible to the hostilities which have just begun in defiance of law and the most solemn obligations."

Asks Bloodshed Halt

By today's appeal Emperor Haile Selassie's War Minister, having brushed aside talk of economic and financial sanctions against Italy with a demand the bloodshed in his mountainous realm be halted by the armed authority of the League on the land and sea and in the air.

The appeal was made shortly before the League Council was to meet on a report prepared by the Council committee of 13 in which Ethiopia's complaint was asserted. It was inferred that Italy "clearly is in the wrong" in the war with Ethiopia.

The committee decided to ask Baron Pompeo Aloisi of Italy and Dr. Wolde Mariam of Ethiopia to appear before the public session of the Council today to present and submit their final arguments.

After adopting the committee's report and listening to both sides the council will consider the question of declaring the winner in the Italo-Ethiopian warfare.

Sanctions Article

The League thus would leave its own Article 16 of the League Covenant on which it had been working heretofore and would proceed under Article 15 which bears no Article 16—the Punitive Article.

Premier Laval of France, a factor in the Council, speaking in both Italy and Ethiopia to cease hostilities immediately.

It is believed that only when fighting had stopped could the thirty-one question of new peace negotiations.

Aloisi intended to tell the council in the face of the imminent danger Italy tried to take "defensive measures."

The Ethiopian delegate planned to prove his accusation Italy's military defensive was an unprovoked aggression.

The Ethiopian delegation to demand immediate measures on the part of the council to bring a cessation of hostilities and to inform the council Ethiopia was ready to accept any fair, constructive solution to the conflict.

ITALIANS DENY WOMEN KILLED

Statement Says There is No Red Cross Hospital at Aduwa

Geneva, Oct. 5.—(AP)—Reports of an Italian air bombardment of Ethiopian towns which killed scores of women and children and damaged a Red Cross hospital at Adwa, were denied vigorously today in an Italian note to the League of Nations.

The telegram, signed by Futvio Zavich, Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, said that Italian airplanes had loosed bombs at a detachment of Ethiopian troops.

"There is no Red Cross hospital at Adwa," he said, but only an Italian ambulance, which was abandoned, when the Italian contact left the city.

The text of the note follows:—

BIKE PROPELLED BY SMALL SAIL

Strange Contraption is Viewed by Many in City

Harry L. Simcox, diminutive trans-Canada voyager, whose method of locomotion depends on a well filled sail, has been propelled at times by a small sail, when the wind is right, from the Atlantic to the smooth right of way of the railway tracks to any highway for travellers, late this afternoon. Shortly yesterday afternoon with a flying jib sail on the rear wheel of his bicycle and the wind, and made a survey of the city before proceeding west.

Mr. Simcox who has been on an almost constant tour of the western part of the country during the past summer is on his way back home, Mr. Simcox, Quebec, tells folks, whom he admits "don't see very many bicycles."

He is fresh from the western harvest fields, bearing a message as he goes. "I was employed in the harvest fields in the Sask; set? Look at me, I worked for, myself, for the one farmer. And what did I get? I got a dollar a day. I'm a dollar a day and board. And I thought I was working for three dollars a day like some of them."

"Sure, I hollered when he tried to pay me off at last time, but what could I do? He threatened to sic the police on me so I didn't beat it. The roads are tough out around Manitoba so I went. But I was so stiff from working that I could hardly pedal the bike for a week after. I'm a natural born wanderer, who rides with his bike on the wings of the wind—when the wind is right—from one end to the quarter.

To a local resident he proudly pointed out the invention, a small square sail, that is hoisted on a mast between the handlebars. When the breeze is right for travelling the small sail acts as a balance set to the weather.

"It's my own idea. I think I'll get a patent on this," declared the cyclist to a number of citizens, who viewed the strange contraption in the afternoon from Jobbourg earlier in the afternoon. He says he has to have been completed in about one and one half hours. He travels, again it was pointed out by him, only on the smooth path of the railway road bed.

Westerners regard Mr. Aberhart as a new disciple of their rights, who will lead them out of the present distress, by new and shining era of prosperity—at least some of them do, said Mr. Simcox.

ALBERT SQUAD TRIMS O.S.D. 5-1

"Bob" McCrae is The Kicking Star of The Pastime

With the trusty toe of "Tear" McCrae in perfect working order, Albert College grabbed off the first game in the schedule from the O.S.D. on Friday afternoon by a score of 5-1, the game being played at the O.S.D. grounds. The weather was bitterly cold with a ball storm interrupting the proceedings early in the game. Despite the cold atmosphere the game was truly played and the better team emerged victorious.

Every point secured by the Albert squad came from the toe of "Bob" McCrae, he kicking five goals points after his teammates had put him in a scoring position. Identical field runs, the plunges and the odd forward pass. Albert presented a strong line with a smart backfield and will be hard to take in the O.S.S.A. series series. The O.S.D. squad have a real smart team and will improve as the season progresses, the playing much better football than when defeated by the St. Mike's in an exhibition till previous to the opening of the season. In the first quarter McCrae booted three singles against a stiff wind, while in the last frame he booted two more for the winning margin. The O.S.D. team escaped a shutout in the final quarter, when Evans hooked one over the Albert goal line and one player making the catch was forced to touch in goal. The individual stars in the winners were McCrae, Hollingsworth, Farr and Wall, while for the O.S.D. Evans, Dobson and Lavalle were prominent.

The lineups:

O.S.D. — Flying wing, Pierce; halves, Lavalle, Dobson, Evans; quarter, Dobson; snap, Fuller; insides, Hawthorne, Graham; middles, Kosti and Lowe; outsides, Hoage and White; subs, Dicks, MacNr. Brown, Osborne, Wilson, Desmore, Melynk, Hempbill, McInnis.

Albert — Flying wing, "Tear" Burton; halves, Burgess, Farr, McCrae; quarter, Jones; snap, B. Cleave; insides, Wall and Claxton; middles, Miller and Cleave; outsides, Church and Hollingsworth; subs—Shortell, McIntosh, G. Church, A. McDonald, Allan.

Referee: Art Cole, umpire, Jas. Andrews.

New Superintendent Assumes Post at Ontario School for Deaf

Mr. W. J. Morrison Has Had Extensive Experience as Educationist

PRAISES SCHOOL

Policy of O.S.D. Will Stress Vocational Activity in Upper Classes

W. J. Morrison, recently appointed superintendent of Ontario School for the Deaf arrived in the city this week from Brantford to assume his duties. Mr. Morrison brings to his new position, a wide and successful experience as an educationist, specialized training and a broad outlook in making educational.

For the past six years, Mr. Morrison has been inspector of the public schools of Brantford and of Ontario School for the Blind, previous to which he had been teacher and principal of rural, urban and secondary schools.

Graduates to School

The new superintendent was introduced to the School by Dr. H. E. Amoss who will now devote all his time to inspecting the various classes of the province. After carrying out the duties last year of superintendent of the O.S.D. pending the appointment of a permanent official to succeed Mr. J. D. Donnelly, Dr. Amoss will also inspect the O.S.D.

In visiting the various classes in the School, Mr. Morrison was impressed with the splendid equipment, the fine appearance of buildings and grounds, reflecting great credit on those in charge.

Policy of School

The policy of the school, as the new superintendent pointed out to the teachers whom he met and addressed yesterday, will be to carry on the work as organized last year by Dr. Amoss stressing the vocational activities in the upper classes. Very important work is being done at Ontario School for Deaf and Dr. Amoss had spoken highly to Mr. Morrison of the co-operation of the teachers and instructors.

Thirty-Eight on Teaching Staff

Approximately the same registration as last year has been recorded at the school this term. The majority of the children are doing elementary school work, their problems being the same as those of any public school body differing only in degree of difficulties. The staff comprise the teaching staff.

Yesterday, members of the district paid a visit to the School for the deaf. Visitors were accompanied about the buildings by Mr. Morrison, Miss Catherine Ford and Miss Fitzgerald, the School nurse. A demonstration of work was given by groups of children in the auditorium.

Tributes at Brantford

Mr. and Mrs. Morrison, their son and two daughters, have taken up residence here. Their departure from Brantford was keenly regretted as they had taken an active part in the life of the community. Mr. Morrison was superintendent of Zion United Church Sunday School, a leader of the Rotary Club, the Y.M.C.A., and the Masonic Order and has been greatly interested in all matters pertaining to the education and character building of youth.

In Brantford, Mr. Morrison had been actively identified in Junior Red Cross, of which he was convener. Over one thousand juniors were organized under his supervision. Previous to their leaving the city, Mr. and Mrs. Morrison were entertained at complimentary dinners, that of the Brantford branch of the Canadian Red Cross by the principals and teachers of the public schools of that city and were presented with gifts from the Sessions and Sunday School of Zion United Church.

Native of Simcoe

Mr. Morrison is a native of Simcoe County, the son of Mrs. Morrison and the late James O. Morrison. His mother, who is eighty-seven, now resides at Allaston. He received his early education at Palmwick Public school, Barrie Collegiate Institute, where he took degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Pedagogy at the University of Toronto. Mr. Morrison taught in Bracebridge, Bolton, Bond Head, Newton Robinson and Brantwick and in the High schools of Deseronto and Orangeville, before his appointment as principal of Bowmanville High School. Mr. Morrison became inspector at Brantford in 1929.

NEW HEAD AT O.S.D.

Superintendent W. J. Morrison, who comes here to Provincial Institution with fine record as educationist. He assumed his duties at the School this week.

Fee System is Much Cheaper Than Old Way

Belleville children can go through public schools of the city at an estimate cost to parents for tuition between nine and ten dollars for the completion of each year, a result of the Fee System inaugurated in the schools three years ago and consistently lowered in scale of prices since to the present minimum level.

This system whereby parents of the pupils pay a stated fee each month for the books is believed to be the lowest in cost in the province, by Mr. J. R. Allin, through whose efforts and the efforts of Trustees Rev. Mr. Mountford, Wm. Graves, former Trustee Mrs. McFee and the late John Elliott, it was finally set in operation. Chairman of the Board then was Mr. Allan Schryer.

At the last meeting of the Board every one was pleased by one Trustee to Mr. Allin, chairman of the Committee of Supplies asking it it would be possible to inaugurate the same system in the local Collegiate Institute. This question is being considered.

Parents eminently satisfied with the system ever since it has been introduced" declared Mr. Allin when planning the system his object and principle, too, as well as the parents, have nothing but favorable comments to make.

Figures given by Mr. Allin show that prices for books supplied under the system cost for the primer, and first book, five cents per month; second book; 10 cents; third book and fourth book, 15 cents; fifth and upper classes the highest fee reaches only 30 cents per month.

"Steamboat 'Round The Bend"

Fox's Winning Combination Produces Another Great Film

A rip-roaring river race, the most sensational Hollywood has ever screened, brings Will Rogers' grand new mirth and drama spectacle, "Steamboat 'Round the Bend", to the Belle Today, and Monday, matinee and evening.

No element of popular entertainment has been overlooked in this colorful story of the Mississippi in the romantic 1890's, which launches Rogers on a new and greater career of his starring career.

"Steamboat 'Round the Bend" affords Rogers his greatest comedy opportunities in his hilarious travesty feud with Irvin S. Cobb, noted humorist and writer, as rival steamboat captains. And it is also billed for masterful dramatic acting as he wins the romance of two lovely ingenues, Anne Shirley and John McGuire, from disaster.

The story revolves about Rogers' adventures as a steamboat captain on the muddy Mississippi. He longs to have his young nephew, John McGuire, as his pilot, but when his boy commits murder to protect Anne Shirley, the girl he loves, Rogers helps him over the border.

The boy is condemned, and Rogers and Miss Shirley, who blame each other for his plight are at first hostile, then drawn together by their common interest.

After many wild and incredible adventures with a foaling was museum, this brave pair raise enough money for McGuire's appeal. They hurry towards New Orleans, are caught up in the great river race, thunder down the home stretch to save the boy and bring the picture to a lusty climax.

John Ford, who directed "Judge Priest" is also responsible for "Steamboat 'Round the Bend" and possesses his previous efforts with "Steamboat Round the Bend," prominent in the supporting cast are Francis Ford, Berton Churchill and Stepin Fetchit.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Paris in Spring"

Last Times Fee Fight Films Age and Tyrone Gangster vs. Gov't. Drama Story

While an excellent double feature program is concluding an engagement at the Capitol tonight, manager is Louis-Isar Fight picture and a lenge drama of government men versus gangsters, unusual interest is being shown in the feature opening showing of "Paris in Spring" in which the charming and goldenvoiced Mary Ellis is featured.

"Paris in Spring" is full of the impetuous ardor which characterizes romance in the beautiful city by the Seine. Tullio Carminati and Mary Ellis are a pair of people who really love each other but who just won't admit it. Ida Lupino and James Blakely, the supporting cast, are another pair of lovers.

Their paths cross when Carminati meets Miss Lupino on top of Eiffel Tower where both have gone to commit suicide. But both their hearts are warm and life is too attractive, so, rather than commit suicide, they decide to combine forces and make their respective sweethearts jealous.

Their hectic, merry trail blazes through the wild night-life of Paris to an old castle on the outskirts of Paris. Miss Ellis and Blakely follow suit. Then Miss Lupino's grandmother confuses them, thinks they are already married and shots them up for the night away from each other. The romantic mix-up reaches its climax the next morning when the sweethearts meet again and are so glad to meet that they declare their love.

Miss Ellis sings two delightful melodies, her voice having all the endearing qualities that made her an outstanding hit on Broadway and at the Metropolitan Opera a few seasons ago.

Other fine shows named principals in support of Miss Ellis and Tullio Carminati are Lynne Overman in the role of a newspaperman in the cast who aid materially in promoting a delightful entertainment of high interest.

An excellent bill of short subjects including Andy Clyde's latest and funniest comedy entitled "It's The Oats" a cartoon called "The Shanghai Gander" and a gay musical entitled "In Old Vienna."

To all lady patrons attending the Monday and Tuesday performances the management will present a handsome piece of DuBarry dinnerware. .

Letters to the Editor

80 Dundas Street,
Belleville, Ontario.

To the Editor of
The Ontario Intelligencer
Dear Sir:

On September 14th last in The Toronto Daily Star, there appeared an article supposed to be some of Professor W. T. Jackman's ideas on the Railway Question.

It appears that in his latest book that he contended public ownership for Canada's rail problem.

I want to say that Mr. Jackman that the best institution in the world (The Post Office) is operated by the government. It is a monopoly from start to finish. There is no competition, no duplication and from politics and suits everybody, what more do we want, and what more can we expect.

Mr. Jackman seems to think that the government's extravagance in the years 1922 and 1929 and not the depression was at fault. The government did make a mistake in taking over the bankrupt road but after they had taken over and assumed the debts something had to be done to save Canada from going bankrupt.

Sir R. W. Beatty was successful in handling those roads out of business and if it had not been for the late Sir Henry Thornton, we would have no C.N.R. today and would still owe the debts and nothing to pay them with.

Professor Jackman says that the C.P.R. has been a satisfactorily successful restfis in promoting the prosperity of Canada. In that case of course would he to make the C.P.R. the basis of management.

It has been suggested that Sir R. W. Beatty and I now challenge Mr. Jackman to prove that the C.P.R. is a single thing that the C.P.R. ever did for the interests of Canada in the time and the C.P.R. Investments. If not, first, I can't see how Mr. Jackman can justify the C.P.R. as a model. They were, it is true, very successful financially but at the cost to the side of Canada and they are always successful when they go to the country for more money and are getting $7,000,000 right now to help repair their enormous loss so that they will be better able to work against the C.N.R., but they are very successful when they go to the banks for money. They are the only railway in the countries the Government stands good for the debts.

I believe it is a simple matter to settle the Railway Problem and it is in the hands of the owners of the C.N.R., patronizing their own road and I am sure that the public who is afraid to stand on a platform and tell their people that their own road should be ashamed to ask any taxpayer for their vote.

Yours truly,
A. J. RUE.

Forgetting Flora of the Follies

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

The view from the coffe veranda of the little hotel set in the bank of the White mountains was superb.

But to young Rodney Wilkins it was just so much waste land, without a glimpse of Flora in it.

A full two days ago the young life had been blighted, and he had wandered to the wild and all effort on his part rendered completely useless.

Flora Pullen of the Follies had cast aside the love he had brought to her during the entire season and had informed him flatly that marriage was not for her. Rodney, the only child of Millbrook has been engaged as clerk in F. N. Marcett and Co's store.

Rodney began to suspect some hidden demon of persecution in Mary's make-up. He watched her chatting with any number of suave-looking men, and thought about her like bees among the roses but never in the eight weeks of trailing, had he so much as received more than the most casual of attentions.

But what Rodney didn't know was the memory of a conversation which Mary had overheard that day on the veranda of the hotel in the White mountains.

"Yes, that's young Wilkins, the Pullen's latest admirer. Young Wilkins wanted to marry her, and when she turned him down he flung over, a whale of a position. Said he couldn't stick in New York any more. The poor young boy is holding job open for three months—one of the resigned directors is keeping it warm for young Wilkins will reconsider. They think a lot of him."

"For temptation, did he? A bit weak."

"Triumph! You don't know Flora Pullen. Half the male population of Manhattan would be after that little damsel—"

That was all Mary had listened to and it had been quite enough for her to settle once and for all on the man who had been false to her little self. The leaving of the motor route had been a great blow to her trend that end. Her plans had carried even better than she had hoped. Young Wilkins' love-getting Flora more quickly than was expected.

It was not until Rodney found out definitely that Mary's home was in New York that he sent a wire to the company, saying that he would resume his trailing, and was coming back.

Mary happened to be standing idly at the office desk when Rodney sent his message, and while she was apparently absorbed in the postcards she rejoiced inwardly at the portent of the telegram. It meant so very much Flora was forgotten.

Mary started out next his eyes quite rested for the first time and a delicate flush swept across her lovely face. There was a great deal resting round her heart.

Rodney's first emotional outcry, "whether you would mind returning my motor route to me—when you have finished with it."

Young Rodney was far too astonished to say much at the moment but fortunately there is not a great deal of speech necessary in such a peculiarly happy moment.

IN MAN-MADE HEAVENS

How many know the heavens, how many can point out the planets of the solar system and the courses of the constellations, who can point out Arcturus or Aldebaran, or any of the other fixed stars hundreds or thousands of light-years away?

There are men who know them and know them well. But to the most of the people the stars in the constellations are just separate unnamed stars. The ancients who depended more on the sky than we do were taught the wonders of the heavens, they read their religion in them, they related their romance in them as the story of the Mighty Huntsman, the story of Gemini, the Twins, Castor and Pollux, The Great Bear, which is our Great Dipper, and the Little Bear. The ancients visualized the heavens and in the north and south and along the zodiac saw wonders. In this age we see stars, but in them the ancients saw mythological pictures written across the heavens. While the ancients were not exact scientifically as we are to a large extent, they saw something in the stars which we miss.

But down in New York City there has been opened a great planetarium, which provides a tour of the sky and a new vision of the universe. To light it on Wednesday night of this week a cosmic ray from interstellar space was used in that manmade firmament. The spectators saw the courses of the stars as they never had understood them at midnight as they gazed, if they ever did, upon the sky thoughtfully.

The planetarium turns the clock of man back to before Genesis day and Creation's dawn. Citizens of crowded lighted cities never see the sky in such splendor as they do in that planetarium.

From the cosmic ray's influence came the light which like a primeval wave of light has come through the depths of chaos, to use a Miltonic phrase, to light up the planetarium.

4,500 stars only are shown in the New York display, which is the Northern sky with its autumn stars and constellations, and then the observers saw also the Southern Cross and those stars which can be seen only in the South Hemisphere. They saw the skies of every part of the world.

By such a device something of wonder is brought back into the life of the men and women who dwell in cities. They come to learn something of that world which is largely shut out of their lives by roofs and trees.

In the countryside and in smaller centres where the country is so close at hand there are not the addictions of viewing the heavens that so are imposed upon the dwellers in the large cities. With whatever drawbacks the smaller cities possess, they provide an opportunity for close relation with nature, though many persons omit this great opportunity to see and understand something more of life than is involved in the daily job, and food and sleep.

NOT SUCH A POPULAR ONE

The election at Memel, which was supposed to provide a peaceful means of settling the future of Memel, Germany's important little port on the Baltic, seems instead to have aggravated confusion and the ill feeling between Germans and Lithuanians.

As expected, the Germans have won a large majority of the seats in the Diet, the governing body of the territory of Memel, and will be in a position to demand a plebiscite to decide whether the territory shall revert back to Germany or whether it shall continue as part of Lithuania. With a predominant German population, there can be little doubt as to what the outcome of such a plebiscite would be.

Lithuania, having no other seaport, is determined to hang on to Memel at any cost. Whether or not she purposely delayed the recent elections in the hope of intimidating voters into voting for Lithuanian candidates, Germans profess to believe that such was the fact, and the bitterness that was already intense, both in Germany and Memel, grows no less.

Some of the parodoxical elements in the situation will not be lost on foreign observers. Here is Germany, which at home has suspended representative government and substituted an iron-clad dictatorship, raging against Lithuania because she is alleged to have tried to obstruct the voting machinery at Memel. And here is Lithuania, protesting her desire for popular government and hating everything German, getting ready to over-ride the recent election and hang onto Memel by force, if necessary.

In the light of such obvious distortions of the theory of popular government, the rise of dictators may be more easily understood. — Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

WHAT A DIFFERENCE IT WOULD MAKE

"If I knew you and you knew me,
'Tis seldom we would disagree,
But never having yet clasped hands,
Both often fail to understand,
If I knew you and you knew me.

"Whenever we ship you by mistake,
Or in your bills some error make,
From irritation you'd be free,
If I knew you and you knew me.
Or when checks do not come on time.
And customers say nary a line,
We would wait without anxiety,
If I knew you and you knew me.

"Or when some goods you fire back,
Or make a kick over this or that,
We'd take it in good part and see,
If I knew you and you knew me.
With customers, thousands strong,
Occasionally things will go wrong,
Sometimes our fault, sometimes theirs,
Forbearance would decrease all cares.
Kind friend, how pleasant it would be,
If I knew you and you knew me."

ELECTION ORATORY HAS NOT REACHED ANY VERY EXCITING PITCH AS YET, writes many men in the future, and so far the language has been very polite, "After you, Alphonse" type—and the mind harks back to echoes of the Gladstone-Disraeli days. Gladstone detested Disraeli, it is said, and was not slow in expressing his opinion of him in words which burned. Disraeli rather admired Gladstone and would have liked his friendship, or even friendly tolerance, but Gladstone would have none of him. After a particularly sarcastic public outburst of Gladstone against Disraeli, the latter, replied in kind, only worse, in language of which the following is high peak as describing Disraeli's opinion of Gladstone.

A SOPHISTICATED RHETORICIAN INEBRIATED WITH THE EXUBERANCE OF HIS OWN VERBOSITY AND GIFTED WITH AN EXTEMPORANEOUS IMAGINATION THAT CAN AT ALL TIMES COMMAND AN INTERNAL AND INCONSISTENT SERIES OF ARGUMENTS TO MALIGN AN OPPONENT AND TO GLORIFY HIMSELF.

Here's that for vitrolic denunciation in a word exchange between two of Britain's greatest Premiers?

Canadian statesmen are too polite to address each other in that fashion, and if they did it would only win a laugh for nobody but themselves would believe the half of it.

COUNTRY CORRESPONDENCE IN A NEWSPAPER is sometimes passed over lightly by those not interested in it—sometimes even by those interested to be of importance. Yet many readers look for the "News from the Corners" the first thing when they open the paper—not the war news from the Ethiopian front, or the world series baseball—but the little homely jottings about the real folks they know intimately, even to the astonishing intelligence that Aunt Mary William Brown Sundayed with Mr. and Mrs. John Smith." And that brings us back once again to mention Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Muskaty, of Omaha, Missouri, who won first prize as best country correspondent in the United States. This lady lives in a village of twenty-seven persons, the only news correspondent there. Her prize included a trip to New York City where she was greeted and feted by the big shots of the newspaper game and accorded every honor that the newspaper world is capable of providing. She also won fifty dollars in cash and a silver trophy, and it is interesting to note that she won out against 1,580 other contestants. That woman must have a nose for news a mile long.

ETHIOPIAN FORCE RETAKES ADIGRAT FROM ITALIANS

Italians to advance virtually unopposed up to a certain well defined line deep within the northern boundaries when they would release fortified strife, machine-gun and artillery fire from their mountain perches.

Ras Seyoum's Force Intact.

The government announced contrary to reports that the Ethiopian forces suffered a major reverse, they were still intact, having not yet participated in the fighting at Adigrat.

Skirmishes and minor air raids in this continued on the Ogaden front to the south but full details were lacking.

The usual alarming rumors that Ethiopians had suffered reverses and either the chief of staff or both with heavy casualties, circulated in Addis Ababa before hostilities, the government had no news of such.

No Air Protection.

It was learned generally while the Italian Minister, Luigi Vinci-Gigliozzi, and Italian military authorities remained in the countryside, the Fascists were powerless to train fire air attacks of the capital which might conceivably lead to reprisals against the Italian Legation.

Except for a few anti-aircraft guns, Addis Ababa is completely unprotected against an aerial assault.

With the arrival today of the Italian Consular officials from Debre Markos, Vinci prepared to return to Egypt. Ethiopian Minister Salassie should hand him his passports or French Ambassador Corbin recall him.

Ethiopian government officials expressed belief H Duce might attempt to keep his Minister and other Italians here as long as possible, hoping for some incident to occur which they could utilize a real casus belli.

Blames Il Duce

The Emperor's advisers studied the situation anxiously, realizing if his government requested Vinci to leave Italy could consider the act a rupture of diplomatic relations and a virtual declaration of war.

Haile Selassie appeared to wish to place the onus for the ministers' departure on Mussolini.

Ras Seyoum, governor of the Buffer province of East Tigre, entrusted with the defence of Adowa, was believed to have asked Emperor Haile Selassie for reinforcements and particularly for anti-aircraft guns to deal with the Italian bombers escorting the ominous troop and light tanks.

Dedjamach Gebarra was reported moving eastward into the provinces with an army of 10,000 men.

The main army in the north under Ras Seyoum, was withheld temporarily from the main line of fighting on the Adowa front. The combat was carried on in those first three days of warfare by a division commanded by General Gabriel Wondie.

Bombing Raids

The fighting on the central front around Mount Mussa Ali, in an angle between Italy's colony of Eritrea and French Somaliland appeared to be confined to hot skirmishes and bombing raids.

Reports that Ethiopian forces there were concentrated around Dessie, 150 miles southwest of Mussa Ali, were denied in Rome officially in command.

Dessie also appeared to be advancing on the Southern Ogaden front, confronting Italian Somaliland and Ethiopia, between Italian advance guards and Ethiopian forces moved into heavy fighting.

Reported Repulsed at Harar

2,500 Ethiopians died in that sector and many were wounded but official Rome declared the attack to be accepted with great reserve. Emperor Haile Selassie announced there were probably only 300 dead on both sides in Ogaden Province.

Widespread damage was early visit by Italian bombers persisted in the capital. Several buildings, including construction of six giant, gaspro of dignels in the outskirts of the city. Many inhabitants slept in the open in anticipation of an air raid, returning to the city the next day.

Squadrons Rain Hidden Men

Low-flying squadrons yesterday raked machine-gun fire on Italian rocks on the Adowa front yesterday. Infantry and artillery, in light tanks, each armed with two machine-guns, supported Gen. Rainal, an important position near the town.

Italian pilots who bombed Adowa in the past few days have also dropped pamphlets, written in the Ethiopian tongue, urging the natives to desert Ethiopia and not to resist the advance. Italian airplanes flying Asmara bombed the frontier post of Yavello, on Italian Somaliland, between Northern Ethiopia, injuring nine persons.

Frontier posts at Jamadia and at Korahle and Gerlogubi, in the other Italian Somaliland, also at Gerlogubi also were reported damaged. The Italians also held Makalle, between Adowa and Aksum.

Offers Aid to Ethiopia

The Emperor has received many offers of personal aid and financial assistance from private persons in foreign countries but until yesterday he had been reluctant to accept them, being unwilling to admit the inevitability of war.

In view of what was described as "Italy's unprovoked air bombing of Adowa, an open defenceless town," he announced he hopes would seek foreign protection for organized care of the wounded.

Banks will be designated in New York and other large capitals of the world to receive contributions. Committees will be appointed to accept applications from doctors, nurses and other volunteers desirous to go under the Ethiopia Red Cross.

The Emperor said he wished the Italian wounded to receive the same care as the Ethiopians.

The Italian Consul at Adowa, recalled with all other consuls from the interior by the capital, has not arrived at Addis Ababa. The Ingalian said he had no news of him.

One report said the Consul was treated at Adowa and he sent a personal message to Italian-headquarters after the first air raids over the town, begging them to cease the bombings if the action was intended as a reprisal for his detention.

Turn About Was Fair Play

By LEETE STONE

Jane Reynolds sat by her open window in a golden shaft of spring sunshine, looking out on the busy street. Across the way, in the apartment directly opposite, she could see a special writer for a New York press syndicate.

"Thomas Brent! . . . The last name on the list! Cool old Tom Brent in Paris! Stowaway memories rushed from their hideaways, bringing warm recollection of a summer romance that bloomed in the days in the Adirondacks. Fishing, tramping, canoeing by moonlight, in silence and in badinage—always together with the sympathetic attachment of two wild undisclosed.

Then the war, one post card from Flanders, and silence. Jane hugged her remembrance. She saluted coincidents with a cordial note to Tom and left it at the "B" window of the American Express that morning when she called for her own mail.

The pressure of the day crowded with interviews soon pushed the incident into the subconscious. Weeks at six o'clock, Jane looked forward only to dinner alone at the cosy terrace, an hour on the bus, and a bit of reading before bed.

Mr. Thomas Brent was announced just as she was putting on her hat. "Tell him, Jeanne, that Jane thought.

A tall, lean-waisted man, utterly self-possessed, a gray and equine commopolite, rose and bowed to Jane downstairs. Being not one of the gangrel kind, the clothes were by Poiret. Her Tom Brent was short, stoutish and a trifle bald; his charm was all of an inside brand, manifest only in eager, boyish enthusiasms that arrived on the surface like an unexpected rocket.

"Miss Reynolds? I'm Thomas Brent, landed yesterday from Africa. Found your note this morning, and, of course, I'm not 'Dear Tom Brent,' as you perceive, but the temptation to answer your friendly note was too much for me. I've just one evening in Paris and no friend to share it with. Calling for America tomorrow. Won't you let a good sport and dine with me? Call it a reunion of 'Two Toms, one old and old friend, the other a new one!'"

Jane plunged into the sparkling waters of the unexpected.

"Surely!" she cried with shining eyes.

Jane enjoyed a delectable dinner, the Folies Bergere, and her provocative companion with an eager, sensitive appreciation. They sat at a quaint corner of one of the friendly boulevards absorbing the throb and beat of the pulse of Paris until after one. The new Tom Brent's farewell at the door was just as nonchalant as his greeting. Suave and charming. Jane reflected, mounting the winding stairs in her spring. She sensed a vague aroma of inferiority about him. His talk contained no word about himself. Knowing men, this piqued her curiosity.

"What's ever become of old Tom Brent, Jimmie?"

"He's here! Pound you knew him. Just in from India—British government service, secret service, I believe. Here's his number in the Rue Royale. Go see him!"

Jane soon found the house. The door was just ajar; genial rapping drew no unwelcome response, and Jane pushed it a wee way open and peeped. There was her Tom Brent—Streatsleep on a couch in the corner.

"Hello there! Who is it" He sprang up with clouded eyes at the slight creak of the door. "Jane! Jane Reynolds! Anybody, 'when did you drop from?' He caught at her hands. "I call this luck!"

Quick query and reply came at once between the two. Chatter and interruption, the gurgling pleasure of reunion. Jane told Tom of her meeting with a New York friend. The eager man listened with keen alertness.

"Jane, Jane," fishing in an inside pocket, "would your name secret have resembled this man five years ago?"

Jane studied the dim, cheap photograph.

"Why, Tom, this is the man."

"Guess along!" Tom snatched his hat from the hearthstone. They hurried to the Lazare Hoe steamship offices.

"Have you a passenger named Thomas Brent booked on the City of Lyons sailing tonight?"

"Yes, sir!"

"Fine! I want a passage same cabin."

"What's up, Tom?" Jane asked.

"Just a job, Jane—that's all. This amusing cavalier you dined with makes a speciality of living on the crown jewels he swipes from the four corners of Europe. He's dodged me for two years now; but I have a hunch I'll land him, bag and baggage, this trip for New York—thanks to you, Jane. By George!" Tom's eyes twinkled. "You've certainly done me a peach of a turn, Jane. Just for that the greatest secret service man in the world's coming straight back to marry me."

The impudence behind his grin was startling, but her heart after months of solemn trekking over Europe in search of copy, Jane rewarded him for once and forever. Then, squeezing his elbow, her eyes twinkled in answer more arduous than her words.

"Turn about's fair play, Tom," she said.

Know the Aids You Buy for Beauty

Virginia Bruce

She buys beauty aids with care

By HELEN FOLLETT

Women pin their hopes to beauty aids and they're seldom disappointed. The pilgrimage to the beauty marts with chic's pockets full of money is a thrilling adventure. Spread before the feminine eyes are intriguing toiletries—lid shadows to put mystery and seductiveness in starry eyes, powders that make the velvet smooth and flawless, strawberry colored butter for the lips and glitter for the finger nails. No wonder the big house decide of these good beauty friends and care nothing for expense.

Let me suggest to the pulchritude class that, when buying, the members first out what they're getting. There are creams for oily skins, creams for dry ones. There are powders that range from snow white to ice blue, from fresh tint to rose, from ochre to tan. As for lipsticks and polish, there's no limit to the shades, and one must seek the precisely correct one.

Almost every woman has orphan cosmetics on bathroom shelves. Not the right consistency or an off per-shade maybe. Shopping for beautifiers should be no hustle up job. Take your time. It means a lot in your life to have your face put up an elegant appearance. It pleases the public eye, too.

Are coming your pet peeve? You can cure them early by buying roomy, well-fitting shoes so that there will be no friction or pressure of any kind to irritate an oil over night. Ingrowing nails will soon correct themselves if shoes are comfortable and suitable.

CARMEL W.M.S.

The monthly meeting of the W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Noonan. The president, Mrs. Patterson opened the meeting with the business part after which Mrs. R. Pitman played quiet music and the call to worship was repeated by the president. A hymn was sung.

Minutes of previous meeting read and adopted. Roll Call was answered by 15 members. Several associates were present. The topic was the Anniversary of the W.M.S. Mrs. Noonan Sr. outlined the history of the Carmel auxiliary which all enjoyed very much. Mrs. Reynolds, Mrs. Mitchell and Mrs. Reid read readings outlining the Methodist and Presbyterian societies.

Hymn 174 was sung. Mrs. Frank Minkin took charge of the sale and part of the programme. Mrs. Pitman played very softly "Holy Holy Holy." Mrs. Simmons gave a report of the number of anniversaries, birthdays and mission bands. The record of the year shows a over all steady decline in membership but all were gladdened last year by the gain in the Sunday department's evening auxiliary also a great increase in little members in the baby band organized. Letters of interest were read by the corresponding secretary. The programme was very instructively carried out by Mrs. Hinkes and different members. Hymn 263 was sung, the thank offering was taken.

Mrs. Mary Hicks delighted us with a lovely solo. The amount taken in was $16.08. Mrs. C. The name of Albert Einstein is unfailingly linked with science but his latest book reveals his profound interest in many fields. His World As I See It", is a carefully chosen compilation of articles, addresses and letters of a scientific, philosophical and political nature. Dr. Einstein can write dispassionately of his scientific theories but there is one subject on which his sympathies are fiery. the subject of peace. Through the medium of such varied topics as Judaism, Religion and Science, The Disarmament Conference of 1932, Culture and Prosperity, Production and Work, Einstein is shown as a man who has an acute sense of social responsibility. C. H. M. Jobd of the Spectator, London, has selected from an unconventional view of him from his book "a figure, half saint and half sage, which bewildered but benevolent, talks doubtfulness sense and sometimes foolishness but always goodness, to a world which will unaccountably insist on misunderstanding."

Carveth Wells, himself a Bermudian, explores the island of his ancestors in his new travel book "Bermuda in three colours". He begins with a short history of Bermuda and then conducts the reader over all of Bermuda's four principal and many islands that are large enough to be explored on foot or by bicycle. The book is illustrated with nearly one hundred excellent photographs.

The dangerous adventures of two men who visited another world, are told by William Beebe in his book "Half-Mile Down". The main part of the book is taken by Dr. Beebe's account of his various descents into the depths of the ocean in the now famous bathysphere. The deepest he reached in the descent to 3026 feet where the sphere was lowered. There was in absolute blackness except for the pin points of light furnished by the diving creatures. "I have always thousands upon thousands of miles to my possible ports of entry", the author exclaims, "let me escape from dry-land security, we say, and instead the joys of planetary life; for personal exploration under the ocean is unsurpassed, we are penetrating into a new world". And indeed it is an unbelievable world in which one learns what man has long felt the desire to know, what lies below the unknown, mysterious surface of the ocean. When Dr. Beebe writes of the fish creatures, he is primarily a scientist, but he is in addition a thrilling writer. It has been said that he shares with Sir James Jeans the gift of creative literature, born of high imagination, deep feeling and fundamental truth.

The reactions of a young American flyer in the World War are given by Norman Archibald in his book "Heaven High—Hell Deep". The book is the story of his flying training, his patrols at the front, and his days as a prisoner in Germany. The author has written an indictment of war, its ruthlessness, its utter futility as a solution of international problems.

Christ Church Boys To Sing at Festival Of Church Music

The first festival of the School of English Church Music in Canada is to take place in St. Anne's Church, Toronto, on Thursday, October 20th, when the music will be sung by about 300 members from twelve choirs in the Toronto area.

Divided into two choirs, eighty of the choristers will sing in the festival conducted by Eric Lewis (organist of St. Alban's), with the larger group in the Chancel under the direction of Wilfrid Hewitt of St. James' Cathedral, and the organist will be Weldon Kilburn of St. Alban's Cathedral.

A wide range of music has been selected, ranging from a traditional plainsong "Nunc Dimittis", with three-part harmonizations, to a unison "Magnificat" composed last year specially for the R.C.C.M.

Other music will be a two-part arrangement of Bach's "Jesu, joy"—a three-part motet by the 16th century English composer, Jeremiah Clarke, "Christ Hath a Garden"; and a modern church song, by C. Pigott, "Come, My Way, My Truth."

The Most Rev. Derwyn Trevor Owen, Primate of all Canada, and Canadian president of the school, will give the address and a large number of carol singers from the choirs are expected. Interest will be taken by presence of a choir of twenty boys from Christ Church, Belleville under the direction of Mr. George O. Maybee, organist, who will be among those singing in the gallery.

Advice to the Lovelorn

Olives Girls Tips on How to Hold Their Boy Friends

If the many girls who write me complaining that young men take them out once, but never come back for a second date, would only read my ideas on the reason for this unhappy condition, they should receive a cavalry study of this subject from a young man who has very definite ideas on what girls like. How many times has it which a girl may queer herself with a boy friend, and her frank, good looks should prove a ready rival service to a lot of girls. Here is what he writes:

"As a reader of your column, I write that numbers of girls write to you saying they can't make a second date with the same fellow. Well, I'm one of these fellows. I expect, because when a girl bores me to tears I don't take her out a second time.

"And it's not because they decline to drink or smoke. A girl who doesn't know when she's had enough to drink is a distinct liability, and the same is true of a petter-pipe.

"The girl whom a fellow likes to take out has to reflect credit on him. She has to look well — have the right clothes and shoes, and must give her a backward glance as she leaves the restaurant or the movies. She doesn't have to be supersexily dressed, but she has to know how to wear inexpensive things well.

"Matching accessories — hat, stockings and belt — will often turn the trick. The effect is smart, and will give a girl just the touch of sophistication. Some girls would look like dubs, even if they spent a hundred dollars on their clothes, and others can get away with it on five.

"It's the same with makeup. All a fellow likes is a girl not to look different from the rest of the flock-call it sheep if you will.

"The girl who is cheap in these days of hand-painted faces is to be expected. She is the one who has a girl and cheap look and is distinctly taboo. Paint eyelashes — which have been the rage for a long time — are very vulgarly conspicuous. They suggest cheapness.

"It's fatal for a girl to introduce the boy friend to a round of entertainment. If they're both good pals, and he's calling for the first time, let her have her friend come to stay out of the living-room till the young people make a getaway.

"If she comes from an old-fashioned family, and has to be home at a certain time, she should tell the boy before they start out. And perhaps save him from a boring evening when they come back.

"A girl who is cheerful, lively and amusing — and who knows how to flatter a little — will never lack for dates. Yet, strangely enough, the easiest time in the world. The highest-ups in the business and society to step out of the living-room till the young people make a getaway.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

(Copyright, 1938, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

GIVE HIM A CHANCE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When a couple going out for the evening arrive at their destination, should the young lady wait until her escort comes around and opens the door before alighting from the car, or should she open it herself when the car stops, and alight at the same time as the man?

DOROTHY.

A well-bred man will appreciate it if a woman will take for granted that he is to open the door of a car and help her to alight. He will also give him time to show his gallantry and politeness if she unconsciously opens the door and gets out.

Women so often complain about the too-casual or thoughtless manners of men, but there are many instances in which it is the fault often the women who don't give the men a chance to be polite. The question of not waiting for a man to open a car door is one of these instances, for opening any other kind of door is another example of this same idea. So often doesn't wait for a man to open the door, goes ahead and opens it herself before he can possibly get to it. Giving her order to the waiter, when she and a man friend are dining out together, is another example — she should wait for her host to give both orders to the waiter.

WEDDING RECESSIONAL

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. In reading your column last week, with references to a "wedding recessional" you said that a lady-in-waiting man does not take part in the recessional." Will you please tell me where he remains while the entire party marches out?

2. When two young ladies and one young man walk along the sidewalk, where does the young man walk? If there are two young men, and one lady, how does she walk?

3. When the bride-to-be's father is dead, who gives the bride away and the nearest living male relative is an uncle? Is it proper ever for the mother to give her daughter away?

4. Is it good taste or incorrect for the engaged couple to send out both her name and her fiance's name on cards or gift enclosure cards, to friends well known to both?

M.

1. In a recessional of the well-planned cosmopolitan wedding the bride and groom walk down the aisle, the only 'couple' who walk together. Mrs. Gamble, usually and most effectively their short walk from the altar after their marriage. If the bridesmaids are in couples they walk together, and if the bridesmaids are in couples they walk in the drama of the recessional is shared with these other couples. The highest-up in the business and society to step out of the living-room till the young people make a getaway.

So the best man waits until the recessional is started down the aisle by the bride and her father, or the mother and her escort, and then walks out with the minister and the groom have waited with the minister before the wedding. He gives to the minister the ministerial fee which has been given to him by the groom, and he then says a courteous but and cost are ready for him at the church door. He follows the minister and his wife are invited to the reception, he sees that their car, or the car provided for the party, and he takes care of any other arrangement that needs attention.

2. When two women and one man are walking together, the man walks on the pavement nearest the curb. The two women walk between him and between them. When the woman and two men are walking together, the woman walks between the men.

3. Yes, it is proper for the mother of the bride to present her in marriage, but usually the mother does not walk down the aisle with the bride. When the father of the bride is dead, and she has no brother but does have an uncle, usually the uncle is invited to walk down the aisle with the bride, since it is better to have the nearest relative in the procession by a man, her walk, where does the young man time in the ceremony, the bride's father gives her from her pew, first pew on the left of the aisle, gives her daughter in marriage, and then takes his place with the first pew. The bride's uncle also takes his place in the first pew.

4. Yes. It is correct for an engaged woman to sign her name and that of the man she is to marry on enclosure cards, when these cards are issued by the engaged couple, as it is the accepted custom for the woman to write her name first, even when it is she who is signing the cards.

Happy Marriage is Essential To Proper Child Training

By LEA CERNELLE

After all in the modern analysis, all the sounded "do's" and "don'ts" of child training, the most expert advice of a good psychologist conscientiously carried out by a patient and intelligent mother will not so completely assure a child of ultimate happiness and adjustment as will the background of a happy home. Even if that happy home is unaccompanied by the above advantages.

It is true that fine men and women spring from unhappy homes, but in spite of these additional handicaps they step up in spite of the background of a happy home. But despite all exceptions, the advantage lies the other way.

Duty of Parents

Not love-children, necessarily, but children who have spent their early impressionable years with parents devoted to each other usually grow up to be happy, well-adjusted people capable, as most of the others are each other.

Eleventh Inning's Single By White Enables Tigers To Defeat Chicago 6-5

Parade of Hustlers, Arguments All Seen in Tense Contest

ROWE WINNER

Three Coats And One Tiger Player Put Out of Game

(By Alan Gould)
(Associated Press Sports Editor)
Chicago, Oct. 4.—(AP)—After a tempestuous bout of wintry weather, bitter arguments and less than a little fisticuffs, Detroit Tigers, instead of the Western Cubs, emerged Friday as the boys to play the first baseball battle for baseball's world championship.

The American League champions, fighting every step of the way, survived a procession of discouraging developments to capture their second straight game behind the six-hit pitching of Lynwood "Schoolboy" Rowe in 11 innings that displayed enough heated warfare to offset the biting breezes from Lake Michigan.

The final score was 6 to 5 as Jarvis Owen playing first base instead of the injured Hank Greenberg, led the winning run on Jo-Jo White's single to centerfield after Pinch in the second extra frame.

The victory put Detroit in the lead, two games to one, and promptly switched the betting odds as well as the jabbering caps in favor of the American League pennant-winners.

With four games to play for the title, the first two here, the Tigers now need only two triumphs to clinch their first baseball crown in five attempts. The Cubs must win three out of four to prolong the thing and or the money but they are now distinctly under the gun before the National League.

The baseball battle went down fighting, so much so that Manager Charley Grimm and Captain Rogers Hornsby were chased off the field for arguing too strenuously with Umpire George Moriarity as the climax of arguments in the stirs and several limited. They also met their rightbranded son, Lonnie Warneke, fail to hold the Tigers during a four-run rally in the eighth that knocked big Bill Lee out of the box.

Failing to hold off the invaders with Lee, Warneke and Prench, a trio of front-line Cub hurlers, Grimm consequently are now reduced to the shook troops of the pitching corps. Tex Carleton, lanky righthander who came from St. Louis Cardinals this year, was named tonight to start the fourth game Saturday.

Crowder is Cochrane's Choice

In a position to gamble after talking the lead to-day, Manager Mickey Cochrane plans to start Alvin "General" Crowder, veteran righthander, and come back with Rowe on following day. If Grimm's chaps do settle the series in the fifth game.

The schoolboy's triumph this afternoon, under fire, was the climax of a game that was a thriller from its witch the advantage see-saved and the crowd of 51,000 fans, nearly for the benefit of a ballgame, jammed Wrigley Field here, contributed $30,980 in gate receipts hitting the series total beyond the $100,000 mark.

The odds and most of the breaks looked to be all against the Tigers. They were forced to shake up their line-up before the game started, and take the field without the services of Greenberg, the clean-up slugger and first baseman, on account of yesterday's contest with a lusty ankle. Let's see, the result of an injury in sliding to the plate, and probably is lost for the season. Charley Gehringer for the rest of the series. This broke up the infield "keystone" combination that pulled Cochrane to shift Owen from field to first baseman, and put Clifton stepping in to fill Owen's shoes.

On top of this, the Tigers were quickly put on the defensive as Lee, the irrepressible right-hander of the Cubs, outpitched Eldon Auker, the submarine baffler, and Detroit was gained a 2 to 0 lead. The first Bengal threat was stopped short, with one run home, as Pete Fox was trapped and tagged out off third base in the sixth inning, precipitating an argument that resulted in the banishment of Del Baker from the third-base coaching line.

Tigers Forge Ahead

The Tigers were still two runs behind, getting into the eighth, but they came roaring back with a four-run attack in take the lead, only to have the Cubs rally in the ninth to tie the score with a fusillade of base hits off the offering of Tommy Bridges. It looked like tags for the Schoolboy in the home half of the ninth when Freddy Lindstrom led off with a double up to the outfield screen in left-center, but Rowe settled down, set up, retired the side, and then fanned Billy Jurges and Lindstrom who failed to anticipate a bad hop that changed with an error, proved the final "break" of the game. Rowe fanned, swinging, but Frank Demaree, batting for Prench, picked out Prench's next pitch and drove it into the centerfield corner for a single. Chick Hafey walked Owen and sending Clifton to third. Cochrane's pinch hit grounder to pitchermoke who helped tie the score in the ninth, tied the count at 5-all through again. Chick grounded out and Rowe bored down with a first ball to Billy Jurges. Gilbert Brown and Walter Stephenson, pinch-hitting for Prench.

The game repeatedly rose to high pitches of argument and excitement as well as batting heights. Del Baker Grimm, the Cubs swarmed out of their dugout in the sixth to protest Moriarity's decision in calling out Phil Cavarretta on an attempted steal of second. The Chicago manager was put out of the part for the day by the umpire, but Grimm, who didn't quite the home bench. It was "Rajah" Hornsby and Sebastian Leager, with the result that he went over to the dugout at the end of the seventh and also chased Captain Rogelin, another non-combatant to the showers.

Lee's Collapse Sudden

At the time, the Cubs were in the lead and apparently riding high, behind the pitching of Lee, who held the Tigers in check with five popped up, seven innings and looked to be on the home half of the ninth in the final World Series start. The home team jumped off in front on Frank Demaree's home run into the right-field bleachers, in the second, with another Chicago tally coming in Stan Hack's steal of second, Clifton's error on a roller by Jurges and Lee's infield out to Owen. To-day's setback was the first time Chicago Lee's sacrifice and Augie Galan's hit to right, scoring Hack, ended the count.

Goose Goslin's single, his first hit of the series and also the first of three straight for the day, was the first blow off Lee in the fifth, and Goslin's sacrifice to Billy Herman's right-field position in the sixth. With one out, Goslin stole a big Tiger rally. But Gabby Hartnett's throw to Billy Herman caught the fleet outfielder napping and Rogell struck out to end the inning.

The Tigers' "if-men," however, weren't through for the day. Minus Greenberg's home run bat, but possessed of Greenberg's home run ball, they kept swinging, and finally drove Lee from the mound in the eighth with a blast reminiscent of the attack they had delivered in the first inning of yesterday's game. This time White drove a pass to start the inning. Demaree forwarded it to Hafey, who never doubled to right and Goslin scored on the Centerfield League hit-tying the score.

Cubs Counter Promptly

The crowd roared mightily as Lon Long Lonnie started to the box, confident the right-handed ace would stop the Tigers in their tracks until the Cubs could get one run out on another rally. It looked like good strategy, but Lon didn't. Owen banged a base hit to left and Rogell followed with a single to right, scoring Goslin with the run that put the Tigers in the lead for the first time.

With Fox on third and Rogell on first, Cochrane's single to right drove Rogell to third, scoring Fox

EMPEROR HAILE FELLOW VOYAGER IN RED SEA TRIP

Miss Margaret Bunting Tells Collegiate Students of Experience

Those were glorious days at Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School when Emperor Haile Selassie, yesterday, when the history teacher calmly announced that she had been a fellow passenger with the Emperor Haile Selassie during a trip on a French liner through the Red Sea. This was the experience of Miss Margaret Bunting, who with her parents was aboard the "Portbet" twelve years ago en route to England from Shanghai when the liner called at Jibuti, the port of French Somaliland, for the Emperor and his royal retinue.

The harbor was decorated and befagged, motor boats flying the Abyssinian colors surrounded the vessel, and a large crowd gathered at the docks as the Emperor who was then Regent arrived and his fifty followers came on board. Haile Selassie, resplendent in his white robes accustomed with gold, was a conspicuous figure among his black robed companions. Passengers on the ship excitedly lined the sides of the ship to get a good look at the Abyssinian nobles, and servants, laden with huge quantities of baggage, the next passengers to arrive at this port.

A great friend of Selassie, Baron Von Zulow, a German big game hunter, was also on board and recounted to the Buntings many interesting stories of the Prince. At that time he installed upon the Emperor Menelik, was in power in Abyssinia, which was in a state of uneasiness. The Prince Regent was advisor of the Queen, and so unsettled were conditions that Haile Selassie planned to spend Coptic Christmas in Jerusalem and he thoughtfully invited all his powerful political enemies to accompany him on the trip. It was rumoured that when his most feared rival had come to the end of the Addawa to bid him farewell the Prince treacherously instead of upon the party forthright, baggagies and servants.

It was also learned that many of the packages laboriously brought on board contained gifts from the monarchs of Europe whom the Prince had visited upon his trip, after attending the sessions of the League of Nations to answer charges of continuing slave trade. Among the rugs were the chief gifts of the Prince.

Many of his followers mingled with the passengers. They played Guess French and conversed freely but spent much of their time reading the Koran in the public rooms of the liner. The Prince who had previously planned to leave the ship at Port Said, decided suddenly that he wished to disembark at Brindisi. Special permission had to be obtained before the liner was allowed to ship here. In the meantime the party was finally granted and the last night aboard was that of the colorful gathering was in the midst of an interested crowd of spectators at the dock.

HEROIC COLLIE LOSES SCROLLS

All Because Boy Cannot be Found to Receive Tribute

Red Bank, N.J., Oct. 4 (CP)—When the report got around that Lassie, collie of O'Sullivans, a prize-winning collie with a family tree the length of your arm, dived into the Shrewsbury River and rescued a 10-year-old boy from drowning, he received a hero's notice in the International Press.

But today it began to look as if it was not to be. The boy couldn't be found.

The thrilling reports of the rescue told of Lassiea, etc., being awakened from a beauty nap in his kennel on the Rumson Rd. by the cries of Billy Smith, 10 feb from the river. To the best knowledge of his owner, Mrs. Francis B. Ish, and his keeper, Mike Kennedy, the aristocratic collie had never been awakened by the calls of distress and him charging across the ish estate, into the chill river and back with the boy to the floundering boy.

Kennedy identified the rescued boy as Anthony Salvatore, of nearby Middleton. The collie was snapped for Metropolitan newspapers. The County Police Department, the American Legion and the Jersey Shore Kennel Club prepared to award him life-saving medals.

It was necessary, however, the boy in the drama be there for the presentations. Newspapermen and Police Commissioner Tom Gopsill set out to find Tony. Anthony Salvatore could not be found.

Forthwith, the Legion Commander announced the organization's scroll could not be awarded.

Mrs. Ish added the last word. The presentation celebration would not be held, she said, because the crowd would ruin the lawn around the kennel.

Callander, Oct., Oct. 5 (CP)—Baby Marie, who Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe said would be a crusher, may still be the lightest of the Dionne quintuplets but when it comes to teething, none of her sisters can claim superiority.

Well nothing ishy, and ma said, Well, it does really seem as if Albit is the only one with any money, and Uncle Albit said, after all isn't it a trifle warm for the movies? Let's all take a nice walk, he said, and pop said, A good idear, we'll wait in the park and get some of that good ice cream at the Candy Kitchen. A little more expensive than other places, but I'll find it's worth the differnts, Albit.

On 2nd thawts, I've wawked a good deal today, let's go back to the house and play a little 2 handed bridge, Uncle Albit said, and pop said, On 3rd and last thawts here's some change in my vest pocki after all, you cant beet a vest pocki in point of convenience.

HEALTH and PSYCHOLOGY

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.

Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

Copyright, 1935, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

No matter how bright, intelligent and efficient a person may be, such an individual would improve and be even brighter if he could prevent all the physical handicaps of disease removed.

It is a well-known fact that adenoids can keep a child stupid; diseased tonsils can undermine the working capacity of a grown person. Eye-strain can make people dizzy, cause headaches, produce a confused state of mind and thus affect the proper functioning of the brain cells.

Dividing the body, into the physical and mental is, of course, merely a convenient method of description, for the body and mind are a unit. And in the same way that the mind can influence the body, the body can influence the mind.

It is true that persons who are by nature health and happy and their daily tasks in an unusually successful manner. How much more successful they might be if all their organs were functioning perfectly!

Disease produces poisons which may get into the blood stream and processes. When an organ is diseased, energy is drawn from the body to combat the disease. This is the energy which might otherwise be utilized by the mind.

Persons who are ill cannot, as a rule, work as hard as normal ones. They are more quickly fatigued. Illness may be difficult. Furthermore, they most needs restrict their energy for mental activities. They must conserve their strength.

All this should be argument enough to make a careful test we become chronically sick.

However, we can develop a chronic ailment even from acute illness. Often heart, liver, kidney or lung disease creeps on so slowly that we are hardly aware of the changes.

It is highly important, therefore, that we have ourselves examined regularly by a physician. Diagnosis disease early. Do not wait until its mental effects are apparent even to your acquaintance. This is particularly careful about removing infections that may damage the brain or the minds development. Bad teeth, for example, may be such a handicap. Sinus trouble or deviated septum in the nose, which interfere with proper breathing, are others.

Partial deafness should also be detected, if possible. Those who are deaf tend gradually to become suspicious and shut-in, sometimes even paranoid.

Nowadays the endocrine glands are receiving a great deal of attention. A deficiency of the thyroid gland, for instance, can easily give rise to speed and alertness of thinking. Too much thyroid activity, on the other hand, may cause the victim to be abnormally nervous, fearful and anxious.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

Since the diet of fish is rich and its skin thin, fish is readily broken into finer particles in the stomach by with the digestive juices. For this reason fish is not only most nutritious but is easily digested in the stomach and intestines. Fish should therefore, always be well-cooked and absolutely fresh.

SINISTER SHADOW

by JOHN GOODWIN

"You're coming out of this job on top!" said Sonia as she started her car out through the square. "If any person who even touched this case deserves to win, you do."

"I'll make myself scarce," said Howe, and, with his huge form back against the cushions, drawing the blind, "couldn't be any flatter than I'm feeling just now."

Sonia glanced at him and laughed. "I want somebody along who's big, and brainy," she said as she turned as they came through the High Street and clear of the town. "You know what I'm going to do, don't you?"

"I can guess. But I know what I'm going to do. Hold on!" said Howe. "Now we've got to make time for me to get out of this kit; it's a job that can't be done in uniform."

Sonia frowned.

"No; that's so."

"Run her round to my place; I'll get out of it. Guthrie told me I'd lose my cash and pension anyway," chuckled Howe.

"Let Guthrie take care he doesn't lose his!" said Sonia. She turned left at the cross roads. The Bentley whipped up to the gateless of King's Rim village.

"I've two hundred miles to cover," she said, braking as they reached Howe's house. "Hurry! How long does it take a policeman to change his dresses?"

"I'll break my own record!" said Howe. He ran along the short garden path and dived into his house.

Sonia waited in the car, breathless. Julie's message had changed the whole outlook, so if by magic. Nothing happened now to stop her and Howe . . . Presently she saw a policeman on a bicycle ride round towards her; she sniffed with alarm.

It was Constable Willet, who was taking Howe's day in the village of an old ally of the Sergeant. She had never had much to do with Willet beside had always seemed friendly; a man of few words. He looked in at the car window and saluted gravely.

"You goin' to the Abbey Court, ma'am?"

"I've just come from there."

"I suppose you don't know if they've had the news there yet?"

"What news?"

"Oh nothing," said Willet guardedly.

Suddenly a shadow descended between them; Howe arrived, in a suit of dark grey tweed.

"What's this, Joe? What news?"

"About this body they've found over at Stanmary . . . Guthrie certainly does have the luck," said Willet grimly. "They've sent the news along to him at the Court. He'll have it by now."

Sonia gasped.

"Body!"

Willet ignored her, addressing himself to Howe.

"I said body. But it seems all they've found is a dead man's hand, jammed sticking out through the rocks in the Stanmary outfall. Can't make it out myself—except that the Floods must have shifted it. . . I'll take my call it wasn't there yesterday, for I was by the place."

"Out with it, Joe!" said Howe. "What do you fancy?"

"Nothing more than Sergeant Baxter told me, couldn't through just now. Not sure if it was Guthrie's men who found it, or Inspector Fryth—but it's over on the other side now. You know they've been searchin' the place a month past. Well, it seems they have found something now."

"In the Mine?"

"Not the Mine—its an old outfall by the river on the side of Stanmary Hill. I thought Baxter was fooling. Sounds like a miracle out of the Scriptures to me—this dead chap's hand. . . ."

"That's no miracle—unless he shall comes are a miracle-er broke Howe. "Joe, say that's found it—"

"Yes, only just found it—sent for Guthrie. They haven't got the body out yet, but when they do . . ."

"But whose?" exclaimed Sonia. "They know who it is?"

"By what I could hear they already! it's the sailor chap—Barber. They—"

"Never mind who it is Joe—when is it?" Howe cut in. "Can the ebb and Floods must have shifted it. . . I'll take my call it wasn't there yesterday, for I was by the place."

"Out with it, Joe!" said Howe. "What do you fancy?"

"Nothing more than Sergeant Baxter told me, couldn't through just now. Not sure if it was Guthrie's men who found it, or Inspector Fryth—but it's over on the other side now. You know they've been searchin' the place a month past. Well, it seems they have found something now."

Trade in Lumber Is on the Increase

Lumber trade in the north is increasing, it is reported by Mr. W. N. Gilroy, well known dealer of Coe Hill.

"While we are carrying the same quantity of stock as we did last year, we feel that the demand for soft lumber, such as hemlock and spruce, is increasing, and from what we can learn from other sources, the stocks of lumber in the country are getting low."

"Personally we feel that there is going to be a steady increase in the demand f. the near future and we are in hopes that the price of hemlock and spruce may increase with the rains. We have found the shipments of hardwood lumber a little slow so far this season, but this is also expected to pick up," reports Mr. Gilroy.

TORONTO STOCKS—Close
Toronto, Oct. 5—Opening with a strong tone, the industrial section of the Toronto exchange became slightly unsettled before the end of the two-hour session and some of the early gains were dropped. Metal issues, International Nickel and Consolidated Smelters, were out in front in the trade with nickel registering a new high for some years at 32. The close showed 2 1-4 was up ¾ for the day while Smelters held a fractional gain after touching 36. The beverage, oil, steel and financial groups recorded a preponderance of gains.

Distillers Seagrams was the most active of the liquor shares and it closed around 25¾ for a gain of ¾. Walkers common was slow and a half-point higher and Industrial Alcohol A and Brewers and Distillers were each slightly higher at the close.

The turnover was about normal for a short session in the leading oils at prices up ¼ to ¾. In the construction group Canada Dredge registered a point advance and building products gained 2¼ to 2⅜. Price changes in the food issues were mainly on the down side. Western Canada Flour pfd. weakened ¼ and International Milling pfd. dropped 1¾.

TORONTO MINES
(Close)
Toronto, Oct. 5 (CP)—Heavy trading in the Base Metal listings of Toronto Mining Market continued in the week-end session with the leading copper producers recording substantial gains. Hudson Bay sold at 19 for a gain of a full point in its high mark for six years.

Noranda sold Hudson Bay over the heavy traders with Noranda up 5-8 to 40 3-8 Falconbridge followed along with a gain of 30 cents to 4.45 while Sherritt-Gordon added about 4, Mining Corporation 3, Redberry Basin and Base Metals Corporation a couple each and Ventures a cent or two.

In the silvers Kirkcaldy firmed up about 4 cents on the support of a stiffer metal market while Castle and Bear were slightly higher.

Senior gold prices were irregular. In the secondary group, San Antonio, Pickle Crow, McWatters, Gold Lake and Macassa. Prospectors Airways did better on light trading and McKenzie held about steady. San Antonio pushed up 35 to 2.66.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Sigrar and Crawford by Financial Service.

Bankfield to Deepen Shaft, to 600 feet—Bankfield directors have decided to deepen the shaft to 600 feet and open up two levels at 425 and 575 feet. The 425 mill be opened up as a sub level from a raise, following driving westward from the shaft on the 575. Should this work prove the downward continuation of the ore body, mill decision, will follow, it is stated. The enlarged development program, for which $75,000 was put in hand, will take five or six months to complete.

McKenzie Report Further Improvement in mend in Output

In connection with the reported production record of 867,500 at McKenzie Red Lake Gold Mines for September, officials of the company look for further improvement with increased mill rate as a result of recent mine development. To date practically all profits have been obtained from the 250-foot level and above, but in the immediate future more will be drawn from the lower workings where the grade is higher than that on the present producing zone.

After more dut deliberation, Investors have come to the realization that the effects of a war on Canadian and American shareholders do not warrant nervousness and a better feeling was in evidence among the metal stocks particularly recording a vigorous rebound in Noranda, Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting, Noranda, etc. are in line for a very appreciable improvement in profits as a result.

R. G. Dun & Co. well known American financial authority, expresses the opinion that investors have been exaggerated the gravity of events in Europe insofar as they may affect the United States. It was very different when European war clouds thickened in 1914. European capital held vast amounts of American securities. When war broke out there was a stampede to liquidate. Today Europeans own relatively few American investments. Should Mussolini prove so foolhardy as to defy all the other European powers at war, the New York Stock Exchange would be little likely to be affected as it was in 1914. European liquidation could have relatively little effect this time.

On the other hand, a European war, should it involve the United States, would not mean the mountainous orders for materials which the World War brought to the aid of America. There is now on the U. S. statute books a law forbidding export of its war debts—which includes money European powers owe Finland. Therefore, huge loans in the U. S. to finance purchases of war materials are out of the question. Nor are prospective belligerents apparently in a position to make gigantic purchases in the United States.

CHIEF COMMANDER SLIGHTLY HURT

Sir Roger Backhouse, When His Plane Capsized in Landing

London, Oct. 5 (CP)—Sir Roger Backhouse, Commander in Chief of the Home Fleet, was injured last night when an amphibian plane returning him to Portland from London capsized on landing in Portland harbor.

Sir Roger had conferred in London with high naval officials. Backhouse was taken aboard the flag-ship Nelson, where he was treated for shock, slight cuts and bruises. The Admiralty said his injuries were believed to be not serious.

The home fleet commander was returning on his flight by an aide and a pilot, neither of whom were injured seriously.

Sir Roger's London conferences were related to the latest fleet movements.

Herman Puts Cubs Ahead in Fifth Frame With Homer

By ALAN GOULD

Associated Press Sports Editor

Navin Field, Detroit, Oct. 7.—(AP)—The warring baseball forces each carrying casualties, returned to Detroit today to find near balmy weather and a capacity of 46,000 on hand for the sixth world series game.

The Tigers leading by 3 games to 2, relied on Tommy Bridges, slim right-hander, to pitch them into the championship with a revamped lineup.

With Larry French, a southpaw, picked to hurt for the Cubs, Detroit benched the light-hitting Jo-Jo White, center fielder, in favor of Gerald Walker, a righthanded batsman.

Herman (Flea) Clifton, substitute third baseman was moved to the leadoff spot in the Tiger batting order with Walker batting sixth, just behind Pete Fox.

Big Hank Greenberg, who had hoped to return to the game despite the fact that he broke his wrist the day of elimination for the cellular Hebrew race, found his arm was still too tender from the injury he suffered in the second game here.

The weather was much warmer but skies were slightly overcast.

The batting order:

Cubs (N)—Galan lf; Herman 2b; Klein rf; Hartnett c; Demaree cf; Cavarretta 1b; Hack 3b; Chagnon ss; French p.

First Inning

CUBS—Galan hit briskly through the box. The ball glanced off Gehringer and Rogel dashed in time to pick it up and throw him out at first. Herman homered over Goslin's head into the left field stands. Klein hit for a single. Gehringer singled sharply through short, filling the first baseball full. Klein momentarily lingered between the bases in time to keep Cochrane from going beyond second. Goslin popped to short. Fox hit safely down the third base line for a double scoring Gehringer and sending Cochrane to third. Walker was intentionally passed to first base, filling the bases and to French and Gehringer was forced at the plate. French to Hartnett.

Second Inning

CUBS—Hartnett fanned on a called third strike. Demaree lifted a high fly to Fox. Cavarretta lashed a hit between Rogel and Owen, but Rogel cut Owen's glove and was assisted by Fox, who was playing deep with an error as Cavarretta ran to second. Hack grounded out, Gehringer to Owen.

TIGERS—Owen fanned, swinging. Bridges banged a high one through the box but Herman grabbed it on the run and threw to first for the put-out. Clifton fanned, swinging.

No runs, no hits, no errors; none left.

Third Inning

CUBS—Jurges cracked a single to center. French fanned, swinging. Galan's drive was grounded out past Gehringer for a scratch hit and Jurges raced to third. Herman lashed a hit to right scoring Jurges. Galan was called out at third on Fox's fine throw to Clifton. Herman remained at first base as the Cubs put up a big protest. Klein smashed the first pitch on a line to deep right

SUEZ CANAL WILL NOT BE CLOSED

Directors Decide on Legal Report Closing Would be Impossible

(By Stuart Emeney)

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Cairo, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Suez Canal Directors met today for a report from international legal experts, authoritatively to conclude the canal could neither be closed to Italian warships by the directors to block war in Ethiopia.

An official statement published by the company said it would be impossible for the directors to take any decision on closing of the canal by "sanctions". The directors said the canal must remain open for all countries.

Only a blockade or an attack by some other country will prevent Italian warships from passing the way, the officials added. They also characterized as a perilous precis that Italy had considered raising the rates on Italian ships. The canal was in session and closely studied advices from international lawyers.

"The company is a commercial firm and therefore neutral," the statement said. "Its neutrality is recognized by the Constantinople convention of 1888 and specifically maintained by Article 380 of the Versailles treaty. The canal, therefore, remains open."

LEAGUE COUNCIL BLAMES ITALY

Britain Will Consent to Peace Overtures Only Written League

By WADE WERNER

(Copyright 1935 The Associated Press)

Geneva, Oct. 7.—The League of Nations' Council today adopted a report declaring Italy had "resorted war in disregard of its Covenants."

Article VI in Effect

The adoption of the report immediately puts into effect Article 16's automatic application of sanctions against an aggressor nation—meaning, in this case, Italy. Delegates of both Italy and Ethiopia were heard by the members of the League Council in public session before the report was put to a vote.

Italy voted "No"—but the vote was not counted, for a member is not permitted to vote on a matter in which it is interested. The vote was listed as unanimous.

The League of Nations' Council today blocked an Italian maneuver for time and ordered a public session to decide officially whether Italy has resorted to war in disregard of its covenants."

This allegation, presented by the Council committee of six, was approved by the committee of 15 which includes all members of the Council except Italy.

London, Oct. 7.—Great Britain will not recognize or consent to the annexation by Italy of Ethiopian war unless they fall within the framework of the League of Nations jurisdiction, it was authoritatively declared here today. A condition of equal importance, it was added, is the terms must be based on the full consent and agreement of Ethiopia.

Geneva, Oct. 7 (AP)—It was reported in League circles tonight Baron Aloisi, Italian representative at the League of Nations, had rejected a plea by Premier Laval of France that Italy immediately cease hostilities against Ethiopia.

Ethiopian Report Hints That Peace Rumor 'Almost' True

10 MILLION MEN READY

Fall of Aduwa Not Matter of Strategic Importance, Ethiopia Avers

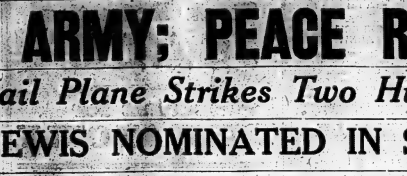
By JAMES A. MILLS

Copyright, 1935, By The Associated Press

Addis Ababa, Oct. 7.—Rumors circulated in Addis Ababa today that Italy has proposed peace terms to Emperor Haile Selassie.

One of the Emperor's advisers asked whether the reports were true replied, "Almost" but declined to comment further.

The Italian Minister of Ethiopia, Lugi Vinci-Gigliucci said he had no news of such a proposal.



Emperor Takes Command

Ethiopian sources disclosed today Emperor Haile Selassie plans to lead an army of 120,000 fighters into the field against Italy within two weeks.

It was stated Selassie's personal army would have as its backbone 10,000 men, well equipped Imperial Guards.

ARMS EMBARGO MAY BE LIFTED

Question Hinges on Action Taken by League, as to Countries

By GEORGE GREENE
A. P. Staff Writer

London, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Lifting of the arms embargo against Ethiopia, when the cabinet meets Wednesday was forecast in the press today.

A decision to permit British aid to Emperor Haile Selassie's badly-equipped warriors hinges on the action of the League of Nations, expected in the next 48 hours, on the question of what form sanctions against the "war guilty" might take.

These are expected to be threefold: First, breaking off of diplomatic relations with Italy which, if it is found to have committed an act of aggression against a League member, Ipso Facto "committed an act of war against all members."

Second, refusal to accept Italian exports.

Third, cutting off financial aid and supplies to Italy.

Genera Disappointing

In addition, presupposing Italy were named the aggressor, the League might decide to help Ethiopia and with that in view informed quarters believe the cabinet is ready to end the embargo.

Premier Baldwin returned to No. 10 Downing Street from Chequers last night to take personal command of the crisis.

British circles take a melancholy view of proceedings at Geneva. London feels the League will adopt nothing but innocuous financial sanctions against the aggressor in the war.

Underlining the attitude of Premier Laval of France the Daily Herald said: "It is openly notorious the chief restraining voice at Geneva is Mr. Laval, that he is using every ruse and every pretext to uphold developments and postpone as long as possible the moment when the League must act."

Morning newspapers were hailed President Roosevelt's arms embargo on the combatants with a multitude of interpretations.

The Times lauded the proclamation by saying, "the action of the United States is only another example of how Italy by her defiance and a guarantee that the United States will not interfere with their rigorous enforcement."

War at a Glance

Djibouti, French Somaliland, Oct. 7.—(AP)—French troops will leave here tomorrow for Dire-Dawa, Ethiopia, it was announced today, to protect French lives and property at the Franco-Ethiopian railroad centre there. Fresh French colonial troops, about 1,000 strong, will arrive here at the same time with large supplies of munitions and war materials.

London, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Exchange Telegraph correspondent with the Italian forces in the northern Ethiopia area reported today Ethiopian irregulars in the hills were subjected to a merciless bombing from the air and heavy machine gun fire from Italian troops up to parley yesterday. Hundreds of tribesmen however, subjected Italian outposts and Aduwa to ceaseless firing, he said.

x x x

Alexandria, Egypt, Oct. 7.—(AP)—The British depot ship Cyclops and the cruiser Berwick arrived here today from China.

New York, Oct. 7.—(AP)—An Italian line official, commenting on President Roosevelt's proclamation Americans who travel on belligerent ships do so at their own risk, said today he was aware of no specified passages.

"I can't say about the future," said Aroldo Palazzo, the line's general manager for the United States and Canada, "but at present the people know there is no risk in going into the Mediterranean."

Tanks Caught In Lion Traps

Addis Ababa, Oct. 7.—(CP-Havas)—Members of the diplomatic corps today stirred their governments after telling them to obtain assurances from Rome, that Addis Ababa and Dire-Dawa will not be bombarded by airplanes. Three Italian officers, captured by Ethiopian warriors, which ended in the fall of Aduwa, were brought here by airplane today.

Four Italian tanks were reported captured at Adowa in traps similar to those used to take them, their crews were killed when the tanks fell into holes covered with tree branches.

Bombardment of the town today of Serbarnia and Sarbarnia aroused new Italian advance.

Ethiopian sources said 40 women and 22 children were killed in the bombardment of Adowa.

Plans for the complete evacuation of Addis Ababa in case of aerial bombardment were completed today. Italian planes would find the city deserted, it was believed. Large bomb-proof shelters were dug in the hills near the British legation on orders from Emperor Haile Selassie.

BALLOT BATTLE ACROSS CANADA ON NEXT MONDAY

Liberal Leader Promises Dominion-Provincial Conference

PREMIER IN MARITIMES

Says Greatest Issue, Trade Agreements With Great Britain

(By The Canadian Press)

Ottawa, Oct. 7.—The battle of the Ballots will open on a front extending from Halifax to the east Pacific Victoria in the west and north into the rock-ribbed Yukon. It will be a one-day battle with political parties fighting for the confidence of 6,000,000 Canadians, whose names are on the voters' list. On it will depend the next government of the country.

Today was nomination day for 166 candidates standing for the house of the 245 having been selected a week ago. Premier Bennett, Liberal Leader King and Reconstruction Leader Stevens will spend the week in Ontario and Quebec in campaign wind-ups. J. S. Woodsworth, leader of the C.C.F. will devote the final week of his own Winnipeg riding.

Liberal Leader King held the spotlight over the week end, when he told a meeting at Barrie, Ont., that a Dominion-Provincial conference would be called if his party went into power. It would settle uniform pensionary policies, ending confusion and needless conflicts of jurisdiction. The problems for the conference, Mr. King said, would be those of debt and taxation.

MISSING PLANE WRECKAGE FOUND AS DAWN COMES

Nine Passengers, Pilot, Co-pilot And Stewardess Victims

PLANE HITS HILL

Machine Bounces From One Hill Top to Another in Crash

Cheyenne, Wyoming, Oct. 7 (AP)—Twelve persons—nine passengers and a crew of three—were crushed to death early today as an United Air Lines transport plane crashed on a knoll on the rolling plains fifteen miles west of here. The ship was flying from Oakland, Calif., to New York.

The veteran pilot, H. A. Collisoff apparently had started down from high altitudes in ideal weather with his twin-motored liner, preparatory to a scheduled stop here, when he struck the top of one hill, lost his propeller and plummeted against another hillside. The plane was torn and twisted but did not catch fire.

Names And Addresses

The machine was found by searchers from here near dawn just as another band of airmen took off from Salt Lake City to seek a Standard Oil Company transport ship missing in the long area of cloud-ball Rale which has proved a threat since Sunday.

Identifies Two Hills.

"The plane apparently struck the top of one hill, lost its propeller and engine and then bounced, none first, against the top of another hill," said Bill Rowe of United Air Lines.

"We have been unable to determine the exact cause of the accident. The weather was clear and it appeared Collison had good flying speed."

Collison, a former army airman and a half flyer since 1921, won his sobriquet for careful piloting.

The accident was the first in the last 1,000,000 miles flying by United, the equivalent of 150,000,000 passenger miles since the last accident on the United Airlines.

List of Dead

Besides pilot Collison and the co-pilot and stewardess, United Air Lines officials gave assurance the following nine passengers were killed:

G. H. Miner, Park Lane Hotel, Chicago; O. E. Mailwex, Jr., Pittsburgh; J. Ward, Los Angeles; Nog H. Bailie, en route from Salt Lake City to Chicago; Evanna Hall, San Francisco; Miss Juliet Hinman, Pinehurst, N.C.; Grandall, Associated Oil Co., San Francisco, en route from Oakland to New York; Helen Hall, Chicago; Mrs. Calhcart, Chicago; and Mrs. Calhcart of Portland, Ore.

The Rev. T. H. H. Hall, incumbent of the Church of England, Belleville Mission of Ameliasburgh, has just returned yesterday from Merrickville where he officiated in the service in connection with the burning of the mortgage on the church, which was erected in 1924 to 1934.

Archdeacon Coleman of Kingston, the secretary of the synod for the Diocese of Ontario. The ceremony of burning the mortgage and the special service took place on Saturday, the special speaker and preacher being Archdeacon Coleman, the event proved to be of great interest to the many persons present.

The Rev. Arthur Dowdell, rector of Sydenham, represented his old father, who was at one time rector of the parish.

Burglars Take $10 From Man's Trousers

Stealthily entering the bedroom where many people were asleep, burglars stole ten dollars and the purse from Steven Szymczyk's trousers pocket sometime Saturday night. The theft was reported to Provincial Constable Harry Kelly on Sunday and an investigation has been opened.

According to the information received Mr. Szymczyk and his wife retired late Saturday night, they sleeping on the first floor of their home on the second concession of Tyendinaga. Although no disturbances were heard in the house, the money had disappeared from Mr. Szymczyk's pocket. His trousers were found on a chair near his bed, exactly in the same position as they had been left the night before.

Subsequent investigation disclosed that entrance to the home had been made by means of forcing a cellar window. The thief was allowed full adjacent to the kitchen, into which the cellar stairs came from below. Transients may have been the culprits, it has been suggested.

METROPOLITAN TELLS PROGRESS

Synod Will Vote on Admission of Diocese of Moosonee

The first act of the Provincial Synod of the Ecclesiastical Province of Ontario, which is meeting in Belleville tomorrow will be, it is expected that the admission of the Diocese of Moosonee to the Synod, stated the Rev. J. C. Roper, D. D. Archbishop of Ottawa and Metropolitan of Ontario at Christ Church on Sunday morning. The Metropolitan gave a brief history of the territory covered by the Moosonee diocese.

In his sermon the Metropolitan pointed out the Church of England's growth at home and abroad in the last ninety years. He recalled scenes he witnessed one day in 1890 in Westminster Abbey, when no less 207 bishops in procession at a service and two hours later a procession of a like number of bishops from every diocese of the church throughout the world. He related the story of heroic Anglican missionaries who gave their lives to make way for the cross of Christ and spoke at some length of personal missionary experiences on Vancouver Island.

"We have a great task ahead" counseled the Archbishop. "There is such a call as we have not had for many a generation.

He pointed to indifference, carelessness, disregard of the Sabbath, and the hesitation of many to assume religious responsibility.

But the church, he surprised, was stable. "I know we are venturesome today and that I know there is a feeling of stability in the church all over the world."

Rev. G. D. Wright, rector, assisted in the service.

NEUTRALITY OF U. S. DECLARED

Asks Americans Not To Travel on Ships of Belligerents

Washington, Oct. 7.—(AP)—The United States was fully embarked today upon a neutrality policy capped by a formal proclamation by President Roosevelt, admonishing American travellers to keep off vessels of Italy and Ethiopia.

The 13,000 men of the Coast Guard and Customs service took up today the task of preventing any shipments of United States arms and munitions to the two embattled nations.

Besides proclaiming the embargo and the warning to travelers—two steps provided for in the recent neutrality legislation adopted by Congress—the President went beyond the task of the legislation in another move. He declared in a statement American who engaged in "transactions of any character" with either of the belligerents will "do so at their own risk."

This marked a distinct reversal of policy in the past the United States has argued for the right of "freedom of the seas." Pacifists and neutral nations commented on controversy about deaths and injuries suffered by Americans and about restrictions on American trade preceded this country's entry into the Great War.

Since Ethiopia has no merchant marine, the latest proclamation affects only the ships of Italy.

TURKS AID NEGUS

With war between Italy and Abyssinia virtually in effect, it becomes known that the leader of the forces of Ethiopia on the Ogaden (southern) is Wahib Pasha, Turkish commander, who was one of the outstanding military leaders of the Ottoman empire during the world war. His knowledge of military tactics and strategy was an outstanding feature of the Turkish defence of the Dardanelles against the British during the holocaust of 1914-1918. Now, at 59, he is in supreme command of the tribesmen and tribal warriors of Haile Sellassie's land on the Somaliland frontier. Exiled by Turkey, his new career has been given official recognition.

RAWDON

Rawdon, Oct. 7—A very large number of Rawdon folk journeyed to Campbellford on Wednesday evening where over seven thousand people were gathered in Campbellford Arena to pay homage to Ontario's premier, Hon. Mitchell Hepburn, who was guest speaker in the interests of Mr. W. A. Fraser, sitting M. P. for Northumberland, who is the Liberal candidate.

Mayor Lang of Campbellford welcomed the guests in a very hearty and sincere manner.

Mr. Wishart Campbell, known as "The Golden Voice of the Air" delighted with several numbers including "Without a Song" "When I Grow too Old to Dream" "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling", "Old Man River". Belleville Radio quartette sang "Robin Peak" "Old Mill Joe" and "Where Are the Boys of the Old Brigade".

The candidate was given a warm ovation, and in his address said Liberalism is the only bulwark for the people of Canada.

Mr. Harold M. Carr, M. P. P., introduced Premier Hepburn telling in a unique way of the birth of a little boy on August 13th, 1896, who later became Ontario's youngest Premier. As Mr. Hepburn arose to speak the audience sang "The Maple Leaf Forever." He discussed the issues of the day for over an hour and held his audience spellbound as he gave a very comprehensive picture of the government as carried out at Ottawa and Toronto. He urged for Canada trade reform and the establishment of a National Bank. He closed his address leaving the issue to the jurisdiction of the voters, as they will be both judge and jury on October 14th. The meeting closed with "The National Anthem".

Mrs. G. W. Hagerman of Anson represented St. Paul's W. M. S. at Hamilton on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Heagle, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Morton, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hinds, Mr. and Mrs. George Wallace, Mr. and Mrs. Orval Halnia, Mrs. Edith Sharp, Miss Emma Hinds, Mrs. Russell John, Mrs. Carolyn, Mr. Clifford Harrison Owen and Mabel, and Mr. Jack Hutchson, of Wellman's attended Madoc Fair on Wednesday.

Italian Drive In Ethiopia Being Held Up

By GEORGE JORDAN
Associated Press Foreign Staff Reporter.

Rome, Oct. 7.—(AP)—An Italian government spokesman said today Italy's troops would consolidate their quickly won positions in northern Ethiopia and might not advance as spectacularly for the next few days as they did during their drive on Adowa.

Fascist sentiment at Rome backed the army in its progress of making sure of holding Adowa, scene of Italy's humiliating defeat in 1896, which was taken yesterday by the troops of General Emilio de Bono, in command of the northern army in East Africa.

Demonstrations throughout the kingdom reflected the nation's rejoicing over the capture of Adowa. In many cities the demonstrations were linked to manifestations of friendship with France.

Masses gathered in front of the French Consulate and raised up vivas for France and Premier Laval, together with cheers for Italy, Premier Mussolini and the Italian army in Africa.

While Fascists celebrated the victory by bonfires, officials watched for developments at Geneva, where they believed sanctions might be voted against Italy to halt the warfare in Ethiopia.

The capture yesterday of Adowa was described by a government spokesman as the "high moment of Italian history."

"Ever since I was a child, I had heard of the indignity of Adowa. I cannot announce the capture without emotion," he said.

"Adowa henceforth will never by anything but Italian territory."

"Many Wells, and Twitts, Carmichaill in song-and-fun festival, "Pasta in Spring", now at the Capitol theatre, with Ida Lupino also featured.

Mrs. Lawor also spoke in a fine manner on the Italo-Ethiopia situation. Its cause and its effect upon the other powers of the world. In her closing remarks she spoke of the forthcoming election, admitting "she was not a politician" but stating belief that all women should exercise their franchise. They asked for right to vote and got it, so by all means vote in the way you feel is right.

Mrs. Hick then gave a very instructive talk on child welfare and the meeting was brought to a close with the singing of God Save The King. After which a dainty lunch was served and a social period enjoyed by all.

Military Sanctions are 'Junked' By Britain and France, Says Paris

By CHARLES FOLTZ
Associated Press Staff Writer

Paris, Oct. 5—(AP)—French officials reported today the idea of military sanctions to combat the Italo-Ethiopian war had been "completely junked" by Great Britain and France.

Worried by the possibility of further strained relations between Great Britain and Italy and intent on obtaining some guaranties from London for help in the event of trouble on France's eastern frontier, the Cabinet last night gave Premier Laval a vote of confidence before his departure for Geneva.

The plan for sanctions which Laval submitted, these officials said, ranged from refusing credit to a ban on exports of arms and raw materials and, as a last resort, a restriction on purchases from the country named the aggressor.

A reply to Britain's questions on this French attitude, reciting France would aid Britain in the Mediterranean if the proposal were extended to include forces on land and sea and in the air, was dispatched last night to Sir Samuel Hoare, foreign secretary.

The note was reported to have been worded in this fashion to assure France the same agreement would bring Great Britain to her aid in the event of a threatened violation of the League of Nations Covenant on the European continent.

Supporting Home Production

TOTAL USINGS OF TOBACCO, BURLEY & FLUE-CURED, BY ALL CANADIAN MANUFACTURERS

No single policy of the Imperial Tobacco Company is adhered to with more determination, or practised with more sympathetic co-operation, than that which prescribes the use of Canadian materials and supplies, whenever and wherever possible.

Needless to say, the Company's first care must always be to safeguard the reputation of its brands. In everything it buys, therefore, it insists upon its own standards of quality. When Canadian products fail to measure up to those standards, it has no alternative but to import. But where it has reason to believe that, with explanation and assistance, the problem of producing in Canada up to the required standard of quality is definitely solvable, it is prepared to go to almost any length in co-operating with Canadian producers, so that they can qualify for its business.

The tobacco growing industry provides two cases in point. In the Leamington district, the growers of Burley were successful almost from the start in producing leaf comparable with Burley, heretofore imported from Kentucky.

As a consequence, year after year the Company has purchased the major part of their crop. In recent years the Company has been able to increase its purchases from them, due to its success in creating a demand for Picobac Pipe Tobacco made entirely from Canadian Burley.

But the Norfolk County growers of Virginia flue-cured tobacco experienced some difficulty in producing leaf of the colour and texture comparable with that imported from Virginia and North Carolina. So the Company sent its experts to guide them in experiments with various kinds of seeds and fertilizers, to instruct them in better methods of planting and harvesting, and to assist them with their curing. And as the growers succeeded in meeting the Company's requirements, it used more and more of their product.

In 1920, only 30.9 per cent. of all the leaf used in the manufacture of tobacco in Canada was domestic leaf. By 1933 the usings of domestic leaf by all manufacturers had increased to 65.5 per cent. of the total.

It is a matter of much gratification to the Imperial Tobacco Company that improvements year after year in the quality of Canadian leaf have enabled it to support home production so effectively.

WHAT COST WAR!

1700 reported killed or wounded.
200 casualties reported.
200 bombs dropped on town.

This is what the world is forced to read in these past few days, after twenty years or more, hearing of efforts to repair broken minds and twisted and torn bodies of men, in hospitals as a result of the Great War. Even if the hostilities were to halt immediately, for the next forty years Ethiopia and Italy will see cripples and hear of war cripples, victims of the gallant attacks with engines of death, tanks, guns, bombing planes, armies, manned by Christians, fighting a primitive Christian people whose ancestry outdates every modern people except the Chinese, other Orientals and the Hebrews.

To repair a nerve or tendon nations who fought in the Great War spend twenty or more years for the sake of alleviating one man's pain and disability, and often the result is not complete. No one denies the right of the injured heroes to this but why again do nations break bones, tear tissues, deprange brains to the tune of at least 1700 a day?

It is the work but of a fraction of a second to blow a body to smithereens or make it crippled, or to slay the mind. And it takes fortunes, and twenty, thirty or forty years to try repairing a bit of broken humanity and then perhaps to fail.

When will the world learn? Has Italy, one of the sufferers in the last war blinded her eyes and learned nothing?

PREVENT FIRES

Put lighted matches and smokes out before you throw them away. Keep matches where small children cannot reach them. Never smoke in the garage, barn, or attic, nor in bed.

Remove rubbish, waste papers and all unnecessary combustible materials. Provide metal ash and trash cans. Burn rubbish only in a safely covered brick or metal incinerator. Watch the fire.

Examine all stoves, furnaces, and smoke pipes to make sure they are safe and well away from woodwork or other burnable materials. Have needed repairs made at once.

Value the advice of your fire chief who says that many fires are caused by dirty or defective chimneys. Have the chimney cleaned regularly, and have all defects repaired.

Escape the danger of flammable liquid fires and explosions by keeping no gasoline in the house. Do dry cleaning with safe liquids or send the work to the cleaner. Never start fires with kerosene.

Notify the electric company of electrical trouble and the gas company of gas leaks. Replace "blown" fuses with new ones—not pennies. Avoid homemade wiring jobs. Don't look for gas leaks with a match.

Teach everyone in the family to be careful of fire, to watch stoves, fireplaces, electric irons and all other possible fire causes, and every day to remove old rags, paper and other rubbish.

Fireproof your home as far as possible by fire-safe roofing, fire stopping in hollow walls and partitions to stop the spread of flame, and a non-combustible basement ceiling.

Inquire of your fire chief, when buying a fire extinguisher, to be sure of getting the right kind. Don't hesitate to ask your firemen whenever you have questions on fire prevention.

Remember always where the nearest fire alarm box is and how to send an alarm. If telephoning, state the address is clearly understood. Use a neighbor's phone rather than one in the burning building.

Explain to everyone in the house what to do in case of fire, how to put out fire in clothing by wrapping in a rug or blanket, what to do when grease catches fire in the kitchen.

Save life and property from needless destruction by fire by keeping the principles of fire prevention always in mind and never taking a chance with fire.

SONS OF THE TEN

All I can think of is Joseph—
Joseph, the youngest, the lad;
Joseph, beloved of Jacob,
Now when the good earth is clad
In the glorious raiment of Autumn
Sumac and maple and oak,
All I can think of is Joseph,
He of the beautiful cloak.

Purple and scarlet and golden,
Yellow and russet and red—
Those, like the raiment of Joseph,
Over the countryside spread.
Joseph, the spirit of Autumn;
Beauty, the earth-lovers' meed—
Sold by the selfish for silver,
Lost to the children of greed!

Pity the children of Jacob!
Pity the sons the ten,
Trading their own for a pittance!
Blaming not, pity them—men,
Battering beauty for struggle,
Bending their backs in the mills,
Loving their souls in the cities,
Blinding their eyes to the hills!

LEST WE FORGET. How many readers noticed and gave due credit to the management of this great family journal for the photographs of the fistic furore of the century taken in New York one night recently and printed the next day in your newspaper. Not that the management is looking for kudoes, far be it from so, but so much is taken for granted nowadays that it is well occassionally just to remind ourselves what a wonderful age we are living in—of the newspaper of today with its news, views and photographs of news events in all parts of the world—the photographs following the news with almost incredible speed, hurled through the air, in fact, at over 200 miles per hour—compared to the weekly newspaper of our fathers when the only views in the paper would be those pertaining to patent medicine advs.

DEPRESSION IS DEFINITELY OVER—when cash customers pay over a million dollars to see a short four-round fight with six-ounce gloves in New York City, and over one thousand baseball fans stay up all night at the end of a 28-hour vigil waiting for seats for the World Series baseball contest—box seats $19.50 for strips of three and grand stand seats at $16.50 the set. Two sports waited in the line-up since September 19. They were provided with a pup tent, a radio and electric lamps, while a policeman agreed to guard their place in the line while they are away eating. There was also a big line-up before the $110 seat window. Baseball has certainly taken a great hold on the public of the United States.

THE MILLENIUM IS SURELY HERE—three candidates for membership in Canada's parliament sat together in perfect harmony at a Rotary club meeting and listened to speakers making fun of their party politics. This actually happened at a Rotary Club meeting in Belleville recently. Times have changed since candidates would hardly speak civilly to each other and when their followers would get so het up that coats were often shed and the argument settled with fists. Gosh all hemlock, we must be getting too educated, soft, we calls it.

Citizen Tells Off All Politicians

Everett, Mass., Oct. 7 (CP) — There's a citizen in this city who's had his fill of pump-handling politicians and he's taken a novel way to tell the world how he feels about the matter.

Eugene R. Willard tacked a notice on his front door today for all aspirants to office in the present municipal campaign to read. It says:

"With no intention of being discourteous it is our wish that candidates for public office will not seek a personal interview.

"Our slate is all made up and nothing any candidate can say will change it.

"If you have been here in February or in June or shaken our hand in August or in January, we assume your sincerity, but are highly suspicious of handshaking in September or October, especially if you aspire to public office.

"You may leave your card, if you wish. May the best man win."

Nothing can bring greater personal satisfaction to any married man than the knowledge that his wife will be provided for as long as she lives, and the children until they are educated.

NO SALUTE FROM BRITISH WARSHIPS FOR ITALIAN TRANSPORTS

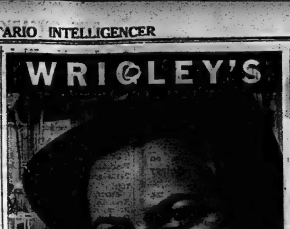
MILLIGAN—BOSERMAN

A quiet autumn wedding took place on Saturday morning, October 5th, at the United Church Parsonage in Shannonville, when Marjorie Berenice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Bosserman of Thurlow Township, was married to Mr. Charles Milligan, of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Milligan of Tyendinaga Township. Rev. W. J. Clarke officiated and the ceremony was conducted in the presence of parental friends and relatives of the young couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Milligan will live in Belleville and their many friends wish them every happiness.

GEDDES—BUNNETT

A marriage of interest to the people of Belleville and the surrounding district took place here Saturday afternoon when Mrs. Marion Helen Bunnett was united in marriage with Mr. Percival J. Geddes, both of the Township of Thurlow, by the Rev. W. T. Hodgins, M.A.



The happy couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Brown. Immediately after the ceremony they departed by car for Toronto and other Western Ontario points. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Geddes will take up their residence at the home of Mrs. Geddes on the Front Road.

ALDER—WALLBRIDGE

A quiet wedding took place on Saturday, October 5th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard B. Wallbridge, of Mamaracck, when their daughter, Gertrude Maude, became the bride of Mr. Harry Edward Alder, son of Mr. Alder and the late H. J. Alder of Lansdowne. Only immediate relatives were present. Rev. D. J. Campbell of Ameliasburg officiated. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of pibior crepe and velvet with black suede sandals and carried a bouquet of asters. Her only music was played by the bride's brother, Mr. Norman H. Wallbridge. The bridesmaid, Miss Audrey Wall, of Belleville, wore rough crepe with brown chiffon velvet and brown accessories.

The groomsman was Mr. Douglas H. Wallbridge, brother of the bride. A buffet luncheon was served at the home of the bride's parents.

The bride and groom received many lovely gifts including silver, linen and china. Mr. and Mrs. Alder left on a short honeymoon to Ottawa. The bride travelled in an old rose dress with brown accessories. They will reside at Bethel, Prince Edward County.

SHOWER IS HELD FOR BRIDE-TO-BE

Massanga.—On Tuesday evening, October 1st, the lovely country home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Wallbridge of Massanga was the scene of a happy gathering when their daughter Gertrude was given a shower by her friends and neighbours in honor of her coming marriage to Mr. Harry Alder of Bethel.

Rev. J. D. Campbell invited the bride and groom-to-be to join the friendly circle and a short program consisting of a sing-song and appropriate solos and readings was given.

At the conclusion of this, little Gilbert and Lorraine Adams very quaintly dressed as bride and groom entered the room to the strains of the Wedding March played by Miss Margaret Wallbridge. They took their places by the happy couple and the following address was read: Dear Gertrude and Harry,—

We are here, when every good appears to have a silver lining and you must surely be looking at the world through rose-coloured glasses, we, your friends and neighbours would like to share a bit of this happiness with you before you leave our community to make your new home in Bethel.

Marriage has sometimes been compared to a voyage on untravelled paths. The unknown always holds a fascination for us. So as you approach these unknown paths may you do so with the spirit of hope. The joys of new discoveries and opportunities will continually present themselves to you. May your new world be made richer and fuller by the coming of new interests. You will find true happiness by cultivating a greater and more sympathetic understanding for each of others.

The success of this voyage depends entirely on your determination to succeed in accomplishing that which is worthwhile in this life.

We do not feel that we are losing another friend, but rather that we have added a new friend to our circle.

As a token of our friendship we would ask you to accept these gifts and as your friends we extend to you both in a very friendly and hearty way our very best wishes for a happy wedded life.

Signed on behalf of your Massanga friends.

This was signed by four of the oldest residents of the community, Miss Bessie Wallbridge, Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Wallbridge and Mr. B. Osborne.

A beautifully decorated basket filled with gifts was then presented. After the numerous packages had been opened, Gertrude and Harry very fittingly thanked their friends for the many lovely gifts they had received.

Refreshments were served and a happy social time was enjoyed by all.

HOLLOWAY STREET W. M. S.

The regular monthly meeting of the Holloway Street W.M.S. was held in the church parlour on Wednesday, October 2nd, with a good crowd in attendance.

Minutes of last meeting were read and approved.

The various secretary's reports were accepted showing a keen interest manifested in all departments.

The Peace Secretary, Mrs. New man, gave some interesting and newspaper clippings followed by prayer.

The Temperance reading by Mrs. Leavens brought home the appalling conditions in the city of Belleville at the present time.

Mrs. Sharry and Mrs. Denton were leader, took charge of the progress singing Hymn 486, "Come let us sing of a wonderful love."

The Scripture Lesson found in Luke, 4th chapter, 16-21 verses, was read by Mrs. Bedell.

Mrs. Sharry read a very capable paper on the Devotional Leaflet, namely, "The Circle of Friendship."

The solo by Mrs. Lewis "Beyond" was appreciated.

The collection was taken by Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Sherry.

Mrs. Holmes was chosen as delegate to the Sectional Meeting at Camilton, Thursday, October 24th.

The Mizpah Benediction closed the meeting and a social half-hour was much enjoyed with Group No. 3 serving refreshments.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLE

"Calm Yourself"

Laughs, Romance and Speed In Grand New Twin-Bill

For sheer entertainment on the three-way road to hilarity, adventure and romance, "Calm Yourself" stands by its name. Certain, one of its story complications it weaves more gags than any picture seen here in weeks.

With Robert Young and Madge Evans handling a grand cast, this newest production from the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios comes to the Belle Tomorrow, for two days, matinee daily. Made in the best farcical manner, it possesses rare speed, and so its drama packs all the more punch while its farcical humor is as swift as a fun-loving heart could desire.

An Excellent Cast

The cast is admirably chosen. Miss Evans as bewitching, and Young meets all the demands of a big role. Nelly Fenton has her best part to date, and is more than acceptable. Shirley Ross is fine as the banker's bride. Other splendid performers are Hardie Albright, Ralph Morgan, who is stellar as the butler, Nat Pendleton, Claude Gillingwater, Raymond Hatton and Herman Bing.

Sally Eilers Co-Starred

Comedy, romance and action pack "Pursuit", Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's hilarious romance of carefree adventure on the open road, which, with Chester Morris and Sally Eilers co-starred as the second feature attraction on the same program.

It is the story of the mocking adventure of a young couple snagging a child out of the state in a guardianship fight. Their adventures, some hectic, some humorous, occur in lode cars and buses, and in many locations along the open road between San Francisco and the Mexican border.

Morris is perfectly cast as the adventuring aviator, and Miss Eilers a beautiful as well as a perfect partner in adventure for him. Little Scotty Beckett, of "Our Gang" comedies, scores heavily as the child fugitive.

Supporting Features

C. Henry Gordon plays one of his rare sympathetic roles, and is convincingly clever as the kindly detective, while Henry Travers provides comedy as the itinerant peripatetic who turns amateur detective. Dorothy Peterson, Harold Huber, Granville Bates, Minor Watson and other clever players are in the cast.

Edwin C. Hill detailing the latest World News of the day highlights of which are scenes in the War zone, Eucharistic Congress stirring throngs, in which $2,000 marches form living-mantrance to climax of congress at Cleveland, Ohio, aftermath of the latest battle of the Century, and many other interesting and timely events.

Will Rogers Departs

Your favorite, Will Rogers blazes a new path in his glorious entertainment career in "Steamboat Round the Bend", a drama, mellow with humor.... of the old Mississippi be presented at the Belle Wednesday night for the last time with three other selected screen treats.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Paris In Spring"

Mary Ellis' Voice Thrills in Story of Love And Laughter

The screen's leading lady of song and its most debonair lover are currently appearing together here in Belleville on the Capitol screen, where Mary Ellis and Tullio Carminati enact the leads in "Paris In Spring."

Skilfully directed by Lewis Milestone who has no equal for lightness of touch, "Paris in Spring" is a rapicious, bubbling, effervescent film of love and its gay manifestations in the beautiful city by the Seine.

The opening shots of the picture are scenes of the Eiffel Tower, never before used for the purpose in films. Here, Tullio Carminati and Ida Lupino are preparing to dive from the tower because their respective sweethearts are supposed to be in an audience below. They meet and decide, instead of suicide to join forces and make their sweethearts so jealous as they possibly can.

The scheme works beautifully up to a point, but the Paris police begin to pursue Carminati who is accused of abducting Ida Lupino, and the girl takes him to her grandfather's mansion in the outskirts of Paris to hide out.

Miss Ellis, who loves Carminati and James Blakely who loves Ida Lupino, follow. Grandmother fails to pair up the romantic couples properly, and there is an evening of wild comedy, arising from the comedy mix-up. All comes out, even on the following morning, when grandmother calls them together and the sweethearts kiss and make up.

Mack Gordon and Harry Revel, those prolific writers of music, contribute the musical score which Miss Ellis sings in this picture, and it includes such hits as "Good Night Paselle" "Why do they call it Gay Paree", supporting roles in the comedy are ably handled by Lynne Overman and Jessie Ralph.

To round out this excellent entertainment the Capitol Management also presents the latest and funniest of Andy Clyde's comedy's, it is entitled, "It's the Cat" an intriguing story of a cat, and good photography is called "In Old Vienna." and a cartoon completes the bill.

Each lady attending the performances on Monday and Tuesday will receive a handsome piece of Du barry dinnerware.

Hold Strictly To Your Daily Beauty Period

By HELEN FOLLETT

It's pleasant to flirt with old Mister Sun on a summer day, let him kiss your face, turn it palest cream and brown and not care how the old Joke looks. But when the leaves begin to fall, gentle Annie, there comes a warning. There's a deep yearning for the normal complexion. And say what you will, tan is definitely out of fashion. It does not do good by it.

What's the point in adding to it but strict allegiance to the nightly beautifying half-hour? A pot of cream and coddling will be necessary now to get the face back to normal, not to mention the neck. Neck and face and all look pretty terrible right now.

Sponge with peroxide after washing with soap and water. Read for all the hints about the liquid rites on. Then take a fingertipful of a good brand of cold cream and begin and stroking motions, working upward from the collar bone. Follow with a quick tapping. Refresh the tissues round the eyes by circling with the ring finger, starting under the upper lid, giving an inward pressure, then a chestnut.

By combining a whitening agent and a nourishing conditioner in one you're not apt to irritate. Dark skin cells must scale off. There's a time for that. Experiment. You'll find it if you are faithful to your beauty code.

Correct Manners

BREAD-AND-BUTTER LETTER

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My her friend and I were invited for a week-end at his sister's home in the country. We had a lovely time, and I want to write her a little note expressing my thanks and telling her what a nice time I had. She also let me have my meals at home, for which I wish to thank her. Three weeks have passed since this week-end. I'm rather late with my thank-you, don't you think so? I'm not very good at writing letters, but I know that you are, so please help me—kindly!

Yes, your bread-and-butter letter is indeed hardly the perfect type I would make to a bit for this procrastination by writing an especially enthusiastic note, and sending her a very carefully chosen gift, something that your visit to her home suggests to you that she will especially appreciate having. Or perhaps might do something like this:

Dear Mrs Fairway,

Ever since I've returned from my pleasant visit with you my thoughts have been teeming with beautiful memories of you. I must every day to tell you of my deep, deep thanks for your hospitality. It was to me a great pleasure to see you as a perfect hostess. Every hour was filled to the brim—being with you and your family in your lovely home, meeting your charming friends, having the wonderfully good times. Thank you again for the delightful time that you gave me for me—it was a great honor you gave me, and I've never had such a grand time. All of your guests were so thoroughly charming that I hated to say good-bye to them.

The sweater that you so kindly loaned me saved my life—for I was terribly cold motoring home. I am returning it to you in the same mail with this letter, with many, many thanks. I only wonder with it a bridge set, which I'm sure you will find useful. And here's hoping that you will allow me to be your first prize—on the table on which you are playing.

Dearest love to you and your family, dear Mrs. Fairway, and always my deepest thanks for your great goodness to me.

Affectionately yours,

Wedding Expenses

Dear Miss Beeckman:

We are a young girl and a young man, twenty-one and twenty-two years of age. We are going to be married next month, and we intend to have a church wedding. We have no fuss. We have asked a few married couple to be our attendants and witnesses.

As we intend to be married outside of the state, do you think it would be all right to wear a travelling suit?

2. Should I wear a corsage with my travelling suit?

3. Does the groom pay the expenses of the trip and room, as the state in which we are to be married has a three-day wait for the license? As we intend to make the trip by motor, I don't think it is necessary to have a room for the night. As we are not coming back into the state, the couple should we pay their expenses?

G. and A.

1. For your wedding you would most appropriately wear a street length dress with a small hat.

2. A corsage would be appropriate.

3. The groom, being considerate, gracious and fair thing is for the groom, or you and the groom together, to pay the expenses of the trip of these two kind friends, from the moment they leave their own homes to the moment when they return to their homes. They should be presented with a round-trip ticket to the city in which you and they are to stay, and the groom should request the hotel management to send their bill or bills to him. There should be no indebtedness about this, and as you and the groom should make it clear to them that this arrangement is to be carried out. It will make it easier for all concerned, and especially for you, as it's a delightful thing to do. You and the groom should be ready to bring a kind and co-operative.

Miss Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on Good Manners submitted by readers)

Advice to the Lovelorn

Makes His Living By Gambling.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

He is only 21 and as he never spoke of his business or employment his mother objected to my going with him. One night I begged him to tell me why he was always so well supplied with money and asked such irregular hours. He told me that he was a gambler and that he made plenty of money.

This was an awful shock to me as I am very much in love with him. I have been through high school and two years of business college, so you think I can get a job? I do not want to stay in the same town with him.—L.A.

Someone has said that every human weakness is capitalized in gambling can be cured. Once bitten by the gamble it is almost scientifically incurable. Married to a gambler, there will be no peace or stability in your life. It will be a feast one day and a famine the next.

As you seem to have finished your course in business college, why not get them to help you to a position by giving you recommendation? And why feel obliged to leave your home town?

Is October a Lucky Month For Weddings?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We are planning to be married in October. Do you think it is a lucky month? And what would you think of being married on the bride's birthday and the groom's birthday both occur in October, but a week apart.—S. G.

I think it would be a charming idea for the bride to be married on her birthday. I have never heard anything against October as a wedding month. In fact, it is highly popular. All months are lucky, my dear, when two who love each decide to do their best to make their partners happy.

Is It All Right to Borrow From Her?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Are you going with a girl whose father is very well off, and who gives her a most generous allowance. Sometimes she comes to me in spite of foolishness, while I'm so hard up I can't even take her to a movie. Is it all right for me to borrow from her occasionally?—Disheartened.

If you hope to marry your "heiress" it seems to me that it would be very foolish to borrow from her. A penny has often turned the current of friendship and a borrowing friend soon takes on the aspect of an enemy. Don't borrow. If you're in earnest with this girl,

Dr. Bleck's Daily Test Hint.

Although what you eat is important, food digestion is even more important. The breaking-down process by which food is broken up into chemical constituents that can be absorbed by the tissues, plus the absorption of these products, is collectively known as digestion. Many popular books can be purchased on this most important subject.

Such season we get a new crop of plays. Whether we live in large cities, where such plays appear, or whether we live in places where access to the theatre is difficult, there still persists a great interest in these new productions. The question of which plays are worth seeing is therefore pertinent.

Besides, there has been an increasing number of plays published and commenting quality when read instead of seen and heard—a play in book form is a thousand times better than no play at all.

Before we answer the question as to which plays deserve our attention, let us consider the matter of plays in general — what they are, what their purpose is, and how they can yield us.

In the first place, whether it be drama, tragedy, comedy, farce or melodrama, the play should have a theme, a plot, and a story. In this I do not mean the ability to laugh. A play alone on everything else, must hold the interest, which is achieved by the development of the story and the play tells.

Next, the story must be so arranged that it has a plot, and the characters about whom the story is told must come into conflict with each other. Lastly, the play should have a beginning, a middle and an end. In other words when the play is finished it should leave a logical, satisfying effect on mind.

Plays can be about any subject connected with life—its trials and tribulations, its successes and heartaches, its joys and sorrows, its unexpected surprises. Always, however, the plays they present must be about life and what is more interesting than the truth about life. As soon as a play tells untruths the chances are that the audience will yawn, get dead-tired, stuffed puppets and do not hold our interest.

Unfortunately, most of the plays that get a run during any given year violate one or more of the psychological rules of play interest. This has often been noted, but often are stilled, mechanical, lifeless, in their presentation of life. They, too, often set out to do something different with the result that they miss the wrong values. That is usually the chief reason why most plays fail. The world will only stick to the truths of life, they would be better off being as kind and co-operative.

If you have any way of judging a good play reading the current newspaper reviews should not be implicitly relied on. They are often written by such authors as Ibsen, Shakespeare, Galsworthy, Bernard Shaw, Galsworthy and our Eugene O'Neill. You will notice the standards of this calibre do not fix about life. They tell the truth in broad strokes. They tell the truth about their inner struggles. That is why their plays fascinate.

In a good play you see yourself and others in same manner you are like one of the characters. At any time, you can imagine yourself in a situation similar to the one in the play. You identify, therefore, are roused and stimulated.

Nothing, in fact, can thrill like a worthwhile play. It pegs you up whether you are tired, worried or weary.

Here's review the lessons of life for us in a way that is neither preachy nor pedantic. We really learn while entertained. Sometimes you can get as much out of a play as you would out of years of actual living.

"It is a very discouraging season for the farmers of the West," said Mr Harvey in conversation with the correspondent of the Ontario Intelligencer. "They are the worst crushed one of the poorest crops in the history of the West. Going out West the second week in August, when we reached the Red River Valley in Manitoba we were told to expect bumper wheat crops badly infested with blight and the crop was worthless. We were told there that the crop in Manitoba was not affected but crossing over the boundary we found conditions just about as bad in Manitoba as they were to the south," stated Mr. Harvey, "and all through the Portage Plains the farmers were trying to burn the standing crop with poor success as the land was very wet. The one arc darley crops were fair on early sown but late crops were poor. West of Dauphin conditions were some better and those who were fortunate in sowing Reward Wheat had a good sample grading No. 1 and running as high as 30 bushels to the acre. Flax crops are not to be found crop conditions.

Mr. Harvey reports district harvest was just under way when we got there. The weather was very favorable for the harvest and threshing season. There was no frost damage to the crops in that district. Threshing was pretty well finished when we left for home on the 28th of September but came through several districts where there were thousands of acres to thresh yet standing in stooks in the area. Some farmers found it did not pay to thresh the crop after it was cut. Nowhere were chinch bugs reported as such. The grain being too light to work with the weigher. The best part about the Western crops was that in the districts where the crop was good other years was so bad had such wonderful promise of a bumper crop this year. It was struck by the rust the first week in August and practically ruined.

"The trip home was delightful, coming through Northern Michigan. The maples and oaks were a blaze of color. They ran into a snow storm near the Soo, coming back by way of North Bay and Callander. The Canadian National route to the Mines Dionne at Corbeil. Two of the ladies motored to the Soo with the aid of their nurse and gave them a wave of the hand and a very pretty smile. The day was very cold and snowy but quite a big crowd met them at the depot to see the ladies. They were requested to speak but refused. They travelled 20,000 had registered during the summer. At 11 a.m. and at 3 p.m. were wonderful talks and lectures to the public. They were glad to get home safely after their three day trip. The distance being 1850 miles.

WALL STREET FINANCIAL

New York, Oct. 7 (AP)—A quiet but rather firm stock market to-day kept one hand on the ticker and the other on the business picture. The European war situation, more confusing as ever to traders, did not seem to stimulate either exceptional buying or selling.

International Nickel was highly active and strong with other leaders such as Dome, Dominion Stores and Standard Brands. Among the rails the curb Lake Shore and Hiram Walker both pushed a trifle higher, while Consolidated Gas and Canadian funds improved ¼ of a point each in the curb.

Shares of Spiegel-May-Stern got up 4 points and Montgomery Ward advances included Chrysler, General Motors, Stewart-Warner, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Case, Johns-Manville, Pont, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Anaconda, Westinghouse and Consolidated Gas. The metals and utilities, along with a number of others, were about unchanged. American Can dropped a point.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Oct. 7 (CP)—Copper stocks again held the main interest on the Mining Section of the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day after Pitt-Gordon, Mining Corporation and Ventures advanced sharply. Falconbridge and Hudson Bay weakened slightly. Higher metal prices on the London market helped to speed up the buying in the group, which was active and slightly weak and the golds steady to strong.

Pitt-Gordon, Mining Corp. was demand at a gain of about 35 cents and Ventures, Brulorne, Pickle Crow, Central Patricia and Provincial Explorers Airways were well ahead by early afternoon. Hudson Bay and Noranda developed a soft tone while Falconbridge showed the strongest of the penny group.

HOGS

Toronto, Oct. 7—(CP)—A gain of 10c at Hull and losses of 10 cents at Chatham and London were the only activity changes from yesterday's market points today, while all other points held to unchanged prices:

Chatham $8.40; Stratford $8.35; Barrie, $8.35; London $8.35; Hull $8.55; Brantford $8.55.

TIGERS WIN

Varsity Easily Downs Western With Isbister's Punting

By ELMER DULMAGE

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Traditional insecurity of football champions, was strikingly apparent today from one end of the eastern battlefield to the other as a flaming McGill team held the upper hand in the Intercollegiate Union, Argonauts remained unbeaten in the Big Four and Sarnia Imperials, Canadian titleholds, were confronted with the certainty of a grim O.R.F.U. struggle.

McGill, third-place team of the 1934 College race, upset Coach Herrs's Queen's champions 9-7 in the greatest surprise triumph of Saturday's grand opening of the season. Leo Hnatiuk booted a field goal from placement in the third quarter for the winning points and the Redmen were just strong enough to hold off the tricolor thereafter.

A 21-1 victory for University of Toronto over the Western Mustangs, bringing Joe Connelly and Bob Isbister to the forefront of the day's starring performers, meant that the blue and white of both McGill and Queen's—perhaps prove strong enough to whip them both.

Argo Win Thriller

While Hamilton Tigers defending Big Four champions, scored their second straight victory, defeating Montreal 7-1. The Bengals made no gain on Al Brown's Argonauts in a battle from Ottawa Roughriders, 15-18. The Tigers won without using Johnny Wright, signed in mid-week.

A highly-touted Toronto Balmy Beach team invaded Sarnia to make a first-class job of upholding its reputation. It was beaten 1-0 by the powerful Imperials in the opening O.R.F.U. contest, Hugh Stirling's single in the second quarter being the only concession by the Beaches.

Nearly always on the defensive, Queen's succumbed to a McGill brigade that played desperately in the third period, stopping two attempted placement kicks by Ed Barnaba, that would have turned victory into defeat. Most of the way the Kewpie team seemed to carry superior weapons.

But one dramatic aerial stab, by 165-pound forward Joe Herb Westman to Ardel Hodge, sent the crimson wave on its way. Westman passed 35 yards into the open field to hedge, who gained another 40 yards for the game's only touchdown.

Isbister Great Punter

Isbister, a good punter last year and a better one today, was credited with the sensational Comelly, Grosjean to Isbister combination that to trounce Western as thoroughly as it had been predicted they would. In addition to his punting exhibition, the outstanding Toronto plunger, who incidentally is a very good ball carrier, was a very major share of the glory with a brilliant ball-carrying exhibition. The Mustang halves behaved well behind a wingline that fought hard, but the Empire backfield was just too entirely at sea in its attempts to solve Connelly. The latter rolled off gains of 15 to 45 yards in every period.

Tommy Burns, who hadn't practiced all week because he rushed off to Baltimore to be with his bride-wife, kicked two field goals in the Argonauts' triumph at Ottawa. Ottawa's Abe Kilowna matched these and each team scored a touchdown, but the Rollers counted three singles in the final period to snatch a close win.

At Hamilton the Tigers beat down a stubborn Montreal force, 7-1. Peiserman scored a touchdown in the second period when Bill Pendergast, Wheatley halfback, dropped a dick on his goal line. The lucky touchdown provided the margin of victory.

DISGUSTED

Does Mickey Cochrane look disgusted! The Detroit Tiger catcher-manager is watching a Cub-propelled ball flying far into the outfield to register a hit and aging in another run as Chicago Cubs took the first world series game 3-0 at Navin Field. "Please boy, tighten up" he is pleading, almost aloud. Tigers committed three errors.

COLLINS TO GIANTS?

JIM COLLINS

After a conference with Branch Rickey of the St. Louis Cardinals, Bill Terry, N. Y. Giant manager, appeared so jaunty that sport scribes reached the conclusion that Terry had brought Jim "Ripper" Collins to hold down first base for the Giants next season. The sale was not officially confirmed. Terry will retire from active playing if he secures a capable first-sacker to take his place. The peppery Collins is shown here.

GET SERIES CASH

Gil Hasbrouck Joe Reggio

Big cuts of world series cash will go to Gil Hasbrouck, batboy of Chicago Cubs, and Joe Reggio, who has similar post with Detroit Tigers. Players voted them a cut of the series money.

ASKED TO LOCATE VESSEL

Oshawa, N.Y., Oct. 7 (AP)—The United States coast guard has been asked to attempt to locate the steamship Adrian Iselin, which has not been reported to her owners since she left Oswego early yesterday, while a heavy sea was running on Lake Ontario.

The ship has a crew of 21 men. She is carrying 2,500 tons of bituminous coal. Harvey McBride is her agent.

WARNEKE PULLS ARM LIGAMENT WINNING GAME

Chicago Pitcher Out For Series With Shoulder Injury

BACK IN DETROIT

"Chuck" Klein, Forgotten Man Now Baseball Hero

By Edward J. Neil, Associated Press Sports Writer

Detroit, Oct. 7 (AP)—Back to the Michigan icebox came the 1935 World Series today and to the jubilance of Chicago Cubs, clinging desperately to their forlorn chance for baseball glory despite Lon Warneke's pitching shoulder injury to the dustierings of the home town Tigers, balked one game short of their goal, to the generally lusty-boy-cry of a bitter, no-quarter battle, was added a religious complication.

The Old Tom Kippur, solemn day of atonement, strictest holiday on the Jewish religious calendar, and yet Hank Greenberg of Orthodox Bronx descent is ready again to lay first base and hit in the clean-up position for Tigers on the day his religion says he can do nothing.

As Warneke, hero of the Cubs pitching forces retired to the sidelines with a pulled muscle in his right shoulder, probably out for the rest of the series, Greenberg repeated his injured rival was healed enough to let him join the Tigers in their search for Lew Fonseca, Cubs veteran southpaw, in the drive today for the one victory holding them off from Detroit's first world baseball championship. Tommy Bridges, curve ball ace who won the Cubs 8-3 in the second game, will be pleading almost aloud for Tigers committed three errors.

Greenberg to Play

"Hank says he can play, and that's what he'll do if he's ready all right again," said Mickey "Parthermore, Flea Clifton stays at third base.

That leaves Marvin Owen, Tigers' regular third baseman, sitting on the bench for the first time in the series, forced out by a flashy younger star, who hasn't hit safely yet though he's belted some fine drives, and his value as a fielding and batting cleanup around third. It leaves Marvin, who isn't going to be a substitute for Greenberg, who is on the abstinence list for the annual holiday, when from sundown last night to sundown tonight, there must be fasting, prayer and no work or any kind. But anyway Greenberg, who has been badly injured in the first two games, feels right at present.

Before Warneke, going six innings with his pitching arm in a sling like Big Bill Lee, beat the Tigers and Schoolboy Rowe 3 to 1 yesterday to give the Cubs a two game lead, Chicago the Tigers led three games to one.

Only the Pittsburg Pirates of 1909 were able to fight back from that narrow edge of defeat to win both a seven game series. The Pirates, trailing 3 to 1 against the Washington Senators that time, did it the only way it can be accomplished, by sweeping the last three straight.

DICK WILDING WINS MARATHON

With Victory Goes The Canadian Marathon Championship

Toronto, Oct. 7 (CP)—Canada today acclaimed a new marathon champion, stout-hearted Dick Wilding of New York Athletic Club, Mount Dennis, who pounded his way to victory over a field of 47 to win the Canadian marathon championship here Saturday.

The Toronto schoolmaster covered the 26-mile, 385-yard grind in 2:46:01 a pace, which proved too gruelling for the defending champion, Dave Komonen of Sudbury and Lillis Percy Wyer of Toronto, former titleholder. Wilding's time, under close to favorable weather conditions, was less than two minutes short of Komonen's all-time record of 2:44:06. Wyer, a native of Toronto was second and Fred Brisco, Toronto, third.

Jim Bartlett of Oshawa was fourth and Jim Shaw of the Toronto Monarch Club fifth. Strung out behind the first five were Billy Reynolds of Oak Ridges; Ernest Wilson, Niagara Falls' Harriers; Bob Honeyer, Kitchener; Irish Vincent, Niagara Falls' Harriers; and T. S. Caldwell Niagara Falls, N.Y., 23th.

THAT TIGER OUTFIELD

By Jack Sords

Heard Around the Dugouts

Chicago, Ills., Oct. 6.—Those amusing Cubs, creators deluxe of startling upsets, provided another one for the book as they trimmed Detroit Tigers and "Schoolboy" Rowe 3-1 in the fifth game of the World Series here today. After losing three straight to the Tigers, two on their home lot, the Little Bears were not conceded much chance of winning this afternoon's game.

But Lon Warneke and "Chuck" Klein combined to perfection in their pitching and hitting efforts and sent 50,000 roaring fans into delirious excitement. Warneke hurled three-hit ball for six innings and then was forced to the showers with his shoulder muscles badly wrenched. He may not pitch again this season.

The slugging Klein, making his debut as a regular, "kissed" one of Rowe's fast balls into the right field bleachers in the third inning. Herman, who had tripled, scored ahead of him and these two runs were all the Cubs needed.

Bill Lee took o'er the mound chores for the Cubs in the seventh and his mates promptly gave him a three-run lead to work on as a result of Owen's error on Galan's grounder and Herman's healthy single.

The Tigers were extremely docile until the last two frames. They had two on in the eighth, but could not produce. In the ninth, Gehringer, Goslin and Fox rapped successive singles, and the former came in with the Tigers first and only run ed so mercilessly in Detroit on Thursday, pitched the last two innings and only two men reached base, one on a single and the other a deliberate pass.

"Goose" Goslin's hitting streak which had extended to four straight, was finally stopped when he was deliberately passed in the third. In direct contrast, young Phil Cavaretta got his first hit of the series in the fifth and came through again in the ninth.

The games in Chicago have been all that could be desired of World Series play. Each contest has been close and bitterly contested until the last man was out. The only flaw, however, from a Chicago point of view, was that the Tigers won two of the three games.

CLANCY ALLOWS ONE HIT TO GALT

Kingston Ponies Blank Terriers 9-0 In First of Final Series

By The Canadian Press

Junior Ontario Baseball Championship was settled for another year last night when week-end as Brantford Alerts once more hung the trophy in their locker rooms. Meaning Galt Terriers, who made a sensational rise in the play-offs, sweeping everything before them came up against a stonewall and were blanked 9-0 by Kingston Ponies in the Senior finals.

It was a story of the "cast meets west", and this time the east triumphed. Galt, as they had said before, played "behind-the-leader" baseball all summer and then swept into the opening stage that ended them the inter-county league title at the expense of the 1933 Ontario Hockey League champions.

The Terriers clashed during the week and with Kingston Indy's crew, kingpins of the Central Ontario League. They themselves had upset the dope by quashing Peterborough. It was a case of two teams on the climb meeting each other for the first time.

But Bud Clancy went on and pitched a game that baffled Galt players great as about. He allowed but one hit in nine innings, struck out seven and issued three walks. His mates gave him good support, with Compeau, former Peterborough star, leading with three hits in five times up.

It was Kingston's game from first to last. They got a single in the early innings and then knocked out five runs, including a homer over the scoreboard in the fourth inning. Galt used three pitchers, but to no avail. The fourth game will be played in Kingston Wednesday.

Meanwhile the Alerts struggled for 10 innings with Oshawa, coming out a 5-1 victory with the right to wear the crown for another year, in a 10-inning contest. Brantford won the first game more easily 4-0.

BLOCKED HOIST PRODUCES TOUCH

Peterboro, Oct. 7—Belleville won a hard-fought battle from Peterboro Petes in the O.R.F.U. intermediate series here Saturday, defeating the local squad 7 to 2. Neither team had much success in making gains through the line or around the ends, and the superior kicking of Powell for Belleville was the chief difference.

Peterboro scored a safety touch early in the first period, but the second session, Belleville rushed a rouge and then won the game when a Peterboro kick was blocked and Rigby recovered the loose ball to score a touchdown. Peterboro took one point back on a rouge before half-time. A rouge by Belleville in the third period was the only point scored in the last half. CRUISER LEANDER REACHES GIBRALTAR TODAY

Gibraltar, Oct. 7—(AP)—The British cruiser Leander and the sloop Londonderry arrived here from England today.

At the same time the Spanish destroyers Legaspi and Churruca reported at the nearby Spanish battleship Alfonso for duty with the cruiser.

LONNIE HANDCUFFS TIGERS WITH HIS FIREBALL

LON WARNEKE

Lanky Lon Warneke, the Arkansas boy, was very much "hero of the first world series" game in Detroit, as he handcuffed the Detroit Tiger cluters, shutting them out with four hits and personally registering eight assists to tie the world series record in that department. Here is Lonnie, burning one down the line at Detroit's batters during his sensational performance.

SINISTER SHADOW

by JOHN GOODWIN

"First," I ask you to remember that Bannister Cooke, though a scoundrel, was never in the hands of the police, he was one of those successful scoundrels, far-seeing, cunning and wealthy, who evade the penalties of the law. Neither his record nor his fingerprints are on the books of the Criminal Investigation Department. But the finger-prints of both Bachner and Saxby are in the books at Scotland Yard. I have copies of them here."

Saxby laid the finger-print cards on the desk before him.

"The prosecution is obliged to prove that a definite person was killed, and that person was not Bannister Cooke.

"Where is Bannister Cooke? If he is dead, where is his body?

"Was it blood on the railway line on the night of the 4th? The body mutilated and rendered unrecognizable by a passing train, was not the body of Cooke. Cooke may or may not be dead, but it is not Cooke who lies buried in the tomb of King's Hill Cemetery after identification by four people including his own doctor, who recognized him only by his clothes and a mark you, under the direction of Hugo MacKay, Cooke's executor, who shot himself this morning rather than take the witness stand. For he doubtless knew what was coming to him when the truth was revealed; as now it must be.

"I say definitely and with certainty that the body on whose identity the prosecution base their charge against the defendant is not the body of Bannister Cooke, but of a convicted criminal whose identity marks and fingerprints are on the police records; I have them before me.

"I reject in toto the evidence of identity given by the coroner's jury, for one vital indictment was made—no finger-prints were taken. At the time, it seemed needless to take them. It was assumed that, whatever else in the case might be obscure, the dead man was and could be no other than Bannister Cooke. That was the basic error. The test is simple, and should still be available. Not finished myself, I will show that this is true; I will make that truth manifest.

"I demand that the prosecution agree to an order for the exhumation of the body—which they have declared to be that of Bannister Cooke, and the taking of finger-prints and other evidence.

"The defendant is indicted for murdering or being concerned in the murder of Bannister Cooke. That indictment is therefore bad, and the charge against Mr. Brian Chalmers falls to the ground."

Stainforth turned in his seat, looking at Granger with bleak amazement and incredulity. The jurymen were silent. At first they seemed stunned.

Superintendent Guthrie stared at Granger with an expression of detachment that changed to derision—and then to consternation. He glanced at the jury. A moment later, a police sergeant, tall and stalwart, guards at the back of the court touched him on the arm and whispered to him.

Guthrie went out silently and was met hurriedly by his police doctor. No one noticed him. All eyes were on Stainforth, who stood up like a man who hears something that makes him doubt his senses.

Mr. Chenning, what is making this preposterous demand?" he all but gasped.

Granger turned upon him swiftly.

"Does the prosecution refuse? If they refuse let them put that refusal on record and I will conclude my address to the jury."

The Crown Counsel hesitated. Already half the case was clouded with doubt. How much more if in the event of a refusal the jury were to carefully scrutinize and particularly after Granger had done with them. Once acquitted, he could never be tried.

"Let the council for the defence," said Stainforth, "state definitely his evidence and his reasons for this claim."

"You will hear my reasons," retorted Granger, "when I hear your refusal or consent to the order for exhumation is definite and final. Not before. The issue is quite simple. Either you agree or you do not."

"Why was not the plea advanced before?" asked Stainforth, referred to the jury. "It is not obvious how worthless any such evidence would be?"

"Is that my fault?" retorted Granger. "It is not for the necessary clerical work of the defence to have heard the case against the defendant for two days, to have his innocence proved for the Crown to prove him guilty. Only then, it seems, that there should be no difficulty whatever. I submit that this fact is clear."

The judge interposed.

"Mr. Granger you know as well as I do that no one in this court has any power to make such an order. That would be a question for the Home Office. If Mr. Stainforth declines to agree to any such application then the case must stand as it is, and the trial will proceed. Mr. Granger, you have put your case, the defence at this point of identity."

"It is the identity of the dead man," said Granger. "Let his grave be opened, and I will accept the decision of Scotland Yard on the matter."

"This is a point not arguable before a jury who are here solely to decide on the facts of evidence," said the judge. "I propose that the court adjourn while both learning counsel consult with me in my room on the measure to be taken, and the trial will proceed."

Stainforth glanced unwillingly. Every one in court stood up while the judge went out. Both counsel followed him.

A buzz broke out from and to and of the court room.

"What'll they do?" said a reporter at the press table. "Put it up to the Home Office? Stainforth won't agree!"

"If he doesn't," said the other, "I'll give you a hundred to one Chalmers walks out of here a free man. Granger has burned his boats."

Ten minutes later, the judge and counsel returned. Mr. Justice Hawksby addressed the jury, while both counsel remained seated.

"Members of the jury," said the judge. "The court will adjourn until Monday, pending an answer by the Home Office on the claim made by the defence. At eleven a.m. on Monday you will be in your places here; meanwhile you remain sworn as jurors in this case, and I warn you in the interim strictly to avoid discussion with any person whatsoever."

The judge rose and left. There was an uproar of excitement that spread swiftly through the town. Within ten minutes the news was flashing over the wires, and soon the headlines were screaming:

CHALMERS TRIAL SENSATION
Deadlock is Expected. Who is the "Dead Man?"

CHAPTER LVII

Howe was lying back a little rigid, his eyes closed; the speed needle touched ninety along the straight. Louis road on the last lap of the journey. Sonia glanced at him.

"Scared, Howe?" she said.

"I've a pretty good nerve, a man can only do once," answered Howe philosophically, "but if you tell us before we make it there'll be nothing doing."

Sonia laughed.

"I'm in a hurry. Got to be there before the light fails. Wonder what's doing every hotfoot in at the Assize Court? Brian's safe. But even that's not enough for me. I've got to make sure."

"Howe, it this thing goes right, you know what I want you to do. Don't you? Just sit closer! let me run it the way I want to. Until your time comes."

Howe nodded.

"I've agreed to that; though the more I think about it the less I like it."

"Why?" said Sonia. "There's no danger."

"I'd like to be sure of that," said Howe grimly.

"And if there was, who more efficient than you at handling it? I've been thinking it out all the way along. Only one thing left that I want. I'm going to have it."

"Unless we're on a fool's errand," observed Howe. He glanced at the route map on his knees. "You ought to be your village—on the hill yonder. Park and do the cross-roads."

Sonia braked and drove slowly to the outskirts of a village just off the main highway; a pointing finger-post read: Arbatton.

"Jude's never fooled me yet," she said. "Jude Bach Hotel was an easy landmark; a tall new-built road house with a swing-sign, on a rise of ground just outside a peaceful little village almost among trees."

Sonia drove gently past the hotel yard and braked opposite the door. She was about to get out; but before she had even stopped the engine, Jude Stubbings emerged from the hotel porch, opened the car door, and plumped herself down in the back seat.

"Keep right on!" said Jude. "Thank your lucky mascots!" she said, and drive slow. 'Nother mile to go, and we ring the bell. Try G'ead."

"You've got him?" exclaimed Sonia, as she shot the car ahead.

"I saw you comin'—been watchin' out for you from the top window of the hotel. Nice thing that was to the right . . . that's it. Yes, he delivered the goods."

"I knew I'd backed the winner when I saw you, Jude!"

"You're the winner. You showed the way. And you've brought the right chap with you! He leaned over the seat and grinned at Howe. "Hullo, Howe! Glad you're in much for Mr. Howe to do, so far's I can see. You'll be glad you're here. Didn't bring a doctor, too, did you?"

"Very sorry, Jude," said Howe. "Where is he?"

He looked curiously at Jude. She looked a little older than Granger's clock and a bad wig pulled down over her fiery hair; her face was alight with excitement.

"He's locked him up in the little cottage peaceful an' quiet; just the place for a retired sailor and his dog. Nobody comes there to have got on to him before; but I'll take no risks. I'll put a plank across the door. Then we'll go and get some time ago. He's been away from nobody knew where he'd gone to. Came back this mornin' and saw him close up, for the first time didn't see me, though I'll have made me out. Then he went back and stop back here while you an' the Captain go ahead on your own. You won't want me."

Jude pointed up the lane.

"Round the next corner you'll see a I'll thatched cottage with a mulberry tree in the garden, an' a white gate. That's it. One minute's walk; you don't want the car."

Sonia nodded, and glanced at Howe. The two of them set off together, standing by the car and grinning, waved her hand to them.

"Much better for you to stay with her while I go alone," said Howe.

"Nonsense," retorted Sonia. "What d'you suppose I came all this way for?"

Jude getting sun til the lane with a red glow, but in the east black clouds were gathering and there was a faint rumble of distant thunder. A brief walk brought them up to the bend of the lane, and round the corner they came upon a tiny thatched cottage with a patch of garden bright with late chrysanthemums, and a white wicket gate.

Howe opened the gate, took a rapid glance round the place, and walked up the path to the porch that was overhung with flowering jessamine. There was no need to knock; the door stood ajar. He turned it open and strode in, Sonia followed him.

The room was empty. A little parlor with rugs on a brick floor, a wood fire smouldering in the hearth, a deep old armchair before it, a table in the middle and a smaller one by the window. The place was neat and cosy; there was a faint odor of strong tobacco. Howe glanced on into the inner room.

Sonia stood still, staring about her amazingly. "It's come back. "Gone?" she exclaimed.

"Well gone far." Howe pointed to a pipe on the table, and on one blue overcoat hanging on a chair. "That's a well used sailor-man, and while we're waiting I'll take a look round this little anchorage of his. I wonder what he pays a week for it, and on into the inner room.

Sonia fell desperately uneasy all of a sudden; the silence and emptiness of the cottage disconcerted her. She envied Howe's coolness. He did not need to be told what to do. With little difficulty she found both hand and foothold upon the rough surface of the interior of the chimney, and with Tarzan just below her, assisting and steadying her, she made her way slowly aloft.

The shaft led directly upward into a room in the cottage which overlooked the entire city of Opar. Concealed by the crumbling walls, they were sure if they were not discovered by one of the numerous monstrous inhabitants, they were able to ascend in safety.

Tarzan proceeded to formulate their plans.

The eye-man hurried quickly back to the mouth of the tunnel. "Quick," he cried to Ja, as he raised the gate that had fallen behind him after he had passed through. "Tarmangani has returned. "It is out only chance of escape," replied the ape-man.

Without another word Ja crowded into the corridor beside him. Tarzan lowered the grating and with Ja following closely behind him returned to the opening leading into the shaft. With but a word he lifted Ja in his arms and raised her as high as he could.

'PEACE FARTHEST FROM THOUGHTS'

The Negus was expected to take flight from Dessie toward Desalu, which is at a strategic middle distance to the Adigrat battle front, Makale and Adwa, and Mount Ideala. All the way to Dessie, he will be 'flying home' from Addis Ababa on muleback, then to go by automobile.

Addis Ababa Arrangements

Ethiopians said within two weeks the Emperor would have his big command a total of 600,000 well-armed warriors plus 400,000 virtually armed men.

The members of the Swedish military mission have resigned their commissions in the Swedish army in order to serve Haile Selassie.

The government today admitted officially the Italians occupied Adwa and Adigrat yesterday, saying the occupation was accomplished without resistance. It also stated the evacuation of these two towns was made in an orderly manner according to a prearranged plan and the Ethiopians now were stationed outside these points.

Loss of Adwa

A government official said the occupation of Adwa had no military significance and in accordance with a long-standing plan, the Ethiopians intended to make their fight stand in mountain positions which they considered impregnable unless south of Adwa.

The impression was "growing" in the capital at a late hour that there was a trial balloon being sent up by Premier Mussolini.

Ethiopian sources said they would consider peace only when they knew Mussolini's terms. The Emperor confirmed all day with his highest chieftains and government officials.

An unofficial and strictly unconfirmed report circulated, meanwhile, Ethiopians had recaptured Adwa after a battle reminiscent of the five Italian officers as prisoners.

Addis Ababa Along Dark Front

Italy's southern force was said to be advancing along the Dessie-Harrar front in Italian Somaliland from the government announced it had no knowledge of the threatened Ogaden Province offensive.

Although reports of the bombardment of his empire against Italy the Emperor still considered the League sanctions were ineffective to settle the conflict.

The situation was outlined in a government statement to the press in connection with the report of the League Council's committee of thirteen.

Emperor Pleased at Report

"We have complete confidence in the wisdom and justice of the statesmen comprising the council and they alone are able to terminate the unjust aggression of which Ethiopia became the victim even before the League's Pacific solution to our differences was concluded," the statement said.

Parts of the committee's report especially pleasing to the Emperor were said by the government statement to be:

1. That he did all in his power to suppress slavery.

2. That he observed regulations concerning arms traffic.

3. That he unified the country and made the central authority better obeyed.

4. To Backsy.

5. That Ethiopia demanded but Italy refused arbitration.

6. That Haile Selassie accepted recommendations of the League committee of five in contrast to Italy's pretension to civilize America.

Independence of Ethiopia

4. That the committee insisted every solution of the Italo-Ethiopian conflict must rest on independence, territorial integrity and every solution must be accepted by every member of the League.

5. That Italy continued its war preparations.

6. That Ethiopia was ready to suspend the question of possession of Walwal, scene of a frontier incident, and accept an investigation and decisions of neutral observers while Italy demanded complete freedom of action, declaring the dispute could not be settled through procedure under the League covenant.

While some Ethiopians insisted Adwa had been recaptured, the Italians, on the strength of news from Rome, celebrated the fall of the city.

The Italian minister thanked the Emperor for the safe arrival and considerate treatment of consular officials from Debra Markos and Dessie. The Debra Markos officials arrived today.

Counter Offensives

Two major counter-offensives by the Ethiopian northern and southern armies against the advancing Fascist forces appeared in prospect today. The Emperor was reported to have decided to take the offensive and seek by counter engagements on two fronts.

Military observers anticipated hourly the opening guns of the campaigns from the precipitous mountain heights near Adwa in the north and from the low-lying region about Ogaden province in the south.

The Ethiopians were jubilant over the victorious, two-day advance of Adwa, against Italy's guns and planes, a feat which led one of the Emperor's generals to exclaim: "It took the Italians three days to capture Adwa. It would take them 30 days to take Addis Ababa."

Mobilization Complete

Ethiopia's general mobilization has been nearly completed, giving the empire's warriors a heavy advantage in the way of numbers. Ethiopian troops and their superior equipment.

The Negus himself told his correspondent in an interview: "The blood is on their hands, not ours". "Mr. Mussolini charges us with being barbarians and he says he wishes to civilize us," he said "I would abandon all my women and children by air bombs and machine guns the kind of civilization he would give us."

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

Through the brilliant hurling performance of Wesley Ramsey, Lefty Sinder for the Kingston Purples, that team looks headed for their first senior O.B.A.A. title and the third one to come east since the series was founded. Winners of provincials winning in 1919 and 1926 Galaxy stood the Cobb Tigers on their collective ears, shutting them out and allowing but one hit "Abe" Cooper, smart batting pilot for the Purples broke up the hurling duel with a home run over the wall aboard in the fifth. "Mickey" Compeau, galloping shortstop, had three singles, one of them a scratch hit to help the cause along. The Purples outfield of Ken Farrell and Cooper looked much the best team at every position. The Central Ontario boys had a great day certainly proud of the Purples and here's hoping they send Sinder on Wednesday's game to Kingston. It is getting too late to be playing baseball with football on the move and hockey season just around the corner.

The Belleville Intermediate O. H. F. U. entered get disheartened right back in the running, when they stepped into Peterboro and trounced and downed the team, that looked to have the title cinched. The Belleville team showed a complete reversal of form from the performance given the previous week and that's where the difference was a kicker on the backfield. Forward line worked them high and far away to hold the Petes in check, while the Bisonettes gave him perfect protection and did a little work on their own account. Mace Rigby proved a find right here, when he blocked a kick, scooped it up and romped over the goal line for a major count. This team can play football, when he wants to and Saturday was his day. He was not the only one, who was in before fighting and Coach Kennedy must have them cooked with the same spirit that was in Western Ontario University when he was starring for that team. The locals came out of the game in good shape and after a rest today will be back at the grind on Tuesday for their battle with Kingston Saturday.

Chicago Cubs won a ball game on Sunday but lost a pitcher, Lon Warneke started, where he left off in the first game of the series and allowed but one hit, Lonnie Frey, Tigers, twisted their tails and made them like it for five innings but he pulled a shoulder muscle in that frame and had to retire. Bill Lee came in for rescue duties and the Tigers proceeded to give the Cubs some autumn torments but the hosts finally won and the teams move into Detroit today for the next game. It looks as if the Detroit team will now win the series. The hurling talent of the Cubs only broke even while Cochrane still has Bridges and Auker to shoot at them. "Chuck" Klein, the forgotten man of the series, and for whom the Cubs paid $125,000 to get, was the hero of the Sunday tilt, when he homered with Herman on base. The latter added another for good measure in the eighth and the Tigers scored one in the ninth and had the tying and winning runs on the base paths. It has been a great series from which the great teams but the Tigers seem to carry a little edge at the present time.

From the exhibition turned in by the new team in the series at Toronto and the O.S.S.A., the rugby fans are in for a real season in this pastime. The Collegiate under Lee Childs lead to have a strong team in the making. St. Mike's are heavyweights under Eddie Schrieder and will take some beating before the season is over. Harbord Collegiate is the dark horse of the race with Pete Beach at the helm. He could not be beat in any over O.S.S.A. they showed a half back of unusual ability in "Fred" McGrale, while Frank Cunningham's pass will be much better, when they have a couple of games under their belts. The teams play every Friday afternoon and the fans should turn out to watch this interesting sport. The residents of the city and district will be the best minded in this fall pastime.

Blackmail Payments Demanded of Cummings and Harold McCormick

Chicago, Oct. 7 (AP)—The Chicago Tribune said Saturday United States Government agents and police have been engaged for weeks in attempts to carry kidnapers who allegedly have threatened to abduct Harold F. McCormick, chairman of the board of the International Harvester Company, and William D. Cummings, President of the Illinois Merchants Bank.

Both men have been threatened, the paper said, unless blackmail demands were made.

BALLOT BATTLE ACROSS CANADA

Rodmur Interest

Interest and principal of the Rodmur debt would be reduced under a nation-wide scheme with the backing of the Provinces. There should be also a uniform method of dealing with mortgages and other debts. There should be co-operation between provinces and the Dominion. There should be surveys to remove duplications.

Mr. King noted that every province but one had a Liberal administration, and pointed to his Federal party as the one most likely to secure the necessary co-operation.

Premier Bennett published his Maritime tour with a speech at Moncton, N.B. Mr. King's favorite issue was the Ottawa trade agreements which his government was returned to power. The people of the United Kingdom would welcome, he declared, didn't want trades.

"It is the greatest issue you have ever had to deal with," the Prime Minister told his audience of Prince Edward Islanders, "and the people are just walking up to that fact. What is the answer? The Liberals are in full retreat all across Canada."

At an earlier meeting at New Glasgow, N.S., Mr. King declared his said new parties originated for various reasons such as "injured feelings because some one was asked to apologize and wouldn't, which was not true."

Continuing, Mr. Bennett said: "I wonder what this new party will get seats. They will get none west of the Lakehead. Some say they will get support here. Has it come to this, that Pickle (riding) wants to be represented by one of half-a-dozen in the House of Commons? It is God A'mighty. It is a faction. Are you going to subscribe to the belief that to be successful is a crime? Must a man be condemned because he has accumulated a few dollars and is spending it wisely? Are you going to listen to these appeals to class prejudice and envy?"

At Sincoe, Ont., Reconstruction Leader Stevens said: "We are out to destroy Mr. Bennett is right. We are out to destroy, that which would destroy the life of the people." He made that statement, when discussing international conditions and minimum wage law invasions by chain stores.

FOXBORO

Foxboro, Oct. 7—A pleasant time was spent on Monday evening when a large number of friends and neighbors assembled in the United Church R. S. room to congratulate Mr. and Mrs. Harry Scott on their recent marriage. Rev. Horton made a few remarks at first and then called upon Mr. S. C. Gay, who led in community singing with Mr. Alan Gay at the piano. The programme was then given to Rev. Hill who acted as chairman for the remainder of the evening. Solos were given by Master Jackie Stewart, Miss Gwen Ketcheson and Mr. Grant Longwell, while Rev. Hill and Mrs. R. Ketcheson contributed readings. A humorous duet was given by the Misses Marion Ketcheson and Doris Dafoe entitled "Barber Shank."

He was just a lonely barber
With scissors and razors too,
And he loved a girl named Alyce
As young men always do.

They learned to love each other
And named their wedding day,
And they were joyfully waiting
Until September the sixteenth came.

The minister at Campbellford
The ceremony read
The ring was placed upon her finger,
And then, they were wed.

The bride and groom went to Quinte
To spend a honeymoon,
All day she was left at Bancroft,
And then, back home they turned.

They settled down in a quiet home
Not far from the barber shop,
And Alyce is keeping house
It keeps her on the hop.

And now that they are married
And settled down for life
While Harry is snipping scissors
Still thinking of his wife.

As a host of friends and neighbors
We have gathered here tonight
To wish you both much happiness
Along the road of life.

Mr. Caniff Ashley was then called upon to read the following:—

Dear Harry and Alyce,—

We could not let you think that entering upon the blissful state, known as "matrimony" that your many friends would not want to manifest in some way or other their feelings of rejoicing and congratulations. We are glad to rejoice with those that rejoice, and, so tonight we are assembled here to rejoice with you in your happiness. Nearly all of us have known you, Harry, all your life and we have nothing but good things to say. You have been a good friend to all, and find ways ready to help in any way possible in any good cause. Any requests made of you in our community have always been met with a hearty response. You have been a willing worker of our baseball team and we can assure you that your efforts have been greatly appreciated.

Alyce, you are but slightly known in this community, but those of us who have the pleasure of knowing you intimately have always found you to be of a staid and genial character and we extend to you our heartiest congratulations on your choice of a life partner, as we know he is one we can always be depended upon. We extend to you our sincere and best wishes for a happy and prosperous wedded life.

We ask you to accept these gifts as a small token of our love and esteem for you. We hope that in future years they may remind you of your friends here.

Signed on behalf of the Community and Bandsmen:

Mrs. G. Winkle,
Mrs. Mr. Kilpatrick
Mrs. H. Stewart.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott were then presented with a set of stone couch and large cushions, two very pretty occasional chairs and a radio lamp for which they very nicely replied. Following is the paper read by Mrs. Skinner:—

In Foxboro there is a barber shop
Operated by Mr. Harry Scott
As He a chair in town could meet
Walking over any street.

He thought he had all he could desire
Plenty of trade for the barber chair
A good boarding place, with plenty to eat.
And lots of ball-game scores to keep.

He had lots of friends from every rank
Who everyone thought the world of "Hank"
And to top it off, when he wanted to marvel
His little Ford coupe could go like the—wind.

But soon there came, Alyce was the girl,
When Harry's heart went into a whirl;
He now knew he wanted, thru foul weather and fair
A snug little home, like Marion and Clare.

So he asked Alyce to be his wife,
To love and cherish him all his life
They went and got married one Monday morning
And went off to spend their honeymoon.

Now they are home—as busy as bees
Contented and happy as you please
And we want to wish Harry and his wife
A long, happy and prosperous married life.

Lunch was then served and the meeting closed.

WILL MUSSOLINI YIELD TO CENSURE?

Geneva, Oct. 8—(AP)—The problem of just what sanctions should be applied against Italy, and how to put them into effect confronted the League of Nations council today after its dramatic indictment of Il Duce's regime as an instigator of unjustified war.

Will Mussolini weaken under the weight of world reaction made expressed in the council's unanimous decision? Or will his machine defy the league's verdict?

Without waiting for the answer League statesmen were busied with plans to coordinate the complicated network of sanctions made compulsory by the council verdict. With them they hoped to bring the strangle and paralyze the mechanism of Mussolini's East African war machine.

Article XVI of the League covenant — which provides sanctions against Italy, sketches the broad outlines of such measures and declared it the duty of the League member states to enforce them.

Mr. Ferguson stated the issue in this election, was a revolving should cease, and dyed-in-the-wool partisans should no longer exist. Referring to various agricultural industries, Mr. Ferguson compared the decrease in the price of products to the increase in wages and duties, stating that the representatives of farmers in the various governments in the city of members actually elected, while the population of Canada has over 40 per cent farmers or those living in rural districts.

Collins, K.C., in a very thorough manner, outlined the various problems of the city of Belleville, stating that although the issue was not spoken of so quickly, was absolutely horrifying when the amount of its billions and the various persons thinks in dollars and cents. Mr. Collins pointed out that within his memory Stevens and Bennett had always worked hand in hand and together had been most effective in the reform of the tariffs in connection with the United States.

The Farmers Marketing Act, which Mr. Collins called an act forcing election time was out to make friends of honest farmers and Farmers Creditors Arrangement Act was nothing but a bankrupt measure. Mr. Wotten led the group in a lively sing-song accompanied by Miss E. Kitchenon. Short addresses of welcome were extended by Rev. Dr. Semple and Mr. F. S. Deacon. Miss E. Percy Burkitt Alleged Bank Robber in City

Percy Burkitt, 31, Dunnville, who was arrested in Toronto yesterday charged with robbing the Harrow-smith branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia on Sept. 21 last, was brought to Belleville by Sergeant Harry Thompson and Constable John Kelly of the Ontario Provincial Police this night, subsequently being taken to Kingston, where he was lodged in Frontenac County jail awaiting trial. The search for Burkitt's alleged accomplice is still being continued in Western Ontario.

Following the sensational daylight bank robbery at Harrowsmith it was announced by Douglas Hamilton, manager of the bank, that the loot was estimated at $1000.00. The bank bandits escaped in a stolen car after forcing their robbery and wrecking the automobile after wrecking it in Napanee.

According to the police records Burkitt served time in the Kingston Penitentiary and also the Ontario Reformatory.

The arrest of the one accused man comes just two weeks after the robbery was committed. It is believed that the second accused is still in hiding in Toronto and that he will soon be rounded up.

ENTHUSIASTIC NOMINATION

Order Called Repeatedly

Repeatedly Chairman J. R. Boyce called for order, only to be met at times with the usual clamorers. And the candidates themselves, aware of the fact that nothing could stop the flow of enthusiasm and the backing, stood as unperturbed as they were expected on a hearing of their own opponents, for a hearing.

"We want, each of you, a hearing to try and have some order at this meeting," declared Mr. Boyce in his appeal. "Let us hear the candidates. Their time is short enough as it is, to address."

Both Mr. Cameron and Mr. W. R. Tummon were heartily loyal at mention of their names by Presiding Officer Fred Wagling at two o'clock. Similarly enthusiastic was paid the name of Leslie Hamilton Lewis, Reformer candidate.

With Chairman J. R. Boyce of this city conducting the meeting, the individual candidates, who filed upon the platform with their distinguished supporters, were introduced by him amid waves of cheering and rolling acclamation.

"Five minutes ago I was asked to be chairman," declared Mr. Boyce. In speaking of the candidates he declared: "I do not remember at times of times; they are all fine fellows—I know them personally."

"Don't get me wrong, Mr. Boyce, chairman, "or we on the platform will have to get back very, too."

Made Dread Appeal

Mr. Tummon, as first speaker, made his dread appeal to the voters on his past record. "I have served on this council as faithfully as I could."

"When was that?" roared some of the audience in the hall.

Mr. Tummon continued, unperturbed. He said briefly of the personal qualities of the two other candidates. "We are good friends now and we will be after the election."

"I stand squarely behind the policies of the Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett," declared Mr. Tummon, amid applause and encouragement.

Pointing to his record, Mr. Tummon declared that he was one of the federation had the riding been so favored as it has during the term of office.

Members of the local airport brought a flood of backing which drowned his voice.

"I am not ashamed of the airport or of the record of the Bennett government," he stated, "or the engine," he stated.

Again the party vote was declared in an uproarious burst of continued shouting.

Mr. Tummon appealed personally for a clear hearing on the part of Mr. Cameron and Mr. Lewis. (Cheers)

Again the accomplishments of the Bennett government were outlined by Mr. Tummon.

"The Ottawa Trade Agreements, the Farm Products Act—the Loan Act (Scot)—Unemployment Insurance Act—(boo boo).

Appealed For Hearing

Mr. Cameron strode to the platform appealing for a discontinuance of the uproar.

His appearance was a signal for sustained cheering.

"I want to plead with you on behalf of Mr. Lewis, too, for a hearing for Mr. Tummon, your representative for the past five years."

Mr. Cameron continued amid momentary calm.

"The Liberal Government has done more in the past five years than any previous government. Remember the record," he declared. concluded Mr. Tummon.

Mr. Boyce introducing Mr. Cameron, appealed for order and sportsmanship. "Let us all now listen, we might try and learn something."

No Personal Abuse

Mr. Cameron congratulated Mr. Tummon on his splendid record address. He followed up by pointing out this election differed in every respect from previous ones. "There has not been, to my personal abuse through the campaign."

Mr. Cameron reviewed briefly the present Stevens scandal. "I am sympathetic toward the Conservative Party—if you want a representative of the past Conservative rule, vote Stevens." Mr. Stevens was not among those in his audience, regarding the common people, charged Mr. Cameron.

Stevens also was not the man, who first brought in the bill providing for an investigation of price spreads, but rather a liberal, named Maclean, he added.

"Stevens says he's all for the little fellow, but a review of his personal beliefs shows that he believes, as he has said, 'this is the day of big business.' That's his view whether he is not looking for an election."

Mr. Cameron urged his hearers to find out first if the Conservatives will win them, if he had the real knowledge in the country "as it should be run."

Premier's Sincerity Questioned

Mr. Bennett's sincerity on questions affecting Canadian farmers was questioned by Mr. Cameron. He referred to statements made by the present leader, that he would bend every effort toward their assistance.

"Mr. Bennett's heart bled for them. Yet he boosted tariffs so high they couldn't get along. They appealed to him through delegations to do something.

ITALIAN BOMBING PLANES ON WAY TO ADDIS ABABA

He told them he didn't have to...ise any farmers relief them because he had a tax payer...(shouts)

Single unemployed, getting 30 cents a day were now concentrated in Toronto, thousands in camps.

"How Mr. Bennett says 30 cents a day is too much for them." (Lost him by it, declared a member of the audience). "How much does he know of the suffering of his people?" asked Mr. Cameron.

"Do you want another five years of Mr. Bennett's broken promises?" asked Mr. Cameron amid a roaring echo of "noes".

"Is there any doubt in your mind whom you are going to support, Stevens, Bennett or King?" Again the roar "No!"

"Three cheers for King!" shouted a supporter. The cheers were given heartily.

A constable strolled in "I might as well go out," declared the chairman, pointing to the policeman.

Heckler Squelched

Mr. Laurie Lewis, Reconstructionist, was greeted with singular acclaim.

"You have heard Mr. Cameron speak; three quarters of his speech (Voice) Mr. Cameron and the other quarter on Mr. Bennett. If you (the same) can't say nothing, then his address I wish you luck". (cheers)

Mr. Lewis declared he was appearing only at the invitation of the constituency association and not also as a candidate.

"I am not related to any worn themselves out."

(A wave of heckling interrupted him).

"Conservatives and Liberals were struggling for the blood of this country," charged Mr. Lewis. The heckler interrupted him but he was quickly squelched by the speaker. "You are not here to learn anything. You're here following out instructions."

Mr. Lewis talked all hinged on tariffs — constitutional quibbling", continued the Reform candidate, "yet when the King government was in power there was an exodus of the youth of the country because tariffs were cut, factories put out of business, farms lost, manufacturing almost lost."

Member of the audience requested an answer to a question.

"We'll hire a hall for you," declared Mr. Lewis.

"Put him out!" shouted several. Mr. Lewis referred to Beaubien's note "where did the $700,000 go?"

"Thousands don't mean anything now, speak in millions," shouted a listener.

The speaker referred to Mr. Bennett as "a fighter". He was drowned by the booing and hooting and throng cheers.

"I'll give credit where credit is due" continued Mr. Lewis (hall) "And I'm just as good a fighter as he is. I'm willing to fight, fighting for the right!" he challenged.

Social Steps Thrive In Calm

Referring to industries of the country, Mr. Lewis pointed out the textile and automobile industries were two, which should be cut in tariffs drastically. "Certain textile industries are protected fifty per cent and some as high as one hundred and fifty, and all this while, several shoe industries are thriving" declared Mr. Lewis.

"What is the trouble? Concentration of all the wealth in the hands of a few; big bosses in the hands of fifteen per cent of the people. What is there to do?" (Voice "Vote King In!") shouted a listener.

"Stevens, within a month of assuming office will conserve this wealth, use his fifteen constructive hands to bring back prosperity to Canada. One of these would be increased building through a housing scheme if they (the money owners) do not fall in line "the second, will be put on them — a second, the development of a fuel industry, which would operate in fat (at down) Canadian peat bogs and coal fields, and other schemes declared Mr. Lewis.

Mention of the railway situation in Canada brought further disturbing shouts from the audience. The name of Mackenzie King was taken up in a steady chant.

"Where does the farmer stand today?" asked Mr. Lewis. She's bankrupt. She has every bit of his livestock, his produce controlled by a handful of financiers and big business."

"What has happened to the Hyndman report?" asked the speaker referring to the War Veterans' report, and will be shelved as long as present government remains in."

Chairman Appeals For Order

"You fellows down in the back are having a lot of fun, but you are not doing too bad," commented Chairman Boyce prior to his introduction of Mr. Cecil Frost, speaking in the interests of Mr. Agnew.

Mr. Frost pointed out that all candidates were ordinarily fairly looking, a credit to any municipality.

"How can you vote intelligently without hearing the respective platforms of the candidates?" asked the speaker in a brief review of the Conservative, Liberals and the Reconstructionist.

The history of the Liberal-Conservative Party and the Liberal Party was sketched. Both were declared to be similar in aims and objects with the policies, but the Liberal-Conservative party had taken on a "new deal" and a "new" legislation that had greatly benefited Canada.

Mr. Frost was also subjected at periods to a disturbing barrage of shouts, heckling and questioning.

"One of the problems was the bringing social justice to all classes."

Bring More Work

"Isn't it the duty of the country to try and foster trade development in the country to bring more work to the workers?"

What about Mr. Stevens" roared a voice from the stash row.

"Why should I when Mr. Cameron has handled this question so well?"

A bedlam of noise interrupted the speaker and brought the chairman to the rescue.

"When Mr. King left office Canada had an adverse trade balance of $900,000,000 per year," finally continued Mr. Frost. Scaled remarks were partly drowned out.

"Do you want government interference in foreign business? What did Mr. King do to assist business? He adopted a hush-hush attitude, afraid to offend his neighbors in the U. S."

(Further noise). "If you are having as good a time as I am, you should both be very happy," declared the speaker.

"When they say Mr. Bennett has lost the markets, I challenge them to name a single country. Mr. Bennett raised its tariffs against Canada during the regime of Mr. Bennett." (Boo boo)"

Invited to Stand Up

In 1929 the Canadians were unable to send one head of livestock to England. Last year we sent 26,000 head. (What did they pay the farmer? Bill down)

"Instead of me sitting down, you stand up!" invited the speaker.

"It is up to Canadians to pick for a leader a business man, who knows what's what in affairs."

A lady in the audience arose with a question. "What are the Conservatives do to the butter and cheese market?" she asked.

"Mr. King's time we expected a million pounds of butter. When he went out we were importing," replied Mr. Frost.

"The people of this country, irrespective of politics will do well to elect Mr. Bennett" concluded the speaker, to the hard heckles of the afternoon.

Chairman Boyce asked for a hearing for the candidates for a while in a tough spot I'm in and I'm not going to reveal over it. If you don't behave we'll have to close it up." "You're doing fine, Bert," was the shouted answer.

Hon. Dr. J. A. Faulkner speaking on behalf of Mr. Cameron was received with an upsurge of welcome this lasted for a minute.

Time For Free Speech

The Ontario Minister of Health pointed out, that this time was the time for free speech. He added the abolement, that this was no time for abuse, as remarked by Mr. Frost. "Heckle" he added, "We will give the answer in another way on Oct. 14." (Interested)

"The speaker (Mr. Frost) asked you to forget party. That has always been their last minute cry" (Cheers).

A vote for Stevens is a vote for Bennett. If Mr. King isn't elected by an overwhelming majority there will be another dirty government in power formed through an amalgamation overnight."

Dr. Faulkner referred to Mr. Stevens.

"If he had all those reforms in mind, when he sat in cabinet with Mr. Bennett is he sincere now?" (No, No!).

Mr. Tummon was given credit for his work in this riding, but added the speaker the question was not Mr. Tummon, Mr. Lewis or Mr. Cameron. It was one very bones, the security of Canada. "That is the question today."

The local government dock was visited by the speaker as employing men hired by Stevens. "After he had seen a certain man," added Dr. Faulkner.

The airport and its quota of six, 20-minute-day men came under the raking fire of Dr. Faulkner. "Do you realize, when the Provincial government gave a hundred per cent aid was cut off. The men have to take that or nothing."

"How about the O.S.D.?" asked a voice.

"What about it?"

Further cheers drowned out further comment on this question.

Question asked

"Are you satisfied with conditions as they are here in Canada now?" asked Dr. Faulkner. A chorus of "noes" answered him.

"Heckle slipped into power on 80 cent butter, and he's now going to quit on 30 cent butter" declared the speaker in a brief review of tariff policies of the present administration.

"We have here 86,000 railway men walking streets, eager to work, employment in Toronto, as one industry has been cut in two," finished the speaker.

Mr. Lewis given a chance for brief reply to questions and heckles received with a wave of applause. In his brief remarks he referred to Mr. Bennett and Mr. King of straddling the fence for true statesmanship.

Electors are being confused with figures and statements. It remained for Mr. Stevens to drive both parties into the open.

Shouted cries drowned out the candidate's next words.

Mr. Lewis resumed as Mr. Cameron appealed to the audience for a hearing.

"Come—The Liberal party hasn't a leg to stand upon."

"They say Stevens and Bennett are in cahoots—they tell you don't vote Stevens. But as long as you don't listen to Mr. Stevens, just so long will the moral fibre of the people of this country remain smashed. What are the mothers thinking of?

"The two other parties are saying stop Mr. Stevens' man (Stevens) got power because he will wreck things." And so he will, some day and the people will benefit.

"How can Dr. Faulkner say Mr. Stevens and Mr. Bennett are in cahoots? It was only at the last moment, when he saw no other recourse was available, that he finally stepped out in an effort to help his country."

Alone Outlined

"They spend 800 millions yearly to run your country for you now. Our leader will reduce debts and policies ("For his own pocket") — he will and has stepped into the breach and fought those big interests. Mr. Stevens proposes reverse producing industries to help this country. He proposes giving these mine owners, who need it, money to develop them.

"We have policies, not politics," startlingly declared Mr. Lewis.

"Profits above those over a certain sum would be taken and divided by Mr. Stevens for the good of the country", said the speaker.

"When Mr. Stevens says anything, he is lucky to get mention in the newspapers, when the real speak they are on front page, but the person too, are controlled by the Big Stick."

Mr. Tummon Replies

Mr. W. R. Tummon in a fifteen minute response charged vehemently, that the Liberal party was finding fault and criticizing the Conservative government. "But on October 14 they will find themselves out in the cold on the doorstep!" (Cheers).

"Mr. Stephens promised, when he was elected all unemployed would be gainfully employed. Noise and confusion drowned out further remarks.

The Hepburn government in one year got over $4,000,000 more for relief than the Ferguson government got in any year, declared Mr. Tummon.

(Cheering, handclapping, yells, drowned out further remarks.)

Chairman J. R. Boyce brought the three candidates to the centre of the platform as Mr. Tummon concluded in the rising crescendo of noise. Then, as they stood immediately in front of the table in the centre the notes of God Save the King played by Thomas Mason on the piano for accompaniment, the noisiest nomination meeting on record was concluded.

Notes, approximately one half the audience, consisted of women, who also joined in the heckling and the asking of questions, which were immediately drowned out in the ensuing uproar. Prominent among the questioners in the hall were old party supporters who had lined up with various speakers for attention and individual answers. One policeman of the audience was counted upon to keep order but was concluded.

Kiwanis Carnival

What do you think of the Kiwanis Carnival that is to be presented to the people of this vicinity on October 16th, 18th and 17th?

Well it is the question that has been asked me. At first it seemed a very easy question to answer, now however, I wonder if it can, in a brief and concise manner, answer this question.

Of course I know that the people who visit this carnival are in for a real treat insofar as entertainment is concerned. In conversation with Mr. George Forhan, chairman of the entertainment committee, I have been advised that a number of excellent acts have been arranged through the Canadian Vaudeville Exchange, and as I have a very high opinion of both Mr. Forhan and the Canadian Vaudeville Exchange, I do not hesitate to say that the show alone will be worth more than the price of admission of any one's money.

Besides the vaudeville there is to be dancing, bingo and various games of entertainment. Those of you who have attended our Carnivals in the past have contributed much to the reputation that Kiwanis already holds, for your favorable comment you have established the fact that the Kiwanis Carnival is always THE BIGGEST. This year will be no exception in this line.

Then there are the prizes. No one who has ever been in the line to press the fact that this year's prize list is by far the biggest and best. You have seen them at the fair, you have seen it advertised that there are to be over SEVEN THOUSAND dollars worth of prizes. This is not exaggerated. In the purchasing of our prizes we have kept in mind that the cheapest is not always the best. We have purchased the best regardless of cost. We have purchased with the thought in mind that we wanted the winners to get what we ourselves would be glad to own.

So we have I answered the question? I don't think so. I have answered the easiest part of the question. I have told you what to expect on these dates. But I have not touched on the most important part. Why the Carnival? After the Carnival was then?

Since Kiwanis was established in this community, its members have been constantly striving to make this a better community in which to live. They have lent their time and efforts to the betterment of local assistance to better conditions. Most of you have outlived the school boys' band. They built and maintain three cabins for the boys' camp at Scotch Line. They have kept the interest of over 350 boys in baseball, hockey and softball, sponsored junior baseball, assisted the Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. and Y.O.N. donated scholarships, and tried to make brighter for inmates of the Children's Shelter. Besides these things there have been numerous cases of individual children who have received medical and dental attention through our assistance. These things I do not mention with the thought of boasting for the club, but merely to show why it is necessary to raise money in order to carry on our work.

After the Carnival it is to be hoped that your support will enable us to carry on such work over on a larger scale than we have been able to do in the past. During the past few years our activities have suffered as have all lines of business, and the fact that the success of this carnival will place us on a firmer financial footing, so as to carry on our good work. I might mention at this time that all monies raised from this carnival for this kind, go into a charity fund to provide relief work and the maintenance of our club. The club itself is entirely supported from a membership fee.

In conclusion I would say that "The Kiwanis Carnival promises to be three big days of excellent entertainment, and the hard combined efforts of the members of the Belleville club in order that we may serve you better."

May I also express my appreciation, on behalf of the Kiwanis and our club in the preparation of this article, to those who have assisted who have given of their time and effort, to the Ontario Intelligencer for their valuable space, and to the general public who I feel sure are ready to support it.

I feel privileged to have had the opportunity of assisting with this work, and trust that I have conveyed correctly your thoughts.

Yours very truly,
G. C. Barager,
President.

THE COST OF CHIMNEY AND FLUE

Now is the time of year when chimney cleaning is necessary. "Inspect and clean chimneys and flues at least twice a year. Never start a heavy winter firing without a thorough inspection and repairing of heating appliances and cleaning of chimneys". This is the advice of the Department of Insurance at Ottawa.

Yet how many persons do not follow this advice! Year after year there is no attempt to clean the chimneys. Fires do occur for that cause. The inspection of the chimney in the attic last there be a crevice through which a spark may enter the attic and start a conflagration is something that should not be neglected.

It is figured that there were 21,000 fires in Canada entirely traceable to defective chimneys and flues in the last three years.

As this is inspection week a little check up and work would not be amiss.

FATALITIES IN FIRES

In Canada and the United States this week is being observed as Fire Prevention Week. The Dominion Fire Prevention Association in co-operation with Provincial Fire Marshals, local Fire Chiefs and others is co-operating with civic organizations in the furtherance of the aims of Fire Protection.

About 350 people are burned to death and a much larger number are injured by fire in Canada every year. The recorded loss of property by fire in Canada during the 15 years, 1920 to 1934 exceeded $610,000,000. In other words, at our present burning rate, approximately one human life is sacrificed and $110,000 worth of property is destroyed every day in the year.

Fire is no respecter of persons. Every man has a responsibility towards his neighbours and that responsibility should cause every right-thinking person to pause and consider what he owes the community in which he lives. We owe it to ourselves but in a greater degree to our fellow-citizens to permit no condition to exist upon our premises that will invite a visitation of fire. A great majority of fires are so easy to prevent that it is certainly a moral crime to tolerate the things which bring them about.

Cities and towns, like individuals, reap what they sow. To permit the erection of fire-traps, to fail to provide an abundant and reliable water supply and means of using it or to fail to apply the everyday rules of fire prevention, is to constantly face a menace of heavy fires and sweeping conflagrations.

GENERAL EVANGELINE BOOTH

General Evangeline Booth, who at the age of seventy years, is doing work with the Salvation Army as its head which would defy the strength of a young woman or even man, was in Toronto at the weekend and received the honours of the Army and the city.

General Booth needs no honours in fact. Her memorial will be in the lives of men and women. She it is, who brings a trace of the old General William Booth, revered founder of the organization which is known everywhere throughout the world. She is the mother of the Army in reaction to the troubles and strains of today. Through her the voice of millions is heard in their cry for a chance to live nobly and well.

Lover of human beings, Miss Booth stands out as one of the very great women of this age. Her name will go down in the ranks of those great women whose hearts have throbbed in tune with the great heart of mankind.

To be as General Evangeline Booth has been is one of the glories of life. Whatever men may say as to choice of life's calling she has chosen the best in an incomplete world—a world of pain and sorrow and shortcomings, and a world of sin. General Booth has in her love and charity for all felt and answered the supreme call for service.

In the great book of life, the names of those who love their fellows appear brightest. It is not dictators, not generals, not men who can control a senate or vast congregations of men and women, but those who by their interest in the hearts and lives of the average man and woman and boy and girl, have helped to better things.

Suspicion always haunts the guilty mind the thief doth fear each bush an officer.—Shakespeare.

The virtue of coward is suspicion. —Harbert.

Ignorance is the mother of suspicion. —W. R. Alger.

Suspicion is the poison of true friendship.—Augustine.

It is a miserable thing to live in suspence; it is the life of a spider.—Swift.

Every man depends on the quantity of sense, wit or good manners he brings into society for the reception he meets with in it.—Haslitt.

JULIET PROTESTS

Because the thing was finished in a tomb,
And since we were ridiculously young,
Our names have come to equal impending doom,
Our tale has been retold in every tongue.

And all of you whose hearts were warm and kind
Have grieved and wept for us down through the years:
It sometimes made me smile—I did not mind—
Indeed, I have been grateful for your tears.

But have you quite forgotten how that night
The moon shone on his face while I above
Leaned nearer him? Can't you recall its light?
Don't you remember how we pledged our love?
Oh, it was quickly ended, our brief day,
Yet it was filled with laughter. We were gay!

'NEARLY TWO MILLION MEN, WOMEN AND CHILDREN FLED FROM THE HEAT OF THE CITY YESTERDAY in search of cooling breezes at the beaches'—clipping from a New York City newspaper which came to light in a periodical cleaning up of the editorial desk. In view of the recent vogue of overcoats the clipping was turned over for a date clue, revealing July 14. How times flies. Now if the flies would only fly with the rest of the summer life would be much happier despite the cool breezes. Sea beaches are about the most uncomfortable places imaginable just now, pictures of gaunt desolation.

GYPSIES REPORT A GOOD SEASON, and confirm the fact that there is no slackening in the birth rate of what Barnum and some others referred to as "suckers"—not a very nice word but expressive. After all the press has said about the confidence games worked by travelling gypsies promising to double their client's money, only to make it disappear in toto, still the business goes on and new wouldbe "get-rich-quicks" are taught the game. Down Halifax way a man lost $2,700 because a gypsy woman told him she could double his money and he believed her. She might have doubled it—who knows—? But she disappeared with the money and the man is beginning to believe that he's been had. From various parts of Canada came reports from time to time of the activities of the gypsy money-makers, and no doubt many were fleeced who were too ashamed to make a holler. If it is possible that any reader of this paragraph has not heard of the old-time gypsy game, take warning—the build up is different as suits the occasion but the procedure is generally the same having the saving bait of having your money doubled, the gypsy, of course, having to handle the money. Even if she hands the money back for the time being she probably has made into a large portion of it—in any event if you play with her she will eventually retain the entire stakes. However, the gypsy season is just about closed and most of the wandering Romanies have reached their winter quarters in the cities there to den up until spring calls them to the Broad Highway again.

NATIONAL CHEESE WEEK IS GETTING NEARER, the object of which is to show people what a satisfying and healthproducing food cheese is, particularly when it is of mature age and good pedigree. It is recalled to us that our Wisconsin way there is a law which insists upon Wisconsin cheese and butter being served at every meal, at twenty-five cents or upwards in the eating places of the state. So when you eat in a public place in Wisconsin you are sure to get at least two-thirds of an ounce of Wisconsin cheese and a portion of butter. This makes more business for the cheese and butter men right at home, the customers like it, and the eating places serve it—so it sure is a good law all round.

MACHINE GUN OUTPOST RAKES ETHIOPIANS ON ADUWA FRONT

This photo, flown from the scene of battle to Rome, telephoned to London, transmitted via radio to New York and rushed from New York to Toronto by train and automobile, shows an Italian machine gun emplacement raking the Ethiopian defenders ranks along the front, not far from the town of Aduwa. Machine gunners can be seen feeding their chattering weapon, protected by small breastworks. Italy was first reported to have abandoned a grim defence had stalled on the town but other reports of the invader. The town has since been captured. This is one of the many pictures received direct from the battle front.

Rev. A. J. Wilson of Napanee an Interesting Speaker

"The greatest experiment of social living and social relationships in the world is now being attempted in Russia," said Rev. A. J. Wilson, editor of the Napanee Beaver, speaking before the Rotary Club last evening; it being the occasion of an interesting meeting at the Quinte and Campbellford Clubs, including a number of guests entertained by Dr. "Jack" Guthrie as sergeant-at-arms and "Bert" Boyce as song leader, Leo R. Riggs presided at the piano. Of considerable interest were the two solos given by "Gene" Illsley and James Bahlder, while Bahlder and his partner in vocal voices rendered that old favorite "Down Under." A toast to the guests was introduced by C. H. Scott and Rotarian appreciated for the good time did address was given by Mr Bernstein, a past president of the club, George Shoniker, president of the Trenton Club and Dr. Bruce Longmore, speaking for the representatives of the Campbellford Club, both expressed their pleasure at being present at the inter-club meeting and hoped that the Belleville Club would soon find itself in a position to enjoy the visit. At the conclusion of Mr. Wilson's address a number of questions were asked by the members and the meeting lasted longer than usual. The speaker said in part: "I believe that was manifest at every land. Some stated that they were keen on by the speaker in the course of his talk. He said that the Russian Bolshevism had been thwarted in his attempt to visit Russia, but finally made his way into that country, seeing country this year, and viewed the entire situation at first hand. Interment as an unbiased observer, much of the time being spent in his own company, and meeting those who were free and frank in their discussion of the whole question.

Unbiased Observer

At the outset the speaker stated the speaker stated he was neither condoning or commending the experiment, but that as an observer he would gather, the experiment was no longer an idea, but a fact. The success of which had brought happiness and contentment to the people. To live, was an eye opener to one from the west," was his brief way of putting the whole question. There, he said, was no unemployment, everyone was employed, there was no poverty-stricken and the general tone was one of cleanness, anxiety and fanatical zeal. The people were happy, and he observed the people were peace loving, and had no desire for war, that any attempt from the outside to interfere with their new regime would be met with force," said Mr. Wilson. "Life is speeded up to an unbelievable degree," continued the speaker, "and they are dreaming dreams of doing great things and making them come true."

Rev. Mr. Wilson cited an instance of moving 200,000 people from the city of Moscow into temporary buildings outside the city, and then proceeding with steam shovels and material to build the city over from where they were taken, factories and houses for the workers, and then to move the people back into their new homes. He declared, that every city and town had a model in Russia, even to the extent of linking up with the remotest parts of the country and by so doing would lower the Caspian Sea 600 feet, yet not destroy the Caspian Sea. "At the end of the second five years of the plan, Moscow will be a model city," said the speaker. Dealing with the principle, that motivates the plan, Mr. Wilson stated, that the Russian view was entirely different from the western point of view. "There has been an evolution, while there is a principle. The principle is labor to ruler and they rule through a dictatorship, which is only a transitory stage to communism and Mr. Wilson impressed on his listeners, that Russia does not desire itself to be Communistic country.

The speaker further stated that all aristocracy had been liquidated, and that there was no private property in Russia. "It all belongs to the state," said Mr. Wilson. "There is no distinction between races as far as citizenship goes," continued the speaker. He described the new capris and their functions, stating that Russia had a different view of the Orient than in the western world, but that crime against the state was not tolerated. "They simply whip them out then," he said. "Progress against the state," declared the speaker, "Religion has also been liquidated," continued Rev. Mr. Wilson and I for one am of the opinion that the churches of the past need it deserved in the resolution for it fattened on the bigotry of the people. He described the tremendous advances made in education and the elaborate system that has been present in that country.

HON. L. MACAULAY HEARD AT PICTON

Considerable Heckling of Speakers at Nomination

Picton, Oct. 5—The County Court House was filled for the two nominations for the Federal candidates on Monday afternoon. Nominations were made at 1 o'clock and closed until 2 p.m. Returning Officer Fred Hubbs, presided, with Clifford Collier as secretary. At 2 o'clock Sheriff Mr. Hubbs announced the following as the candidates: Prince Edward-Lennox as follows:

Hastings East—Taylor, Bloomfield, Reconstructionist, Route 2; Hon. Lorne Macaulay, Picton, official agent.

George James Tuskin, Napanee, Conservative; Leighton Vandiver, Picton, official agent.

Mr. Hubbs called for nominations for the Chairman for the balance of the meeting, and on the unanimous decision of Warden W. S. Blakely he took the meeting over to him. Mr. Blakely explained, that candidates had drawn up the following programme: Mr. Tuskin 15 minutes; James Clarke, 10 minutes; Mr. Taylor, with no reporter, 30 minutes; Hon. Leopold Macaulay, 45 minutes and Mr. W. H. Hobbs, 30 minutes. Mr. Tuskin was then given five minutes in reply.

On account of unavoidable delay Mr. Macaulay was not able to speak in his turn, and Dr. Hobbs was chairman for the meeting, when Mr. Macaulay arrived, he was given the chair and Dr. Hobbs to have five minutes in rebuttal.

Mr. Taylor's entry came as a surprise to the audience, as no information for this party three weeks ago. He is a prominent farmer.

Hon. Mr. Macaulay was greeted considerable applause when he was more than held his own and finally had the audience on his side. Dr. Hobbs, assisted by Mr. Clarke, attempted a five-minute rebuttal but was unable to get a word in edgewise words. Both candidates were given a hearty send off.

Prisoner's Error Says Macaulay

Returning to bill board signs "Sing or Chaos," Mr. Macaulay said, "Prisoner's error," he said, "it should be "Sing For Chaos," laying the blame on a printer's error. He said the government had straightened out the 2-cent question, and that in the last 18 months and has done nothing yet. Mr. Macaulay referring to the relief promises of the Liberals, said Mr. Macaulay.

"We will get rid of the cars.

Macaulay—Yes, this same Hepburn is in both the Liberal and Tory barn, who was going to ride a bicycle to Queen's Park, has three cars, and keeps a chauffeur. For confusion, and the chairman rose to quell the meeting. "Never mind, Mr. Chairman, let them have it, I can handle them if they'll come on," he said.

It is the same Mr. Slaght, who is campaigning with Mr. Stevens in this campaign.

Yes here, like in other places the same old story is heralded. You won't do it again, you have learned a lesson," he declared.

The Liberals are pulling up the prices of sugar, the increase in the debts and taxes. But in Ontario they have added one hundred millions to the debt, claimed Mr. Macaulay. "Mr. Hepburn said on this subject, the speaker continued, and when Mr. Hepburn and his supporters come here ask him about it, and if he denies it I will show down here myself and take up the issue with him personally.

The Liberals claim that Mr. Bennett lost the market of the world. But let us look at the facts of the case. The markets began to fall between 1922 and 1923 and went down continually until 1932. Mr. Bennett only came in to power in the middle of the landslide. "You are going to blame Mr. Bennett for the loss of the markets; it is only fair to lay the blame on Mr. King for the loss of trade before Mr. Bennett came into power. I think that international relations have a lot to do with those things. Canada is only one nation among if things nationalist. But if you're going to blame a president, you should blame the premier, that was in power when the loss took place from 1923 to 1930, in those two years they lost millions upon millions. It continued to go down, but only by half that amount from 1930 and 1932, and since then has been definitely on the up grade.

Dr. Hobbs, in the course of the heights to be climbed with the Liberals, I think we are already half way up, and that there is no need to change our course.

Trade Lead Under Liberals

I have only told you about the total trade. But then there is the balance of trade which deals with the trade with which was all gone before 1930.

There has been so much talk about Mr. Bennett raising the tariff. Let's see what they have been, a single tariff raised against Canada since 1930. By American treaties our exports were cut down from to 80 mills and then early in 1930 those were again cut to 45 millions.

Would Create Monopoly

The other matter I want to deal with is the old sign board about a ten cent loaf of bread. Now I don't think, that it would be very desirable to have a political monopoly in the bread line. Competition is good, even in politics. Where we are in Ontario in the province how many civil servants they have fired they tell us 1930. Well, I'll not deal with the question as to how many they have fired, they are not. There was an answer for every one they have they have hired two more. The applause will now come around on the speaker's words, but he kept on. Mr. Hepburn has said, that he will apply the same methods at Ottawa. In his recent speech on the question of civil servants, Captain Frank Hunter stated, that there had been 500 men fired, but there was 1,500 installation, and recommended that they should be re-engaged as soon as possible.

When Mr. Henry was defeated Conservative Premier in Ontario, civil servatives, who voted Liberal, to see a change would be better off. And, I don't think, that they can blame them, for the Conservatives in this election, after such treatment.

The Liberals are changing their billboards now, realizing no doubt, that they were in trouble. The slogan King or Chaos would read King or Bust. Mr. Hepburn says chaos here. Point out to me one country that today is better situated, than Canada, I challenge him.

Campbell came a voice from the hall.

Mr. Macaulay still has her 9 million of unemployed, and has not solved that problem yet. They had unemployment insurance, but they have repealed that part years. Mr. Bennett should have had the same years ago. Mr. King promised it in 1918, and it he had been returned to power he would into power in 1921, we would have had it long before the present day. For fifteen years they have done nothing about it. The Conservatives have carried out some promises which the Liberals have not.

I don't think that we are going to change pilots now, Mr. Bennett has the ship on smooth waters at last. He has piloted her through very rough waters. We couldn't put a new man at the helm, realizing the storms that have been in the last five years world trip, there can be no calling her back. She will be piloted safely into port. Now, in dangerous shoals, etc., and we cannot afford to change pilots at the wheel (Applause).

If you want a man who has courage and knows what he is doing, a statesman who has the interests of the country at purpose, to lead Canada for the next five years, I urge you to vote for the Conservative candidate in this riding, George J. Tuston.

Both candidates, George J. Tuston, K.C., and Hon. Leopold Macaulay, K.C.

Garnet Taylor explained his being a candidate.

Not Bought Off Says Taylor

"Since I refused the nomination three weeks ago, stories have been spread that I had been bought off, that I had been paid to run, that I not bought off and I can take it, that I am not for sale, and I will tell you that hasn't a lien against it. I am in this fight to a finish and I intend to keep it. I first came out for Stevens, because I had known him personally for years and I believe he is the kind of man we need at the head of affairs. I have carefully viewed Mr. Steven's record and said the party was formed by the people and for the people.

Mr. Steven's platform was first and last and new. Individual will let it in part. Regarding youth, why Conservatives like Stevens do not a position to legislate for youth than men who have no children? I am opposed to big industrialism as long as they fill the following four points: Will help the farmer, will benefit the producer, benefit the labor they employ and benefit themselves—We will never get out of this mess until we learn to put ourselves last.

Mr. Taylor is a farmer residing near Wellington and is well-known as a poultry breeder. He has been a Liberal, his father, the late Mr. Melvin Taylor was a prominent minister of the United Church and president of the Montreal Conference.

Current Attractions at Local Theatres

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLE

"Pursuit"

Comedy, Mediance, Thrills Abound In Romantic Picture Belle Opening Today

Chester Morris and Sally Eilers come as a happy type of romantic team in a new type of comedy romance in "Pursuit," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's stimulating adventure in romance of the highways and byways, with love motorized and hitting on all sixteen!

The new picture, which is now playing at the Belle theatre until Thursday, is a delightful combination of romance, thrills and comedy and adventure. A young couple attempt to smuggle a child across the border, they move to avoid a guardianship suit.

Dodging Detectives

On the highways from San Francisco to the Mexican border, Morris in auto camps and barns, dodging truck drivers and private detectives, pursued by a crook and an amorous chauffeur, and finally by a rapid-fire series of adventures, meets hectic, some humorous, some sad, and finally in full flower of love. Morris is perfect as the adventuring young man, and Sally Eilers, pride from being beautiful, is the ideal companion for the mixed up humorous Maxine. Little Dorothy Jackadt, of "Our Gang" covers herself with glory as Dorcas, the child in the case.

Mr. Morris Gordon proves that a villain need not always be villainous by playing a sympathetic role as the kindly detective, and Henry Hall's direction is consistent and adept as the itinerant paperhanger with his dog "Fatima." Dorothy Peterson, Virginia Sale, Charles Bates, Minor Watson are other important members of the well-balanced cast.

Fast and Witty Comedy

By its power to entertain, "Calm Yourself," the new Constance Talmadge picture at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios, registers its right to acclaim as the new season's outstanding comedy. Announced as the second feature attraction at the Belle theatre, its laughs range from smiles to the uproarious, and they're coming as blooms fr a daily field.

But "Calm Yourself" has more than hilarity. Possessing a strong romantic theme, it is expertly directed that it pace is swift and its complications of theme are crystal clear. Ronald Colman, especially appealing by an all-round friendly manner, and Wyndham Young and Madge Evans, one of Hollywood's most popular romantic teams.

In addition to Miss Evans, Young and Ralph Morgan, stars of their stellar grand characterizations are turned in by Nat Pendleton, Hedda Albright, Claude Gillingwater, Shirley Rose, Raymond Hatton, and Herman Bing.

Edwin C. Hill inDecoding the World's latest News flashes, including scenes from the War zone and other important up-to-the-minute events will precide the exhibition of the feature offering.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Paris in Spring"

Gay Musical Romance With Mary Ellis and Tullio Carminati

There's still time for you to see the rayest musical romance of the season if you will come down to the Capitol theatre where "Paris in Spring" is playing.

Flimdom's first lady of song Mary Ellis, and in new romantic sense, Tullio Carminati, whom you supported Grace Moore in "One Night of Love," are the important performers in this delightful song filled story of a quadrangle of romance.

Because Mary Ellis doesn't pay enough attention to him, Carminati the dreadnaught of the Rivieri Tower. Ida Lupino has the same idea because of romantic complications with Blakely. Carminati instead of jumping, this madcap pair get together and start off on a wild whirl in the night life of Paris.

Their respective sweethearts become jealous, police accuse Carminati of kidnaping Miss Lupino and there's a mad chase that winds up at the mansion owned by Miss Lupino's grandmother.

Grandmother shuts up the incorrectly paired couples in different rooms and after a delicious night of romantic comedy, the loving couples are brought together again.

Jessie Ralph plays the grandmother, Lynne Overman, Hugh Herbert and Joseph Herbi are among those minor characterizations contributing to a sterling performance by the entire cast.

Besides this excellent romance there is a riotous comedy in which the popular Andy Clyde succeeds in creating gales of laughter with his antics. It is called, "It's the Cats." A cartoon called "The Bullfighter," provides some splendid music between many humorous situations. The entertaining trip through Vienna with a background of delightful music is entitled "Vienna, City of Vienna." As on Monday, each lady will receive the Capitol; this evening receive a piece of the attractive Dufferin dinnerware. Three performances given daily — 2.30, 7.00 and 9.00 p.m.

THE FORGOTTEN CONSUMER

Forgotten for five years under Bennett and Stevens

Why do the necessities of life cost so much more in Canada than in the United States?
Bennett is to blame. High Tariffs . . . Excise Taxes . . . Increased Sales Tax . . . Fixed Valuations and Nuisance Taxes instituted by Bennett have made the cost of living a heavy burden in Canada.
The wages and standards of living, if anything, are a little higher in the United States than in Canada . . . Our Canadian workmen are just as efficient, able and anxious to work as those in the United States . . . The Canadian retail merchant sells on a closer margin of profit than does the United States merchant, and yet—

Degenerate Blamed For Death of Sally Kelley on Garage Door

Seattle, Oct. 8 (AP)—A sadistic killer who hanged seven-year-old Sally Kelley on a garage door, was hunted here by police detectives, vigilante squads and volunteers.

Investigating officers said the girl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert H. Kelley, was criminally assaulted before she was slain Sunday night. Coroner Otto H. Mittlestadt and Detective Captain Ernest Yorke attributed the killing to a degenerate.

Detectives had as their main clue a man's large handkerchief which was tightly knotted around Sally's neck and lashed to a metal hook on the garage door when two policemen discovered her body.

The child's grandmother, Mrs. Alfred Coolidge, called police after Sally disappeared from the hallway of an apartment where she was playing.

Little Benny's Note Book

After supper Uncle Albit was still in the dining room drinking a 2nd cup of coffee and smoking one of pop's cigars and looking at the paper, and pop was up in the living room with ma, saying Do you think he has any intention of paying me back the 3 dollers he borrowed from me last nite to treet us to the movies?

Why Willyum, you dont suppose he'd borrow money without meaning to pay it back, ma said, and pop said, I dont suppose so, I'm sure of it. He's as like if he has to tip a waiter he snitches another tip from the next table on his way out. It's not so much the 2 dollers as it is the thawt that Albit's got it. By golliss I'm going to remind him, pop said.

For goodness sakes do it tactfully, ma said.

And pritty soon Uncle Albit came up saying, I must remember to get some cigars, I dont want to be smoking all your cigars, Willyum, I'm down to the last 2 or 3 puffs of this one. I'm a grate smoker.

I've noticed it, pop said, they're not bad cigars for a reasonable price cigar, I get a whole fistfull of them for 2 dollers. And speaking of 2 dollers, who was it I lent 2 dollers to last nite? By golliss it was you, wasn't it, Albit? Not that I'm hinting for it, but I just want to get it strate in my mind, he said. And Uncle Albit said, I'm glad you reminded me, because there's something that's been on my mind and now I realize what it was, it was that 2 dollers. Well that's a relief I must say, I couldn't imagine what it was that's been haunting me, and here it was nothing but that 2 dollers all a time. It's strange, such a little thing can upset you! I'm certainly glad you reminded me, Willyum. Do you mind if I take another cigar? he said.

And he took one without waiting for an anser and smoked it with a satisfied expression without saying any more about the 2 dollers, and pop looked at ma but ma didn't look back. . . .

FALLS OFF JIGGER FRACTURES SPINE

Toronto Man in Critical Condition Following Accident Near Tweed

Norman McDonald, 45, of Dufferin street, Toronto, was critically and possibly fatally injured when he fell from a jigger on the C.P.R. about two miles north of Tweed early on Monday morning. He was run over by the locomotive, but this could be brought to a full stop and seriously hurt about the head. It appears that McDonald was riding on the front of the jigger and was one of a gang of men which was engaged in taking up the rails on the C.P.R. between Tweed and Queenboro. As the machine was proceeding along the track a tool fell off and the brakes were applied sud denly causing the unfortunate man to lose his balance and fall between the wheels of the machine as it was still in motion. The injured man was brought to Dr. Dale's office where he was given first aid. As his injuries appeared to be of a serious nature he was removed in J. G. Frost's ambulance to Belleville General Hospital. Here X-rays were taken and the extent of his injuries was determined. A fracture of the spine and dislocation of several vertebrae of the spine as well as several internal injuries were revealed. The lower limbs are paralyzed and the injured man is in a critical condition. A pathetic feature of the accident is that Mr. McDonald arrived from Toronto just this (Monday) morning to go on the job. His wife and family live in Toronto.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, Oct. 8.—(AP)—Financial interests in Gulf Coast areas of Texas helped to support a wavering stock market today.

Shares of Sould Wheel Preferred shot up more than 3 points. Intercontinental Rubber, Texas Gulf Sulphur and Greyhound Corp. followed up 2 each and gains of fractions to a point or more were shown by American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, North American, Standard Oil of New Jersey and Eastman Kodak.

Losses ranged up to a point or more were U. S. Steel, Chrysler, Allied Chemical, Union Pacific, U. S. Smelting, Anaconda and Kennecott. The late tone was irregular. Transfers approximated 1,300,000 shares.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Oct. 8 (CP)—A sharply lower trend featured trading in the mines including copper, lead and zinc, unsettled the Canadian stocks after they had traded at firm to fractionally higher prices in the early session. Golds were also lower and the oils were turned strong after a morning display of irregularity.

Hudson Bay weakened about a half point, Noranda the same fraction and Lake Shore and Teck-Hughes each 25 cents. The senior gold group, Dome was higher by a point here and Wright Hargreaves were slightly lower.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 8 (CP)—Industrial shares lost ground in slow trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange today, showing the most action. The drive against the Brewing Corporation stocks was resumed, extending the early part of the session and both Canada Malting and Brewers Corp. touched new low levels for the year before they turned and they came back to register net gains for the day.

Detroit Fans Acclaim Team After Victory in Series In Noisy Demonstration

Beloved Goose Goslin And Manager Cochrane Toasts of Town

BRIDGES A HERO

Cubs Went Down, Fighting And Will be up on Top Soon

By EDWARD J. NEIL
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Detroit, Oct. 8—(AP)—Detroit woke up today With a terrific hangover—emotionally and otherwise—but it came out of the other bagpipe than ever before in all its baseball history, automatically acclaiming its first world champions, Mickey Cochrane's Tigers.

It heads could scarcely lift from the pillows, horns whispered hoarsely to their stogeorgraphers, pogo-sticks walked around in a daze, the street cleaners muttered to themselves as they carted away the debris. Cochrane was to blame. Cochrane and the ancient earlobed Goose Goslin, his particular co-perter in the slaughter of the Innocents, Chicago's young sorcery Cubs.

It was the beloved, bow-legged Goose, nearing the end of his trail but still a great money player, who slapped a fine single to centerfield with two out in the ninth inning of yesterday's sixth world series game that scored Cochrane from second with the run, that beat the Cubs 4 to 3 and won the series 4 games to 2, and loosed a celebration unequalled in Detroit history.

Nothing like it has happened in baseball since Walter Johnson and Washington Senators won the title.

Twenty eight years, from the time Detroit won the young American League pennant in 1907, the baseball madhatrist of this city, that nutty of the future of the horse have been waiting this moment. Four times, from 1908 down through last season, the St. Louis Cardinals thwarted them in seven games, they've hoped and cheered and screamed in vain.

'Tis Goose!

That call to centerfield, closing out one of the most thrilling duels in modern series history, boomed Goslin's $6,000 shot, and Detroit was on the loose. From the throats of 44,402 people, almost half of them in one huge bank in the bleachers beyond the left field wall, poured wave after wave of hysterical sound. Above the clamour rose one soaring, thrilling cry:

"Tes, Goose ..... Yes, Goose."

People poured out on the field, wouldn't leave for almost an hour until they'd had the pleasure of pounding chasing old bandy legs through an exit gate. And down in town with the flash of the victory word, came the start of the celebration. Every automobile horn in Detroit, city of automobiles, pressed down and stayed down until batteries died from the electric drain. Every factory whistle hooted.

Into the throng went a steady fall of lichter tape, tape that left the hotel sections looking as though they had been hit by a blizzard. Shoeboxs, songs rose on high, the glare, our increased and at dawn, roaring hotels were still mad houses, boozeing and boasting and reveling in Cochrane's champions.

The end of this million-dollar battle, one of the closest, most exciting in all the long history of world series, ended on the same high note of throbbing drama, of fierce argument, and bitter action, that stood through every one of the six games, three of the last four decided by a single run, the fourth by two runs.

It ended the third wealthiest of series with $1,173,794 taken in through gate receipts and the radio, a new record for six game series. It rewarded the Tigers with full shares of $6,851.86 each, the losers $4,262.77 each, far surpassing any previous individual returns to the victors and the vanquished.

Cubs Fight Hard

It was the first American League victory since New York Yankees shattered the Cubs in four straight games in 1932.

It wound up with the Cubs, young back-hitters, desperate, clawing against the inevitable, fighting the Tigers and their personal natural enemy, Umpire George Moriarty, to the last ditch. Twice, against the very little bunch of rawhide, who beat them in the second game, decider Tommy Bridges, they came from behind to tie the score. Crippled by the loss of Lonnie Warneke, sandwiched in the bench with a pulled shoulder muscle, they did the best they could with the men they had left, southpaw Larry French and Lon Warneke, single enough.

LANDIS RESERVES PROTEST DECISION

Detroit, Oct. 8—Kenesaw Mountain Landis, High Commissioner of baseball, leaving Detroit last night for a trip with Mrs. Landis, said: "There is nothing to be said on this occasion," relative to the dispute between Umpire George Moriarty and Shortstop Bill Jurges in Sunday's World Series game between Chicago Cubs and Detroit Tigers.

Commissioner Landis, intimating he had reached a decision, said he did not know when he would make it public. Jurges protested vehemently to Moriarty, umpiring at the plate, when the official called him out.

The Commissioner said he had talked to Jurges, Moriarty, Ozzie Vitt and Billy Herman, Chicago second-baseman.

Commissioner Landis said he would spend ten days "somewhere near Mackinac Island" before returning to his home in Chicago.

Crowd Refuses To Leave Field After Victory

Navin Field, Detroit, Oct. 7 — (AP)—Detroit's Tigers won their first world baseball championship Monday, beating the Chicago Cubs, 4 to 3, in the deciding sixth game of a slugging duel with the lead changing half a dozen times before a tingling, thrill-seeking crowd of 44,620. The Tigers won the series by four games to two as the veteran Goose Goslin drove home Mickey Cochrane with the deciding run in the ninth innings.

The title shifted back and forth, finally settling with the Detroit Tigers as Larry French, Chicago southpaw, and Tommy Bridges, curvy ball right hander, who had already pitched one victory, locked in the deciding duel under almost perfect weather conditions, and before the greatest crowd in Detroit's baseball history.

Issue in Doubt

The issue was always in doubt up to the ninth, and starting that inning the Cubs had a tremendous chance to break the tie themselves and force the series into a final seventh game tomorrow.

Stanley Hack, young Cubs third baseman, opened the ninth with a tremendous belt over the head of Gerald Walker, right hand hitter, who replaced Jo-Jo White, a southpaw slugger, in centre field against French's left hand pitching. Hack raced into third standing up, and with none out the Cubs seemed certain to go ahead.

But Bridges, off form much of the way, rose to his greatest heights in that emergency. As the mammoth crowd held its breath, Bridges fanned Bill Jurges, forced French to roll an easy putout down to him, and ended the inning by making Augie Galan lift an easy fly to Goslin in left field.

Crowd Refuses To Leave

So mad with delight was the crowd, that packed Navin Field to capacity, that it simply refused to leave after the battle was won. Cheer leaders quickly jumped out of the crowd, and from the massed stands, where 20,000 alone sat in one bank above the centre field left and centre field wall, came organized yells, unorganized bedlam, the field, for each member of the new world champions.

The crowd, which had fired the vegetable barrage down on Joe Medwick of the St. Louis Cardinals, when the National League champions, 1934 champions of baseball, ambition in last year's seventh game, showered the field with hats, coats, dugout, and thousands cheered them for half an hour before letting their players come back for personal appearances. The athletes knowing what was best for themselves, barricaded the clubhouse door.

TIGERS MAKE STRONG COMED ACK TO WIN SECOND GAME 8-2

Behind Tommy Bridges' six-hit hurling Detroit Tigers won the second game of the world series at Navin Field and jumped back into the classic. Two action shots of plays are shown. LEFT, Mickey Cochrane is tagged out at second base by Bill Herman on Gehringer's single in the seventh inning, but spoils chance of a double play by barging into the Cub second-sacker and knocking him off balance. At its RIGHT Jo Jo White scores the first run for Detroit in the opening inning, sliding into the bag after Cochrane's double.

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

Belleville's football victory at Petersboro on Saturday proved a costly one as two of the Kennedy-coached squad will likely be a total loss to the local team for the remainder of the season. Fred Temple, local outside wing, sustained a broken leg, while Freddie Forster, flying wing, suffered a sprained knee. Temple will be out of the game for the remainder of the season, naturally, but it is hoped that Forster will be back in harness inside of a fortnight. Today we find Oshawa leading the Lake Shore group with one win in as many starts with Belleville, Peterboro and Lindsay each having won a game and lost one while Cobourg lost their only start. Next Saturday the local squad is idle, while the other four teams meet, with the Peterboro at Oshawa game outstanding.

Upon their return from Peterboro on Saturday Bantam Manager Bill Fry and his assistants were of the firm opinion, that the Peterboro Orfleus were much tougher opposition than the Oshawa Blue Devils. "Dukes I really miss my guess the Oshawa boys will take the Blue Devils into camp at least once, if not twice, before their series, asked Manager Fry. We understand Jimmie Follwell is back at his old tricks of outdistancing his rival kicker on Saturday, and proved the difference between victory and defeat. "Our line never looked better, the backfield played a stellar game and our secondary defence was perfect, this coupled with Fairchild's punting gave us an ideal setup that is hard for any opposition to overcome," explained Coach Dr. Kennedy today. Efforts are being brought forward to stage an exhibition game here on Thanksgiving Day in order that the locals may continue their weekly games.

When the Kingston Ponies defeated the Cobourg Cubs 8 to 0 in the first game of the senior O.B.A.A. play-downs on Saturday, there was present the smallest crowd ever to witness a senior final, there not being 1,000 present in the park. Undoubtedly the weather was very bad, the game being held up in the second inning as snow and hail fell in abundance. After watching the 11 scheduled O. B. A. A. finals this year we are firmly of the opinion that the postponing of playdowns are being played much too late in the season. Besides running into repeated adverse weather conditions, around this time of the year the "cottonwood" clubs have to compete against the drawing qualities of the world's series over the medium of the radio. No sane-minded fan is going to sit outside in a cold bleak wind to watch a game, when he can draw up a chair and sit comfortably at home and listen to the world's series. On Wednesday the Trenton and Picton clash in Kingston and it would not surprise us if Coach Joe Daly sent Tommy Jamieson to the hillsop, holding Bud Clancy in reserve for relief duties. As pointed out by Joe Daly after Saturday's victory—Jamieson has been a faithful player for the Packers and deserves the honor of starting the home game." Vin Hogan of Guelph has been named as the umpire-in-chief while the selection of the lake team will be left in the hands of the O.B.A.A. officials of Eastern Ontario.

One week ago tonight at the Arena wrestling bout it was announced that the grapplers would appear here on the following night stand as on Thursday night Chief Lyne, that ferocious and pugnacious Indian, who pounded Frankie Hart into submission, will meet Jack Kenyon, the new sensational Toronto heavyweight. Two new faces have been included on the preliminary card and we find Bob Neilson of Hamilton battling Howard Martin of Detroit. These two lads have met with continued ring success in Western Ontario wrestling circles to date. Gaetjah, Kitchener etc. weekly. The Hamilton lad is a big husky fellow and is considered a rival kicker of Jimmie Follwell's. Both of these athletes are well built specimens of manhood and will doubtlessly prove a worthy opponent for the Indian. Incidentally it is Xavier's one ambition to prepare himself for return bout with Jack Anderis, the pugnacious Italian, who defeated the local lad in his first professional bout.

Although we missed Friday night's meeting after we understand the fights were as advertised "tip top". As a matter of fact everything was fine, except the small crowd, that was on hand. Undaunted as to the poor turnout, however, Promoter Clem Allen is contemplating another inter-city boxing card for the latter part of the month. Undoubtedly some of the local boxers must have made an impression with Promoter Nobuct, Toronto promter, who signed five local boxers for a Toronto show next month.

There may not have been any joy in Mudville when the mighty Casey struck out, but there was plenty of joy at Navin Field and in Detroit yesterday, when "Goose" Goslin hit in the ninth inning to drive home Mickey Cochrane and give the Detroit Tigers the 1935 world's series title. Incidentally it was a case of "Goose Bumps high today", as Goslin crashed the spherical high up and far away for what proved to be the million dollar hit. On the surface there is little doubt but that the Tigers possessed that much-needed power with the bat, that usually means victory. The Tigers' victory was a crowning effort, it being the first time in history that a Detroit team had won the coveted world's series title. Doubtlessly when the Cubs failed to score after Stanley Hack's triple, with none out in the ninth, the game was practically over as the power of the Tigers was often all confidence.

Regarding Saturday's O.R.F.U. game at Peterboro the Liftlock City scribe says:—

Belleville showed a husky team with Rigby and Morgan prominent in its front. Outwon showing at quarter and a fairly fast back division with Fairell's punting a feature.

NORMAN MANN IN PRO RANKS

Signs Three Years Contract With Toronto Maple Leafs

Toronto, Oct. 8—(CP)—Norman Mann, fleet right winger and centre player with Toronto of the Senior Association and Canada of the Toronto Mercantile League last winter, has signed a three-year contract with Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, it was learned today. Mann has been on the Leaf reserve list for some time.

The blonde forward has been a member of four championship teams during his few years in hockey. He was with the Newmarket Redmen when they won the Canadian Junior Championship in the season of 1933-34 and he was a member of the Paris Intermediate squad, which captured the Ontario Hockey Association title.

Last winter his team, Toronto, took the O.H.A. Senior title and Canada captured the Mercantile League championship.

Mann will report to the Leafs' training camp when the team starts fall training. If manager Connie Smythe thinks the slim wingman needs more seasoning he will be shipped to Syracuse of the International League.

Ninth Innings Of Final Game Drama Packed

Detroit, Oct. 8—(AP)—That drama-packed ninth inning, veteran writers in the press box agreed, will go down as one of the longest to be remembered in World Series history....great pitching by Larry French in the eighth being followed by even greater hurling by little Tommy Bridges in the ninth.

That slashing triple by Stan Hack to open the final frame.... the ball cleared Walker's outstretched glove by two feet, bounded crazily into the corner behind the flagpole....seemed to take forever to get around so that Hack might even score....Jurges up and out in three pitches....Galan's fly scores men to go....

French up and he's going to hit, not sacrifice....strike one, strike two.....a tap to the box. Bridges plases quickly at Hack, throws to Owen for the second out.....one man to go....Galan, a fine hitter, takes his place in the box....strike one....the crowd roars, then is silent....strike two.....on the 2-2 delivery Bridges lets drive with the wind is holding it. Roy Cullenbine by kicking a twisting spiral and Clifton going back for it, coming in fast....waving his arms to catch, then how Galan stands in front at right angles to the field! Bringing his kicking foot, bound to face the field as the ball bounds off his instep. His great the ball in one motion that gives it length and speed to the punt.

Clifton up....and out on strike three....Cochrane singles to right. Gehringer's hard smash to Cavaretta....the youthful first baseman lays the bag for the out, then shoots a fast throw to second, ball getting away from Jurges, but Mickey had beaten the throw....then the Tech. Goose. Yes, Goose—" chants, swelling to a roar from the bleachers....and Goslin, 30,000 single....sending a winning, jubilant Cochrane home young Cavaretta out off Demaree's throw to the plate.....

The wild scene in the Tiger dressing room....a swearing, sweating, yelling crowd of "kids" suddenly cut from under a terrific strain.

HOCKEY IMPORT WILL BE CURBE

"Official warning is hereby given that any wholesale migration of Maritime Provinces hockey players to the United States or Canada will result in the immediate suspension of players concerned. Such players will not be allowed to play organized hockey in Canada upon their return.

SINISTER SHADOW

by JOHN GOODWIN

"What do you want?" he queried. Sheila came a step nearer to him, her eyes on his. Her voice was very soft, very gentle.

"Don't you know, Jim . . ."

Down sitting silent in the chair watched him. He was not blind, so one might have thought. His eyes were fixed on Sheila's face, a queer little shiver ran through him.

The cap fell from his hand. The coal slick slipped from his fingers and clattered on the floor.

"Sheila. I'm Sheila Neil," she said. "When I last saw you Jim, it was night. Black night, and there was a storm coming on . . . and there's been a storm . . . I've been a long time finding you . . . because I'm in trouble, too."

Bannister Cooke was no longer looking at her. His face slowly straightened into a blank horror in his eyes. A flurry of rain drummed on the window behind him. Then he spoke like a man half drunk.

"Rain! And I'm hearing voices . . . Black night and lightning. Trying to remember. Like a great black wall, and nothing at the back of it . . . All a confused jumble . . . and behind him," he said slowly, "behind him, I'm always trying . . . to remember. And there's nothing . . . nothing at all."

It was uncanny; like listening to a man talking in his sleep. Sheila shivered.

"Tramping—tramping — tramping in the rain, and my head bleeding. Blank, blank, blank . . . Miles and miles of railway. Trains thundering by, all ill to-and good again. Lights, all lit as day . . . showing up the wet metals—piles of them. Sleepers, slick and oily, slidey, crying like a child . . . lost. Tramping in the rain . . ."

"Seems to me—I've been tramping, myself, like a man always waiting. Everything blacked out. He passed the back of a tremendous dead sorted hill . . ."

"Blood. My head bleeding. That's all I remember—and then I'm in a great ship coming into port. My ship . . . I remember I owned it, her. That I know your voice, heard it in the night . . . in my dreams . . . I was in trouble . . . I'm still in trouble. Everything gone."

Sheila nodded.

"It was a bad night for you, Bannister," she said, "with some very near you. It was pretty bad for me, too, but I know what it must have been on your side."

"A bad night for us all. For those who died, and for your own self, Jim. He's sitting beside you now—according to what you've told me, Brian. He's been in Australia trouble, he's out at large now."

She set a chair for him.

"Sit down, Bannister," she said gently. "I know everything that happened that night . . . and since. Don't worry about it at all—you're going to remember. It's going to come back to you."

She seated herself opposite him, leaning back in the table.

"No more darkness! Listen, Bannister. You're going to hear Brian Neil."

"The night of the 5th; thirty minutes past 12, Sharon, coming on. Dark as the pit. You brought the chestnut colt Sorrow out of the stable at Brian Elm House—and riding him bareback . . . You rode across the park to the railway. You remember old Dorner, don't you?"

"All black," said Bannister vaguely. "Black night, and the wind on the head. I seem to remember nothing else."

"Dorner had a shoe that night, so's back at home now. You rode right out through the park bridge gate for the Stanney Mine.

"Sam Barber was waiting for you by the old mine chimney. Two o'clock he said he'd be there. You had to go, couldn't let him down. Those are bigger. He'd got to be ready to hold his tongue. And Sam was on his way too—on foot.

"Baby and Barber—they're not even names to you now, Bannister, except in connection with the case. I'll read as I am, and they're coming to me.

"You rode right along to the railway where the lane comes down from behind the Ring O'Bells Pub, and there—"

Sheila stopped.

"There are just one or two little things Bannister, that I'm not dealing with—such like they don't matter. You'll be able to fill them in what I've done.

"You saw somebody up there by the lane. A pair of lovers, courting in the dark. They didn't want to be disturbed—hardly did you. Naturally you pulled in behind the hedge and let them go by, so they wouldn't see you. One couldn't blame you for that. I was out that night, a little later, and I don't want any one to see me either.

"You rode round by the railway bridge till you were on the far side from the road by the fence, headed for Samuel Barber.

"Now, while you were on your way, there's another thing. You rode back towards the village and see a couple of lights coming out and coming down the lane from the house—a flashlight? Try and think a moment."

Bannister's eyes closed into lines earnestly. He shook his head.

"They were Brian's car-lights, going down towards the railway crossing; they went out before he parked his car there. But of course you wouldn't know that, not till afterwards when you were fully back in it. Over. That's a bit of theorizing on my part. We'll get on to what I know—for I've got that nearly mastered.

CHAPTER LVIII

"You were in a hurry, and leaving the village behind you, you rode to the top and of the gully above the mine—the best door to it, I'd say. You remember—and unhitched the horse in the fence by the gate.

"Then you climbed down that steep ditch of cinder and shale itself. It's a rough climb in the dark, and you've had a bad fall. Climb—but there's something much rougher coming. You're following me every step, Bannister? It's important you should get this, however dazed you are. Two men have been missing ever since that night, and though no trace has been found of them, Brian Gilmore Neil has been within an inch of being convicted of murder—your murder. What happened, Bannister?"

Bannister Cooke sat motionless, staring slightly down at his feet. Listening as a child listens, trying to follow something it does not understand. He said no word.

"You got to the bottom at the top end of the gully. Where was Sam Barber? Not easy to locate in the dark. It was only just while when a glimmer of lightning in him up—you then, could have said shoulders.

"Sam Barber was at the lower end of the gully—near the railway. He'd chosen a good spot. He was lying in the gorse of the steep bank of mound that divides the gully. From there, he could see any one who approached the place, before they saw him. He was high up and out of reach.

Sam Barber was watching for you. He was watching the foot of the gully where it opens on the railway. He'd naturally think you were bound to come that way straight from Brian Elm House and along the cutting. It's the short cut, and the only way, but you didn't take it—it was James Selby who took that road. It was Selby who came riding, crossing the railway track and making for the gully—and Sam Barber took him for you.

"That was Barber's mistake. He was a dangerous fellow up doubt, but he was dealing with a man more dangerous than himself, and he hadn't thought it out. He didn't expect, while waiting for you to come through the gully, that you would be riding on a horse that ridge behind you.

"That is what you did, Bannister. Whether there was any fight or not, I don't know. Barber of course was armed; so were you. You'd a revolver in your pocket and in your hand a hunting-whip with a heavy metal end. Barber had his back to you, and just by him there was a big boulder. You rode up behind him the gully. He'd hardly have time to rise and face you. You could kill him with the end of the whip. Barber fell the ground, and you finished on by the stone path below—just short of the old wooden shed.

"That was the end of Barber. His work was done. He was a man who hadn't gone back on a bloke—a dangerous and a danger that couldn't be allowed to run loose.

"No one knew anything about Barber, much less that he'd gone to the mine. At the Stanney Mine you were on your own ground; you knew a lot more about it than Barber did.

"And now Selby joined you. You told Selby to search Barber's body for anything he'd got that was worth taking care of, and throw him down the old shaft with the wire fence round it, that's higher up the gully.

"You knew, with that storm coming on, there'd be a deluge in a few hours that would scour Sam Barber down through the galleries of the mine, where it would be a hundred to one against his ever being found even if it were known he was missing.

"That was a job for Selby; he's a big, hefty fellow and it would just suit him. you left him to it. Your job was to get back to King's Elm House.

"I think you're following me now, aren't you Bannister?" said Sheila quietly. "You're beginning to remember. With such brain as yours, it's sad to see a man's memory going like this.

"That's Part I. Part II is much more interesting.

"You got to the rail where the job was tied up, and you rode along the slope above the cutting . . . the time was just after ten. It had been a good night's work so far. The lightning showed up somebody who was coming along close by the railway fence and from the direction of the village. It was Brian.

"That was awkward. You weren't expecting Brian. You guessed he must have got to know about your fight with Barber. And that's right, he did. He was waiting for the Stanney Mine, and if he learned what had happened there, as he was bound to do, you had a hanging to look forward to. You could hardly expect Brian to hold his tongue. And you'd got to do it. Unless you could keep him quiet if you all up with you.

"It was in one of those unpronounceable fules of yours, Bannister, that you turned to him—seeing that he'd recognised you—and tried to beat him down. Brian's a good boy, but his temper was rather roughed up too; he had stood a job that you'd given him already. If you were for fighting him, he wasn't in any mood to turn his back on you.

"What happened last after that has been told twice before a jury, but it has never been told in full. You'll say—if your memory ever comes back to you—that there were no witnesses to your fight. There was a witness who has never been called.

'Catty' Girls Are Never Popular

Method of Presenting a Critical Attitude Explained by Writer.

By LISA GRENELLE

"Catty" Girls are not popular. Moreover, the state of mind of the malicious gossip is not a happy or an enviable one.

It does not take any profound philosophy to realize that hating hurts no one so much, or so surely, as it does the hater.

But what many do not understand or take into account, is the cause, the origin, of more malicious tongues.

People aren't born malicious nor even, I believe, with any tendency to malice. But they are born with, or soon develop, a desire for admiration, attention and love. They are born with or soon develop a fear of loneliness, of being surpassed—a fear of losing a treasured affection. And they are likewise born with, or soon develop, an instinct for self-preservation which includes a desire to preserve not only existence itself but an existence that is desirable—that has its share of sun, love, admiration and respect.

Early Unhappiness

If, as a child, these essential trimmings of life are denied, some manner of retaliation is bound to follow.

Malice, hate, jealousy, dissatisfaction—these almost always have their origin in some early frustration, or unhappiness.

The "catty" adolescent springs from the daughter who has not appreciated, cherished and safeguarded from the girl who has been made to feel less attractive than her contemporaries, who has, underneath, been dominated by a fear of people, of inferiority.

Of course, sometimes a tendency to malice is instilled. A daughter imitates her mother's point of view; she hears her mother criticize, ridicule or find faults, and she does likewise, forms a like habit of mind, a like unfavorable point of view.

Fault Confidence

Second, you must make her feel confident, adequate. She must be made to feel, not superior, but sufficient; she must be made to think that she has something to offer.

Lower prices still in effect

The same "good tea" as always and still selling 5c. to 10c. per lb. less than teas which formerly sold at same price.

Red Label 28¢ ½ lb. Orange Pekoe 38¢ ½ lb.

RED ROSE TEA "is good tea"

She must be taken off the defensive, so many girls are "catty" because they're afraid, because they feel the world is against them.

And then, by praise, where it is deserved, by encouragement, her appearance, put her in the frame of mind in her turn. Many girls criticize others because they themselves are crushed by criticism at home.

Finally, always try to make your daughter feel that you are proud of her, that she can rely on your loyalty and support.

And be sure you balance her critical remarks with more tolerant, more understanding remarks of your own.

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

(Copyright 1935, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Something other than just the usual ensemble is to be found in what we call sports things this season. A new suit has a skirt of two-toned tweed in lavender and blackberry shades and is worn with a reversible jacket. One side matches the skirt; the other side is of gray Persian lamb.

A good saving for the wear and tear on your fur coat is found in an extra coat of cloth with fur trim. A charming dress coat is of smooth woolen in a deep brown, the body is slightly flared and worn belted. The pouch collar is silver fox.

The busy beaver finds himself in great demand this Autumn. For wear over tailored and sports clothes there is a fine-quarter coat of beaver done on swagger lines. This model has bell sleeves and a standing flared collar.

A wealth of fur marks many of the new suits. A suit of black and white mixture tweed with a three-quarters, swagger coat has the coat trimmed with a double panel of black sealskin which extends into a side-buttoned standing collar. There are half-sleeves of fur.

A nice choice for those gay evenings is an evening frock of mulberry chiffon with all-over shirring. The camisole top has narrow bands of mulberry-colored velvet around the bodice and as shoulder straps. There is a ruffy dust ruffle at the hem bottom.

Who wants the leopard to change his spots when the fur looks so nice for coats? A spectator sports coat of leopard fabric has an extra coat of cloth with fur trim. A charming dress coat is of smooth woolen in a deep brown, using her influence to see that they get proper wages, were not worked to death and had a reasonable amount of recreation, that was all left for the men of the family to manage.

Today the average man flies from the tips of dandelion saint to someone who can share his woes and laughter. As Ella Wheeler Wilcox wrote: "Laugh and the world laughs with you; weep and you weep alone."

When a marriage has proved uncongenial, but husband and wife manage to stay together on account of their children, statistics show that they take this calamity differently. Lacking domestic happiness, the man charges the affair to profit and loss and decides as far as possible to forget. He seeks diversion, and speech left to friends that the marriage has been a mistake.

The woman, on a rule, never seem able to rise above an unhappy marriage. They weep, allow their mouth to sag with grief, and confide in too many people that their married life has been a failure.

Is it any wonder that the college professors, who have been mad at the world for years, should get the prize to the jolly wife who discovers in laughter rather than tears?

WEDDING GIFT

(Copyright, 1935, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Recently I received an invitation to a church wedding. I am not to the reception. I am a friend of the bride's-to-be's sister. Do you think I should buy a wedding gift?

2. I am going to be married the latter part of next month at Mass about nine o'clock. I am a Catholic. The maid of honor and I are going to wear Fall suits and there will be a breakfast at a hotel following the marriage. This breakfast will be for the immediate wedding party. Shall I send out invitations for the church wedding?

3. The same evening my mother intends to have an informal reception at her home for our friends and relatives. Is this good form?

4. Should she send written invitations or telephone the invitations?

M.

It's sorry that there are no definite rules and regulations to give you concerning the sending of a wedding gift. Some persons narrows down to the fact that we should send a gift if we can do it, and needn't send one if we don't wish to. You did receive the compliment of being asked to come to the ceremony, but, since you did not receive an invitation to the reception, it indicates that you don't know the bride very well. However, out of compliment to your friend, the bride's sister, you might wish to send a present, or even though not a very important one.

2. The invitations to your informal wedding should be informal notes, written by your mother who is to be the hostess. Or, if the number of your guests is very small, perhaps you and your mother would like to ask the guests by word of mouth.

3. Yes. It isn't usual to have the reception so much after the ceremony, but it is thoroughly proper, and in many instances by far the most convenient time for the greater number of guests to be present.

4. Written invitations would be proper.

"OPEN HOUSE"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please send me a suggestion as to the wording of an invitation for "open house" during a wedding reception? The reception will include only the immediate family. However, we would like to have our friends with us at this time. The home is too small to accommodate them all at one time. Therefore we thought it might be permissible to invite them to drop in after the ceremony. Is this proper?

B.

Since this gathering of your friends is apparently to be an informal party, the appropriate form of invitation would be a note written either by you or your mother. The best form is for your mother to write these invitations, since she is to be the hostess.

Something like this:

Mary and John are to be married, at an informal wedding, on Friday, the first of November, at three o'clock, at the United Church. At the ceremony and reception following, the first of their only children, Mary and John are eager to greet their friends at an "Open House," and we would like so much to have you with us.

"Best Wishes" to them here at home from 4 to 6 o'clock, between five and seven o'clock. It is not necessary to say, but I am sure that it will be a happy occasion, and we are all looking forward to seeing you on the first.

Affectionately yours,

ADMISSION BY CARD

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I would like to know whether it is proper for me to present both the bride and groom a wedding and the reception when I attend?

Sometimes, when the wedding is to be a large important one, there is to be a large reception after the ceremony, a small church card announcing the "present the card" at the church. If so, of course, you bring a gift with you to the ceremony. Otherwise it is not necessary to take any of the invitations with you for the ceremony or reception.

SCIENCE SAYS JOLLY WIVES HOLD THEIR HUSBANDS BEST

(Copyright 1935 King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Here lately, as you've probably noticed in the papers, several of the colleges have been devoting their attention to the study of matrimony. Psychologists, psychiatrists, and other specialists with four-syllable names have been assessing the question of why one marriage is going on the rocks.

Homes being the backbone of every country, it becomes a serious business when they are broken and children thrown out into the world to fend for themselves, to such an extent as now happens in the United States.

So, waving aside the pathological patter of the pundits who have been delving into this question of unhappy marriages and broken homes, the outstanding fact remains that the women who keep the home fires burning is a cheerful person. She is not given to tears. She has a sense of humor, and she doesn't enjoy poor health or kindred ailments.

The question has often been asked: Why are women more unhappy, temperamentally, than men? Life demands of both to take it on the chin. Both are equally subject to misfortune, illness and tragedies. Yet men come in smiling through these battles of fate more often than women.

Men tell each other the last good story. They wise-crack. Women tell each other about their troubles and diseases, and what a hard time they've had in this and that.....

When a man spends money for theatre tickets he goes to a comedy, or a musical show — something full of laughs — while a woman is more apt to pick out a play like "Mourning Becomes Electra." Then they're apt to go home and match up their own lives and those of their relatives and friends with all of the calamities which made Electra such a handful.

Perhaps the reason for all this constitutional "grief" is that during the long reign of Queen Victoria, which set the pattern for so many things feminine, if was not considered quite the thing for women to be jolly.

The "home body", as a domestic model, was regarded as the last word in wives and mothers. She was a feeling that the woman who never went to places of amusement or read anything but goody-goody books, and who wore dull clothes, was really the domestic saint that no family should be without.

She was not supposed to take an interest in politics, current events, or the wretchedness in the lives of people who might be a stone's throw from her own door. She did take those unfortunates soup and old clothes, I'll admit, but as for Those with gray hair, platinum blondes, can appear to stunning advantage if costumed in the correct colors.

By HELEN FOLLETT

Prematurely gray hair is not always a tragic matter. Look at the platinum blondes whose pates are more silver than gold! They think themselves pretty nifty. They spend a large amount of cash to look like that!

A young-looking woman, with fresh complexion and showy dresses, can appear immensely older and striking. She looks distinguished. Gay colors are her natural dish. She looks wonderfully well in black with a brilliant accent of rose, old blue or cerise.

Favorable to her are those pale hyacinth blue shades, pink mauves and delicate blue tints. She can wear purple much too young for women can manage to get away with.

Taupe, yellows and a kind of tinted gray suit her. They impart a carbon cast to her frosted crown.

In print gray chiffon she is adorable. Jade green suits her, as it suits the redhead.

To wear a silver halo is no hardship. And white hair is fashionable.

Cold water is a first-class astringent, should be used freely on a complexion that is oily or made unsightly with enlarged pores. With hazel serves well, too.

Once or twice a week apply a white of egg mask. Beat the egg white slightly, so it can be handled conveniently. Spread it over a clean skin surface and let it remain on until the flesh feels tight and drawn. Remove with tepid water, give yourself an ice rub and then do some creaming.

How to clean combs has ever been a problem. It isn't any more. You buy a funny little gadget that's like a fine-toothed rake and run it. It is a revolving brush to be used under tepid water. Soap, water, turns and the teeth of the comb are clean. One can't be too particular about combs and brushes.

Mauve is a wonderfully becoming color for the white-haired matron. She can use it in her complexion powder. It will give her skin a delicate transparent look.

In the form of eye shadows, it is for her eyes, whether they be brown, blue or gray. Mauve in the silvered crown and mauve there is a beauty spot.

18,000 PERSONS CROWD 'GARDENS' TO HEAR KING

New Government Would Co-ordinate Rehabilitation Schemes

TRADE BARRIERS

Secretary Says Leader is Planned Against Future

Liberal Leader Mackenzie King last night in Maple Leaf Gardens outlined policies by which a Liberal Government plans to give the people of Canada social and economic security against the future.

Eighteen thousand enthusiastic cheerers men and women packed the vast arena from floor to roof to acclaim Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King as Canada's next Prime Minister.

An unprecedented and spectacular feature of the demonstration of Liberal accordancy was the participation of eight Provincial Premiers, whose messages of good-will were winged to Canada's Capital by the magic of wireless. It was a thrill which shall not soon fade from the memory of the spellbound thousands who thronged the huge building. The messages were broadcast by radio.

To Unite Efforts

The new Government would unite and co-ordinate every rehabilitation effort they had been made in the past five years and would supplement it with new measures which would ensure Canada of work while relieving their condition, said Mr. King.

All public works projects, housing schemes and aviation development plans which had been started would be united into a common effort by a Federal Liberal Government which would work in harmony with Provincial and municipal bodies.

For Economic Liberty

Mr. King always speaks earnestly, but at no time or in no place has he spoken more earnestly than in the Maple Leaf Gardens last night as he outlined Liberal plans to secure economic liberty for the people of Canada.

The Liberals, he said, intend to revive industry and trade through sensible fiscal policies, but in the meantime, while these policies are being worked out, they will take care of the nation's unemployed, who, in spite of all efforts of the present Government, numbered more than 500,000, with unofficially more than 1,000,000 men, women and children were on the dole.

Britain has risen steadily from the morass of the depression; South Africa and Australia have made notable progress on the road back to recovery, but Canada, he asserted has been retarded by the unsound policies of the present Government at Ottawa. The Liberals intend to continue with useful public works, housing and slum-clearance schemes, the construction of airways, the elimination of level crossings, the development of national parks, and would co-operate with the Provinces in the equitable splitting in the construction of necessary projects.

Nation-Wide Insurance

As a permanent solution of the distressing and urgent problem of unemployment, the Liberals, however, proposed to set up a nation-wide Commission of persons broadly representative of the great social and service organizations of the Dominion, labor, industry, the churches, etc.

This Commission would make a complete survey of the whole field and bring about schemes to co-ordinate and unify all efforts, whether Federal or Provincial or municipal, and expand them. "We will mobilize all the forces we can and take up this grave unemployment problem as the first major national problem to see if we cannot evolve a solution of it," declared the Liberal chieftain.

To Hold Conference

Mr. King also announced that, should a Liberal Government be returned to power at Ottawa with him as Prime Minister, "the first step I will take will be to summon to the Dominion Capital all the provincial Premiers whom you heard by wireless tonight, and they will sit down, not to a lecture from Mr. Bennett, but to take up every single problem that is an outstanding matter for problem of our country, to see if a satisfactory solution cannot be reached out.

Prince is Born Early Today To Duke, Duchess of Kent

London, Oct. 9 (AP)—Great Britain rejoiced today as news flashed to the nation that a baby had been born to the Duke and Duchess of Kent.

Early this morning the word went forth from Buckingham Palace.

An heir had arrived in the home of the youngest son of King George and the former Princess Marina of Greece. Special late editions of the newspapers carried the news to the Empire.

"It's a boy," was the unconventional way many spread the glad tidings of the birth of a Prince to Britain's Royal House.

Crowds gathered outside the city Guild Hall and the Admiralty office where in accordance with established custom the news was posted. Outside the home of the Duke and Duchess the knots of women and girls gathered to read the latest news, glancing up at the windows of the happy Royal home.

Hours before the Duke of Kent had revealed his princely pride when soon after the initial announcement he appeared at the front door, pale but smiling and waved his hand to the subdued throng in a small crowd.

Both mother and son were reported doing well.

Happy Coincidence

It was a happy coincidence the Duke's son—the seventh in line of succession to the Throne—was born precisely one year after the King granted Prince George the title, the Duke of Kent, the Earl of St. Andrews and Baron Downpatrick.

Scarcely had the father been told by doctors of the arrival of a son in his household when a telephone call was made to Sandringham where the King and Queen are in residence. Other messages were sent to the Prince of Wales, the Duke of Gloucester and the Princess Royal, Victoria Alexandra Alice Mary.

The Duke of Kent is a "rank as 'fifth gentleman in the land,'" according to King George, the Prince of Wales, the Duke of York, the Duke of Gloucester and his own father. In line of succession to the throne he will stand after Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret, the children of the Duke of York but will take precedence over the Princess Royal's two sons.

The baby is the King's third grandson.

Duke Seen Son

The Duke of Kent saw his son for the second time this morning. The first time he glimpsed him the youngster was only two hours old.

Hundreds of congratulatory messages arrived at White Lodge, Belgrave Square residence, Among them a personal congratulation from the King and Queen. The telegram from Sandringham was busy handling inquiries while Prince and Princess Nicholas of Greece kept in close touch with the house. The Prince and Princess had visited and had left with the Duke.

Prince George, fourth and youngest son of George V and Queen Mary, created Duke of Kent a year ago, married Princess Marina, daughter of Prince Nicholas of Greece and granddaughter of former King George of Greece.

The wedding which took place in Westminster Abbey, November 29, as the occasion for a great outburst of national rejoicing. London celebrated with such festivity as had not been seen for many years.

The Duke of Kent is 32 years of age.

The Duchess of Kent is 28 years of age.

NATIONS EXEMPT IN EVENT OF VOTE UPON SANCTIONS

Experts Point Out What Opposition by Nations Means

SITUATION TENSE

League Alignment Broken on Question of Punishment of Italy

(Associated Press Foreign Staff) Copyright 1935 The Associated Press

Geneva, Oct. 9—The League of Nations is prepared to vote the punishment of Italy for invading Ethiopia was broken today by Austria and Hungary.

Baron Pflugal of Austria announced his nation does not accept the report of the Council Committee of six under which sanctions would be imposed against Italy.

The delegate from Hungary announced his country was not in a position to endorse the conclusions of the League Committee which decided Italy had disregarded its covenants under the League of Nations.

These two announcements were made in a meeting of the League Assembly which had been called to decide on what action might be taken against Italy in the war in East Africa.

Situation is Tense

The attitude of the diplomats present was tense. The assembly hall was crowded.

Experts pointed out the opposition by Austria and Hungary means merely, in the event of a vote favoring the application of sanctions, two nations would be exempt from obligations. Therefore, sanctions were decided upon.

The assembly meeting opened immediately after the session by the body's steering committee which recommended that a committee on sanctions, to coordinate the work of the council and assembly, be created at once.

The League Council previously had voted unanimously in favor of the report of the committee of six—but neither Austria nor Hungary are members of the council.

Sanctions Attitude

Geneva, Oct. 9 (CP Cable)—The Canadian delegation to the League of Nations Assembly, it is understood, will vote in favor of the report of the committee of six powers which found Italy resorting to war, in defiance of the League covenant.

Thus Canada will not be represented on the sanctions committee which is to report back the council and assembly and which will then take the best ways of sanctions application.

MIXED MARRIAGE BY PROTESTANT CIVILLY BINDING

Justice Curran Dismisses Action Based on Religious Difference

Montreal, Oct. 9 (CP)—Marriage of a Roman Catholic and a Protestant performed by a civil magistrate or minister, is civilly binding in Quebec Province and cannot be annulled, Mr. Justice F. J. Curran ruled in Superior Court today.

Mr. Justice Curran dismissed the action of Wilma Carmichael for annulment of her marriage to James Million of Kent, England, based on the ground she was a Catholic and her husband a Protestant. The marriage was performed by Rev. S. J. Pike in Mountain Street United Church here.

Mr. Justice Curran, in his judgment, recalled the wife had stated she had lived with her husband one month after their marriage and they had lived separately under the same roof for a year before parting. Mrs. Million said her husband wanted her to become a Protestant, so sought an annulment because of religious differences.

Needed Expert Opinions

His Lordship referred to the decision of the Privy Council in the Despatie-Tremblay case in which mixed marriages were held to be valid but declared he did not base his decision on that finding.

"Regarding the question that have taken place in this country affecting the jurisdiction of the Canadian Parliament in marriages laws and in particular affecting the validity of mixed marriage in Quebec," he said, " we find the opinions of five judges of the Supreme Court, in the reference by the Governor-General-in-Council re marriage laws in the matter of the authority of the Parliament of Canada.

"In that reference two questions were put to the Supreme Court judges. One was the following: "Does the law in the Province of Quebec render null and void unless contracted before a Roman Catholic priest a marriage that otherwise would be legally binding which take place in such province—(A) between persons who are both Roman Catholics—(B) Between persons only one of whom is a Roman Catholic".

"In the first branch of this question four judges answered in the negative and the Chief Justice declined to give an answer for personal reasons. To the second branch of the question the Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Davies, Mr. Justice Idington, Mr. Justice Duff and Mr. Justice Anglin answered 'No'.

"Inasmuch as the foregoing opinions have been given by the full bench of the Supreme Court, including the Chief Justice, after exhaustive discussion by the most

NO SCARS LEFT IN VACCINATION

New Vaccine Produced by Giving Smallpox to Test-Tube, Not to Calf

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(Associated Press Science Editor)

Milwaukee, Oct. 9 (AP)—Four thousand lucky mothers who escaped scars by a new kind of smallpox vaccine were cited as the scientific progress of the Association today as reasons for health officials to reconsider the entire smallpox vaccination technique.

The objective is not to please the half of the population which tries to hide its scars but to introduce harmless germs of a new and cleaner type of vaccine.

This new vaccine has been developed in the last three years at the Rockefeller Institute, New York, and its safety was reported today by Thomas M. Rivers, MD., of Institute.

It is made by giving smallpox to a laboratory test tube instead of to a calf. The important difference is complete freedom of contamination in the tube-bred germs from all the cells of a calf and cleaner type of vaccine.

The calf vaccine contains not only the live germs but normal cell body soup impurities inseparable from the calf reaction. So, to quote Dr. Rivers, "we have said it can be injected hypodermically underneath the skin."

The result he said is no soreness or the disfiguring scar. Vaccinated children can be bathed as if they had never been touched by the needle.

Scheme to Export Butter Raises Price

Toronto, Oct. 9.—The butter market has shown a tendency to gradually stiffen during recent days, accounted for, almost entirely, by the effect of the Butter Export Marketing Board to move the Dominion's surplus of butter into export channels. A large number of country cities and dealers have been turning over as much butter as possible to the agents of the Butter Export Marketing Board. The Board, faced with the necessity for immediate action in exporting the butter while the British market is firm and active, had urged all holders of butter to make available from the regular export. Consequently local buyers entering the market to cover their requirements found that the Board was finding some difficulty in locating supplies.

It is generally agreed that 10,000,000 pounds should be expected to relieve the statistical situation, although no official figures have been released. Aside from the regular weekly Ottawa announcement of exports. It is rumored that around 80,000 boxes or a little less than 3,000,000 pounds, have so far been sold in England. A little over 40,000 boxes of this amount had been shipped up to the end of last week.

THREE COURSES REMAIN OPEN TO CONDEMNED MAN

Court of Pardons, New Trial or Appeal to U. S. Supreme Court

SUDDEN ANNOUNCEMENT

Defence Has Claimed New Evidence is Available in Case

Trenton, N.J., Oct. 9 (AP)—The highest court in New Jersey—the Court of Errors and Appeals—today upheld the state supreme court conviction of Bruno Richard Hauptmann for the kidnapping-murder of young Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr.

The opinion was unanimous. The decision was announced 50 minutes after the court convened.

The denial of a new trial leaves Hauptmann with three recourses open.

He may appeal to the court of pardons of which Governor Hoffman and six judges of the Court of Errors and Appeals are members. They can stay execution of sentence or life imprisonment.

Appeals to this court are usually denied unless there are extenuating circumstances.

He may also appeal for a new trial on the basis new evidence has been discovered. And he may also appeal to the supreme court of the United States, his attorneys have said they will carry the case to this last and highest tribunal.

The opinion was written by Supreme Court Justice Charles W. Parker—Morristown—who is Republican and the judges of the Court of Errors and Appeals are members. They can only consider the record in life imprisonment.

The opinion was written by Supreme Court Justice Charles W. Parker—Morristown—who is Republican and the judges of the Court of Errors and Appeals are members. They can only consider the record in Hauptmann's trial at Flemington early this year, one of the oldest men on the bench in New Jersey.

C. Lloyd Fisher of Flemington who became chief of the defence staff after the dismissal of Edward J. Reilly of Brooklyn, by Hauptmann and his wife, Anna, recently announced he was in possession of new evidence.

Decision Unexpected.

The decision in the Hauptmann case came unexpectedly. Actually it was regarded as unlikely that the decision would be handed down until later this month or perhaps as late as November.

Mrs. Hauptmann Stunned.

Mrs. Anna Hauptmann, wife of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, was stunned when the decision reached the New Jersey Court of Errors and Appeals had upheld the death sentence of her husband.

She was unable to talk for a moment when the Associated Press informed her of the decision.

Then she said:

"Well, all we can do is carry on. I don't know what I will do now but Richard and I still continue to hope in God.

"I hope and pray that the true facts will come out before they can do anything to my poor man.

"I saw him yesterday and he was so cheerful. We didn't talk about the appeal. We never talked about that, but I could always see from his face and eyes that he was hopeful. I would find him innocent and send him back to me and the baby."

CONSTRUCTION WORK IS RUSHED

Rushing the work on the administration building before actual freezing weather sets in, a large force of between 75 and 100 men of this city representing nearly all building trades are employed at the present time on construction at the Royal Canadian Air Force camp on the Trent Road. It is expected that work will be provided for the majority for several weeks yet.

34TH BATTERYMEN HOLD MEETING

Presided over by Major T. T. Wills O.C. the local unit, members of the 34th Battery held their first meeting of the season's series at Battery headquarters last evening. Preliminary work for the opening of the regular training season which will commence this week was undertaken.

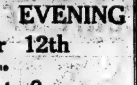
WORK ON GUNSHED TO START SOON

Following receipt of samples of material obtained locally, by Ottawa representatives of the department, which have been sent from Belleville by J. Arnold Thomson, supervising architect, and the Paterson Construction Company, contractors work will begin immediately on the erection of the new gun shed and store house additions to the local 34th Battery Headquarters, it was stated today. The building's estimated cost will be in excess of $6,000.

Smokers Beware Of Starting Fires!

Cigar and cigarette smokers be careful!

Watch where you throw that burning match or lighted end of a fag or cigar. Over half of the fires answered by the local fire department are attributed to carelessly dropped matches or glowing embers. It was stated today by Alderman Harry Hill, chairman of Fire in calling attention again to the fact that fighting the present Fire Prevention Week effort being made throughout the North American continent, special attention is being drawn to the most prevalent method of starting fires.



Bonfires, burning rubbish and spontaneous combustion of waste in garbage cans rank high as fire starters. Dumping of live coals is another danger. Defective flues and chimneys also lead the list, it was pointed out.

Welcome to Diocese

This is the first occasion upon which the Provincial Synod has met since the Diocese was created and a hearty welcome was extended by the Lord Bishop of the Diocese, the Rt. Rev. John Lyons.

The acknowledgement of the welcome was made by the Rt. Rev. C. A. Seager, Bishop of Huron, formerly Bishop of the Diocese of Ontario, His Lordship said that he had spent five happy years as Bishop of the Diocese of Ontario. In concluding his remarks he paid high tribute to the opening service in connection with the Synod which was held in St. Thomas' Church Tuesday morning. He had, he said, attended many Synod services, but he had never before been present at any Synod service which was so beautifully conducted, so devotional and uplifting. He had, he said, already expressed his appreciation in the Year of Jubilee, the Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne, Rural Dean of Belleville and Toronto expressed the thanks of the Lower House to the Bishop. He said that he had been baptized by St. Thomas' Church and that his father, the late John Sergeant Jones, built Christ Church and was rector of the parish for some years.

Moosonee Diocese Received

His Grace Archbishop Roper heartily welcomed the new Bishop, His Lordship, the Rt. Rev. J. G. Anderson, Bishop of Moosonee, graciously thanked the Synod for the cordial welcome. For many years the Diocese of Moosonee had been a part of the Provincial Synod of Rupert's Land, but it was felt right, the seat of which is at Winnipeg, and in making the change it was the parting with very old and dear friends. The change had become necessary owing to the great distance of the diocese from Winnipeg. The Diocese of Moosonee is a very old diocese dating back to Archdeacon Anderson is the fourth Bishop.

Archbishop Owen

Owing to the absence from the city of Mayor Geo. O. Tice, Alderman O. E. Thompson extended the welcome of the City of Belleville to the Synod. The response from the city was graciously acknowledged by the Rev. L. W. B.Broughall, Bishop of Niagara.

Primate Welcomed

Charge to Synod

The Metropolitan, Archbishop Roper, delivered his charge to the Synod, in which he dealt with the Church and Our Modern Needs.

At the conclusion of the Metropolitan's address, His Grace Archbishop Owen and the Rt. Rev. C. A. Seager, expressed to him the sincere appreciation of the synod for his most admirable charge.

Elections

The Upper House at this point in the proceedings retired and the Lower House proceeded with the election of a Prolocutor, which resulted in the appointment of the Rev. H. F. Woodcock, of Toronto, who by long established usage is the Rev. Dean Riley of Hamilton as his deputy.

The Rev. R. H. Waleman of Smith's Falls was elected Clerical Secretary, with the Rev. W. F. Wallace of Hamilton as assistant; Mr. E. L. Britain of Ottawa was elected lay secretary. His Honor Judge McLean of Ottawa and Chancellor Osborne of Ottawa were appointed Assessors of the Synod.

The Upper House reported to the Lower House that the Ven. Archdeacon G. W. Balfour of Port William, had been re-appointed Hon. Secretary of their House.

Lower House

At the evening session of the Lower House the first order of business was the reception of a resolution which admitted the Diocese of Moosonee into the Ecclesiastical Province of Ontario. An address of welcome was made to the members present from that Historic diocese by the Prolocutor, Rev. H. F. Woodcock, to which the Rev. Canon Prever of Sudbury, replied in fitting terms.

Mr. James Nicholson of Toronto, Honorary Treasurer, presented his report which was adopted. Mr. Nicholson was re-elected Hon. Treasurer and received a hearty vote of thanks for his good offices through many years. Ven Archdeacon Doherty of London was elected Registrar of the Synod.

The Upper and Lower Houses of the synod sat together today at St. Thomas' parish house considering resolutions.

HAPPY HUMAN RELATIONSHIPS OBJECT OF LIFE

Institute Speakers Stress Training of Children in Home

Two hundred guests attended the annual banquet, a greatly enjoyed feature of the Anniversary of the Women's Institute of Belleville area, held last evening in John Street United Church Hall. Arranged by the members of the Guild of St. John's Church, Belleville Avenue, a delicious menu was served. The tables were effectively decorated with snap dragons in silver baskets, bowls of colorful fruit and tall tapers in silver holders. Mrs. J. W. Redner, president of St. John's Guild and her efficient assistants proved most attentive hostesses, zealously looking after the many guests.

Christian Homes

Mrs. W. R. Munro, Convention chairman, presided at the banquet. Rev. T. R. Beall of St. John's Church, gave the invocation and the guests enjoyed the singing of Jean Rodneyville. Miss Jones recalled to the minds of her hearers that this was their fifty-first quota of a picture of the King which had been a feature of each, that of His Majesty kneeling in prayer in his chapel. As daughters of a wonderful sire, it should be the duty of Women's Institute members, she said, to do their best to follow His kingly example, to be in God's house once a week, to strive for more Christian homes that would result in a more Christian country.

Pioneer Exhibits

Miss Jones also spoke of the exhibits from pioneer days and contrasting the present living methods with those of early settlers, urged the members to take an active part in the exhibits problems and ideals. Miss McKenzie, also a speaker, dwelt on her philosophy of Women's Institute work which she summed up in the statement, "Co-operation, better vocational skill, finer cultural life, better home, community and satisfaction and more progressive attitudes.

Growth of Institutes

Miss McDermand congratulated the women of Ontario as being pioneers in world institute movement which now includes forty countries. The well integrated organization of the work from the Provincial Board and its manner of functioning provides for stimulating and developing local interest.

The first organization to advance education in the Province of Ontario, the members realize that there must be progress in home-making and besides their duties in business methods, professions, industries and agriculture. The conscientious homemaker must realize that the training and management of a home is an art and a science, and that she must take advantage of the aid of new books and discoveries if she is to give her family a fair chance. Above all the responsibility of happy family relationship is in the guiding hands of the mother.

Human Relationships

Members of the Institute should share the secrets of happy human relationship, should learn to recognize the elements of beauty, to direct their attention to conveniences to reduce time and energy for other undertakings, and promote good health for more abundant living.

During the program, musical numbers were given, the artists being warmly thanked for their kindness. Those who assisted yesterday afternoon were Mrs. Rosemplot, Trenton. Mrs. Harrison, Latta, Mrs. Hall of Latta, who contributed a vocal solo. Last evening Miss Kay Simpson and Mrs. Houston gave vocal solos, accompanied by Mr. Stan. Lennox and Mrs. M. F. Duff, instrumental duets by the Lennox brothers were also greatly appreciated.

Child in Home

The concluding address last evening was given by Mrs. R. B. Colloton who relates this year as provincial president, Mrs. Munro had added the members for their generous support and co-operation and gave a very timely talk on important little things in the life of an Institute member.

The most important part of any home is a happy baby—a child. While today the physical well-being of a child was never better cared for, some mothers do not give to moral and ethical training the early part of life.

A Bad Example

As an instance of bad example in the training of a child, Mrs. Colloton pictured a mother who scolded and encouraging children to make entries to fairs as their own unassisted work when they were helped by parents or others. This in itself is a tragedy, that any mother should be children's guidance in matters moral and spiritual should co-operate with him to go contrary to all that was honest for the purpose of more prize. One can only feel sorrow for a child brought up in such a home.

Early Training in Courtesies

Early training of the child in little courtesies, in table manners so often neglected by the rural homemaker, was stressed as the future success in the community.

The Institute member should be interested in sanitation and water supply at her home. In sanitary work for a record work for a reduction, by pre-natal care, of the needless loss of mother and infant mortality rate.

Water Supply

Seeing that the community milk supply is pure, working for the advance of education as school trustees, caring for neglected committees were all a part of W. I. community activities.

Women of Ontario have entered a wonderful heritage left by the pioneer women. Mrs. Munro pointed out that it was their duty now to leave the organization just a little better than they found it.

Mrs. W. R. Munro, capable convention chairman, gracefully thanked those who took part in the program.

Milwaukee, Oct. 9—(AP)—"Acidosis" was branded as nutritional quackery in a report by a committee on nutritional problems submitted to the American Public Health Association.

The committee report also held feeding the whites of raw eggs to invalids and other similar dietary ideas were without basis and condemned them in a report on "food fallacies and nutritional quackery."

"The great popular demand for information about foods and health during recent years," the report said, "has resulted in an increasing and alarming amount of exploitation of false and harmful ideas foisted upon the public by dietary quacks, faddists and self-styled nutrition experts."

"The claim acidosis will result from eating bread and meat or certain combination of foods, such as proteins and starches or fruits and starches, is entirely unsupported by scientific evidence.

"Acidosis is usually a condition attending certain diseases, such as diabetes or kidney disease, involving faulty metabolism of the body.

"There is no evidence a perpendicularly acid diet is injurious."

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Ready to Go

The liver should pour into the bowels about two pints of liquid bile, to help digestion. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sunk and the world looks punk.

Don't dose with salts, pills, calomel. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle. Get Carter's Little Liver Pills today. Mr. George F. Bruce Addresses Pupils on Korea

The pupils of Stirling High School were fortunate in securing a wealth of constructive information on the prevailing conditions in Korea, Japan and parts of Manchuria, from a very educational address delivered in their assembly hall on Monday afternoon by Mr. Geo. F. Bruce.

Mr. Bruce, whose home is in Calgary has for the past seven years, been an active worker in the educational branch of the United Church in Korea. Being allotted to the teaching staff of one of the Korean High Schools and who is now enjoying his first period of furlough, since entering the work. While in Canada Mr. Bruce has completed a post graduate course at the College of Education, and also addressed over 130 meetings and gatherings on the system of education adopted in that country, and also giving a very vivid picture of the country itself. During the next week Mr. Bruce addresses gatherings at Madoc, Tweed, St. Ola and Bancroft. We owe it to ourselves to become more closely acquainted with the countries of the east which recently has brought right to our back door. Though in the past we have considered them on the other side of the world, the vast striding taken in aviation will make the trip either way only a few days at the most in the near future. So it is well for us to begin to study the customs of these people with whom we will become more and more closely associated as time goes by. We on this side are proud of the rapid and vast strides being made in Japan, a country that is advancing rapidly in modern development. Some of the cities like Korea are very beautiful with modern buildings and well kept boulevards, and the Government control of water, telegraph systems and electric power is a fine thing for the country at large. Very few of even the smallest municipalities are without the facilities of the latest in keeping with the aid of electricity. The railways are also maintained in every sense of the word, with a service that is found in but few country of the world. The speaker stated that there were as many as 56 trains running each day between some of the larger centres. The two plantations in the vicinity of Tokio was truly a most interesting one, and a delight to behold with the aged plants trimmed to a perfection that would make a Canadian Rock garden gardener envy how it was done. It is amazing to read in some of the American Press that buildings in Japan are of the continued threat of earthquake. There is no foundation for such a belief. For Japan has adopted the very latest building methods and in the larger centres there is springing up continually new and six storey buildings of the very latest type of re-enforced concrete. The only place where building is not up to the western standard is in the rural districts and the reason is lack of money.

Mr. Bruce also spoke of the people and the domestic problems which are met and overcome by a people from whom we western can learn a great deal. They can teach many things to things which we should have known years ago, citing as an example the kitchen utensil with an inverted flange around the top, which keeps the water boiling toward the centre at the time and prevents boiling over. The Japanese occupation of Manchuria had overcomes a great deal of confusion. They had opened up railways, and in fact there now remains a few isolated cases of banditry. Japan had established law and order to a great extent. The currency question in this area up until recently was very confusing had been solved under the direction of the Japanese authorities. Where once there existed five kinds of money Japan had established a unified currency. Speaking of the pupils of the Korean High Schools, Mr. Bruce stated that a very small percentage of children were able to enter High School and there were no optional courses. Every student had to study four languages, namely English, Japanese, Chinese and Korean. Physical Training methods were introduced in much the same manner as those in Canadian Schools with sports having a prominent part in the development of the body. This very interesting address was greatly applauded by the students as the speaker climaxed his talk with a question period.

ENGLISH SCIENTISTS DISCOVERED COKE 'WAY BACK IN YEAR 1600

Although the Chinese are believed to have known the merits of coke 2,080 years ago, the credit for the re-discovery of coke as a practical fuel goes to an English scientist.

It was not until the middle of the 18th century that industry began to rely on coke to any considerable extent. By that time smelting with coke was in full vogue in England and on the continent.

One hundred years ago the first Beehive Coke Ovens were built on this continent. The superior merits of coke as a heating agent were soon recognized and it was not long before coke was manufactured at the pit mouth of most of the coal mines in Pennsylvania.

By 1919, on this continent alone more than 44 million tons of coke were being produced each year. Since then, as the value of coke both in great industrial plants and in home furnaces has become more generally recognized, the increase in tonnage each year has been phenomenal.

In the coking process, the volatile matter is driven off from coal, leaving a fuel that is highly heat producing—a fuel which contains approximately 89% carbon, the vital heating element in all domestic fuels.

SHOULD BE ASHAMED

Those persons who by their bedlam sounds drowned out speakers at the city hall on Monday afternoon after the federal nominations were guilty of something quite uncalled for. Those who, gathered meetings of a public nature, especially those where public questions are to be discussed are expected to be present as listeners, but under no consideration can they claim a right to cause interruptions which prevent full discussion. Monday afternoon's disorder was not heckling but was the work of some who had no right in the building as they intended to prevent the audience hearing what was being said.

Every manly person deplores such an exhibition at a public meeting, and feels a deep resentment towards the perpetrators.

Few speakers there are who would not welcome an honest question from one in the audience, but shouts and yells are not the ways of the true heckler.

Attempt to make speakers take their seats because of interruptions is unmanly and deserves the censure of every law-abiding citizen. To the fair-minded man, those guilty of such acts are guilty of disorder, their only safety in the probability that they will not be detected or will not be molested.

The man who disturbs a meeting as the men did after the nomination of candidates at the city hall in creating a bedlam left a bad taste in the mouth and a sense of disgust on the part of the citizens who were deprived of the privilege which was rightly theirs to hear anything that was spoken from the platform.

It is a cardinal principle of "British justice to give every man a hearing. Those who interrupted at the city hall did not show their respect for the noble and manly British tradition. They should feel ashamed of their actions.

A DICKENS LANDMARK

It is a long time since Charles Dickens ceased to write and yet landmarks of his career are still to be found in many places despite the development trend of this age which has been wiping out so many familiar spots.

One of these is the Peggotty house on the sands at Gravesend. It is this which gave the novelist his inspiration for the home laid in Yarmouth. It is an old boat-roofed house which until a few years ago was used as a dwelling but has since been condemned as unfit for habitation. It was put up for sale at a recent auction but brought no offers. It is declining rapidly into ruins, there are holes in the roof and walls, a broken door and fence surrounding it and tall weeds hide the lower portion of the structure.

The roof is said to have originally been a smuggler's boat. It is a certainty old for over a hundred years ago the smuggler was caught red-handed in the Thames with an illicit cargo and on his promise to give up the game for good again he was allowed to keep the boat. He built a house along the Thames, placed the boat with the bottom up as a roof for the structure and in it Dickens found ideas at all events for his famous work. Holes were made in the hull for windows and the upper part was reached by a step-ladder.

Lovers of Dickens have hoped it would be saved as a memorial or museum and though there are no signs of any movement to that end, they still hope the structure will be restored to point the story of the great novel of "David Copperfield."

ALL IN A GOOSEBONE

Some persons are talking a cold winter. From all parts of the continent they come. Down in Harriburg, Pa., the goosebone prophets have declared for a blustery season. Down in that quarter here is what they are saying:

"Nature prophets who pointed out that the song birds had gone south two weeks ahead of time, that the fur of woodland animals is thicker than usual and that berries and nuts were plentiful, were jubilant.

"But it was the gooseboners who actually settled the argument. It was a little too early for prediction, some of them protested, but they began comparing goosebones, and the bones were turning dark.

"Oliver Fisher, one of the best-known gooseboners modestly explained that all he knows is what his father, Albert, taught him. Old-timers among his neighbors pointed out, however, that the older Fisher, 68 when he died, "hit it every time," and that his forecasts were awaited throughout the state.

"It's all very simple, the gooseboners say, although they are reticent as to why the goose gets special care from hatching to hatchet.

"The prized bone is put away in the parlor, the cellar or the pantry shelf. The Autumn menu changes, and lo, the bone changes color.

"If it is only dark in spots, Winter will be late and Spring early, and the weather will be mild. If dark all over, it means rigid storms, deep snows and red noses.

"And you ought to see this year's goosebone, the prophets add knowingly."

Who really knows? Others judge by animal fur, the flight of birds, the size of hickory nuts, and so on. But who really knows?

IN A LIBRARY BOOK

O, little book, your kindliness
Is more than mortals show;
With equal gift your pages bless
The high, the low!

Through dragging hours of weary nights,
In fevered fingers lain,
Your words have woven sure delights
In place of pain.

And to the lonely, friendless heart
A swift release you lend;
Your tale, with its intriguing art,
Is more than friend.

To regions new, unguessed, untried,
You are the potent key;
You swing strange portals open wide
Love, mystery.

O, little book, so wise, so gay,
See here a supplicant;
Lead me, I beg you, far away
From grief, from want!

HANNIBAL, MISSOURI, where Samuel Clemens, (Mark Twain) was brought up, has been celebrating the Mark Twain Centennial for the summer months. Visitors from far and wide have included Hannibal in their itinerary in order to view the various Mark Twain memorials including the monument to Tom Sawyer and Huck Finn, showing these two rough and rowdy boys in light marching order with bare feet, and one surprised between them and oblivion—also the Mark Twain Memorial lighthouse on the mighty Mississippi which Mark loved so well. The cave where Tom and Becky were lost is inspected with wonder and awe—Cardiff Hill, the old swimming hole, the cemetery where Tom and Huck took that solemn oath, signed in blood, Jackson Island where the Boy Pirates made their stand, and other places sacred to the memory of Tom Sawyer, have all been preserved to thrill Mark Twain lovers when they join their prized pilgrimage to Hannibal. But what do the boys of Hannibal think about all this glorifying of their American boy, apparently they do not see what all the fuse is about, and think they could lick Huck or Tom with one hand tied behind their back any old time and in balance. This setting has inspired a short story writer to produce a tale about two boys of Hannibal, selected to take the parts of Tom and Huck in the pageant — their reactions to the whole idea at all and were quite sore at Mark Twain for having invented any such characters. In fact they discussed running on to the show, entering and hiding out on the island where Mark Twain's Boy Pirates did their stuff while the whole village mourned them as dead, and the mayor handed a perfectly good funeral sermon over them. But of such trials as these is life made.

On the morning of April 10, 1906, Deacon Jones, a well-known Negro fighter walked in to a San Francisco saloon and demanded a drink. The bar-tender refused him.

"White man, if you don't give me a drink I'll pull your bar down," threatened the deacon, and he grabbed at the bar and began to tug. Just then occurred the earthquake which destroyed most of San Francisco and the bar came down around them both.

Picking himself up from among the debris, the scared Negro turned to a frightened bar-tender. "Please tell the boss I'm sorry I caused such a disturbance," he said, apologetically.

Miss Mildred Elliott presided at the organ and a choir of fourteen voices rendered the special music. Bethel choir was assisted by Messrs. Arthur Duncan and Fred Houchin of Stirling.

Rev. James E. Beckel pastor of the circuit opened the service with O Worship the King and the choir rendered two anthems, "Sing Unto the Lord a New Song" and "The Love of the Saviour Divine" with Mr. Arthur Duncan taking the solo part; a quartette "He Will Shade" was rendered by Misses Mildred and Annie Elliott, Irene Tucker and Laurette McMullen with Miss Laura Tucker accompanist.

The congregational hymns were "Oh Jesus I Have Promised to Serve Thee to the End" and "Take Up Thy Cross the Saviour said If Thou Wouldst my Disciple be."

Rev. Turner gave an inspirational message based on St. Luke's gospel 14:26 on the subject "The Challenge of Christianity."

The church for the evening service was filled to the doors soon after seven o'clock and every available space was used to seat the large audience.

The service opened with "O God, the Rock of Ages" and the choir again rendered an anthem "Praise the Lord with Song," and "Tell Walk by His Side". Mr. Arthur Duncan was heard in a solo "The Lilies, They Grow."

Again congregation joined in rendering "God Reveals His Presence" and Rev. Turner dealt in evening message on a subject which is before the Christian people of today "The Survival of the Church." He challenged his hearers to go forth with God's help and love themselves and their church in this great need, and by so doing they would immeasurably strengthen this magnificent institution.

The service closed with the rendition of "The Church's one Foundation is Jesus Christ Our Lord" and as the large throng of humanity wended their way out of this solemn service they felt that "Truly it was good to have been there."

Evangelization All-Inclusive Provincial Synod is Told By Archbishop J. A. Richardson

Gospel of Christ is Solvent of All The Ills to Which Man is Subject, He Declares

Evangelization of the world troubles every phase of life in its all-inclusiveness, Most Reverend J. A. Richardson, M.A., D.D., D.C.L., Archbishop of the Diocese of Ontario, N.E., said in his sermon at St. Thomas' Church, Belleville, on Tuesday at the opening of the Synod of the Ecclesiastical Province of Ontario.

His address touched on all phases of life, international, national, public, political, business, private, social and religious. He pointed out that the only solution of problems that ultimately in relig and in the Gospel of Jesus.

On the question of international relations, which are often disturbed by war and rumors of war, he said, "Let right prevail, whatever it may cost. Let us abandon the idea that individual and individual." Pointed out Canada for instance, he said, was the standard of morality and to the nations of Europe it is the land of selfishness and sin and to the growth of the diverse evil.

With the present world in a state for more than passing remedy, Archbishop Richardson made to those who neglected their duty in the exercise of the franchise.

Canada for instance, he said, was a Christian country yet it must be evangelized. It is to be considered evangelized.

"We pride ourselves on our patriotic spirit," he remarked. Yet the Archbishop noted that the world was full of "patriots" who were prepared even than Frederick the Great or Napoleon to sacrifice hundreds of the average man. Their patriotism was limited, circumscribed and greed. It was selfish. But true patriotism is unselfish."

The speaker said the Archbishop would today is sober sense say "My country right or wrong, yet in the mirage of ideas under great stress things are done which are not unselfish. Nationality he declared is a belief Canada did right in sharing with British Commonwealth of Nations the dangers and her burden.

"Nationality is measured by spiritual value," the preacher said, because this has been largely overlooked, the world is now full of strife and clouded by threat of war.

The right prevail whatever it may cost between individual and individual, nation and nation. Right must rule our patriotism."

International Evils

"Right can never degrade our honour. This is an exalted standard, but the Christian ideal is higher. It compels us to ask whether there is not in the world today evil of international evils except in the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

"The nations do well to look to the league of Nations and to all agencies that make for peace, but palliatives only as compared with the Gospel of Christ.

"We pray for peace and rightly," the preacher remarked. "But we must think in terms of the whole world not only in that part of the world we call our own. How can this be achieved except by evangelization of the whole world?"

Collective Good

Archbishop Richardson pointed to evidence of selfishness in every community and said, "The idea of the good is better than the individual thing. Citizenship is not individual but collective. The end is not personal satisfaction but collective good."

The preacher touched upon three principles of citizenship. "It is not the law of liberty but the liberty of law which is paramount. For countries are free in the degree in which before the liberty of law. Man must live according to the liberty of law.

"No citizen is entitled to all his rights, unless he is to be a traitor to his citizenship. Each individual has to bear his own and a little more. Our country liberty, our own beings how much they are to be found everywhere but there is duty over them. The sense of duty buttressed by faith."

The Archbishop spoke of the British Empire and of the rule in India as examples of passionate devotion to duty by men, the most of whom died unhonoured and unsung.

Religion in Business

Turning to the business world, the Archbishop asked "What place has God in business?" Generally speaking he said, there is political leadership are men of honor. But there is a sense in which some men feel that religion has nothing to do with business.

Men think of themselves elected to serve their country, but how few think themselves elected to serve God? That is because we fail to realize that the church is not the only institution that is divine. The state as well as the church is a divine institution, according to St. Paul, though he was in the days of Nero when rule was severe and just and oppressed non-resistant."

The archbishop referred to the possibility of the public man resigning that his work is as much a duty as the service with the man called to the ministry, persons.

Use of Franchise

Turning to the people instead of leaders in the various walks of life, the preacher said he deplored the attitude of those who took no interest in the franchise which he thought he said that those were free elections, the issues of which were clear, and yet even if at the entire electorate had voted.

To treat the franchise lightly is to sin against the state, said the preacher, and the state is the outgoing of society. Some are when they neglect their duty even if slaves held high office.

Evils in the world today, he said, are more than passing remedy. Drastic measures are being made to those who neglected their duty in the exercise of the franchise.

Business and Stewardship

"Does business need evangelization?" asked His Lordship. His answer was emphatically yes. But he, under unsatisfactory conditions, inadequate scales of pay, unemployment, the unemployable, widespread unemployment, wealth, poverty, the rich and the poor, the very, boys destined to become business men and girls almost destined to live lives of vice.

Yet industrial life with all its faults is capable of development into high achievements and "the man who makes money today the possibilities of serving them." he said, "It is undoubtedly true that our industrialism is woefully with little or no regard for people, food, shelter, and provision for old age.

Human Value

There is the principle of human value, men are not equal but opportunity must be given for a full measure of life to be realized. He tells a proportionate sense of responsibility.

He pointed to an industrialism which has little or no regard profit but national service as the basis of profession. "Private gain must be subordinated to public good," he remarked.

The prospect is unconditionally our own. Everything we have we hold in trust. Every man is his brother's keeper and we are responsible for reform of material conditions. The call of evangelizing a city are a reproach to the church which is content with preaching rest content with deploring conditions".

Power of Christ

For the cure of the evils that exist the forces of evangelism will not suffice. There is only one effective power, the redeeming power of Christ. The real source of evil is the human heart.

The Bishop turned to the social sphere referring to divorce, the wrong kind in marriage and the social evil. He called marriage the most important instrument of carrying on the long line of the human life. It is not a temporary contract but what is the mutual making of this institution which ought to be the dignity of sacrifice of parenthood. Reference was made to the salacious pages of magazines appealing to the passions out of which there rises the danger of progressive polygamy and divorce.

The archbishop affirmed that there is only one standard, of morality, the same for man and woman alike."

Evangelization of The Church

His last reference was to the evangelization of the church. They can be no revival of the spiritual life until that does not find its beginning in the church. Yet the word can never be lifted so long as the church is in the state it is today. The question is "Do you find holy zeal or spiritual lethargy?"

The worst enemy of the church is the creeping paralysis of cold respectability, which is the church itself. Roman effort and machinery that power is being put into it. The sufficiency of God is required.

"So the call comes to us today to redeclare ourselves wholly and completely to God in penitence and prayer, pledged to unselfishness."

Promote Peace of World Women's Institute Told

President of This Area Delivers Stirring Appeal

How members of the Women's Institute can help in promoting the peace of the world was outlined by Mrs. R. E. Colston, Lorne Park, provincial president of the Women's Institute who addressed the area convention in John Street United Church hall yesterday afternoon.

"Despite the present activities of certain militaristic leaders inflated with egotism," said the speaker, "the world wants peace, and more than peace, a definite and permanent method of abolishing war as a means of settling international differences."

Women can help in the first place by education for peace and by doing which can be legislated. Some knowledge of the historical background of tangled international relationships of Europe is necessary to get a true understanding of the complicated situation there today.

Mrs. Colston outlined the various events leading to the formation of the League of Nations which is today facing the crisis of its existence.

Disarmament

The need of sane, balanced and individual thinking was never more strikingly felt than today when so many world - portentous opinions are on the crisis today are being shown the danger of discussing "to the point of weariness."

"As all-consuming what can we do?" asked the speaker. "We're not going to fight, and effective it we preach peace in a large-minded, tolerant way when applied to ourselves and our own districts and branches scope a small-minded and intolerant attitude. Let us first abolish petty attitudes of mind and educate ourselves to rise above these little affairs causing heart - disorders in our own branches. In other words, while we work for peace in a big way let us practice it in a small way."

The value of organization, of women's institute units into the world wide congress of the association of countrywomen of the World, with one ideal of working for home and country, was pointed out as a vital factor in bringing about good feeling and international good will.

Peace of Women's Institutes' work

Mrs. Colston reviewed the work of the various standing committees.

Mrs. J. G. Derry, Vernonville, gave an survey of the agricultural program of the institute branches of Prince Edward, stressing the importance of studying local wild and bird-life, and the home beautifying of home surroundings.

Details to be considered in preparing the vegetable garden were given by Mrs. Ross McDermand and Mrs. Rutherford of East Northumberland.

Institutes industries in Belleville convention area were recounted by Mrs. Lou Deacon of Stirling, supplemented by impromptu additions from the convention as persons mentioned industries in their particular district.

Welcomed to City

An address of welcome by Mrs. Ira Mallory, Queen Street, opened the session yesterday, and a charming reply was made by Mrs. Clarence Holmes, Belleville. Present on the platform with Mrs. Colston were Mrs. Mallory, provincial president, and Miss Mary Hardin, Bridge Street, Home Economics, Kemptville Agricultural College.

Reports included a particularly important discussion on legislation, by Mrs. R. A. Ponton, Belleville, quoted from a letter from W. C. Good, M.P.P., Ontario, on a concise summary of points at law with which women should be familiar.

Mrs. Mallory read various topics which branches might include in their year's programme.

Mrs. Whytock's report on extension work was extensive past year this topic played in branch programs. At this point Miss Bridges was asked to speak and in a very interesting manner sketched the highlights of the course given the girls to begin November 5th at Kemptville School. The aims is to train the girl in home economics and the ideal of promoting happy homes and satisfied families. The course includes the study of preparation and planning of meals homemaking, making of clothes, budgeting, personality for the family; health, family relations, and practical work carefully designed to meet the particular needs of the girls."

Century Old Lease

"The valuable contribution branches can make to the archives of their communities was emphasized by Mrs. Percy Ketcheson, Trenton, in reading a discussion of Historical Research. Branches were urged to prepare the history of the district. Mrs. W. R. Minnes, Demorestville, showed a scrap book prepared from the history of Prince Edward County. One of these was the fascinating story of an old spinning wheel and Mrs. Munro showed a century old piece of linen, the product of this spinning wheel.

Mrs. H. E. Rand, the talented Indian pottess of the Mohawk Reserve gave a paper on the Mohawk princess. Her beautifully-composed verse, told the story of the birth of the Mohawk prophet Dekanawida in 1370 and the beginning of the dynasty of the Six Nations, the confederacy of five nations.

Mrs. Ferguson of Cooper and Remington branch gave a paper on the early history of the district, punctuated with many witty comments on affairs of that day.

Relief Work

Reports regarding relief work showed that the Institute members were ever open hearted in their care of the needy. The reports had been received by Mrs. W. Gunn and Mrs. Ross Thompson at the meeting by chairman.

Mrs. Colleton at this point made an appeal for help in supplying, through contributions to the Public Health nurses, clothing for children of some of the settlers in northern districts who are having a hard struggle these past two years.

Concluding the afternoon's session Mrs. Ross McDermand addressed the meeting briefly, explaining the service the Women's Institute Agriculture has to offer the Women's Institute.

Hon. Blood Member

Mrs. Farley, Smithfield, ninety pioneer age and a member of the Women's Institute for the past thirty-four years spoke to the convention inviting that the membership was only four hundred when she had joined the Women's Institute, pointing out that a report of the last national meeting at Charlottetown showed there were in Canada over 71,000 members with 1,600 branches.

HEALTH and PSYCHOLOGY

By Lydia E. Hoch, M.D., Ph.D.

Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

Copyright, 1935, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

As work is an essential activity in every human being, it is a failure to think that anyone can be healthy and happy without work. For all of us have work, and we can be healthy and happy only when we know how work.

Work is activity, but it is not any kind of haphazard activity. Work differs from general animation in that it is directed toward a definite end.

Generally speaking, we enjoy most those things which we do best. In this sense work becomes play. But if we were to work only at those things which come easily and which we do best, we would soon become dull and weak.

I've seen and women start life with a clear-cut idea of their final goal. They see a hill to climb and they climb it. When the next hill comes in sight they surmount that one. Thus does the human organism become strong and confident.

A healthy nature instinctively reaches out to conquer what lies before it. Health makes men and women want to overcome obstacles. For the very fact that health generates needs to outlet.

There are two kinds of work: that which is drudgery and sinful, and that which has a purpose. The latter, efficient work—work that sets one somewhere — is the only thoroughly satisfying kind.

Do not delude yourself with the notion that anybody can do anything; that by exercising sufficient will-power one can hold down a job as well as anyone else.

First, find the kind of work you can do best. Then, when you have hit upon the kind of work that suits your personality and ability, put your whole heart and soul into it. When you accomplish that, as you will inevitably, you will actually love it.

Be happy at your work! Under such circumstances it will be difficult to make yourself stop work. Enthusiasm for your work is a very necessary quality. Laziness at work —indifference—makes it doubly hard.

Put all the initiative at your command into your work. Crowd your labors with originality, if possible, giving it lavishly fresh and stimulating angles. Mix a little imagination with your work now and then. That also helps to spur you on. Work with intensity. That makes the time fly. Go at your work as you would a competitive game. Do all your work to win! Don't let your work master you! Make yourself master of your job! Work is really the life-saver of the human race. Without work we would all stagnate; our minds and bodies would actually deteriorate.

To many people, not having found the kind of work which they can do best, are hammering at the wrong angle. Small wonder then that so many complain about their work, hating and despising it! All this is as unnecessary as it is unscientific and unwise.

Dr. Hoch's Daily Diet Hint

Although honey is a delicious food, it is not used as much as might be, especially with children. Several kinds of sugars are to be found in honey, chief among them being glucose and fructose. Bees differ in flavor due to the fact that the bees have gathered the materials from different flowers.

LINGER A WHILE and you are sure to find the hat of your dreams. A charming hat for afternoon teas is a brimmed model of drega-of-burgundy velvet. The open crown is concealed by flues of ostrich in the same burgundy red. The brim is a modified mushroom.

A GOOD FRIEND to your wardrobe is a simple dinner gown, for it always looks right. Such a frock is a dress of amber-colored crepe, the bodice marked by a deep plaited drape at the neckline. The sleeves are very short. There is a Renaissance jeweled girdle.

A GRAND AIR is given to many of the new cloth coats by whole sleeves and scarfs to match. A black frise woolen has arms and back of black satin and a very smooth black broadcloth coat has sleeves and back of black sealskin.

JUST FULL of charming new models are the blouse possibilities these days. For wear with an afternoon suit there is a choice of silver or white lame tissue. It has a draped neck and the overblouse portion is pleated.

A PRETTY SCENE is that of a smart restaurant at luncheon when smart women, and men, too, out of town all Summer, wear their first Autumn clothes. A white suit is of bottle green smooth woolen with double collar and rippling revers of black Persian lamb. With this is worn a blouse of sandy pink georgette.

CHILDHOOD DAYS must have been the inspiration of a designer who has created a charming evening cape of sheery ermine that is fashioned just like a baby's bib. It slips over the head and fastens with a silver drawstring.

TO WIN THE VICTOR

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Recently a girlhood friend of mine came to my home for a few days' visit and while she was here I entertained one evening in her honor—having girls for three tables of bridge. I had first and second prizes, besides an award for my guest of honor. When the scores were taken, I found that my guest of honor had second high. I was puzzled as to whether or not she should receive both the second prize and also the guest award. It has caused me no little concern ever since, wondering whether I did right in presenting her with two prizes, and yet I felt she had earned one and the other was a special award.

2. My guest of honor offered to help with the serving of the refreshments, but another guest, who was also a good friend of mine, also offered. Which person should I have allowed to assist me in the serving?

Q.

1. You did just the right thing. And for just the reasons that you so clearly state: that your guest of honor won the second prize, and so it should be given to her, and that of course she should be given the guest-of-honor gift.

2. By no means should you have allowed the guest of honor to assist you in serving. I hope you accepted the offer of the other guest—I'm sure you did!

WEDDING CARDS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I would appreciate your suggestions regarding the wording of an informal invitation to be issued to a few friends I wish to have present at my wedding. My plans are to mail announcements after the ceremony, but there are a few friends I would like to have present at the wedding.

2. My fiance's family, who live out of town, are not using their car, but are engaging one to take them to the church in the city. The question arose as to whether or not they should dismiss the car after the ceremony, or continue to engage it to take them to the hotel for the wedding breakfast? Should they dismiss the car, I would like to know if my parents assume the expense of engaging another car for that transportation to the hotel?

Q.

1. This is just the right plan for your informal wedding—to send the invitations as notes, and to mail formal announcements directly after the ceremony has been performed. The best plan is for your mother, who is the hostess, to write these notes, which read something, like this:

Dear Mary,

Jane and Clifford are to be married, informally, on Tuesday, the tenth of November, at four o'clock, in the chapel of United Church, and we want very much to have you and Jack with us for the ceremony. Then, directly after the ceremony, we are having an informal gathering of relatives and close friends for a wedding breakfast, at the Hotel, and we would like very much to have you come. Do tell me that you will be able to be with us on this important day!

Dearest love from us all.

Affectionately.

2. Since your fiance's family are out of town, it would be very courteous and thoughtful of your family to suggest that they will hire a car to take them to the church and afterward to the wedding breakfast. This is strictly necessary, but it would be a most kind and thoughtful thing to do; however, if your budget doesn't really permit this, the only other thing to do is to leave the car-arrangements to them.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on Good Manners submitted by readers.)

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

HOW MANY PARENTS "KILL CHILDREN WITH KINDNESS"?

Sometimes parents love their children so devotedly that they spoil them by constantly stumbling blocks in their youngsters' path.

Before me are several letters from mothers and fathers bewailing the fact that their sons and daughters are not happy, successful or prosperous, and are "living to bemoan failures in spite of all I've done."

Yet with the best intentions in the world, these same devoted parents have done their best to spoke the very thing the youngster longed for.

Mrs. W. writes that her daughter Lucille hasn't any dates; she's left out of all the fun. And the girl, after peeking behind the net curtains and seeing all the other boys and girls pile into motors and go off for a swim and weiner roast at one of the lakes, sits down, cries and refuses supper.

The daughter's handicap is that she is shy, tall and homely. And what difference does it make that she has a heart of gold when no one bothers to find out if she has any heart at all?

Enter now mother's helping hand, which helps to pile up her daughter's deficits and debits by baking cake or a batch of brownies, both of which her daughter devours in a manner that is a consolation prize. Instead of the boys and girls, Lucille should be taken to the family doctor for a thorough going-over. If her heart is O.K., she should have proper exercise prescribed—swimming, tennis, walking. Or much may be said in favor of that less popular method of reducing—housework. Bed-making is not a thrilling form of exercise, but it will help burn up excessive fat. So will sweeping with broom or vacuum cleaner, scrubbing, all-wiping and all kinds of housework.

Chocolate cake as a consolation prize is fatal. Better to have cut down on starches (bread, potatoes, rice, etc.) and suggest to the girl meats, fish, salads, fruit, twice-toasted breads, or some non-starchy bread the doctor may recommend.

And speaking of dieting, one of the foremost doctors in this country, who looks after many film stage and screen beauties, doesn't believe in any "fresh" diets. He says eat practically everything, but eat little. You need a balanced diet. But never take a second helping.

Now for the stumbling block in Alfred J's career. Alfred isn't short and fat, or at least his father's letter says he isn't. Alfred, like Lucille, has a devoted parent. When the boy gets a new job, and I'm afraid that's often, his father waylays the boy's boss and tells him what a splendid recruit he has acquired in Alfred. "I want him to understand my son," he tells me.

Mr. J. talks a great deal about his son to everyone. The boy, it seems, is very retiring, shy, a victim of inferiority complex, and father tries to talk these handicaps away. Sometimes he succeeds, but when he gets fired, usually after one of these heart-to-heart talks with the boss.

To kill your children with kindness is bad—and as bad as to kill them with neglect.

THOUSANDS HEAR GENERAL E. BOOTH

Belleville Delegates Take Part in Grand Congress of Salvation Army

The great metropolis of Toronto, Sunday was literally alive with Salvation Army bonnets and caps as Salvationists gathered from all parts of the Dominion and many parts of the States, to attend the 53rd annual Congress now being conducted in Toronto by the International leader of the Salvation Army from London England, General Evangeline Booth. Never before has such a crowd been present to attend a Congress in Toronto. Officers were present from as far east as Newfoundland, as far west as British Columbia, from the Northern Alaskan Territory and also from the southern States.

Numerous bands as well as Songsters took part in the procedure of events. Among some of the bands present was Montreal Citadel, Hamilton, Cobourg, also many other combinations. During the afternoon and night services a 300-voice choir under the direction of Adj. Robert Watt of Toronto, sang many beautiful selections and their tonal value was of very high standard.

Among many of the leading officers in the present was Major Cox of Atlanta, Georgia. This officer has won great popularity in Army circles, as he is the composer of many of the Army's Hymns. The Major himself has a very excellent voice and his solos during these gatherings brought great blessing to all who heard him.

Another one of the features was that General Booth spoke from the very table that her father built, at which he gave all there was of William Booth to be used or God to bring to the masses the Salvation of the Lord from sin, and help to help those in temporal need and distress.

The Holiness Service

The Holiness meeting took place in the Massey Hall. The service was scheduled to start at 10.45 a.m. but about one hour and a half before the commencement the building was packed to capacity. An overflow meeting was held in the Temple but still 3,000 people waited earnestly to get in. As the General's coach approached, the crowd was so tense that the General had all she could do to get into the audience room in their feet and she was applauded a great welcome. Her personality is one that everyone would love. She is jovial but very in earnest and to look at this great personage would convince anyone of her kind disposition and her unceasing desire to be of benefit to the world at large. And it was during her address in this respect that the fact was realized. The General's subject was "The Parting of the Ways." During this address she would use a great impression on the vast audience, and at times many a moist eye was witnessed.

The music during this service was rendered by the Temple Band, Toronto, and Songster Brigade of Peterboro. Adj. Ham. Hargrave, his own compositions entitled "All there is of Me Lord."

The Afternoon Service

Long before the hour of starting the spacious Maple Leaf Gardens was filled to capacity with 15,000 people to hear the great army leader speak at the hour of three o'clock the General arrived again and was ushered in to the platform mid cheers, her gait being that of a young lady of 30, and here it will be interesting to note that on Christmas Day next she will reach her 80th birthday. Seated on the platform were many familiars of all walks of life among these was Hon. Dr. H. A. Bruce, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario and Mrs. Bruce. The service took the form of a lecture entitled "The World's Greatest Romance" and was well presided over by Lieut.-Governor, who in his opening remarks spoke in high praise of the work of the Army, and also paid great respect to General Evangeline Booth. At this service as usual with the General in her thrilling manner swayed the immense congregation, and her lecture was among the best ever delivered in Toronto. The General is considered as being one of the best lady orators in the world. Rounds after rounds of applause spoke the appreciation of the entire audience and before her future she covered practically every phase of Army work in the country that surrounded the title of the lecture was explained when the General ended her lecture by thanking out the fact that "God's Love" is the "World's Greatest Romance."

The music was supplied by the Montreal Citadel and Hamilton Bands. During the service Mrs. Bruce and the General were presented with a beautiful bouquet of roses by two of the little Salvation Army girls who assisted during the service sang "The world for God." This being the latest composition by General Booth.

The Night's Service

At 7 o'clock once again the gigantic building was filled, and again cheers rang through the lofty rafters of the Maple Leaf Gardens as the last great meeting of the day was conducted. The Canadian leader, Commissioner John MacMillan was in charge of the service which took the form of a Salvation meeting. During this meeting music was rendered by the West Toronto, East Toronto and Earlscourt Bands and by the 300-Voice Chorus. Adj. Cox and also Lieut. Newton, the latter being an officer who was trained in the Toronto S. A. College last year and is an Alaskan by birth and who has also been assigned to a post in the place of birth sang two more of the General's compositions.

The General then preached, and as in all other meetings she gave of her best though tired as a result of her many engagements and her advanced age. Her subject was "The Midnight Cry." During the latter address she urged those present of the necessity of showing a good example, and her sermon closed as she urged those who live in darkness passed through sin to turn from it. After this part of the service a great prayer meeting was held and many knelt at the altar. The service closed by the singing of The General's Campaign Chorus.

The Congress will continue up until Wednesday night. Monday night there was a Soldiers and Local Officers' Service held in the Massey Hall and last night the General conducted her final public meeting when she addressed all young people of the Army.

Monday at noon she addressed the Service Clubs of Toronto in the Royal York Hotel, and Wednesday will conduct Officers' Councils for S.A. Officers in the Tyrata Hall in Toronto She will then immediately leave for the Western Congress to be held in the Western United States.

The local delegates who left here Monday morning for these gatherings arrived back here Monday and all those that went expressed themselves as having been glad to attend such helpful and inspiring services, and the great pleasure of hearing their General, Evangeline Booth, Commissioned.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Oct. 9 (CP)—The Toronto Stock Exchange and Toronto Exchange presented a drab appearance today with trading in small volume and prices generally showing only fractional changes. Higher metal prices failed to stimulate action in the base metal group which had more recessions than gains this afternoon.

Trading was highlighted by buying that issue a gain of about 30 cents. Other senior golds were unchanged except for a loss of 20 cents for Wright Hargreaves, in spite of a five cent rise in Sherritt and a small decline for McKenzie Red Lake, Kirkland Lake and the metal-mine golds.

Volume fell off in the silvers and prices held steady, varied only by a minor loss for Bear.

WALL STREET—CLOSE

New York, Oct. 9 (AP)—Irregular price tendencies continued to predominate on the stock market during the trading session to-day. Movements of 1 to 2 points in a handful of specialties attracted considerable attention. At the beginning of the final hour Chrysler was unchanged to fractionally higher included Inland Steel, American Can, Rudd Mfg., Consolidated Oil and Air Reduction.

U. S. Steel, General Motors and Chrysler were unchanged to fractionally lower. Coca-Cola, Food Machinery and a host of miscellaneous issues were among others advancing 1 to 2 points. Union Pacific declined 3 and Great Northern was forced down 1½ points. Sales tone was irregular. Sales approximated 1,000,000 shares.

Toronto Industrials

Toronto, Oct. 9—(CP)—Severe gales completed the spotlight in the Canadian Pacific group today as distillers and brewing corporation issues declined 1 to 2 points. Hiram Walker dropped 2 points to 126, while Gooderham and Worts lost 1½ at 124½. Distillers Seagrams were off slightly at 100 bid.

Trading in Canada Dredge at a gain of nearly two points was a feature of the morning session.

KIWANIS BOARD TO BE REDUCED

Rev. C. E. Jenkins, former district governor of Kiwanis, who was scheduled as the speaker for the day at the Kiwanis luncheon, was unable to act due to his presbytery being required at the Anglican Synod now in session in Toronto city. The regrets of the club were expressed by the members were instructed by the part they were to play in the Kiwanis campaign next week and the chairmen of the various committees reported to the club. Dr. Ross Empson, local Kiwanis representative, as general chairman, reported that Mayor Hicks, Charles Mott for the construction of the stage at the arena and his other activities. Later the Arena to handle the crowd expected. The campaign was progressed splendidly.

George Rahns was booster for the day. This member is a newcomer to the city but already has made a host of friends. He is a member of the Front Street print store, also having a branch at the same kind in Kingston.

A motion of caution was adopted reducing the directorate board of the club from nine to seven members. Gordon Reay informed the members there would be a children's matinee at the Capitol on Tuesday and that the advertising campaign put on by the club had been successful. Ross Sliver led the community singing with Phil McKee as pianist-at-arms. The president was in the chair.

JACK KOGUT TO MEET CHIEF LYNX

Wrestling Card at Arena One of The Best to Be Offered

With the idea in mind of pleasing local wrestling fans by procuring a wrestler to beat the chiffed Howard Anderson, the Harris Brothers Holding grappler better known to the fans as Chief Lynx, the promoters of local wrestling shows at the Belleville Arena recently signed Jack Kogut, methodical 230-pound Toronto wrestler, who has met with success in many parts of United States and Canada. Kogut agreed to take on the aggravating Indian in the main bout of Thursday night's wrestling show at the Arena, after seeing him give Frank Sexton, the most ferocious beating a wrestler ever received in a local ring.

Kogut's prowess is well known locally and his famous headlock hold is feared by many, who face him on the mat. Kogut is a strong robust wrestler and should be able to match strength with the Indian villain. In the semi-final bout two complete strangers are on the card. In the 185-pound class is Bob Nelson, the semi-final boy, who meets Howard Martin, of Detroit. These two come to Belleville highly recommended by Toronto and Western Ontario promoters.

Of course the success enjoyed by Irish Steve Taylor, local wrestler who was picked for professional fame last week, still is predominate in the minds of the fans. Taylor has been matched with Frank Bauer, the Hibbs Toronto lad, who held Mike Anderto to a draw four weeks ago. Taylor has been promised a return bout with Anderto, who beat him once, if he can beat Bauer. Naturally the local wrestler is quite anxious to add another pro. victory to his credit and has been working out since his return last week. All three bouts are of the top-notch nature and doubtlessly will attract a large following. The ring at the Arena will be moved in its old position at the north end of the building today.

The lucky programme numbers were announced by the wrestling promoters this afternoon. The holders of the following lucky number programmes are to be ticked to Thursday night's wrestling show at the Belleville Arena are:—107; 111; 207; 264; 426; 552; 778; 798; 799; 987 1018 1146; 1232; 1261; 1423; 1518; 1677; 1787; 1797; 1891; 1935; 2003; 2157; 2223; 2345, and 2451.

CHARLIE GRIMM TO STAND PAT

No Change in Roster of The Cubs Will Be Made

Chicago, Oct. 9—Charlie Grimm is convinced his Chicago Cubs are now constituted, can win the National League pennant next year, and with added experience, the club's championship.

"I am satisfied to stand pat on the present line-up," Grimm said last night. "And intend to do so. I would like to get another starting pitcher, but I will not weaken the club in other departments to make a trade to get one."

The Chicago leader was before boarding a train for his home in St. Louis, put his characteristic approval on his Cubs, even in world series defeat.

"They are all great big gentlemen, so far as I am concerned," Grimm said. "They are nice gentlemen when they won, and they still are."

Pitcher Lon Warneke of the Cubs returned to the fields of the Ozarks, hoping the shoulder injury he suffered Sunday will not affect his career next season.

Manager Grimm and Trainer Andy Lotshaw believe that inasmuch as no muscle or ligament was torn, a few weeks' rest will have the star right-hander back into condition.

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

Elmer Lebarr, local harness horse fancier and owner, shipped his trotter, Royal McKillop, to Doc Knox's winter stable at Orangeville yesterday. At present the only horseman occupying the stables at the local Exhibition Grounds is Billy Smith, who for these many years past has wintered in Belleville. The two brothers' race Catherine Gratton will soon return to local winter quarters, however. During the Belleville Fair Louis Bennett intimated he would return to the Belleville track for spring training in 1936. After observing the improvements on the local racing oval, Louis decided he could do no better than train his horses here next April.

Owing to the monster Rivaguls Carnival, that will be held at the Belleville Arena on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week, there is a possibility that the weekly wrestling bouts, at the arena, will be called off next week. With this in mind local wrestling fans should take full advantage of this week's wrestling show, featuring Jack Kogut versus Chief Lynx, the adventurer of Frankie Hart. Practically every wrestling fan in attend the local show will be pulling for Kogut to give the pugnacious Indian just a great big dose of his own medicine, with a pencil in the nose for measure. At any rate one thing is certain, Kogut will be able to absorb more punishment than did Hart and naturally can portion out more vengeance as he is a much larger man, physically. The fans will be rather surprised when they enter the Arena on Thursday night for the bouts, as the ring will be there situated in the north end of the building. No longer will the fans see occupying the ringside be called upon to plod through the mud on their way to their seats. With two new faces in the semi-final and Steve Taylor, local favourite, meeting Frank Bauer, at least 1,000 fans are expected to be on hand to see the Indian tackle the rugged Kogut.

Just when the Belleville football squad had hit their stride and are playing inspired football they run into an open date in their schedule with the result they will be idle this Saturday. Business Manager Bill Fry is endeavoring to procure a good outside team for an exhibition game on Saturday. Failing to do this, however doubtlessly Coach Dr. Kennedy will call a stiff scrimmage practice at the Fair Grounds. In the meantime the remaining four games in the group will line-up on Saturday.

The local interscholastic football group in the O.S.S.A.A. have progressed the fans last Friday and will doubtlessly be given better performances in the future. This Friday we find the two winners of last year's inter-school games clashing when Albert College meets R. C. I. and Y. S. at the Fair Grounds with last week's losing squads, St. Mikes and the O.S.D. clash on the latter's gridiron. All coaches in the loop have been driving their charges hard in an effort to stage a last week's hopes of victory with the result that Friday's twin bill should be worth viewing.

When the Kingston Ponies and the Galt Terriers clash at Kingston this afternoon it will be the third final O.B.A.A. game to be played in Eastern Ontario in 1935. The Cobawa juniors and the Napanee Gibberts having been eliminated in the semi-finals of their respective class. It is sincerely hoped the Ponies can duplicate their success of last week and give the Eas, ons provincial championship in 1935. Incidentally the Kingston city championship title Kingston this year would do much towards the elevation and stimulation of the summerpastime through out the Central Ontario district. In 1934 Another title we would like to bring forward is the fact, that the C.O.B.I. was undoubtedly the fastest, and best senior league in the province during the past season. Although some of the gates would not indicate this fact. The showing the Ponies made in Galt proves beyond a doubt, that the C.O.B.I. was the strongest and played the best ball of any loop in the province during the past season. "May it continue to flourish."

The local "maple knockers" are hard at it these days, both the Recreation and Y.M.C.A. alleys being in full swing day and night. The usual autumn leagues are now in full swing and progressing rapidly.

Frank Carideo, Knute Rockne's last quarterback and captain, who earned all-American recognition two years straight, has signed as coach of the kickers at Mississippi State under Major Ralph Sasse. Carideo spent a disastrous three years as coach of Stanford.

It begins to look as though there will only be two squads in the junior section of the Bay of Quinte group of C.A.R.A. football this fall, namely Trenton High and Bellevile Collegiate. Stirling H. S. and Marmora signified their intentions of possibly entering the group, but apparently it has fallen through, neither of the latter two being able to field a team under the age of 17 years. At any rate the ladies from Trenton High and Belleville C.I. are playing about with their schedule and open hostilities at the Bay of Quinte town Thursday afternoon at, three p.m. Coach Shiels and Trenton Collegiate have been working their junior squad out daily verses the senior school squad and expect to put up a strong champion Trenton aggregation a run for their money this year. While watching the local Collegiate squadn artists at work last evening Coach Shiels lavished new attention on the matter of financing football squads at the local institution. "I've never had players have to pay for everything, we do not charge any students to attend our games, but rely instead on the silver collection, donated by the fathers of the boys, for financial assistance in helping to defray the expenses of a lad's share of the officials," stated Coach Shiels. With four senior and one junior interscholastic football teams in Belleville it seems a shame that the stadium does not have to be given up by their pockets to make ends meet. After all rugby football is one of the, if not the best money getter participated in by collegiates and colleges today.

ENLARGE PARK FOR NEXT YEAR

Ten to Twelve Thousand Seats to be Added at Navin Field

Detroit, Oct. 9—(AP)—A big slice of that world series gate is going to stay right in the ball park, where most of it was earned.

Frank J. Navin, President of the Detroit Baseball Company, has announced he would spend $500,000 this winter in enlarging the seating capacity of Navin Field so his champion Tigers could play to a bigger home audience.

Navin told a group of 800 business men at a dinner in the park, where prodigies of crowding their knees under the same banquet table with the Tiger players at a "victory dinner" last night his plans would add 10,000 to 12,000 concrete seats.

Fans complained loudly because of the lack of seats for the series, and some went so far as to propose a National League club for Detroit so fellows might be divided and enable more of them to cheer themselves hoarse.

Navin wryly suggested at the banquet last night Detroit's automotive engineers undertake to remedy the efforts on an arrangement whereby 100,000 fans, the number who applied for series tickets, might be crammed into 48,000 seats. In case the Tigers come back at the head of the league next year.

The players will leave Detroit within a few days, some of them joining barnstorming groups, and others for fishing or hunting trips. Manager Mike has announced he'll head for Wyoming, bear hunting again, but this time for grizzlies.

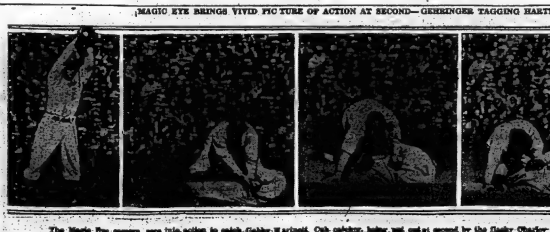
BARNSTORMING TOUR IS FLOP

"Dizzy" Dean About Ready To Hike For Home

Kansas City, Oct. 9—Dizzy Dean's barnstorming tour is a financial flop—so far, at least. As a result, the usually loquacious ball pitching star of St. Louis Cardinals is taciturn.



A week ago, when the tour of about 30 scheduled games opened in Springfield, Mo., Dizzy predicted he'd "make more money on this trip than in a whole season with the Cards." Today, Dizzy (baseball) used only one word—and a frown—to describe the turnouts "bad."

His barnstorming pals, Paul Dean and Mike Ryba, also of the St. Louis Nationals, admitted here Monday they "barely are making expenses" and they they would cancel the remaining scheduled games if possible.

Cold weather has cut attendance and the tour also ran afoul of world series competition. Dizzy gazed disconsolately on great stretches of vacant seats in Muehlebach Field while he played seven innings of an exhibition game here on Sunday.

The fact Dizzy and Paul aren't the national heroes they were a year ago after leading St. Louis to a National League flag and world championship also probably figured in the decreased attendance.

How British West Indies Brought Prosperity Back

W. F. Bull, Canadian Trade Commissioner Tells of Visit.

W. I. Programme.

Residents of the British West Indies, staggering under the blow of a world wide depression which affected nearly every other country in the world recently, did not sit idly by and mourn the loss of tourist trade, markets and other industries of this Island, but instead, determined to work harder to remedy the evil. They turned to other pursuits than that of catering to the tourist trade, which declined to negligible figures.' Diversified agriculture, which is now one of the main pursuits of the people proved the answer. It has brought prosperity back. So related Mr. William Frederick Bull, Canadian Government Trade Commission of Trinidad and the British West Indies, a brief visitor to the city today.

Mr. Bull, here, left, ideally adapted for his profession of ambassador of trade and goodwill between his country and his adopted Island, is making a brief trip through Canada, for the express purpose of increasing exports between Canada and his beloved West Indies. During his stay in Belleville today he interviewed several local manufacturers.

"Yes, we suffered from the recent depression down there, too. We also had unemployment. We were faced with a complete loss of the tourist trade, which is generally accepted as one of our biggest industries. But down there they tackled it differently. They thought about for an evening and found it in agriculture. How it is one of our main supports. This year we expect to ship one quarter of a million boxes of grape fruit to different countries of the world. Cocoa been growing, and other semi Tropical fruits are also being encouraged in growth. That has been the answer to the slack period," declared Mr. Bull with a reminiscent sparkle in his eyes.

"Times are definitely on the upward trend in the Islands," he continued. "Last year, we enjoyed our biggest tourist season. This year is expected to be considerably better. Our British West Indies is one of the most attractive tourist resorts on earth, which fact spells dollars to us.

Only in one major industry, once considered one of the chief ones of the Islands had Trinidad experienced a set back. This is the world wide and fabled lake of pitch in the interior which has helped cost the majority of roads of civilized countries of the world with a pecuniary layer covering. In previous years as many as two thousand men at once were to be seen working in the pitch beds getting the material out for transport. During the past few years the number of workmen on the beds had dropped to a mere hundred or so. Commercially made products which have replaced the genuine Trinidad pitch has resulted in less export of this material.

Obituaries ago, Drake and Nelson tarred the seams of their fighting vessels with the product from Lake Trinidad. Unknown pirates, following discovery of the Island plagued the gaping holes in their boats with the pitch following running encounters with governmental vessels. Now hundreds of years men have worked unceasingly at the task of getting the pitch from the lake, but the level of the lake is the same as it was when first discovered.

"While no one knows exactly where this pitch does come from," stated Mr. Bull, "it is the general belief that it is formed through chemical action far down in the earth. The centre of the lake bubbles constantly through some action in which crude oil, which honeycombs the Island, is the principle.

Mr. Bull sees increasing trade prospects between the British colonies and overseas countries as the one step toward increasing confidence and realization of world trade. To this end he has devoted himself to the task of creating his own demand for commodities of the Islands for markets. Leaving Belleville he will continue his tour to the east, calling one month from now for home, where, he hopes, with orders for shipment from John Deere Limited.

Kiwanis Carnival

What the General Chairman of The Kiwanis Carnival Has to Say

To the citizens of Belleville and surrounding district. First of all I wish to take this opportunity of thanking all the men, women, and children of the city and surrounding countryside who have purchased tickets for the Kiwanis Carnival and draw; and to those who have not yet purchased, I would like to say you to get busy and buy as many tickets as you can afford because the prizes list is now complete in this issue and also that the Carnival this year is the biggest and best that the local club has ever attempted to put over.

Our Carnival dates are October 16-17-18th, Tuesday; Wednesday and Thursday, and when you sign and consider for one moment that we are giving away each night, one Dodge car 4 door sedan; One Electric Frigidaire 6 cubic foot; One Stewart Warner Radio's and one third of 500 consolation prizes you will readily understand why we say it is the biggest and best Carnival ever put on in Belleville.

Much credit for staging this draw can safely be given to Cliff Baragrave, President of the Club. Cliff's main object since being elected to office has been to organize ways the club could undertake and carry on boys work in, this community and the club is very pleased that this purpose has been accomplished. Cliff has been one of the hardest workers in the Club since he took over the chair and not only that the Club in a good substantial position, but built the Club membership by over 60 per cent.

More power to our president who incidentally will officiate at the Carnival next Tuesday night.

I am going to give you a brief outline of our entire ticket and the chairman of each committee; each committee chairman will also give you what his committee is doing and the personnel of his committee.

Admission and Finance—The old reliable George Griffin is chairman of the above committee. George has acted as chairman of this department for all the Carnivals, and all the projects sponsored by the Kiwanis Club.

Advertising—Gordon Payne is chairman of advertising. Gordon has plenty up his sleeve in the line of advertising and will give you the radio program several days before the carnival opens.

Bingo—The Carnival wouldn't be complete without Bingo and Bingo wouldn't be complete with Davy Davidson. Davy a chairman of the above game and expects to have this game equipped with a sound equipment so every one will be able to hear the numbers called, thereby eliminating considerable confusion. Davy says that he will have plenty of good prizes to choose from.

Construction — City Engineer Charlie Mott is chairman of this committee and will look after the construction of the stage and all booths, and judging by the way that Charlie has already built we would say that he is the right man for the right job.

Dance—Eddie Shapiro will be at the head of this committee and Eddie is a go getter and I am sure that he will give the dance patrons there money's worth with a real snappy orchestra and a good dance floor.

Entertainment—George Forhan, manager of the Belle Theatre is chairman of this important committee. George has had considerable experience in the entertainment line and he tells me that he has lined up some of the best vaudeville acts in the country. I am not going to tell you anymore of this but will let George tell you himself later on what the show is going to be.

Concessions—Ivie Imlah who is chairman of this committee tells me that he will have at least six different games lined up and a few chairmen in charge of each game. Joe will also look after some About Ads and on.

Lights and Decorations—There is one man in Kiwanis we can always look to to look after the lighting and decorating and that is Ernie Pinkle. Ernie is chairman of this committee and he is right at home when it comes to wiring or decorating the Arena and I am sure that the decorations this year are going to excel any previous carnival.

Purchasing—This is also a very important committee, but with Jack McGrath at the head of it the Club or myself haven't anything to worry about. Jack's job is to buy all the merchandise for the games and prizes. A very capable committee at his disposal they will have nothing but the best merchandise.

Publicity—Director of Books—George Lee who is chairman of this committee has had the biggest job of any man in the club. George has been working day in and day out since the 2nd day of July in the mailing of books of tickets. We can thank George for the quires so much comment that I am going to leave it to George to tell you all about it.

Refreshments — Bill Anderson chairman and Gordon Fretwell vice chairman. This is one committee that will have plenty of work to do, but with a capable staff and especially the Misses Queens, Bill's work will be much easier.

Grounds—Isaac Stephenson is chairman and Isaac will have three groups of Boy Scouts to help him out in order to handle the anticipated large number of people seated the three nights of the Carnival.

Drawing for prizes—The writer who is chairman of this committee contemplates that when the draw takes place each night that five judges will be asked to step on the stage from the audience to draw for the prizes. Each judge on this committee of three men from the audience to act as judges along with the Kiwanis committee. This is to show the public that the draw is on the up and up and that no criticism will be offered the club on the draw that was conducted. Along with the chairman, the following will be on the committee, C. Barragar, F. C. MacLaurin, H. Sherry and Gordon Lee.

I have made my remarks very brief for the simple reason that all committee chairmen will tell you more about there departments in the draw and the dates of the Carnival.

Sincerely yours,
Frank Demanico,
General Chairman of Carnival.

Famous Sound Film is Coming

W. L. Howe Brings Here Return of "The Man They Could Not Hang"

A colorful person dropped into this office a few days ago. Tall, handsome, motion picture performer and globe trotter W. Leonard Howe arrived to have preliminary plans at work into comparatively few years. As an actor in a few of Sir J. Forbes Robertson, the late Louis Wines talked South Africa, Australia and India and has appeared in Belleville with "Ben Hur," "All's Buttin," "The Prisoner of Zenda," an all star production of "The Bohemian Girl" and the silent version of "The Man who could not hang" featuring the story of the Derguaire Esq.) had on locale known as "The Man They Could Not Hang". Mr. Howe has just been acting in the Canadian Films in Toronto. Others already completed are the first "The King's Male" Marring Tony Kenneth Harlan and Jane Wyatt or Oakland, the second, a not yet named M.G.M. picture featuring Clark Gable, Adrienne Dores and Wheeler Oakland Mr. Howe is most enthusiastic about the picture in which Mr. J. H. Booth of Ottawa, Canadian Director of Books—George Lee who is chairman of this committee has had the biggest job of any man in the club. George has been working day in and day out since the 2nd day of July in the mailing of books of tickets. We can thank George for the quires so much comment that I am going to leave it to George to tell you all about it.

Novello, Gladys Cooper, C. Aubrey Smith, Edna Terry and others. At that time others were scouting the English field and Mr. Howe brought over the first Australian made picture to Canada. Founded on the true story of John Lee, "The Man they could not hang" it too found immediate favor, as it's success after touring Canada took the picture to the United States, remaining there several years. He has now acquired the same story and seven years later this picture seems also likely to acclaim fame.

Eleven years ago Belleville enthusiastically endorsed the presentation of Mr. Howe's first film production from Australia. "The Man They Could Not Hang" was its title, and a feature was made of a special prologue. Strangely, that now anticipated short in its entirety has been entertaining our cousins across the line ever since, so much so that an entirely new "all talking" version has just been made in response to popular demand. As before a well known actor will accompany the picture, presenting an unusual prologue, and as before, very early in its Canadian travels Belleville will see the picture, the only gruesome part of which is it's fate, the hook-end of the camera character who's true story is related.

AT THE CAPITOL

"She Gets Her Man"

Hilarious Comedy with Zasu Pitts and Hugh O'Connell

When a shy, fluttering girl from a small town gets mixed up with all of Chicago's most ferocious gangsters, anything is liable to happen. Anything....and everything, in fact....does happen in "She Gets Her Man" the hilarious comedy that starts tomorrow at the Capitol Theatre with Zasu Pitts and Hugh O'Connell in the starring roles.

In the story, Miss Pitts and her small-town sweetheart, Lucien Littlefield, conduct the Bon Ton lunch room in Plainville, Illinois, and one day the girl is making a two-dollar deposit at the local bank when the institution is held up by gangsters. Miss Pitts promptly faints, and in so doing falls on a concealed button which releases lots of tear gas. The bandits are forced to flee, and the startled Zasu finds herself hailed as a heroine.

A newspaper account of her exploit is seen by Hugh O'Connor, a press agent, and with his fiance, Helen Twelvetrees, he goes to Plainville to sign Miss Pitts for a lecture tour, in which she is presented as "the bravest woman in America." With her prepared speech she arouses the women of the country in a fight against crime, but her rousing campaign is brought to a halt when she is kidnapped by gangsters.

The climax of the picture brings the most ludicrous situations ever shown on the screen, and definitely established the dumbfounded Pitts as America's greatest force for law and order. But even then she doesn't know what it is all about.

The cast supporting Miss Pitts and Hugh O'Connell includes Warren Hymer, Gertrude Astor, Eddie Borphy, Bert Gordon and Ward Bond.

A supplementary program that embraces a wide variety of short subjects is offered. It includes a snappy musical revue called "In the Spotlight" "Screen Snapshots" that gives you intimate views of your favorite movie stars on and off the set, Fox Movietone News brings the last minute events and happenings that have transpired throughout the globe.

Tonight is the last showing of that gay musical romance "Paris in Spring" in which the captivating and golden-voiced Mary Ellis is starred. An excellent group of shorts including an Andy Clyde comedy is offered.

AT THE BELLE

"Two For Tonight"

Bright Fun, Love Songs, Disinguish Laugh Hit with Mary Boland

Bright-spirited comedy, lilting love songs, and gay romance make Bing Crosby's "Two for Tonight", which opens at the Belle Tomorrow, for two days, matinee daily, one grand hour of fun and entertainment, topped by a supporting cast of skilful, but none the less hilarious comedians, headed by the buoyant inanities of Mary Boland and the droll humor of Lynne Overman.

Prepare yourself for gales of rib-tickling laughter as Bing's newest laugh riot which provides the crooner with plenty of opportunity to indulge his flair as an actor, singer and master of farce. Presenting Crosby is one mirth-provoking dilemma after another.

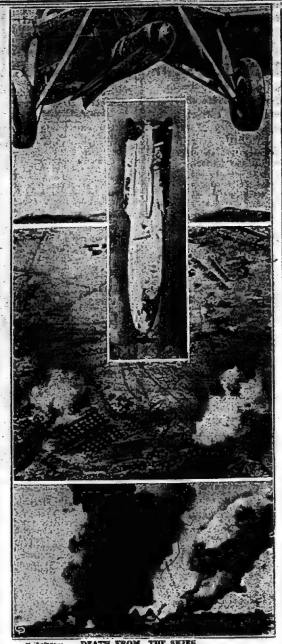
"Two for Tonight" is a perfect vehicle for Bing's light-hearted insouciant, personable style of acting.

The comedy centers around the humorous experiences of a struggling young singer when he is erroneously taken for a playwright. Bing finds one of three brothers, sons of Mary Boland, who are evicted from their home, protesting themselves in the garden of a renowned music publisher's home. Bing sings while the other plays the piano, unaware that the publisher is deaf as a post. An airplane crashes, putting Bing in the hospital. Miss Boland in her effort to collect $50,000 damages, writes the pilot that the accident has prevented her son from completing his play. The pilot appears, in the person of Jean Bennett, secretary of a famous stage impresario, Lynne Overman. Through both, Bing and his family have an appointment with Overman who straightway assigns Bing to write a play for his star, Thelma Todd without giving him a chance to explain.

The fun begins when Bing, finding himself short of ideas, acts upon the suggestion of Ernest Cossart, Overman's astute butler and ex-theatrical producer, to go out and make things happen to get more material for his play. He starts an hilarious seltzer water-siphon shooting battle in a night-club which sends him to jail. By this time Miss Bennett has fallen in love with the romantic hero, but runs away when she sees him in an embrace with Miss Todd, rehearsing a love scene. Overman suddenly returns from Europe, into this mess, and fires Bing.

A sparkling, breezy sentimental finale follows an exciting climax to the fun feast. A fine assortment of catchy melodies has been provided by Gordon and Revel, including "From the Top of your Head to the Tip of Your Toes", "When a Woman Goes Starring", "Two for Tonight", "Takes Two to Make a Bargain" and "Wish I Were Aladdin". Frank Tuttle's direction is swiftly paced, attains distinction by its excellence.

Four Short Features



Four varied and highly entertaining featurettes will precede the exhibition of the Bing Crosby feature, "Two for Tonight" consisting of a very funny all-star comedy "Cat Rich Gallery" interesting Screen Snapshots revealing your favorite screen stars at work and play, a novel Popular Science reel in Technicolor, and "Chipping Campden," a very interesting Travelltalk.

Two Smart Features Tonight

Two smart feature attractions will be presented at the Belle Tonight for the last time in an exciting thrill-romance starring Sally Eilers and Chester Morris, and "Calling Yourself" offering the most original comedy idea of the year and co-starring Madge Evans, Robert Young and Betty Furness, Plus Edwin C. Hill introducing the Latest News of the World. The last complete show starts at 8.30 P. M.

● Will Rogers is fond of saying: "Well, all I know is what I see in the paper". It is substantially true that all most of us know about current topics is what we see in the daily newspaper.

An unusual bond of friendship unites the reader and his newspaper, a relationship cemented by that wonderful thing we know as "News".

What is it?

News might be called the theme song of life. It is the sound of civilization's machinery in motion. It is the speed gauge of progress. It is the background of all thinking, all planning and all knowledge of current human affairs.

Because of this quality, when white paper leaves the printing presses carrying "the news", it has become an active force in its city, its country and the world.

In such an atmosphere of motion and vitality the Daily Newspaper places within the hands of maker and seller the power of contact with this new-reading public—a power that is limited only by the advertiser's own ability to use it intelligently.

SINISTER SHADOW

by JOHN GOODWIN

"You rode at Brian, he grabbed your horse by the bridle, you tried to fight him with the butt of that hammer-gun but only struck him on the shoulder. He tore you out of the saddle, you fell on to the with force below, smashing it . . . and so on to the steep slope, all grass and briars, just beyond it . . . and over the edge of the cutting . . . Scotia sat back in her chair.

"It must have been a bad mix-up, Batchelder; you're carrying the marks of it yet. You were surely born with a lucky star and you must be lucky to come out of a thing like that alive. You thought you were done for, bumping and rolling down that slope; so you would have been, but for one thing.

"I've got that thing. It's a little sapling; a slip of green roundabout ash, as tough as hickory. It was growing right on the edge of the cliff with its roots in the rock. It isn't there now. When I got to it it was buried in the mud and stuff in the railway ditch away below. Even then I didn't know what it should—not till long afterwards—when I got myself recovered to the edge of the cutting with a rope — your young mahout, Grant did that for me—and I found the place where its roots had been torn out.

You came to the end of the sapling as you rolled over the edge, and grabbed it. They ay a drowning man clutches at straws, and so does a man who's falling. You swung by it.

"Only for a second or two; then the roots tore out and let you drop. It was a long drop, thirty feet, but you were falling length for your arm, and it was very soft falling. Instead of striking your head on the metals as we all thought, you dropped on to that ink the mixed chain running along the foot of the railroad; that's the ditch that takes the drainage of the track.

"Even with such soft falling, the shock must have been a pretty heavy one, when you toppled over on the side of the ditch. And the express roaring along through the cutting the 10.7 down train, which might very well have put you up—but for that little sapling. You were right about breaking limbs and nightmares, Bannister; I don't wonder that night left its mark on you and wiped out your memory—except in dreams.

"I don't agree with it that it made any difference to the kind of brains you have. Don't look so dismayed! You're a pretty quick thinker; you're thinking hard now. But you never thought quicker in your life than you did when you were crouching in that ditch after the train had gone by, and you and Brian called to each other, calling you by name.

"You must have heard that. You didn't answer. Not a word—till you heard him clearing out.

"Brian thought you were killed. What else could he think? There was nothing could be more fatal for Brian, when the law called him to account, than your evidence to that he had taken me from you, that he had threatened you already . . . that your death made him a rich man. That he couldn't believe any defense he could make?

"You as a hanging for Brian, and just one more way for Sanister Coote. Else you were in a still worse fix, with a dead man to your account . . . a hanging for you if that came to light. You'd stripped forty thousand off the Coote property. There was nothing more to be done at King's Elm. The next move was up to you."

"All this didn't take but a few moments—you hurried back along the line to the gully as quick as you could make it; all quiet there. Selby was still there—waiting. You were in time. He hadn't put Barber down the shaft. Selby had developed heart of that because he got there; he heard somebody cross the gully the dark; he didn't know who it was or what was doing.

"It was Brian. He'd managed to scrap lower down, trying to reach the track, Selby heard him trying to scramble down on to the line.

"You and Selby waited a minute or so—to see if he was coming back. If Brian had come back, I think he, pair of them, would have killed him. . . . He didn't come back. He was out, clear for you.

"Then you gave Selby his orders. He picked Barber up and carried him inside the old shed, near the shaft."

Sonia paused. Howe sat silent. So did Batchelder.

"It's such a pity you've forgotten all that," she said at last. "Remember you'll make an effort and tell us this next bit yourself. It's particularly unpleasant. You'll be spare me that?"

Batchelder gazed at her with the same puzzled, pathetic stare.

"I haven't the remotest idea what you are talking about," he said bluntly. "I wish I knew."

"Do you? I'm going to show you how sane I am. Though I doubt if a man with such brains as yours and making such a use of them as you did, can be really quite sane. But I suspect that's true of most criminals. It was a stroke of genius in Sir Hy, it was no doubt that I've never heard its equal.

"You had a little electric torch which you set on the floor of the shed. And by its light dressed, your orders, stripped the dead man the man you killed. You got into his clothes. While you were doing that, Selby got Barber's body into your clothes, where the law of you'd didn't take long; I've been able to give you the time it took—under fifteen minutes. Barber was not really dead, with your help, of course it was you who put the finishing touches; that brain of yours was working at speed.

"You left him your watch and ring and gold cigarette case, you kept your own gun. An after-thought, wasn't it? When Sanister Coote's body was found, he ought to have no gun on him—he should be unarmed.

"You were very thorough; you forgot nothing, Selby, by your orders (while you were changing) fixed up the dead man's hands, carried his hands back to 10.3, smashed the clock to and stopped it, he left it on Barber. Your signet ring you fixed on Barber's finger; you even wiped the blood of the dead man that bit of plaster of yours on it. Barber had unusually well-kept hands, for a seaman. But I do think the doctor ought to have noticed something unusual about that cut.

"You and Barber were quite alone. The express was late; both with stiff dark hair burning gray (yours is pretty white now, Batchelder, isn't it?) but in features you were not unlike. You were in the best shape, mentally mended.

"As soon as the other arrangements were perfected, Barber was carried along the line and laid with his head on the rail, just under the cutting—fetched—with your gun his head. And Selby, instructed by you, stayed back in the hut and finished getting into Barber's clothes.

"One mistake was made. Your watch was set back a little more than three minutes past ten. The express didn't pass till 10.7. And of course it wasn't the express that hit Barber, anyway; it was the freight train thirty-three whole minutes later, that finished that dreadful job of yours and left it undiscovered.

"It occurred to nobody that the dead man could possibly be any one but Saunders Coote, that child of sin? The evidence was overwhelming. It certainly didn't occur to me. Much cleverer people than I were beslerdoogh. It's an advantage to them that they're not encouraged to think I was very dense. It's a help that daylight now.

"There's one thing more. When you'd finished getting into Barber's clothes—clothing, you—senior and you—took all complete . . . you went down the line while Selby was still busy with his job, and kept watch the other direction, so that when Brian had gone, in case he might come back.

"If you'd gone only a little farther you might have found him. The question is, did you find him? If you did you naturally couldn't do better than leave him where he was; maybe adding an article or two of his clothing to the heap was Brian's pistol in his hip-pocket . . . did you meddle with that? I ought so once, but I can't be sure. Nine men I'm not quite sure but Brian got knocked out the way he did; he can't tell me. And I suppose you won't. You did what would have been an obvious mistake; for safer as well as more satisfying, to let him hang for murdering you. Your case was complete enough.

"I believe now that you missed him in the dark, and took it for granted he had gone.

"The whole thing hadn't taken twenty minutes. Then rescued Selby. What were you to do with him?

"If Selby was allowed to go back to his family at King's Elm, holding such a secret as that, could you trust him with it? No. Could you trust Selby long? No. Was he big intelligent enough to hoodwink the police and slip by Selby, and you were done for. If things went wrong and Selby found himself cornered, he would sell your secret to save his own.

CHAPTER LIX

"Selby was a rock himself; he'd some hold over you, and you were bleeding you for years. You kept him quiet by bleeding him, but he was faithful according to his rights.

"You've had your life in his hands, Selby knew. When he came to you to report, you knew there was only one way to safety.

"I think that was really the most sensible thing of all. It was a little risky to take Barber back to 10.3 but, but he did—and you shot him through the head, then left his body on the stones of the path, and it's there yet. The storm didn't wash that out. It's in the shelter of one of the little recesses of the mine. You dragged the body up the path and carried it down the shaft. He went the way you should have gone, but for one there was another advantage to that. It was Selby's safety—you'd be finding Selby ever supposing he'd searched the mine for him. But if they did find him, what could they make of it except that Brian had covered the crime of killing you, by silencing Selby too.

"You've very nearly brought out, Batchelder, considering how short a time was said to pop. There, William you see, it's the same old story. You're being a cad, as a man, and exploiting torn out to be unfounded risks disappearing in the unreal ocean. I mean about Alibi borrowing those 3 dollars from you the other evening when he wanted to treat us to the movies, and how you refused to lend him a shilling—five and that he had no more idea—of paying you back than a wandering Spy. Well you were diametrically wrong, William, because he pawned my back of his own unalloyed volition, and if you don't believe it, ask Doddered Thomas look at it, she said.

And she held out 3 dollars and pop started to take them, saying. My pickles taste about mistaken, who'd ever of them those 7 little old dollers would ever of come home to roost?

Well they haven't exactly, I mean, it was this shaft which offered them a means of escape from the tower. As Tarzan examined the opening an unpleasant thought obtruded itself on his consciousness. "We are not safe here. Whoever eats the meat to the lion must ascend this shaft.

Can't you see that was just a decoy? Pawny would you back? was said, and pop said, Help aid suckers, I'm going around to Paw's cigar store to tawk to the boys and you can go to the movies with Alibi and pay for the tickets with those some 3 dollers in spite of his feeble protests.

Which she prosterly did.

TARZAN THE INVINCIBLE (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

"We can kill Oah and Dooth," said La. "I cannot kill a woman," replied Tarzan, "nor Dooth unless he attacks me. Tarzan of the Apes kills only for food; or in self-defense, when there is no other way to thwart his enemies."

They discovered that in the floor of the ancient room there were two openings; one was the mouth of the shaft, through which they had ascended from the dungeons, the other was a larger shaft, to the bottom which ran a long wooden ladder.

It was this shaft which offered them a means of escape from the tower. As Tarzan examined the opening an unpleasant thought obtruded itself on his consciousness. "We are not safe here. Whoever eats the meat to the lion must ascend this shaft.

"They do not feed the lion every day," said La. "I do not recall when they fed him last. Time drags as heavily in the darkness of the cell that I lost count of days!" "Si-si!" cautioned Tarzan, "Some one is ascending now."

Obituary

HARRY AYLESWORTH

Campbellford

Harry Aylesworth, native of Percy Township and well known throughout Northumberland County, died in Belleville hospital after a brief illness. He was 55 years of age and was an ardent fisherman, with a well stocked trout stream on his own farm.

He was a graduate of Guelph Agricultural College and farmed for many years in the Norham district. Some 30 years ago he resided in Campbellford.

He was Past President of the Central Ontario Fall Fairs' Association. Besides his wife he is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Robert Martin of Toronto.

CLOTHING NEED IN CHILL DAYS

Plan is Made For Garments For Children as Weather Turns Cool

Chill winds and steady drop in temperatures during the past week or so have resulted in added demands on the local Central Relief Office for clothing on the part of relief recipients, it was stated by officials this morning. Children's clothes are prevailed in demands with requests for warm underwear and coats particularly needed. Realizing that her children would be forced to stay home from school unless some such clothing was forthcoming, one lady has made an especial plea for donations. By the present donations from private sources have been few and far between. Upon receipt of a phone call, however, a truck will be despatched immediately for collections.

POLICE BLOTTER

Local police were asked to keep a lookout for a Chevrolet roadster reported stolen at Port Hope last night. The automobile is painted blue with red wire wheels and bore Ontario license plates numbered 28-911.

Jack Wilson, local student residing at 161 Chatham street, complained of the theft of his bicycle from its parking place at the Belleville Collegiate yesterday. It was taken during school hours, Jack informed the authorities.

Whether some person abandoned his bed after sleeping in the open cot-of-doors last night or whether the bed fell from a moving van could not be determined by the police authorities today. At any rate Sergeant Booth was informed that a folding bed had been found on Pine street. No reports of a bed being lost were received by the authorities, thus making the finding of the article all the more mystifying. A pair of gold rimmed glasses were also turned over to the police recently.

A slight motor accident happened on the Cannifton Road, some two miles north of Belleville, at 8.15 a.m. today. According to Traffic Officer Sam Irvine, who investigated, a truck loaded with large timbers belonged to have sideswiped an automobile driven by William Little of Belleville. No serious damage was reported, however. The truck and trailer that was transporting twenty foot timbers was owned and driven by Fred Lapean of this city in a northerly direction, while the motor car was travelling northward. It is alleged by the driver of the motor car that the timbers shifted slightly, thus causing a projecting timber to upgrade and strike the side window [illegible]

PUBLIC BRIBES BEING OFFERED KING CHARGES

LAVISH PROMISES

Take Over Concerns To Determine Amount of Protection

Niagara Falls, Ont., Oct. 10—Prime Minister Bennett was charged Wednesday night with attempting wholesale bribery and corruption of the Canadian electors, especially the grain growers and the dairy farmers.

Accused by King

His accuser was the Liberal leader, Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, who used strong language in denouncing the tactics of the Conservative Leader as he addressed some 8,000 electors from the Canadian and Welland, Lincoln and Haldimand.

"Mr. Bennett is guilty of seeking to debauch the public by offering them bribes, by making lavish promises and by actually telling them he has been giving them cash," asserted Mr. King in the course of his scorching indictment of the Government Leader.

"I have in my hand here a copy of a flyer posted circulated in Western Canada, which Mr. Bennett gave the grain growers of Western Ontario $150,000,000 in cash. It this means that Mr. Bennett gave the Western farmers money, $150,000,000 is a pretty large bribe. But I suppose, when it comes to that a billion dollars now vanishes on the embarrassment of wheat prices. Did Mr. Bennett count all the lies passed by the last Parliament, or did the people's elected representatives have some share in creating Bedlam?

"Then at Sherbrooke, Quebec, a few days ago, Mr. Bennett sought to debauch the dairy farmer by telling them about a million-dollar sa-

SYNOD POINTS WORLD TO CHRIST

Answer to Unrest And Attempts to Propagate Communism, Atheism

At the Thursday morning session of the Provincial Synod of the Ecclesiastical Province of Ontario which is holding its session at St. Thomas' Parish House, the following resolution after careful consideration was moved by the Venerable Archdeacon Renison, and seconded by the Rev. Canon Quintin Warnes of Hamilton and carried by a vote: Dr. Bedford-Jones of Ottawa was passed:

"This Synod of the Ecclesiastical Province of Ontario recognizes in the propagation of the tenets of communism and the attempts to introduce it into this country, the evidence of unrest in the minds of many people and the fundamental desire for reality, and consider that Christianity alone can say for the uncompromising expression of entire dependence upon the Lordship of Christ made real to us through the Holy Spirit. We challenge all who call themselves Christians to examine themselves before God who alone can satisfy the unruly wills and affections of sinful men and make them to love the thing that He commands and desire that which He promises that among confused and many distressful changes of the world our hearts may surely and there be fixed where true joys are to be found. We confidently appeal not only through our personal witness but through the church as the means of answering the needs of spiritual hunger, and we call upon the whole Church to unite in prayer to God to silence the ignorance of foolish men, and we ask that this resolution be referred to the Provincial Council for any action in particular instances which they fall within."

Algoma Diocese Seeks Endowment

The matter of the endowment of the Diocese of Algoma was up for discussion and was still under consideration when the synod adjourned at 4 o'clock this afternoon. Algoma, which is a missionary diocese, was established in the year 1872 and at that time, it is claimed, promises were made that in due time the diocese would receive an endowment as had the other dioceses. This understanding has not been fulfilled and the Bishop of Algoma, his clergy and lay delegates are asking that steps be taken to go towards having the promise fulfilled. The moral claim by the Diocese of Algoma is recognized and it is expected that some action towards fulfilling the promise at an opportune time in the future will be taken.

BENNETT OFFERS PLAN TO UNITE ALL FOR CANADA

Will Urge All Commoners Irrespective of Party, to Aid in Solutions

Premier Stresses Value of Empire Trade Pacts to Canada

Toronto, Oct. 10—Prime Minister Bennett stood today pledged, if he is Prime Minister in the next Canadian Parliament, to appeal to His fellow members of the House of Commons of all groups "to place country above party" in seeking a solution to the Dominion's problems.

"We may lose individual party supporters and even face defeat in the House," the Prime Minister told his audience in a Maple Leaf Gardens political rally last night. "But I cannot but feel must be regarded as insignificant. I have received, that is the request for Ottawa last and all the time."

Coming at the close of his address Mr. Bennett's pledge was given in answer to reported plan of Mackenzie King, Liberal leader Mackenzie King, that he would not seek co-operation of other groups in parliament to form a government. "My position I desire to make clear," the Prime Minister declared, and he read the text of it aloud, "is that I will not refuse to meet if he needs parliament to co-operate with other parties.

"But I will not be a party to any government which is formed by the Liberal and a section of the public problems of the country would be brought down in united government by Mr. Bennett declared.

"Why, I think," the Prime Minister said, "has declared he will not seek co-operation with other parties in the House, but will only desire to make clear. When I return to the new House of Commons as Prime Minister, as soon as Parliament is convened, I will say:

Right Economic

"Mr. Speaker: Canada is leading the van towards the return to prosperity, and much remains to be done which can only be accomplished by the real determination of the necessary changes in our domestic economy. We must find a practical right economic way branch of the public service.

"From this hour my only aim is that our united task may be to that end. We have proved that solvency and return her to peaceful prosperity and happiness. The cost of Government must be lessened, the budget must be balanced and the difficulties that confront the country must be solved. I will not hesitate to use to temporize with them when the time comes for their consideration and solution. For it is admitted on all hands that we cannot maintain our present federal system if the provinces have to continue to borrow the money they have during the last few years from the Dominion and the Dominion has to borrow increasing sums to meet these demands.

"The transportation problem must be dealt with by the people as a whole. We cannot permit the breakdown of our transportation system through the insolvency of our railroads, with all the consequent loss of jobs.

"In the ordinary course I have not left many more years of life, and I propose to use every ounce of my energy for the salvation of this country. I have received that it must be done now. I feel that all the time We may lose individual party supporters and even face defeat in this House, but personal losses must be regarded as insignificant. I made that clear to my supporters in the last House of Commons and I repeat it now.

"But, confident with the economies effected must come improvement for the earning power of the population: the farmer, the laborer, clerical classes, salesmen and accountants, must have increased earnings with security.

"Money expended on social services will be repaid many times in the increased purchasing power of the people through return to prosperity.

"I invite every member of this House, without regard to party or group, to join with me in placing country above party and as members of the new House of Commons, devote themselves to the task of placing Canada on a first and solid foundation."

Confession May Save Hauptmann From the Chair

New York, Oct. 10—(AP)—The New York Evening Journal in a copyrighted story from Trenton, N. J., said today Bruno Richard Hauptmann might yet save himself from the electric chair by confessing to the kidnap-murder of the Lindbergh baby. The Journal said "One of New Jersey's most powerful officers" had pledged this assurance.

The Journal story was in the form of a letter to Hauptmann whose conviction for the murder of the infant son of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was upheld yesterday by the New Jersey Court of Errors and Appeals.

"Under the circumstances," the paper said, "are attached to this article for life and money:

"He must in his confession name his accomplice.

The confession must stand the closest investigation.

"He must, personally aid the State in prosecuting this accomplice—man or woman".

This demand, the paper said, was made by the highest officials of New Jersey's government in this climax.

"It has already been declared at this moment that neither the State nor Majesty's government remains friendly based upon the Covenant.

"Let us be clear. Anachronism and mankind will never taste healthy happening until war is abolished."

British Minister Claims That Britain Stands For Covenant

Geneva, Oct. 10—(AP)—An Italian spokesman told the Associated Press today any naval blockade against Italy means war.

Geneva, Oct. 10—(CP Copyright) —The League of Nations with 54 of its 56 members definitely on record against the punishment of Italy for its invasion of Ethiopia, moved today for a quick application of that punishment.

The steering committee of the League Assembly decided representatives of every member of the League except Italy and Ethiopia should serve on a committee to coordinate the work of the council and the assembly in instituting sanctions against Italy.

Hiram Gerunay will leave the League Oct. 31, the decision means the Coordination Commission will be made up of 56 nations.

Decision is Made

Application of sanctions did not require a unanimous vote of the assembly, Dissenting members merely refrain from application themselves. The decision to apply sanctions was made by unanimous consent of the council and the assembly of the League of Nations.

At the morning meeting the assembly gave its overwhelming approval to the council's condemnation of Italy.

Only Italy, Austria, and Hungary accepted non-acceptance of the council's report against Italy although in League circles it was suggested Albania, probably would at least make reservations in the general vote of condemnation.

In an afternoon session of the League Assembly Ethiopia's Italian delegate charged anew his nation was the victim of atrocious aggression.

He declared: "It is not war but massacre, because of the superiority of the Italian armament."

Canada Assents

Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, J. H. Woods and Edouard Montpetit represented Canada at the meeting like the overwhelming majority, the silence of assent.

"The League is now faced by its second test since the withdrawal of Great Britain. "Action must be taken. I declare our full willingness to participate in that action."

The British Minister for League affairs said, "there is no need for me to repeat this morning the policy of His Majesty's government in this dispute.

"It has already been declared at this moment that neither the State nor Majesty's government remains friendly based upon the Covenant.

"Let us be clear. Anachronism and mankind will never taste healthy happening until war is abolished."

Kingston Road Church Celebrates

The sixty-second anniversary of the dedication of the Kingston Road United Church which was built under the supervision of Bridge Street United Church was celebrated. Very helpful and inspiring messages were delivered by the Rev. L. S. Wight, B.A., and special music was rendered by the choir.

On the Wednesday following a New England dinner was served under the auspices of the W. A. Tables were set and looked very appealing not only with the dainty viands but the golden splendours of marigolds and harvest fruit. A splendid program followed, the minister, the Rev. E. Hagerman acting as chairman. Music, readings and address by Rev. Mr. Wright rounded out an enjoyable event.

FRINGE OF CHURCH IS LAY PROBLEM SYNOD IS TOLD

Provincial Synod of Church Of England Gathers in Layman's League

RELIGIOUS PROGRAM

The Provincial Synod of the Ecclesiastical Province of Ontario convened its sessions in St. Thomas' Parish House on Wednesday. The Upper and the Lower houses met together and considerable routine business was disposed of. Tribute was paid by the synod to departed members of the clergy and laymen who have died since the last meeting of the synod, some years ago, among the many names being that of John Ridout of Toronto, who was an active member of the synod. It was decided that a message should be telegraphed to the Metropolitan, the Most Rev. J. C. Roper, to Archbishop Sweeny, former head of the Toronto Diocese and late Metropolitan of Ontario, expressing the deep appreciation of the synod of the great service he had rendered the church during his active years and conveying the good wishes of the synod to Archbishop Sweeny in his living retired in Toronto.

General Synod Authority

Rev. Canon Perkins of Chatham presented the report of the Executive Committee of the Provincial Synod. He told the Bishop Sweeny of Toronto presided, that the Provincial Synod was given full authority. Authority was handed up to the General Synod for the erection of new dioceses and rearrangement of old ones. The consecration of election of Bishops was acknowledged as belonging to the House of Bishops of the whole Canadian Church, so long as the consecration of the Provincial House was regarded in such confirmation.

Work of Church in Province

At the afternoon session under the direction of Bishop Seager of Huron, the Very Rev. Dean Craig of Kingston and Messrs Cuttle and W. E. Long of Toronto presented the work of the whole province of the Church's work in the province and the Rev. Canon Goode, Rural Dean, Hills, Rev. J. Jykes and Mr. George Bell, K.C., representing the great Boards of the Church followed with inspirational reports of the work.

Dean Craig pointed out that this was a time for heroic efforts of all Church people. Tribes of prosperity demand little intensity of effort. Days of depression demand it to the full, he said. The call is to the Church in the interests of the souls of the world. Always a small group of Christians are required to lead and the call is to do the same today. "It is being done today," said Dean Craig. He also suggested that the dioceses of the province should be grouped for re-arrangement so that the wealthier districts should each have a less favored one to assist.

Problem of Non-Church Goer

Mr. Cuttle of Toronto stated that the great problem today lay in the fringe of the Church. Everyone goes inside the church, three are on the outside. This, said Mr. Cuttle, is the task of the laity. Men must bring the spiritual programme of the church to those outside. Without this effort the church cannot bring its message to the world. The speaker hoped that the laymen would be organized throughout the province to supplement the evangelistic activities of the Clergy. Mr. Cuttle moved, seconded by Mr. W. T. M. Boyd that this Provincial Synod endorse the action of the Board of General Synod in forming the Layman's League.

Rev. Dr. Hiles spoke on the part of the Board of Religious Education in the whole programme of the Church. The task is to hold before 2,000 parishes the ideals of education of the synod and to inspire the 2,000 teachers to do that great work among children and young people. "To develop a moral life built upon the spiritual foundations is our task", said Dr. Hiles.

The Rev. J. Dykes of Toronto spoke on behalf of the Council of Social Service. The working out in practice of the faith in the hearts of Christians is the programme set before the Church. The salvation of the whole life, physical, mental and spiritual is necessary M any one part of redemption is to be accomplished, said Mr. Dykes.

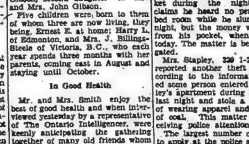
Cannifton Couple Celebrate Diamond Wedding Anniversary



Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Smith Hold Reception For Event

Happily married for sixty years today, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Smith, Cannifton, will celebrate their sixtieth anniversary by giving a dinner to about seventy of their relatives and friends this evening at the Orange Hall, Cannifton. To make the day more complete, they will have present their sons and daughter along with these sisters of Mrs. Smith. It will, also, be Mr. Smith's eighty-third birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith were married in the old Methodist Church on Bleecker Avenue by the late Rev. Thos. Cullen, who was the pastor there at that time. After the marriage they went to Mr. Smith's home on a farm in the Turner Settlement near Halloway, which he had just purchased. After living there for five years, they moved to Cannifton after selling the farm to Hiram Ellis then joined the staff of the Corby Distillery, where he remained for thirty-eight years, retiring ten years ago.

Mr. Smith came to Canada from

CELEBRATE DIAMOND WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Smith of today in honor of their Marriage Cannifton, who are entertaining Anniversary.

Cambridgeshire, England, in 1869 when he was seventeen years old and lived with his parents until his marriage six years later. Mrs. Smith was born and raised in Belleville, her home, which was torn down many years ago, was just east of the Dolan house on Victoria Ave and was owned by her father Edward Gibson, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Gibson.

Five children were born to them of whom three are now living, they being Ernest at his home; Harry L. of Edmonton, and Mrs. J. Billingsliede of Victoria, B. C., who each year spends three months with her parents, coming east in August and staying until October.

In Good Health

Mr. and Mrs. Smith enjoy the best of good health and when interviewed yesterday by a representative of The Ontario Intelligencer, were unanticipating a very happy evening together of many old friends whom they have not seen for many years. The house is filled with the aromatic fragrance of good things being prepared and that your scribe had a hard time realizing the impulse to invite himself to the feast. Decorations were carried out in mauve and silver, the rooms looking most attractive with the profusion of ribbon stretching from the corners to the electric fixtures. Vases of lovely flowers placed here and there added to the gayety of the scene. Out in the kitchen a large three-tiered wedding cake being dressed in its snowy coating of icing. On a side table in the dining room were several gifts among them being a silver flower basket from the Ladies' Aid of the Cannifton United Church.

Helping with the preparations were Mrs. Smith's three sisters, Mrs. J. Bailey, Madoc; Mrs. Arthur Wallace, Chatham, and Mrs. J. Gibson, Belleville.

Mr. Smith is greatly interested in the election and does not greatly approve of there being several parties in the running preferring that the contest should be between the two old established parties and being a strong Conservative himself believes that Mr. Bennett's chances of being returned to power look better now than they have at any time. He also, proudly showed an issue of the Sons of England official publication, wherein was contained a reference to his Diamond Wedding Anniversary and the fact that he had been a member of Lodge Lyndford No. 184 Belleville for forty-one years, being initiated on March 5th, 1894.

Among those who will attend the Diamond Wedding Anniversary are Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Kerr, Miss Nellie and Mildred Kerr, Toronto; Mrs. M. Demille, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Jas. PRIMATE SPEAKS AT CHRIST CHURCH

Necessity of Facing Reality Stressed by Archbishop D. T. Owen

Attended by members of the Synod of the Ecclesiastical Province of Ontario, clerical and lay, and by a large congregation of members of the parishes in Belleville and around about as well as members of other communions, the service in Christ Church on Wednesday evening was one of the most impressive of the Church of England services seen in Belleville in a long time in which the governing body of the church in the ecclesiastical province was the Primate of All Canada, Most Rev. Archbishop D. T. Owen, who sits in this synod as Archbishop of Toronto, who made his first appearance in this church since his consecration to the Primacy and who was the special preacher. Most Rev. Archbishop Roper of Ottawa, Metropolitan, took a portion of the service, which was conducted by the Rev. C. G. Wright, rector of the parish.

The procession from the vestry was led by the boys' choir, followed by the adult choir, the clergy and bishops, the Metropolitan and the primate. The bishops sat in the sanctuary and the clergy in the front pews.

The Primate brought greetings to Belleville from the Provincial Synod of the church. "We have been most hospitably entertained," he said. The Primate defined the government of the church by the three synods, the diocesan, the provincial and the general. The original synod, the Synod of Canada will very soon have celebrate the 150th anniversary of the consecration of the first Bishop of North America. Mention was made of the reception of the synod of Moosonee into the Provincial Synod, to make seven synods in the province of Rupert's Land. The Primate also brought greetings from the General Synod.

His theme was "Revival", something he said which is difficult to define. "It means power—power over life, and we need them in our church. Our archbishop has spoken of need of penitence in facing realities, the sin in ourselves."

The Primate referred to the necessity of knowledge of the "Church into the life of which we where now may find knowledge and peace. "It is the knowledge of the One who dwells within it. And no one can learn of Him from others alone, each one must find Him for himself or herself.

"So I close with the thought of the King that lives in that city on the hill."

To know Chas. Cameron is a vote for him.

PUBLIC BRIBES BEING OFFERED KING CHARGES

billation fund to maintain prices in the daily industry. He is quoted as having said: 'I regret to say that the first cheques will not be paid until Oct. 15, and I hope that you farmers within sound of my voice when you get your cheques the day after the election will not have any qualms of conscience because you voted against the Government that gave it to you.'

"Is not that bribery and corruption of the worst kind?" asked Mr. King as the audience applauded. "I was amazed at the Prime Ministers of Canada offering bribes in such a wholesale way. The public of Canada has never got so low as this at any time. I hasten to say that I do not hold the Conservative Party responsible for this sort of thing. I hold Mr. Bennett responsible. I stand foursquare with Sir Robert Borden, a great Conservative statesman, in denouncing bribery and political promises.

"Speaking in the House of Commons some years ago, Sir Robert said that bribery by wholesale is twofold more iniquitous and denouncing than bribery of an individual, and deserves twofold more punishment at the hands of the law than ordinary bribery." Mr. King continued: "I ask the people of Canada, if they want to have their treasury looted, if they want to maintain the honor of public life unsullied, to make it clear by their votes on Monday next that they will not tolerate wholesale bribery and corruption of the electorate with their own money.

"Parliament, if the Liberal Party is returned to office and there is any way of making it illegal to bribe the electors by election promises we will see to it that such a law is enacted."

The Liberal Leader also deplored threats which had been made by employers that they would close their factories if their workmen voted Liberal. The House of Commons, he said, had likewise been perverted during the last five years by Mr. Bennett's now long-standing to terrorize the electorate.

Canada, the Liberal Leader said: "If it had been anybody else besides Mr. Bennett who had had that nightmare some one else would have figured it and the incumbent police would have saved the day. "Let me say so far as the Dominions are concerned that any man who would seek to overthrow the government and institutions of this country by violence will not get one hour of sleep during the time of administration of which I am the head, but he will get a long rest while in any arbitrary manner that helps to encourage communism, he will be dealt with according to British tradition and justice."

It was on historic ground that Mr. Mackenzie King continued last night in his speech for the return of a Liberal Government to Parliament Hill at Ottawa. He referred to that his distinguished grandfather, William Lyon Mackenzie, had the honor of representing this district in the Parliament of the Upper Canada a century ago, when he began his dramatic crusade for representation by population in the Legislature.

See Liberal Victory

Lincoln, Welland and Haldimand, the counties to which last night's huge gathering of 9,000 electors belonged, sent three Conservative members to the last Parliament, but local Liberals saw in today's enthusiastic demonstration of Liberal strength an augury of victory for their cause in next Monday's voting. The crowd was considerably larger than that which greeted Prime Minister Bennett in the same arena about ten days ago, but Mr. Bennett's meeting was held in the afternoon.

The futility of electing half a dozen different groups to the House of Commons was emphasized by the Liberal leader as he spoke of the British-Ridolphi case.

"Within the next few months," he said, "Canada may be drawn into a war current which may be too strong for some political groups to resist. I pray to God it will not happen."

Candidates Speak

Mayor Charles Anderson of Niagara Falls presided, and brief but rousing campaign addresses were delivered by Frank Laidlaw, Liberal candidate in Haldimand; Arthur R. Damude, Liberal candidate in Welland, and A. E. Cozens, Liberal candidate in Lincoln. Mr. Coombs stirred the audience, personally including hundreds of Conservatives, by asking them if the Bennett Government policies had made them rich, by telling of peaches selling in this district at 10 to 15 cents a basket, and of the devastation across the United States of ten carloads of pears selling the last few days. He said Tory campaigners in St. Catharines were making the doleful tidings that factories of Canada would be closed if the Liberals win on October 14.

New Parties Weak

New political parties were seeking to make up for lack of experience by casting aspersions on the old parties, Liberal Leader Mackenzie King said late last night. The new parties could not elect enough members to form a Government, he declared, nor, coupled to form a Government, as was an old party like the Liberals, which drew its strength from the past as well as the present, and which was united by long and intimate association among its members.

Five years more of Bennett rule might leave Canada in a position so desperate no recovery would be possible, said Mr. King. It was questionable if the public Treasury could stand another five years of the heavy relief expenditures now being made.

Conditions today were due to wrong policies adopted by the Bennett Government. Instead of changing his policies when their failure was apparent, Mr. Bennett asked for a chance to continue them for another five years.

Election of C.C.F. or Reconstruction Party candidates could never secure reforms, the Liberal Leader continued. Neither of these parties had a single supporter in the Senate. If they proposed any new measures they would have no support in the Second Chamber of Parliament. Further, votes for either of these parties might make possible the return of the Bennett Government by a minority of votes or reduce the majority a Liberal Government would need in order to effect desired reforms.

A Government that was not sure of ample support in Parliament was hampered in giving effect to its policies, Mr. King said. He knew this from personal experience, because from 1925 he had held office without a secure majority because of the presence of Farmer and Labor members.

Support Essential

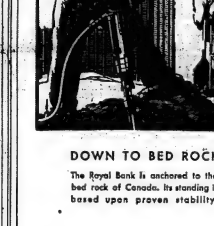
Had those members not been driven and had the support they received been thrown to the Liberal Party, the Liberals — at that time would have effected many reforms. Many measures would now be on the statute books which were not on.

By his invitation, impossible of fulfilment, Mr. Bennett was making elections in Canada into an "auction sale" said Mr. King. He was making "the destiny of our country something to be knocked down to the highest bidder."

In the House of Commons, when the Leader of the Opposition in 1926 Mr. Bennett had warned of the effect on the life of the country of "defrauding the people with their own revenues."

Stirling and District

Stirling, Oct. 10.—The regular meeting of St. Paul's Young People's Society was held in the church parlors on Monday evening under the leadership of the Missionary Division. The opening exercises were conducted by the President, Miss Alice Hulin, and Mr. Harry Hulin, Past President, then led the gathering in the Scripture lesson found in Romans 10 (1 to 10). At this point, Mr. Lloyd Rowland took charge of the remaining portion of the evening's proceedings. The first number on the program was a vocal duet by Helen Jeffery and Alice McKee, "Tell Me the Old, Old Story." Mr. Gene Bruce, the speaker of the evening was then introduced. Mr. Bruce for the past seven years had been associated with the Education Department of the United Church Mission Board and by virtue of his earnest address presented a vivid picture of the Problems faced in that branch of the work.



Mr. Bruce said, "is about one-sixth the size of the province of Ontario and in this small area is crowded the population which is nearly twice as large as the population of the entire province. The territory is systematically divided by the various denominations to avoid overlapping and the area coming under the jurisdiction of the United Church is about the size of Ontario, one and a half million souls. Beginning with the year 1925 the progress in the work would be greatly hampered by a reduction in the working staff made necessary by a reduction in the funds allowed for the work. At present there are numerous calls coming to the larger centres for Christian leaders but there is no one to send. A state of destitution of affairs will continue as the workers are withdrawn from the field. The plight of the natives in that section is a sorrowful one to be preceded, living in constant dread of bandit aids, they flee to the neighboring hills for safety and exist in rags and clothes made from waste paper. There no relief organizations and the work of helping these poor souls falls to the Christians. In spite of their many difficulties the natives face life courageously and many have devoted Christian life that would put many of us to shame." In closing his fine address, Mr. Bruce issued a challenge to the young people of Stirling to devote themselves to the cause of Christ and show our appreciation of His blessings upon us. The meeting of unusual interest was brought to a close with the Mispah Benediction.

St. Paul's W. M. S.

The ladies of St. Paul's W.M.S. met in the church parlors on Tuesday afternoon, October 8th. The meeting was opened by Mrs. Lawlor, president, with the singing of a hymn and all repeating the Lord's Prayer. The Secretary then presented her report and read an acknowledgment received from the Presbyterial Board. The minutes of the sale sent in during the month of September also time then led in prayer. Mrs. Lacey then gave a resume of the Dominion Board officers and their work during the ten years of union. The Scripture lesson for the afternoon (60th Psalm) was read by Mrs. White. The chapter from the study book was presented in an interesting fashion by Mrs. Jackman. Mrs. C. Macklin then offered a pleasing solo, "I Heard the Voice of Jesus Say." A short thanksgiving message was followed by a piano reverie entitled "A Silent Prayer," softly played by Mrs. Balmforth. Mrs. Hagerman presented a short report of the activities at the Sectional Rally held recently at Cannifton, giving an outline of the topics discussed by the various speakers, following the closing hymn the meeting was brought to a close with the Mispah Benediction.

Large Audience Hear Conservative Candidates

A large audience gathered in the Community Hall on Monday evening to listen with interest to speeches delivered by Mr. W. E. Tummon and Dr. A. T. Embury, candidates in the ridings of South Hastings and Hastings-Peterboro, respectively. Other prominent speakers on the platform were: Mr. J. S. Morton, who presided as chairman for the evening; Mr. R. J. Graham; Mr. Fleming of Tuncnik, and Mr. Geo. Reid of Belleville. Miss Dorothy

RISE IN BUSINESS

General business conditions in Canada according to the October monthly letter of the Alexander Hamilton Institute shows for August a healthy expansion of business. The index of trade activity in that month was 88.9 as compared with 77.2 in the previous month and it was 9.5 per cent above the index for August 1934. Four of the five components of the trade activity indexed increased with the largest gain shown by exports. Employment, imports and pig iron output also increased while car loadings registered a slight recession. Freight traffic, in line with the seasonal expansion, rose in September, the average for the first three weeks was 51,697 as against 43,553 in August and 51,258 a year ago. Building continued favorable in places, construction amounting to $23,837,000 in August against $18,549,000 in the previous month and $13,544,000 a year ago. With the exception of the logging and service industries the major groups in employment reported higher employment.

WHEN THE 'SMOKE' BACKFIRES

Last year nearly four and one-half billion cigarettes were smoked in Canada. This works out to an average of 1,250 cigarettes for every man and woman of smoking age.

The old adage, "Where there is smoke, there is fire", is aptly illustrated by the cigarette, for in 1934 nearly 13,000 fires were definitely traced to the careless handling of cigarettes, these fires involving a property loss of over $2,000,000. Smoking carelessness was responsible for more fires than any other single classification, three out of every ten fires having been attributed to this cause after investigation.

Canadians, in common with peoples of other countries are devoted to the little white rolls. The above statistics show this to be the case. Whether the cigarette is good for us or bad for us is not the point; we cannot blame the fires on Sir Walter Raleigh. The "smoke" is not at fault but the smoker—not the cigarette but the butts of the man behind it. Every time a cigarette is carelessly tossed aside there is a danger of fire. A mathematician will tell you that if all the cigarettes smoked in Canada last year were placed tightly end to end they would encircle the earth at the equator nearly eight times. This is a purely academic interest but the fire hazard of 197,000 miles of cigarettes is of very real interest to Mr. and Mrs. Canadian Citizen because it hits where it hurts—right in the pocket. Fire Prevention Week serves to call attention to the fire hazard of the carelessly thrown cigarette amongst other causes of fire loss. BE CAREFUL.

VIEWS ON PROSPECTS OF WAR

United States bankers back from Europe see little sign of the possibility of war in Europe, as a result of the struggle in Ethiopia. This view is given out by the leading financiers, public men, statesmen, diplomats and journalists. The bankers give the views as not their own but those of Europeans closest to the present situation.

Indications of the United States markets are that there are not seen any nearness of war. How far that attitude is held is indicated by the steadiness of the market after the first day's shock of war's outbreak.

Others feel that it will be possible to avoid war with united action in the League which is clearly the chief aim just now.

ZIP AND PURPOSE

General Evangeline Booth said on her trip to Toronto that she lives on the zip plan. "I zip here and I zip there . . . My doctor says my spirit keeps me up. But my greatest strength from knowing that the efforts of the Army are appreciated by those who come in touch with it."

She also said that her mother told her that she wanted the world to be a little better for her having come into it. "That has been my ever-increasing purpose."

Perhaps this latter itself explains the zip plan, which means a relentless, tireless activity which allows her no rest but does not weary her.

Doubly fortunate woman to have this energy and this purpose of faith!

With these there is no yearning for retirement. Now so many people spend their younger days thinking of the time when they can quit work and "take it easy". Gen. Booth has not tried that and there is no chance that she will. She knows that her work is her bodily and her spiritual life.

Now at seventy Miss Booth is still the most unwearied worker in the Army. She is a type of those fortunate few persons who manifest zeal and desire to achieve something despite their years.

The trouble with most persons is that they do not try the zip plan. Some of them may keep themselves "like a hen on a hot griddle" but that is not what the General means by "zip". There is nothing of disruption of equanimity in the zip system. She is at peace with herself except in so far as she wants to keep going.

General Evangeline Booth seems to be the living proof of the value of unselfish activity, and of length of days.

With strange mementoes of the lashing waves;
The brilliance of the slowly-rising moon
Lights secrets torn away from ocean caves.
A shell lies here like none that I have seen,
And here the slim, bright body of a fish;
Through water flashing, once it must have been
As winged-swift as love's most ardent wish.
Now all the Titan rage of elements
Has dwindled to a whisper and a song;
The breezes scarcely stir the leafy tents
Of camphor trees, the gay waves dance along.
Only the broken treasures on the sands
Show how the storm rent ocean with its hands.

HAMILTON IS A FINE NAME and many a person has been proud to bear the name—communities as well—note our Ambitious City under the Mountain. There are other Hamiltons and by curious coincidence, our subscription department reports, three renewal subscriptions came in from three Hamiltons in one day, as follows: Garnet Grills, Hamilton, Bermuda; Mrs. M. Gardner, Hamilton, Ontario; C. A. Crawford, Hamilton, Montana. It is a coincidence, of course, but nothing to be wondered at, very much, for the sons and daughters of the Bay of Quinte district must have the Great Family Journal with them wherever they are—just a little bit of the old home coming into everyday life to help sweeten existence and tint with a silver lining that ever hovering cloud of nostalgia.

MOST OF THE LOCAL HOTELS HAD TO HANG OUT THE STANDING ROOM ONLY SIGN early this week. The large number of delegates lay and clergy to the Anglican Synod, in addition to many commercial travellers and others seeking accommodation made it difficult at times to get a whole room and bed to one's self at the hotels, not to mention private bath. However, Belleville with its excellent hotel accommodation soon met the extra demand and all were eventually made comfortable, and no one had to sleep on the firescape.

MEMBER OF SIDELIGHT FAMILY wants to know something about "The Man They Could Not Hang" whether true or legend. It has been said in the land during the past fifty years can tell the story of John Lee. He was convicted on a charge of murdering the lady he worked for, being a man-servant. There were a number of suspicious circumstances connected with the case pointing to Lee, and the circumstantial evidence was strong. He was sentenced to be hung. The lever was thrown but the trap refused to budge more than an inch. He was taken back to his cell while a carpenter made the trap so that it would drop when the lever was thrown. Tests were made and the trap worked perfectly. John Lee was placed on the trap the second time, the black cap pulled down over his head, and the procedure resumed. The lever was thrown again, and again it stuck, giving little more than an inch. Again was John Lee taken back to his cell while the gaol authorities worked feverishly over the balky trap. It was made looser and tests made again— Again the procession formed and marched to the scaffold, and despite all the work done on the trap it refused to work for the third time, and John Lee was taken back to his cell and told that English law would not permit him to be hung after three abortive attempts. He was imprisoned for life, but released after 23 years penal servitude, and has since resided in Australia. It is said that many years after the crime was committed a woman confessed that she alone was guilty and that John Lee was innocent. The murder was committed November 14, 1884, at Babbacombe, near Torquay, England, when John Lee was twenty years of age.

"Look 'ere, young shaver," said the hungry tramp standing in a threatening attitude just inside the door, "if you don't tell me where yer father keeps 'is money I'll shake yer tet'h bits, see."

Little Bill edged further along the passage. "You needn't trouble to do that," he said, "You'll find all father's money in an old waistcoat in the kitchen."

A few minutes later a battered tramp was thrown through the kitchen window on to the pavement outside.

"That kid never said a bloomin' word" he said, rubbing the back of his head ruefully, "about 'is old man being inside that there waistcoat."

AT THE BELLE

"Two For Tonight"
Bing Crosby at his Best in Clever Fun and Romance Film

A delightfully refreshing bit of romantic screen entertainment, "Two For Tonight," is on display at the Belle Tonight and Friday matinee and evening with that grand crooner of love songs, the incomparable Bing Crosby in the top role, leading the fun, music and romance in his latest and most exhilarating comedy.

Provided with a set of top notch hit tunes, a gay piece of business for a plot and an admirable supporting cast, the new Tonight stars high, wide and handsome above ordinary screen entertainment, Crosby is at his best medium as a singer and light comedian. Aiding him considerably in his monkeyshines is lovely Joan Bennett, the inevitable Mischa and uncomprehending Mary Boland, this ensemble finding man, Lynne Overman, that grand character comedian Ernest Cossar, Jamboree Bailey stand-bye, as soon as he finished his role in "Accent on Youth" opposite Sylvia Sidney at the Belle, he was again pressed into service for part of the lead letter in "Two For Tonight", and the beauteous Thelma Todd, not to mention Akim Tamiroff, Douglas Powley, Maurice Cass and Charles Lane.

The story is all about an ambitious young reporter who is undertaken for a playwright. Mary Boland and her three sons, each by a separate husband, and all musically inclined, are dispossessed from their home. The three boys decide the only way they can sell their song is to hide themselves in the piano that crashes twenty feet away, injuring Bing.

While recuperating in the hospital Bing learns that his mother, Miss Boland, has written the plot of the piano descending incident, damages because her son has not been able to find in the play's plot turns out to be Miss Bennett, secretary to a noted theatrical producer, Lynne Overman. Bing arranges an interview for Bing, who, in his role as cupid, has managed to him, convince Overman he has a great idea for a play, and ordering him to write it for his star, and sweetheart, Thelma Todd. Overman of Miss Todd is signed Europe.

Many uproarious situations follow as Bing runs out of material for his first act. He is advised by Overman's butler, Ernest Cossar, A former stage impresario to go to Europe and get ideas. Hindered the fact that Miss Bennett has fallen in love with Bing and escorts Miss Todd to a night club in search of romance and adventure. He becomes involved in a seltzer water, syphon squirting battle royal in the restaurant and, eventually lands him in jail where he continues writing the second act to Miss Bennett behind bars.

More amusing complications develop when Overman, suddenly returning from Europe, finds Miss Todd in Bing's room, rehearsing a love scene. A romantic, merry mixup ensues as does the arrival of Crosby, Overman and Miss Boland garnish most of the laughs, of which there are many.

Expertly, skilfully directed by Frank Tuttle, Jack Cardiff and Harry Revel wrote the following hit tunes for Crosby, "From the Top of Your Head" to the Tip of Your Toes", "Without a Word of Warning", "Love in Bloom", "Takes Two to Make a Bargain", and "I Wish I Were Aladdin".

comedy of the picture are Helen Twelvetrees (to emerge with an entirely new personality), Lucian Littlefield, Eddie Brophy, Warren Hymer and Andrew Astor.

The story presents Miss Pitts as a small town merchant of Little field, owner of the Bon Ton Lunch Room in Palmville and hater of the braves woman in America's when she unwittingly foils a bank robbery. Taken on a lecture tour by O'Connell, a press agent and alleged bank Miss Twelvetrees, his fiance, Miss Pitts is finally kidnapped and comes in direct contact with the bandits whose ability not work she interrupted in the small town bank. The startling and hilarious climax is too utterly delicous to be revealed

The comedy has been ably directed by William Nigh, who has kept the action moving at a brisk pace and contributed many bits of humorous by-plays. The picture throughout has been scrupulously mounted and in every way represents the screen at its best.

Besides this excellent comedy the management offers an unusually strong program of short subjects including a musical revue containing many comedians with an attractive personality, Pat Harmes; a real wherein we see our movie favorites at home and during the filming of a picture, there is also the Fox Newsreel that brings the latest events of world-wide importance.

For those who like lots of action and quick-trigger gunplay the Capitol will present on Saturday only, a Ken Maynard feature entitled, "Between Fighting Men" this story, by maintains of the West is complete with red-blooded action and daring horsemanship.

For the latest sporting holiday, Thursday, October 24th, the Capitol has arranged a special stage band noted for its rhythmic syncopation and harmony. Advance reports acclaim it as entertaining as the recent Henry Santrey Revue recently shown at the Capitol.

If in doubt, play safe. Vote Cameron. ADVT.

Many a Man
Has escaped a nervous breakdown

It is now becoming generally known,
By word of mouth from one person to another,
That scores of nervous, worried business men
Attribute their escape from nervous collapse
To the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.
Business cares and worries of recent years
Have made men old before their time.
Almost daily you read of prominent men dropping out
In the very prime of life.
Others have survived, because they learned in time
Of a way to restore nerve force to the body.
As a result weak, halting vital organs
Have again assumed their natural functions.
Rest and sleep have become possible,
And mind and body have been restored to norma.
If you find yourself slipping
Ask your friends about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.
In almost every family there is some one
Who has profited by use of this modern restorative.

Picton and District

Picton, Oct. 10—(Of regular monthly meeting of the Home and School Club was held in the Sunset Room of the United Church at three-thirty on Monday afternoon, October 7th, with a record attendance of over two hundred members and guests present. The president, Mrs. Ken. Ward occupied the chair. Large baskets and jars of beautiful fall vegetables decorated the platform. The meeting opened with "O Canada" and the Lord's Prayer in unison, followed by the minutes of the last meeting, read by the secretary Mrs. D. Fournie. Following the roll call, taken by the reporter, Mrs. Knapman, twenty-five new members joined the society, bringing the membership up to over one hundred.

Community singing of "My Wild Irish Rose" and "Long, Long Ago" was led by Mrs. Walton, with Mr. Walden at the piano. Mrs. Walden then gave a much enjoyed piano solo. Miss Clara Hill was then called to the platform, where an address was read to her by Mrs. Knapman, expressing the appreciation of the members of the club for the great work she has accomplishing in her Domestic Science Class, and asking her to accept, on behalf of the Club, a kitchen cabinet, to form part of the equipment of the new wing of the Mary St. School, with the hope that it might facilitate the work of her class. Completely taken by surprise Miss Hill made a gracious reply, thanking the club for the beautiful and needed gift. Rats, which had sometimes rifled supplies in the past, would have no chance now, said Miss Hill.

A chorus, sung in parts, "A Hunting We Will Go", by this year's group of Public School girls, Miss Hill's room was exceptionally well given.

Mrs. R. S. McLaughlin of Oshawa, President of the Ontario Federation of Home and School Associations, then addressed the club most inspiringly. She told the members—

"To travel is to be educated. I have travelled one hundred miles today to visit your club with a friend. We visited the Sand Banks on our way, and received education. What we are all needing for a friendly community interest. I am sure I shall always be happy to have come to Picton. Your club has not been organized for a great length of time, but that can be remedied as the years go by. The years add to our experience and our education. I like to feel that your club was organized, because a need was felt for the parents to co-operate with the teachers in the study or what is meant by education today. This is a motor age, a transportation age, an electric age. We have to find time for many things than our grandparents did but we must always take time to be neighbourly, friendly, and take part in community life. We must learn to know our children, and how our children are being trained to become worthy citizens. The graciousness of any country depends on its people.

Our leaders have spent years in preparation for their work and they are doing very good work, but people must not leave all to the teachers. We must know what the teachers are trying to do and cooperate with them.

In the provincial organization of our club there are a number of departments—"Visiting Committee", "Memorial Library", "Secondary Schools' Organization and Expansion", "League of Nations", "Home Economics", "Better Speech" etc. Each club must work for what they really want—some clubs are small, others large groups and study parliamentary procedure or the League of Nations. Others work for better equipment, or lighting or libraries for their schools, or for hot lunches for school children. There must be a desire to get together, based on a need for the development of the child. In Ontario we list our aims in health, training, housing, management, care of water, value of food, value of rest, etc. Mothers and fathers are the source of supply, but we need real training in our elementary and secondary schools.

We have to spread knowledge in the means of combatting simple diseases and how to secure health against contagious diseases. 80 per cent of the number in our jails and mental hospitals today are there because of poor training in youth, either in health or moral training, or because of lack of parental care of the mothers. In our Collegiate there is found every year an examination. This can be accomplished without examination also, if members of communities put their heads together.

We should know how our schools are headed and if our children are suitably classified. A boy may say find boys dressed in woollen underwear in the streets, and girls in short-sleeved cotton dresses with little underneath. I have uniform training, or lack of training of personal

GALT TERRIERS EVEN SERIES ON KINGSTON PONIES

Inability to Hit Is The Finishes Cause of Defeat

SCORE IS 5-4

Jamieson Relieved in The Seventh, Bud Clancy Going in

Kingston, Oct. 15—(CP)—Galt Terriers evened the series at 2 to 2 by thumping at home, tied up the Canadian Senior Baseball Association championship here Wednesday when they defeated Kingston Frontes 5 to 4 in the second game before a crowd of many thousands.

Unable to hit the Ponies, in person with their own inability to hit in like manner and their poor base-running, Galt, the pennant title-Terriers rallied twice in the five innings they batted and won by Quinn and a three-bagger by R. Reichel. They took another run in the fourth on two by Arnold and a scratch hits by Hickey. In the fifth they landed their final two runs on singles by Weaver and R. Reichel and a three-base blow by Reichel.

The Ponies made short work of Reichel when they came to him from the mound in the second without a hit. A streak of wildness allowed three men to walk, and Murphy then went in the box. An infield out scored one run in the fifth but the Ponies scored their second run on McQuade's long drive behind second base, and it the sixth they bunched three hits by Quinn, Oyer and Jamieson for a single, a double and a triple, to land their last two runs.

Murphy was hit freely throughout, but for the most part Ponies were unable to come through in the clutches. They left nine men stranded on the bases.

Jamieson pitched a good enough ball to win, and would have scored a victory had not Bud Clancy been sent in to the mound to start the seventh and retired nine men in order.

The place for three-bagger hitting game was not fixed today. There is, (regardless,) will be a playoff at Petertboro on Saturday.

THE NEW LAYDEN — By Jack Sords

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

Retro ringside seats were put into place in the Belleville Arena, today in preparation for the increased crowd that is expected to attend tonight's wrestling bouts. Local fans will be on hand en masse hoping to see Howard Anderson, packer of Cobourg, the pugnacious Rama Reserve Indian, in a sound thrashing at the hands of Jack Kogut, the modern Hercules grappler, in the main bout. The semi-final scrap brings together two new grapplers, in a local ring, when Jack Hoyle of the ex-Danish wrestler, meets Howard Martin, of Detroit. The fact that local fans are keenly interested in, however, is the opening scrap of the evening, and the first play-off series is rather poor policy to take things for granted, but it is safe in assuming Bud Clancy will be called and deciding game and is about the difference between victory and defeat for the Pony cause. Clancy is just about an answer ball team in himself and should be good for the big job.

The Amateur Athletic Union of Canada's rates for reinstating professionals are considered by many. It costs an ex-pro $5 for a card permitting him to take some part in amateur sport. An ex-pro, who wants a non-competing amateur card, has to pay $10.

HANK GREENBURG FRACTURES WRIST

Placed in Cast After X-ray Plates Reveal Break

Detroit, Oct. 10—(AP)—Hank Greenberg, big first baseman of the world champion Detroit Tigers, rested today at the delay of his vacation caused by a fractured wrist.

Hitting his left wrist, fractured a week ago in the second game of the series with the Chicago Cubs.

The third set of X-rays of the wrist disclosed the fracture last night. Previous photographs, made after Greenberg's collision with catcher Gabby Hartnett of the Cubs in the seventh inning, had not disclosed the minute crack. Dr. William E. Keane, Tiger physician, said.

Dr. Keane said the injury was not serious and the wrist would be "as good as new" after six weeks of treatment. He said Hank has the courage of the detroit first sacker who played with bandages on baseball after incurring the painful injury.

SUPREMACY OF McGILL MAY END

Jim Worrell, Chief Point Maker Now With Toronto

Toronto, Oct. 10—(CP)—McGill supremacy in intercollegiate track and field championships may end since 1930, may be ended later this month by one of Toronto's former athletes—Jim Worrell—who came to University of Toronto this year after graduating from Queen's College and enrolled in the Ontario College of Education.

Worrell, star of Canada's 1934 British Empire games team, captured five events in the U. of T. interfaculty track and field meet yesterday and was high point man of the day. His performance gained for him the individual championship of the meet with an aggregate of 19 1-3 seconds, revealing the old time star is not excelled in 1936 by 4-5 of a second. The Queen's athlete won by topping the timbers in 25 5-10 seconds, shaving 3-10 from the previous mark set in 1931.

The Rowell Memorial Trophy, inter-faculty championship award was won by University College with 26 points to 24 for Trinity.

Although big Worrell, the tallest track and field athlete in Canada, London and McMaster University, Hamilton, will definitely place teams in the meet which will be run off next three. There is a possibility Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph and Royal Military College at Kingston may also enter athletes.

The history of the meet as a triangular competition between McGill, Trinity and McGill dates back to 1899.

TWO-YEAR-OLDS OUT ON SATURDAY

Contest $100,000 Futurity at 6 1-2 Furlongs at Belmont

By ORLO ROBERTSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
New York, Oct. 10—(AP)—Minus the fanfare, that attends the running of title three-year-old classics but far surpassing them in monetary value, the $100,000 futurity will have its 46th running at Belmont Park Saturday with a score or more of the leading two-year-olds slated to debate the issue over the 6 furlongs of the Widener straightaway.

Run a month later than in past year, the big event—known as—also only by the Santa Anita handicap should furnish a line on the 1936 Kentucky Derby candidates as it has always managed to futurity winner has ever gone on to win the Churchill Downs stake. To the winner will go the honor of being acclaimed the best two-year-old colt, juvenile of the year, and probably the champion sprinter of the division.

Until a few days ago C. V. Whitney's Red Rain was thought to have the race tied up and ready for delivery. The son of Pennant which took the stake in 1931, when it was run a Saratoga, had won the Hopeful and Saratoga Special in easy only once in four starts. He had been slow getting away from the barrier but was running over his rivals at the finish, having come from last place to take the hopeful. But two days ago the big chestnut colt was beaten badly over the muddy course he will battle for the big prize Saturday. He was not even in the money as R. D. Schaffer's Caldamon, the colt that ran a dead heat with Red Rain in the Saratoga special, stopped off three-quarters of a mile in the stinking time of 1.10 4-5.

BENNETT OFFERS PLAN TO UNITE ALL FOR CANADA

"Mr. King talks about bringing new capital into Canada." declared Mr. Bennett, a grim expression replacing the smile with which he had partied in Bruce a moment before. "Ontario has repudiated its contracts and denied indebtedness the right of appeal to the courts. Does Mr. King approve of that? Let him answer me tomorrow night. Don't go up and down the country, Mr. King, talking about what you will do if you get into office, which you won't. Tell the people of Canada whether or not you favor a repudiation of a contract and a denial of the right of appeal to the courts. Tell whether or not you deny people the right of recourse to the courts. You'll never get a dollar of capital to come into this country if you repudiate contracts. He vigorously attacked the old "don't provoke the U.S." attitude of the Liberal party, declaring that that had not been for the sakes of the Conservative, Government in 1926, Canadian industry and commerce would have been placed entirely at the mercy of the United States.

He warned that a vote for an anti-Government candidate on Monday next would be a vote to kill the Ontario gas tax.

"What are Mr. King's policies?" he queried. "Well, I haven't read the Star to-night, so I don't know (laughter). But in one speech Mr. King said the Bank of Canada should be nationalized.

"Hear, hear," came a voice.

"There, there," came Mr. Bennett's soothing rejoinder. "Hush, baby, don't you cry, you'll be an angel by and by," he said to another heckler who screamed something unintelligible to the audience.

"Can you afford to have a political baby?" asked the Prime Minister. "You witnessed the attacks made by your Premier on the Bank of Canada. Do you want that kind of thing to happen?

Introduced by Massey

Mr. Bennett was presented to the audience by Dr. Gordon Massey, Conservative organizer for Ontario.

Premier Bennett said that after touring throughout the Dominion and meeting thousands of you men from the Maritimes to Vancouver, he was heartened, he said, to come to Toronto and hear cheers in its midst know "you are thinking of the welfare and well being of your country."

"I am not here to discuss with you any provincial or local issues, nor to discuss who may be premier of the various provinces, if they were a Conservative," Mr. Bennett said. "I thought at the time of the evident reference to the Liberal campaign since on its occupancy of Liberal seats at eight provincial premierships. "I am here to give an account to you of the Government's stewardship and look to our prospects for the future.

"When you go to cast your vote on Monday next, you will be voting not for local or provincial issues, but on issues affecting all of Canada. Your decision will affect not only your own interests, but the interests of your fellow men and women in Alberta and British Columbia and other parts of this Dominion.

No Personalities

"So I say I am here to discuss issues, not persons. In matters political I am not, shall I say, prolific. I am here to discuss our common problems and difficulties, and the problems of all parts and individuals in my native land, Canada.

The premier recalled that in June, 1930, at Winnipeg, he had declared that a just and fair tariff protection aimed at the well-being of Canadians, and the exploitation of natural resources and industrial, and production of consumers from exploitation.

"And now our enemies complain because I have been true to what I declared, and a burst of cheering, "declared, and a burst of cheering, "declared, and a burst of cheering, with an adverse trade balance, we called Parliament together and set up tariff barriers to lessen the volume of goods we bought from abroad. Our action in doing this, however, was a roar of applause, and Mr. Bennett continued his denunciation.

Claiming that he was presenting to the people of Canada a true record, not a prospectus, Mr. Bennett reviewed the tariff policies of the Conservative parties with the dictum that "foreign countries respect you as to the extent you respect yourself."

laughingly. "You will never see a combination like that anywhere else."

If he was a dictator, he remarked, he had failed to live up to the usual standard set by real dictators.

"Dictators don't hold elections, get comfortable majorities in parliament," he observed. "In the nine years from 1921 to 1930, my friend Mr. King never had a clear Liberal majority in the House. When he talks of dictators, he seems to have forgotten Mr. Woodsworth and his friends, whose support he had to get to stay in office. In those nine years, there was a dictator, all right, and it was Mr. King."

"It's no good merely to cheer," warned the Prime Minister. "Go to clap your hands. A vote against the Government candidate in any constituency in this city or across Canada is a vote against the Ontario agreement. King has issued his challenge. It is for you to decide.

"Today we enjoy a preference in the markets of the British Empire, and would we be foolish to march out? Shall we continue to march on? Shall we expand our trade with Great Britain—a trade that has doubled itself in the last two years?"

"We will," came a chorus of cries.

"Then get busy," challenged Mr. Bennett. "When you go to the ballot box next Monday, see that you are right—vote for the Government candidate."

No Dodging Issue

A long-drawn "We will" broken by a single dissident "No," was the answer to the big crowd.

"There's no other way about it," said Mr. Bennett. "You can't dodge the issue. What are you going to do?"

"Vote Bennett!" the crowd roared.

Was it fair, that in the dying moments of the campaign, Mr. Bennett asked, the Liberal party should reverse its stand on the agreements, and now attack them? Was it fair that King and his followers were no longer taking signal them, he declared, that any Liberal present explain the altered situation? Did the Liberals not know what his party's platform was?

"We do declared, "nobody knows the Liberal platform. It changes from day to day. Nobody knows it until the evening papers come out."

Trade Bargaining

At some length the Prime Minister depreciated the House of Commons attitude of Mr. King in respect of trade agreements. He had, he said, made a bargain. Mr. King's suggestion as to the conference at Washington, followed and Mr. Bennett, was for Canada to have unrestricted tariff in the expectation that the other countries concerned would follow suit.

"How don't laugh," the Prime Minister asked. "What is the use of that although his tenure of office—from 1921 to 1930—and did not convert our tariff suit? They did not. My friends, I am a business man. I have been in charge of my friends, not a bad gardener either, for 30 years. I do not put a shell on the other fellows. Well, the first time it was ever suggested that I was a bargainer was by a Canadian. I didn't apologize then, and I don't apologize now. I say to Canadians, Equal opportunity, but no preference over other people."

Mr. Bennett discussed the agreements reached with Australia of which he claimed, immense benefits in sight had accrued to the farmers and which had accrued to the farmers of Canada, and the Empire at large. He stressed the operation of the Farmers Creditors Arrangement Act, whereby farmers were relieved of unduly administering this Act had written off, through compromise arrangements, some $25,000,000 of indebtedness, and had saved farmers of twenty millions an annual charge of $4,000,000.

Such success had been attained with the scheme, said Mr. Bennett, that his government proposed to extend it to the urban communities.

No injury resulted from it to either mortgagee or mortgagor, it was claimed.

Why was it, asked Mr. Bennett, his increased marketing powers had not with approval from coast to coast, because he answered, "you're a step forward."

"To-day," he added, "I saw a sign reading, 'Vote Liberal and get action.' What kind of action, I'd like to know?"

"Free action" some wit responded—and the crowd roared with laughter.

The Prime Minister asked his audience to compare prices today in the United tales with prices in Canada—and he said he, on some select article like nux vomica, which Liberal speakers delighted to talk about, but which stays at cents like eggs and butter, and meat, etc. He wondered when Mrs. Thornton could have got the list of articles she had in her budget speech at the Gardens Liberal rally on Tuesday night, and how many hours she have caused her a lot of trouble to get out. In sarcastic vein he referred to Life Buoy Soap and Gold Dust—all products of the Dunning budget he said, which Mrs. Thornton had singled from her list as "articles more than in [illegible] Canada."

The same magnificent [illegible] he said, [illegible] "but she neglected to tell you many [illegible] Canadians in the farm we got ten matches last year."

LAST VICTIM TODAY

Driving Without Licence Believed Spark For Killings

Calgary, Oct. 9 (CP)— Death struck a seventh time today in the wake of murder and gunplay and added from the law John Kalmakoff, 32, last survivor of a Doukhobor trio declared by police to be responsible for the slaying of four policemen in gun fights.

The swiftly moving scenes of violence ended when Kalmakoff, shot in the stomach by game warden Wilfrid Welsh of Banff, died in the hospital at the summer resort early today after his two companions, Peter Popoff, 31, and Joseph Podmikoff, 32, were slain.

The Doukhobor trio from Arran, Sask., were said to have slain Constable A. G. Shaw, R.C.M.P., Swan River, Man., and Municipal Constable William Wainwright of Bentley, Man., on Saturday near the Manitoba-Saskatchewan Boundary 200 miles northwest of Winnipeg.

Liberal Workers Study Election Act

Liberal party workers of Samson, Ketchenon and Foster Wards gathered at the Liberal club rooms on First street last evening at a meeting devoted mainly to a study of the Election Act and conduct of voters at the various polls during federal election day. Inside and outside scrutineers of these various wards who have already been appointed were given special detailed instructions regarding amendments to the present Act. Two scrutineers, one inside and one outside will be posted at each ballot box, it was stated. The meeting was presided over by Col. Kierdon, with Mr. Fred Temple and Mr. Joseph Goyer acting as chairmen. During the evening Mr. Chas. Cameron, local Liberal candidate, assisted by Mr. F. C. Kiwanis Carnival

The Kiwanis Carnival has always been looked forward to every year by the general public. There was considerable disappointment last fall when the Club decided not to hold it. Here is your chance again to show the Kiwanis that you are behind their efforts by attending the Karnival. "Bingo" the most popular game will be bigger and better than ever before. Five dollars and arrange to spend three delightfully happy nights at the Arena—Patsy Davison, chairman—"Bingo".

For the past twelve years the Kiwanis Club of Belleville has been trying to furnish entertainment to please the Public and anything that the Club has advertised itself as backing has proved a guaranteed attraction.

Knowing the number of calls that we would have to meet this year, the Club started out early in the Spring to talk over the different ways of raising money to carry on our charity and welfare work. About the first of June the club decided to put on this grand Karnival and Bo Peep and I do not hesitate when I state that the prizes and the show that we are giving will be among the biggest values ever offered.

We have been asked many questions regarding our campaign and I will try to give you some of the highlights. About June 1st the committee in charge began to secure a mailing list of all prospective buyers and we started mailing out about July 2nd. We have covered all the largest cities in Canada and I might state right here that the encouraging letters and the cooperation that we have received from the general public has been very gratifying and has helped us to carry on this very worthy cause.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the Public in general for their very kind co-operation and also the local Postmaster and his staff for the courtesy that they have extended to us in spite of the extra work that we have given them.

We are employing eight Belleville young ladies and their duties at first were to mail out the books of tickets. At the present time they are assisting all correspondence, sending out receipts to the sellers and entering every return in our ledger as our system shows the day and date that each return is made.

I would like to point out at this time that all money raised in this line of work goes to a separate account and is used for this purpose only. None of this money goes in the keeping up of our Club as our yearly dues look after this.

My final words are: Let us all get behind our worthy President, Mr. G. C. Saragar, and make this one of the biggest events that Kiwanis has ever put on.

George A. Lee
Campaign Manager.

Stirling and District

Stirling—The River Valley Women's Institute held the regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Fred Pitcher, when the roll call was opened with the singing of the Institute ode and repeating of the Lord's Prayer in unison. The secretary gave the report of the directors' meeting and Mrs. Clifford Lishman then offered a prayer for peace. The roll call was responded to by the use of names of Canadian industries and the places in which they were carried on. With the business portion of the meeting completed, the President, Mrs. Hoag, pursued the remaining part of the program over to Mrs. Alex Bush. An interesting feature of the program was an illustrated treatise on the making of Shredded Wheat given in a fine manner by Mrs. Roy Bush, the topic for the afternoon was very ably dealt with by Mrs. Donald Donahue, dealing at length with a large number of Canadian industries. Following this everyone present enjoyed a social community singing under the direction of Mrs. Clarence Chard. Miss Fanny Lanning then offered a very pleasing solo. Mrs. Cliff Lishman, Trenton, Mrs. Geo. Meaman presented a fine address on "Current Events." An instrumental duet was given by Mrs. Clarence Chard was greatly enjoyed by the meeting. The final number on the program was an interesting contest on Canadian Authoresses arranged by Mrs. Alex Bush and the meeting closed with the National Anthem. A dainty lunch was served by the hostess, Mrs. Pitcher, during the social period which followed. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Meaman for her address, responded stirringly and gave all present an invitation to the next W.I. meeting.

Young People's Guild Meeting

The first regular meeting of St. Andrew's Young People's Society for the fall season was held in the Sunday School room on Monday evening with a large number of members present. The meeting was opened with the usual song service with Rev. J. A. Kothby at the piano. The first part of the meeting was devoted largely to organization work and the following officers were elected to direct the activities for the coming year. Honorary President, Rev. J. A. Kothby; President, Mr. James Johnston; Vice-President, Miss May Johnston; Secretary, Miss Margaret Rosebush; Treasurer, Mr. Roy Joby; Press Secretary, Miss Inez Reid. At the conclusion of the business portion of the meeting the topic of the evening was presented by the President. The topic, "Knowing Belleville" was divided into three sections, with James Johnson, May Johnston, and Helen Rose as leaders giving five addresses dealing with them in different ways.

The feature of the evening was the presentation of a short play by the Young Guild entitled "Mrs. Reed." This was a very amusing comedy with a moral and was rendered in a very fine manner by three ladies and two gentlemen. In the opening scene four girls, Jean Dafoe, Doris Andrews, Lillian Matthews, and Dorothy Mumford were discovered discussing their particular line in connection with the Foreign Missionary Society. They finally became totally disinterested and decided to have a party and other children entered taking the parts of kitchen utensils that apparently come to life. It was a very interesting, amusing and very well staged. Other members of the cast were: Doris Rodgers, Donald Jamieson, Jean Dafoe, Bobbie Pollock, Glen Eggleton, Madeline McGee, Marion Fitchett, Mary Pollock and Shirley Montgomery. This meeting of unusual interest was brought to a close with the repeating of the Benediction.

CARRYING PLACE

Carrying Place—With the coming of the early frosts farmers are busy harvesting potatoes and buckwheat. Every indication is that there will be a most-record price for potatoes and most of the farmers hereabouts are holding their crop hoping for better prices still. Those unlucky people who have to buy are wondering just when, if ever, the price will soar. Autumn tints are beginning to change the hue of the woods, but as yet the colours are pale pastel shades, and have not deepened. Two service will soon have left the gardens ready for the final cleanup and a few growers report that their apple crop has been slightly touched.

Early this week Stuart Hoovy of Trenton, aged 78, made up his mind to cover the two thousand miles in his bicycle before snow comes again. With the aid of a cyclometer he has been pleasantly pedalling and calculating until now his total is nearly completed. Only twenty miles more" he exclaimed pleasantly as he stopped into the local post office a few days ago, "twenty miles more and I will have my two thousand miles ridden." Mr. Hoovy has been an ardent cyclist for upwards of sixty years and still spends a great deal of time on his bicycle. His trips have not been long ones his rainbow have been confined to the Trenton-Belleville-Picton area. Straight and twrie, Mr. Hoovy informed that there is no country in the world to compare with cycling.

Following couples themselves brides recently when Miss Edith Montgomery of Colborne was wedded to William Hazlebert and Miss Jean Young of Consecon became the wife of Arthur Bevins, Miss Hamilton-Montgomery wedding took place at Colborne on the last Friday of September, Rev. Mr. Robertson of that place officiating. Following the ceremony the couple left for a motor trip to Peterboro and other points north. Both Mr. and Mrs. Bevins are well and Mrs. Bevins are occupying parts of the home owned by Mrs. O. Clark.

A jolly Charivari was staged around the home of the newlyweds on Wednesday evening last when some forty local lads gathered to make the night hideous with sound. Shotguns were fired, tin pails and scratches and yells echoed through the air as the serenaders surrounded the house. Attempts by the bridegroom to get "Bill" Hazlebert to stop were unavailing however. One excited young man carrying a shotgun became confused with the affair that he shot quite accidentally, completely through the eaves at one end of the residence.

Dr. E. A. McQuade, M.O.H., for Murray Township, visited the local school on Wednesday afternoon last making the first annual visit here. In an address to the pupils of the two rooms Dr. McQuade pointed out the dangers of smallpox, diphtheria, pox and announced that in order to be prepared he proposed to vaccinate free of charge all children under six months of age in the township. Later in the afternoon he vaccinated against scarlet fever is to be begun, thus making a start in the toward perfect health conditions. Dr. McQuade expressed his pleasure with the success of the "Dick" treatment for diphtheria carried out two years ago this autumn. "It is now two and three years since a placard has been placed on any house in Murray Township with diphtheria," said he, "and this is a record of which we may well be proud." The end of the work being carried on in adjacent counties and overwhelming about similar lines and expressed a hope that every family would avail themselves of the service offered. Before leaving he complimented the boys and girls on their splendid and decorative appearance of their school-rooms.

Dave hunters at Wellers Bay and on other local waters reported fair success last week, but with the cool temperatures of the season the birds have become more wary and are more difficult to get. The George Hardyn, Junior and Senior, together with a party of friends enjoyed several days last week at "Sustamere Place", the Hardyn hunting lodge.

A severe wind storm blew all last Friday night and much of the following day, causing travel and considerable work unpleasant. No damage of any magnitude was done however, a tree or two being blown down. A large maple on the Hardy place fell near the house, but fortunately every place had its quota of broken branches lying about.

A jolly dance was presented in St. John's Parish Hall on Friday evening last by those two popular and successful young sponsors, Stuart Chase and Percy Baker. In spite of the low admission charged this dance not only paid for itself, orchestra, hall-rent, refreshments, but left each of the organizers with a nice profit besides. These young men have presented several such dances in the hall during the past season and have met with almost unfailing success.

Inspector A. A. Martin of Brighton paid a visit to the school here on Tuesday afternoon of last week. In the morning of the same day he visited S. S. No. 4 Murray, the Mount Carmel School.

Election rallies and speeches by radio, newspapers, leaflets, propaganda and a few other means are reaching the eyes and ears of Canadians in this month of the election every day. A Liberal rally was held in the Parish Hall on Thursday evening last with a fair crowd in attendance, T. G. Bowerman, M. P. for Prince Edward was not present, and a number of local voters not just satisfied that the new Liberal star in the firmament the field lost an opportunity of speaking their opinions to Mr. Bowerman who was an ardent supporter of the Mass. Conservative supporters had their innings one evening some days previous when they met in the same hall. A sufficient force has been mustered to all voters telling where the polls are open, when the votes are to be cast. Meanwhile the more important political figures in the land are taking to the air, the latest and last-minute appeals to constituents. Mr. R. B. Bennett is now spending several week in Trenton as a guest of her sister Mrs. Don Chase.

A fine time was had at O. G. Mogres have recently had their premises electrically wired, installing the extension of the local Hydro line from the Wellers Bay corner on to Centreville corner. Centreville to Dymond has also had his home and store wired and the extension is expected to take place very soon.

A jolly party motored last Saturday night to Mount Carmel school on Wednesday afternoon of last week to witness the annual match game between the boys' and girls' teams. The girls defeated. However the local lads claim that the victory was due to the fact that they defeated their ancient rivals, and this fall have played only football. They will get "even" on a softball practice. A return tilt on the diamond will be staged soon.

Although provincial police investigated the entering of the local Conservative headquarters last week and pushing the matter, one which has been both painful and costly to them, is apparently no nearer solution. The sale of the housekeeper were of such a nature as to place this almost in the realm contempt. It is surely to be hoped that the community will see no repetition of the crime.

At a meeting of the local school board on Thursday last it was decided that music would henceforward be taught in the local school with a qualified music teacher paying regular visits to the classrooms. Nearly every other school in the township has been receiving this teaching for several years, and it is on the urging of Inspector Martin that this addition is made to the local curriculum. Unless the entire cost is covered by government grant.

With the ending of the world series baseball radios are being given a slight rest. Afternoon audiences were loud in their praise of Ty Tyson, the baseball player who handled the announcing.

Digging and storing of potatoes from the same piece of land all in one season, especially in such a season as 1935 when the yield of which few gardeners can boast; but Jones of Wellers Bay, who specializes in tubers, shows a second harvest of tubers that is fine indeed. Consistant work and careful attention are needed to produce these excellent results, but he is naturally proud of his success in a locality where the soil is not kind to the beauty and excellence of his gardens and fields.

SINISTER SHADOW

by JOHN GOODWIN

"When you came along that path, swaying and limping a bit, you looked lame. Naturally, you did not want it was natural to you. You'd have seen a trap for Barber that only a miracle could save him from paying the full penalty. . . . You wouldn't have a more satisfying revenge on him—and on me. An accusation for murder. It's the brand of honor native to you, Bannister. I think only a devil could laugh at a thing like that."

"At the time—good you reminded me—I was not aware that my hands had needed it. You looked at your watch by the light of the torch; time enough to catch the local train at Kirby Junction. One thing that I forgot to say was the faked Coote diamond; it was useless now, I'm inclined to think, whether you'd meant to fool Barber with it, or just didn't care to leave it behind you at the house. But it was in your pocket and had to be got rid of—a safe thing to do, deep. You threw it in the pond. You know, of course, that it's been recovered.

"You travelled by the night train from Kirby to Hull! There was no objection to the police tracing Barber as far as that; indeed, it was to the good if they did, and Barber's clothes and tooth-brush—which did your face—were the only disguise you could safely get away in. Before the day broke, they were thrown into the Humber River somewhere below Hull. The coat was washed up again.

"You didn't expect the police to fasten on the Barber Trail the way they did. But by the time the hue-and-cry for Barber began, he'd vanished off the earth.

"Yes, you did. Sink your identity, take any disguise and name you chose. You had to buy clothes. That gave no clue. Even if the police thought to check up on all the sales of clothes and showed Barber's official photograph, they'd get nowhere. For a picture of Barber is no more like you than I am.

"When the news spread, all the world knew that Bannister Stoke was lying dead in Perchester Mortuary. Few could understand how that one mistake was never once questioned—till it was too late—and the police certainly couldn't be blamed for it. That let you out. The murderer was free for a second time that were missing—whom you didn't, in any way resemble—and for Brian Chalmers.

"For him, there was no way out of it. For you, comparative safety, which became complete only when Bannister Coote was buried. . . . One is so safe from the hangman as a dead man.

"But when the reports of the case appeared in the papers, you found it a totally unexpected shock. Brian was not arrested. . . . That alarmed you. The evidence against him was deadly; in fact he was the man that was wanted. How did he escape arrest? The machinery had slipped in one moment? You had to put that right, or there would be trouble, yes.

"There was another danger, Selby's wife and daughter. Sarah Selby knew too much about her husband hadn't returned to her. If she began to suspect that he was dead—as she did—her suspicion would likely fasten on you as the man who killed him. Sarah Selby was the one person who might guess at the lie that was baffling us all. In any case, her tongue was dangerous. Once Mrs. Selby started talking, anything might come of it. She wouldn't forget the murder of her husband. And even I could see she didn't believe Brian was guilty.

"Mrs. Selby had to be kept quiet. There was only one way to do that: she must be convinced that her husband was living, and that any wales step by would betray him to the police. You worked that very cleverly. You sent her those Uncle Matthew letters. They were imitations, pretty good ones, of Selby's writing. The inaccuracies in them could have been better. You could hardly foresee Mary's pass through the hands of the police—as they did. But that couldn't hurt you.

"From that day, Sarah Selby dared only swear to one thing—even on oath and in the witness-box—that she believed her husband was dead. Whatever doubts may have come to her, I was sorry for that poor wretched woman, and her daughter.

"As neither of them were to know anything about it, they couldn't denounce Brian's defence and call for his arrest. It wasn't safe for the police to act on bone from them.

"You worked it out, didn't you?

"I'm not in Superintendent Guthrie's confidence as I don't know just how you managed it. Nobody can touch you for certain about the anonymous letter trade. You contrived, without a hitch, to frighten yourself to get evidence into Barber's hand that would secure Brian's arrest. The evidence that his car was parked by the coming on the night of the murder.

"Guthrie took hold of it at once, threw Brown out, and arrested Brian. The case against him was complete.

"Guthrie is a masterful fellow and rather clever. He didn't believe in Brian's innocence; nor that either Barber or Selby was living. But he never guessed that the information was Bannister Coote, and that Bannister Coote was the murderer of both Barber and Selby. How should he? I would never have guessed it if I hadn't been there when it was done. I'm beginning to think now dead I was; it took me weeks before I had it set in that double murder.

"Bannister looked at her dumbly, his lips twitching a little. He said no word. Rowe and all stood as a figure of stone, listening and watching.

"It gave you a lot more trouble, Brian crafting arrest for so long. You owe that to Superintendent Rowe who took quite a different view of the case than his superiors did. He knew Brian was innocent, and declined to arrest him; and declined to let him go. Rowe's visit to you is quite unnoticed; so of course is mine. Nobody, even knows I were here.

"Don't trouble to look pathetic and lingers, Bannister. That clever brain of yours is native to my trade. Then when you were thrown over the cliff? That's another lie.

"This loss-of-memory trick; the man who'd passed through Kirby in his mind and even his identity blocked out—it's the best scheme you've ever thought of. And officially, you're dead.

"You could have got away with it at all time, if only things had gone right. You might even have come back from the dead, some day when Brian had gone under the sod, only a box-full of bones left in Barber's coffin! So far you've managed it well enough.

"The last that's the amazing part of it: there'd be no possible proof against you. Not one bit of evidence to bring legal guilt home to you.

"You did, drop it now, Bannister. That vacant look in mind—even the bleached white hair of yours—is a fraud and fake like the Coote diamond that you sunk in the pond. There's one thing more.

"You'll be relieved, I think, to hear McGinness is dead. I'm a little sorry for that poor broken rogue. You left him to it. You quit and left him. Finantially wrecked and liable for jail. His dealings with you wouldn't bear the daylight. You found that—did he know you were dying?—when you were blacking for him? I believe not; I believe you contrived that, too.

"I suppose we shall never know the truth about that, nor what exactly your relations with Mortimer were, for he died last night by his own hand rather than face the witness box. Even a broken-nerved man does not kill himself without the strongest reasons; he is dead and he cannot tell us what they were, though we may guess. I think Grainger knows. You haven't faced Grainger yet. You will.

"I'll leave that; it matters the less, now. Two murders are as much as a man need answer for, Selby! Barber!!

"I bring that accusation. It hasn't been made against you before. I'm not even the instrument of the police. My only concern is for Brian to clear Brian . . . . Brian whom you tempted into paying for a jewel that was yours; and you very nearly succeeded. Before you had him fixed; but you didn't reckon with his wife. Well—I've finished.

"And I've talked enough. You've been very patient with me, Bannister. And now—have you anything to say?"

The blood had slowly left Bannister's face till his cheeks were a thin transparent white. His eyes, no longer watchful and alert, were half closed as he stared at her.

"Say?" he replied quietly. "What do you expect me to say? If you are not crazy, Madam—"

"Don't!" she said, and, her eyes blazing, "My name's Sheila Chalmers and no one knows it better than you!"

"Mrs. Chalmers then—I've listened to you patiently and I'm concerned I can only say you have made a remarkable story, pursued from start to finish. I'm at a loss to know what you brought it for."

"So," she said. "You mean to face it out! Is that worth while, Bannister?"

"Face what? Mrs.—Mrs. Chalmers, all this is incredible. You've invented some incredible story about me. You must believe it. I repudiate it, of which, as you admit yourself, you haven't the slightest proof."

"Proof! You're right there; there was no proof. Are you counting on that, Bannister? Brian's trial was stopped this morning. Yours will come next.

"By Monday they will have evidence enough to hang a chapel-yard. Does that prove nothing?"

"If it doesn't, I have all they want, to the last item. Everything that happened on the night of the 9th at the Stannary Mine, step by step.

"I was there, Bannister. You didn't know that? I followed Brian that night; I saw you fell him down. I'm the eye-witness.

"Chapter and verse. I can testify to everything I've told you. Your broken torch-lens—we have it. Even the sapling you swung by the roots to knock him in the ditch. The faked diamond you threw into the pond. Your letters that you wrote to Selby's wife.

"I was within fifty feet of you that night! I saw you—kill Selby."

Her eyes were on his face; into Bannister's eyes flashed a sudden gleam as he sat before her, rigid, through his mind. And that's the end of it. You've had your say. Now I'll say something. Sit down!"

Slowly the man ascended. They could her his shuffling progress coming nearer and nearer to the top. He did not climb as the ape-like priests of Opar were wont to climb. Tarzan thought perhaps he was carrying a cumbersome or heavy load which retarded his progress.

When finally his head came into the clew, the ape-man saw that he was an old man, which accounted for his lack of agility, and than powerful fingers closed about the throat of the unsuspecting Spartan; and he was lifted bodily out of the shaft.

"Silence!" said the ape-man. "Do as you are told and you will not be harmed." La snatched a knife from the girdle of their victim. Tarzan forced him to the floor and with his bold upon the fellow's throat turning him around so that they could see his face.

Painful Piles

Go Quick—Prevent Chafing—
No Salves

When itch and painful Piles distress and upset you, most salves give insufficient or only temporary help, and what is to avoid chronic, isn't it best to at once try HEM-ROID—the internal remedy for piles?

Dr. J. A. Leonhardt has combined early in his career that the cause of Piles was internal and the circulation, of blood in the lower bowel—the hemorrhoidal veins filled with stagnant blood—and that the right and safe way to get freedom from Piles was to get rid of the cause with an internal medicine, scientifically made to act on them and to find a remedy. He succeeded and called his prescription HEM-ROID.

Pile sufferers everywhere are benefiting by Dr. Leonhardt's internal treatment so why doubt or delay longer when J. S. McKeown and other good druggists say, "Go get rid of your pile misery or money-back."

Sunday morning Uncle Allst was shaving himself with one of pop's razor blades and pop said to me, "Ain't that week up yet for Peel Lake?

What week? me said, and pop said, "The week your chieling brother in law was suppose to stay with us. He arrived a week ago yesterday, so if I'm any judge of time, that week is already expired and Allst is still ere. What's he waiting on, does he want me to expire too? pop said.

Now Wurfum he didn't precisely say a week, he said in the mayhorse of a week, and pop said, "When you draw near the waiting you'll be the mayborhood of it, so he's been waiting on the mayhorse of his week for the passed few days. Maybe he's fear sighted. Maybe he's one of these people who have no sense of the passing of time as long as it's not costing them anything. The nine best come to throw out a few bile boiled birds, pop said.

Which he did when Uncle Allst came in to look at the Sunday paper, pop saying, By golies how time flies, here you've been with us a week already. Allst, in fact, hour over a week, fancy that.

It scarcely seems possible, Uncle Allst said, and pop said, The calender's here to prove it, and Uncle Allst said, Of course it's quite to be expected that the time should be passed for me in such pleasant surroundings, but I really cant tell you how much I appriciate the favor that it's been passed for me too, it makes me feel dubbly welcome.

Heh? O'yes, I see, eh heh, pop said, and Uncle Allst said, Have you finished with the sporting section?

No, pop said, and Uncle Allst said, Then I'll give it rite back to you, there's just a little item I'm interested in.—

And he took it out of pop's hands and read it himself for a half a

In preparation for a Lodge meeting fire had been started in the stove used to heat the hall and shortly after the leg of the stove broke, letting the hot stove fall and also a long string of pipes. Several of the lodge members were present and the only damage was smoke.

KING ATTACKS BENNETT UNION PRONOUNCEMENT

Says Prime Minister Has Thrown Up the Sponge

WHEAT BOARD PROFITS

Liberal Chieftain at Brockville Replies to Premier's Toronto Speech

Brockville, Ont., Oct. 11—Liberal Leader Mackenzie King moved on to Montreal today for the second last meeting of his election campaign after declaring in a speech here last night Prime Minister R. B. Bennett had "thrown up the sponge."

Replying to Mr. Bennett's Toronto speech of Wednesday night Mr. King said Mr. Bennett had admitted he had no hope of leading a Conservative government after the election by his attempt to appeal to the varied political groups which had come into being because of antagonism to Mr. Bennett's own policies.

Until Mr. Bennett spoke the National government movement was shrouded in mystery, Mr. King said. Now it was in the open. Mr. Bennett had announced himself as the leader and had disclosed its policy as "Canada first." It was the same policy Mr. Bennett had pursued for five years, with disastrous consequences, Mr. King said. "Canada first" had strangled trade and caused unemployment on a scale never known before.

BRITAIN IS READY TO LIFT EMBARGO AGAINST ETHIOPIA

League of Nations Applies Sanctions of Arms

The Associated Press

Geneva, Oct. 11—A general arms embargo against Italy and permissive force for Ethiopia to import all she may munitions she needs were ordered today by the United States committee of the League of Nations.

The committee represented a number of the League except Italy and Ethiopia.

All the same time a special subcommittee consisting of France, Great Britain, Soviet Russia, Australia, Netherlands, Rumania and Poland undertook to study the possibility of placing a financial and oil against Italy, Such a boycott might cover all loans and credits made by foreign nations to Italy.

Not only does the arms embargo apply to future shipments of war materials to Italy but it applies to contraband now in that nation.

Blocking War Supplies

The resolution passed by the big committee contains one paragraph designed to block any effort by Mussolini to get war supplies through neighboring anti-sanction states such as Austria.

This paragraph states the members of the League will "take such steps as may be necessary" to prevent re-export "directly or indirectly" of arms to Italy or Italian colonies.

London, Oct. 11—(AP)—An authoritative source said today the British Government is ready to lift the arms embargo against Ethiopia the minute the League of Nations approves such action.

Captures Reported

London, Oct. 11—(AP)—A report from Dirredawa, Ethiopia, not confirmed by any other source, said today that Ethiopian forces had cap-

Fierce Counter Attack Planned to Recapture City

Addis Ababa, Oct. 11—(CP)—Ras Desta Demtu, Ethiopian forces were reported today to have stormed Adowa last night and massacred the town's 2,000 Italian defenders.

The dispatch said Ras Desta, Ethiopian commander in the north, numbering 25,000 men, were reported to have captured Adowa, which was captured Sunday by the Italians, and to have killed "every one" of the 2,000 defenders.

Ras Desta's forces were said to be heavy, but Ras Seyoum's fighters were reported to have captured large quantities of rifles, machine guns, artillery and ammunition.

POINT ANNE HOME BADLY SCORCHED

Blaze Confined to Attic in Home of John Bennett

Property damage of $500 and water damage in an untold amount resulted from a fire at the home of John Bennett, Point Anne, shortly after nine o'clock on Thursday evening. Chief Lyons with five men and one hose wagon received permission to assist in controlling the blaze and were successful in confining the fire to the attic of the house. It is believed the fire was started from defective wiring at point of entrance to the home but this was not definitely established. Before the fire fighters from this city reached the scene, the residents of the little village worked heroically by carrying a volume of water on the roof, where the fire seemed to be centred. Once the brigade arrived the fire was soon brought under control. Mr. Bennett is the occupant of the double house and it is being used as a boarding home for employees at the cement plant. The furniture carried will partially compensate the owner for his loss.

NO AMALGAMATION

Claims King Will Bring Canada Out of The Depression

In a typical Grahamesque talk, that became only at times superficial as a political address, the Hon. Geo. P. Graham, K.C., former Minister of Railways and Canals in the King administration, present member of the Senate and one time close friend and confidante of the late Sir Wilfred Laurier, under whose regime he sat and helped to direct the affairs of the nation, addressed a large audience last night in the Belleville city hall last evening, when he spoke before a Liberal rally.

Brookdale, platitudes and overworked campaign utterances were delivered by Senator Graham, who depended only upon his keen wit and humor to keep the appreciative audience in good nature, while in serious vein he became the story of the Liberal party and set forth in homely pertinent fashion the issues of everyday problems of this country.

Many of the points of the Liberal platform were given as cordial and spontaneous a reception as that rendered with fervent enthusiasm last evening.

Opening up any one of the city and county papers of late, one could observe the many articles appearing from the pens of Liberal writers warning of further railway amalgamations, or the present railroads occur in this country, and the subject matter being considered by opposition parties, and the public generally, to be asked deep consideration of the matter, that no history has shown, has ever been made in the matter of railroad amalgamation.

"That this Synod recommend that Mr. King should retract at the first opportunity," the Prime Minister of Canada.

Earlier yesterday Mr. Bennett addressed the audience in Brantford. There he repeated his charge that Mr. King had thrown the weight of Canada's influence in the scale of Japan in the trade dispute with Great Britain.

Votes for liberal candidates would mean the ruination of Canada, countries dumping cheap surplus commodities on the market in Canada and other countries, Canadian goods could not compete.

The Prime Minister will leave Owen Sound by special train tonight for Smith's Falls for an afternoon meeting and tomorrow will make a double back to Belleville for a windup meeting in Belleville. He will be back in Ottawa early Sunday.

PRICE OF BREAD WILL NOT BE RAISED HERE

Although bakeries of several other cities recently announced a raise in the price of bread as the result of an increase of 50 cents per barrel of flour passed up by the milling concerns owing to a shortage of wheat in Australia, Russia and other countries, breadmakers of Belleville indicated by their actions today that the immediate future prices of their product was unchanged. This was learned through local retailers who saying customers were "getting their share" declared that bakers several days ago had increased their output, stocked up with flour bought before any rises in price was suggested.

The robbery took place between the hours of 10.00 and 11.00 p.m. last night.

The robbery was investigated by Sergeant Harry Thompson of the Provincial Police shortly after he was reported. Word received today at the various advance polls of local political parties indicated that the advance poll vote, which opened in Belleville and Trenton was proceeding quietly, hampered somewhat by the fact that individual voters have been forced to secure their certificates from the office of the local Returning Officer before being allowed to cast their ballots. Smoke Pours Through Stores

Said by local firemen to have had its origin in the furnace room of Silva's Marksteria, store on upper Front Street early this morning, a curling twist of flame which ate its way steadily through the floor of the plumbing establishment sent a dense cloud of black smoke rolling through the business section of the city and resulted in considerable damage to a number of stores at that location before being extinguished by the local fire department who answered the summons at 12.10 a. m.

Firemen checked the fire with difficulty owing to the dense clouds of smoke which filled the room from above and the plumbing shop.

Loss was not placed today by Silva's Marksteria, Clyde Church who was still engaged in tracing the origin of the blaze.

Silva's Marksteria, Hyde's Plumbing shop, the Ashley Fur Store, Tip Top Tailors, all reported some loss by smoke. Upper apartments were also smothered by the dense clouds.

Members of the department who fought for hours from the rear entrance were handicapped also by the fact that some time was spent by firemen in their efforts in attempt at moving an automobile which was said to have had its transmission locked after being parked in front of the garage way leading to the rear.

CAMPAIGN NEARS CLOSE

The longest election campaign nears end. Those who have voted for many real elections do not recall one which has been about so much as this one. In summer there were predictions that campaign was about to begin, that all was needed was the announcement of date. Finally the date was announced then the campaign began. That was ks and weeks ago.

With over eight hundred candidates, were there so many speeches delivered as in this present campaign. Because he length of the campaign probably no orators was ever so often canvassed and ed by speakers.

The speaking has had results. Most have been largely attended, probably e largely than ever before and no elecan plead that he does not know the e. Candidates have worked more than to bring to the electors every light on subjects at issue.

GREAT PHYSICIST PASSES

The death of Sir John C. McLennan, d Canadian physicist, and former head the Department of Physics at the Uni- of Toronto, removes the greatest of Canadian scientists and one of the most minent figures in the world of physics rs of his death on a train in France s as a great shock to his friends in ada and in England where he had lived his retirement in 1932 from his pro- orship at the University of Toronto.

Sir John was one of the men who igh Canada has to be fore in the world ence. A nation's population may not be but that nation, if due regard is giv- to the scientific spirit may produce last- contributions to the realm of know- dge.

His knighting recently was one of the popular of honours bestowed upon a ician for he had already earned a st place in the field of physical science. was an honour no one would deny him. ecially was this true with that rare and mysterious sub-helium- responsible for Prof. McLennan's h-wide fame and position advanced to ds of one of the greatest phys- ts in the world. Prof. McLennan was first man to discover and produce hel- in commercial quantities. He was the ly man in the British Empire to ntify the gas and the second in the world secure results.

It was during the war when the Bri- Admiralty needed a light non-inflam- ble hydrogen for dirigibles that the To- o professor set out on his search for um. Professor McLennan was sci- fic adviser to the British Admiralty ob- d a grant, and in 1916 inspected all gas wells of Canada. He found wells the Bow Island district of Alberta, South Medicine Hat and Lethbridge. In a t time a plant was established at Cal- ry which was producing large quanti- of helium. The price dropped from $1, r per cubic foot to 10 cents.

Prof. McLennan was born at Ingersoll, in 1867, studied at Ingersoll Collegiate, ton and Stratford Collegiates, he en- ed the University of Toronto, and on duation took a course at Cambridge. He s appointed assistant demonstrator in sics at the University of Toronto in 92, demonstrator in 1899, assistant pro- sor in 1902, director of the physical oratory in 1904 and professor in 1907.

By making researches on radio-activ- in relation to the upper atmosphere, t McLennan was able to explain the son why radio waves circle the earth stead of shooting off in space on a ight line, and incidentally brought to ht another function of the gas helium.

By examining the spectrum of the aur- borealis, he ascertained that 60 miles ove the surface of the earth there is a er of helium gas. This layer restrains wireless waves from continuing off at angent and makes them follow the curve e of the earth's surface, as helium is non-conductor of electricity. For these re- rches Prof. McLennan was awarded the dal of the Royal Society.

TEACHING OF MODERN LANGUAGES

In a bi-lingual country like ours it ould not be difficult to secure plenty of achers capable not only of inculcating appreciation of French literature in pu- s' minds, but of giving them a knowledge correct pronunciation as well. If only ldren learning facts according to the nitations of the teacher, it is no wonder at so few even of the brightest matricu- ts are able to express in complete ideas a way which a native would understand. modern langage is a living thing; it is not matter of etymology and syntax but a eans of oral and written communication. the instruction fails to make it so, its ief value is lost. The teaching of French, erman, and other modern tongues should each as far as possible the connotation of the ident an instrument for the conveyance well as reception of thought, and for ter understanding between the races.—Hamilton Spectator.

Ann pins a rose against her hair.
Her grandma cautions, "Child, beware;
Yon lads can promise splendid things,
But love has swift and ready wings!"
Bob hears a song and whistles his shoes.
His grandsire quavers, "Robert, choose
For wife a wise and thrifty girl,
Not one who sets your head awhirl!"
When Ann and Bob at dusk keep tryst
The world takes on a golden mist;
Fair things grow fairer sweets more sweet
Whenever Ann and Robert meet.
Besides, what can old people know
Of love, that sets the stars aglow?,
And so they wed for love alone
As did their forbears, in years flown.

BRUNO RICHARD HAUPTMANN IS ONE STEP NEARER THE ELECTRIC CHAIR as the result of the last of his appeal against the sentence of death imposed by the Court at Flemington, New Jersey, for the murder of the Lindbergh infant. Hauptmann was sentenced to be executed last June but through appeals has staved off the dreaded day. The Appeal Court unanimously approved the sentence of the lower court after considering all evidence upon which he was convicted, which does not look hopeful for the prisoner in his proposed appeal to the United States Supreme Court. Hauptmann was at least found guilty beyond any reasonable doubt of having in his possession the major portion of the money paid over by Col. Lindbergh for the recovery of his infant son, $50,000 through Jafsie John Condon, eccentric school teacher of the Bronx, New York City. The body of the child was found at the time reposing in a shallow grave a short distance from the parents home. The evidence linking Hauptmann with the actual kidnapping and killing was circumstantial, but when the leading screen actors are seen at work and play in "In the Spotlight" provides Hal Kelly, nimble-footed dancer and comedian with a splendid vehicle for his talents, while a novel musical real is offered by the composer, J. Fred Coots, who sings his more popular hits. The slightest Movietone Newsreel brings the latest news from the far ends of the earth.

On Saturday, the Capitol management presents otherwise Hauptmann attraction for those patrons who prefer action and lively melodrama. For the one day only they present Ken Maynard in a picture entitled "Unlawful Men" or "Fighting Men". Ken and his wonder horse provide plenty of speed in ment and thrills in this stirring drama of the old West.

OLD-TIME SAILOR OF LAKES PASSES

Captain M. Ackerman Who Died in Rochester, France Edward Native

The death of Captain Murney Ackerman, who sailed before the mast on lake schooners when harbor dredges when he was but a boy, and who died in Rochester, New York on September 26 last removes another of the small list of remaining old time lake figures who this district. Captain Ackerman at the time of his death was living in retirement in Rochester after rounding out one of the most active and adventurous lives.

He was born at South Bay Point on the city's east district as one of the best sailors of those sturdier days, and his knowledge of the lakes was conceded to be far more than that ever learned by the more modern sailors from the books.

He was born on South Bay Point Edward County, in 1858 and began the life of sailor when other boys of his age were still attending schools. At twenty he was a fully qualified mate, and by the time he was twenty he had realized his lifelong ambition, that of being skipper of his own boat, a windjammer of ancient times which piled all ports of call on the Great Lakes.

For many years he was engaged in regular lake traffic in the days of the last of the deep water sailing ships gradually gave way to the steam age and the replacement of the wooden boats by the modern steel, steel hulled craft. For a number of years then he was in command of a tug during the days of the barge canal of New York State.

Captain Ackerman was well known as swift as the wave's shuttle. On Saturday he wrote two letters to shipmates of earlier schooner days and on Sunday morning he was stricken away to his last port of call.

FLASH—Harbor fill completed too soon. Throw in another 10,000 yards without a tender. Vote Cameron.

Current Attractions at Local Theatres

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL

"The Gay Bar Man"

Here is the season's funniest comedy. Imagine the droll Ezzi Pitts as a "bar-woman." Along with Hugh O'Connell also provides uproarious laughter in "The Gay Bar Man," now playing at the Capitol Theatre.

Imagine Miss Pitts as an accidental woman who unwittingly robs the robbery of a bank by gangsters, and who is hailed as a heroic woman in America."

Under the direction of an enthusiastic press agent she starts a lecture tour of the country announcing the woman is a champion radio crime. But it is when she comes in actual contact with the gang leader, brotherhood of a great city that the fun becomes riotous, and the climax of the picture is as startling as it is humorous.

Besides Miss Pitts and Hugh O'Connell, the cast includes such popular fun makers as Leonard Twelvetrees, Eddie Brophy, Warren Hymer and Linden Listenfield.

An excellent program of short subjects round out one of the best bills that the Capitol has presented in a long time. It includes the hilarious golf classic, Mickey Mouse shorts, wherein the leading screen mice are seen at work and play in "In the Spotlight" provides Hal Kelly, nimble-footed dancer and comedian with a splendid vehicle for his talents, while a novel musical real is offered by the composer, J. Fred Coots, who sings his more popular hits. The slightest Movietone Newsreel brings the latest news from the far ends of the earth.

AT THE BELLE

Marion Davies in Broadway Hit; Warren William, Joe E. Brown Co-Star in Show Story

Supporting Miss Davies is a remarkable all star cast of famous screen players including Pat O'Brien, Dick Powell, Mary Astor, Frank McHugh, Lyle Talbot, Patsy Kelly, Hobart Cavanaugh, Joe E. Brown, Robert Cavanaugh and a host of others.

"Page Miss Glory" was a big hit on the Broadway stage. Mervyn LeRoy, one of the best known directors, directed the film version which was written by Delmer Daves.

A funny story also bearing the title "Page Miss Glory", written by Hollywood's leading team of hit writers, Joseph Moncure March and Gene Markey.

The story of "Page Miss Glory" is as funny as it is unique. Marion Davies is the pert, wisecrity girl, neither pretty nor bright, gets a big break undeservedly as the New York Hotel in which reside a prosperous gambler by Pat O'Brien who has nothing to promote, and Frank McHugh, a jobless newspaper photographer.

McHugh, learning that an advertising agency is giving a big cash reward for a photograph of America's prettiest girl, makes a composite picture, blending the features of famous stage and society beauties and submits it under the name of "Dewey Glory".

He wins the prize and trouble starts. A "Dawn Glory" craze sweeps the country and even Miss Davies has to do it with startling results. Properly attired and made-up she becomes the living reincarnation of Dawn Glory, but all she wants to be is the sweetheart of Dick Powell.

The action is fast and furious. Miss Davies plays the funniest, most beautiful women, wears some marvelous gowns, especially designed for her by Orry-Kelly.

"Page Miss Glory" with its unusual cast, magnificent settings and fascinating plot, is said to be the best of Miss Davies' score of film hits.

Rodgers of 22 Oakwood Avenue, also of Toronto, was motoring west on the highway from Madoc to Belleville and lost control of his car at a point five miles south of Madoc, owing to travelling at an excessive rate of speed. On Saturday afternoon a motor car driven by John C. Wenman of 79 Cambridge Street North, Belleville, went out of control following a blow-out of a rear tire. The car swerved to one side of the road and came to rest in the ditch. Fortunately none of the occupants were injured and the car sustained but slight damage. Mrs. Wenman, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Chard of Melbourne Street West, were the other occupants of the car. The accident occurred a short distance east of "The Log Cabin" on Highway No. 7.

Bethel United Church Women's Missionary Society on Tuesday night held an Harvest service in Bethel Church with the observance of the thirtieth anniversary of their W. M. S. which was organized in October, 1905, and, strictly with this event in mind—the 30th anniversary of the union of the Presbyterian, Congregational and Methodist Churches in Canada, which took place in October, 1925.

Rev. R. A. Morrison, minister of Thomasburg church, announced the purpose of the meeting and was opened with a hymn, "Far and near the fields are teeming" and prayer by the minister. An anthem, played by the Mission Band of Thomasburg United Church, Fifteen little girls took part in this number which was splendidly done. Mrs. Herrington trained and directed the Mission Band.

Mrs. M. Orillia a past president of the Bethel W.M.S., acted as chairman and called upon the president, Mrs. Harry Foster, who conveyed greetings to the visiting societies and to the large audience which completely filled the church.

Mrs. Mooney Graham gave an interesting account of the history of the local W.M.S. from the inception thirty years previously. This splendid sketch was followed by the lighting of the candles on a birthday cake in honour of the Society's thirtieth birthday.

Mrs. J. W. McGowan, Temperance Secretary of Tweed W.M.S. was called on for a Temperance talk which was appreciated by all. This excellent talk was followed by a fine chorus by a number of Bethel young men, Mrs. Harold Foster read the Scripture lesson and gave a fitting admirably into the commemoration service was given by Mrs. Stanley Webb.

The W.M.S. of Tweed presented the same pageant as they had given on Sunday night at Tweed United Church. Those taking part were: Mrs. R. B. McGee, Mrs. M. G. Dales, Mrs. J. W. Hingston, Mrs. W. S. Gordon, Mrs. S. H. Connor, Miss Isabella Campbell, Miss Orena Houston, Mrs. Alex Gerald, Mrs. George Gerald, Mrs. F. B. Foster, Mrs. W. J. Tennison, Mrs. H. Grier, Mrs. W. J. McCutcheon, organist, Miss Lois Richardson.

At the conclusion of the pageant, a beautiful trio "Take my life and let it be" was sung by Mrs. Harold M. G. Dales, S. H. Connor and H. Orser of Tweed. After the trio a prayer and birthday cake bearing ten candles was carried in. The candles were lighted in honour of "the Tenth Anniversary" by Mrs. H. B. Herrington, who expressed her appreciation of the honour which was placed on her in representing the United Church. Two little girls were called upon to extinguish the candles. The meeting closed with "Blest be the tie that binds." The ladies of Bethel Church served refreshments.

A meeting of the executive of Tweed Horticultural Society was held on Wednesday afternoon. Those present were Mrs. G. E. Nicholson, president, Mrs. A. G. Blakely, Mrs. E. E. Countryman, Mrs. F. Hadgley, Mrs. M. Drinkwater, Mrs. R. Bradshaw, Mrs. Jas. Ryan and S. H. Connor.

The secretary reported that the dance and social given by the society on Thursday evening, Sept. 19th, resulted in a profit of $46 in 1934 to $17 in 1935. The secretary reported the proceeds of the supper at the Flower Show as only $15.25 short half of the 1934 receipts. In an effort to raise funds if the Society is to function and endure the Secretary was instructed to write to Dramatic Societies in the district to enquire with a view to getting a time on a play to be given in Tweed, in the hall. Many favourable responses were passed on the success of Mr. Frost's efforts to beautify the strip of ground along the side and end of the Memorial Hall. This work has drawn many words of commendation all through the summer and the committee in charge is entitled to a great deal of credit for their efforts.

Efforts will be made by the Society to plant the section of land in front of the local hall as well as the other plots in front of the Township Hall.

ack Kogut Injures Shoulder hief Lynx Being Awarded ecision in the Main Bout

Wrestling Fans Disappointed by The Result

TAYLOR WINS

"Irish Whip" Held to Wear Down Frank Bauer

ving full advantage of Jack Kogut's injured shoulder Howard Taylor, better known to wrestling fans as Chief Lynx, the Mohawk Indian bedouin, concluded his third string of victories in Belleville wrestling ring when Referee Jack Ford forced in concede the host the initial round of the main bout of last night's wrestling show at the Belleville Arena. Some 500 attended the show and left the unanimous highly disappointed with the final decision and many with the referee's decision. In the top bout of the night Irish Taylor, the local grappler, was brought to the mat and finally was defeated by the little Frank Bauer of Pittsburg in the second and the fastest bout of the night. Bauer-final, basket new Howard Taylor into the ropes with a flying tackle and through some 40 minutes of wrestling he finally succeeded in getting the best of Bob Nelson, the six-Dan-wrestler, and win the odd decision. Nelson, who has had considerable experience in the wrestling game, might have the ponderous Chief Lynx the patronage of the game settled back in the main bouts to enjoy the slaughter, but Kogut, after a series of flying tackles dislocated his shoulder after 13 minutes in the first round. The wily Indian centered his attack on Kogut's injured arm and forced the Toronto wrestler to concede the first fall. Referee Bert Wells accepting the bout. After a rest Chief Lynx returned to the ring to successfully use a series of hammer-locks and then centre his attack on Kogut's injured arm which the result that Kogut was forced to concede the second fall and the night's decision. Before injuring his shoulder, however, Kogut looked the aggressor and had softened the Indian with a series of flying tackles that he felt on his shoulder and dislocated it. A suitable opponent for Chief Lynx will be supplied for next week's show, that is to be held on Friday night.

Taylor Steals Show

Undoubtedly the opening bout, that saw Steve Taylor, the local grappler who weighs [illegible] of Pittsburg at 155 pounds, stole the show as Bauer turned villain and the fans had the opportunity of seeing the best man of the show defeated. Taylor, after showing considerable nervousness at the hands of Bauer, who drew blood from Taylor's face early in the bout, went with the former's Irish whip, used successfully by Jack O'Mahoney, world's champion wrestler. Bauer drew the wrath of the fans upon his head with repeated ed feeling of Taylor. The fans stamped their approval on Taylor's victory, especially after Bauer used body tackles.

The semi-final bout proved rather slow and unsatisfactory as Bob Nelson of Denmark, lost to Howard Martin, 187 of Detroit. Nelson was the initial fall after wearing Martin down with a series of show smashes and [illegible] a body press to clinch the decision. Nelson was still the aggressor as the second round opened, but Martin warded off his ferocious attacks as the crowd shouted disapproval on the manner in which Martin was continually fouling Nelson. After the Michigan grappler had Martin softened his opponent considerably and won with a [illegible] and the Toronto wrestler won a fall the grapplers opened the third round with more aggression, but Martin's excessive weight took its toll and he won the fall and decision with a cradle hold after over 12 minutes of spectacular wrestling.

It was announced during the programme that Al Hussen, the Turkish Turk, had personally appear on next week's card and perform feats of strength prior to his bout. Al Hussen's opponent has not been named as yet. He has the stage all set for [illegible] breaks chains by means of expanding his chest.

Patrick Teaches Bag of Tricks

Winnipeg, Oct. 11—(CP)—Take a vaudeville actor, a professional boxer and a wrestler, put them in the ring and tell them to fight as best they can, start his act," Lester Patrick, New York Rangers' coach told reporters as he led his troupe of 32 hockey pupils onto the training camp ice here.

"That's what we try to teach our students," he explained. "Be ready for anything."

The school has been underway a week now and everyone is defensive as to what the outcome has been when they write their examinations on the last week's training camp activities.

Their scores yesterday were: The wrestler, Jack Shack, the art of throwing on passing; how to leave a puck on a visiting team's player's stick; how to improvise of shooting and to flipping the puck passed over opposition sticks. The final five minutes were spent in a scrimmage test.

Jack Shadden, defenseman was tested as "skinny on your own side," a hockey phrase meaning, can player retire to get the puck and keep it by stealing and stick-handling away with his mates? The remaining time was divided into three scores with five players in each area.

CURRENT SORT

DAY BY DAY

Owing to the inability of the Trenton, N.S. to field a team the operation of the Junior Intermediate group of the Bay of Quinte O. C. U. S. A. loop was postponed yesterday noon. A scattered handful of patrons appeared at the Fair Ground but soon learned there was to be no game. When the Juniors will swing into action now is highly problematic. In the senior group however, the four local scouts of knowledge are hard at it this afternoon with the R.C.I. and V.S. squad tackling the Albert team, the winning into [illegible] semi-finals for place in the league standing. Out at the O.A.D., Frank Quinlan's squad are entertaining Eddie Sidnie's de'ers crack St. Michael's twelve. The loser of this tilt will automatically drop into the cellar position of the senior group.

Tonight will be game for the local C.H.P.U. squad this Saturday, all arrangements for a joyous occasion still falling through. Business Manager Bill Fry made the fact known, and a compelling offer to come to Belleville for an exhibition game, but unfortunately the Capers' previous arrangements could not accommodate the locals. With the idea in mind of keeping the local gridders on their toes, however, Coach Kennedy called a practice for Saturday afternoon and will doubtlessly direct his squad into two teams and spent a profitable afternoon at the Fair Grounds. With a bonus for the fast back booting the pig pigskin the rest of the week, the sticks of the Belleville team have been considerably in the Lake Shore group.

Boxing rooster Glen Allen informed us today he has received invitations to have four of his stable of boxers appear in the Maple Leaf Gardens, Toronto, next week. As a novelty Matchmaker Freddie Robert who is backing the Toronto show, is taking the two Palmatier boys, three sons of energy, who have highly entertained local boxing crowds with their skill and ability in the ring for the past few years, to the Queen City, where they will box in the show. Robert knows the value of added attractions and feels the local 50 pounders will make a hit with the fans. Howard Wheeler, has been signed to meet Jackie Roberts in the main bout, winner, while Shorty Fisher is also on the Toronto card.

What the sporting fans of Belleville want is to have the promoters bring in a first class wrestler, who will take the measure of Chief Lynx and Anderson, the Rama Reserve Indian known as the Chief Lynx. The fans apparently do not mind seeing the Indian win, but it is the manner in which he terminates his attacks his opponents, that irritates the patrons of the mat game. Last week Anderson severely injured Frankie Barr and then again last night after the Chief Lynx had taken Jack Shadder the wily Indian centred his attack on Kogut's shoulder with the result the Toronto grappler to concede the fall. Just the game for the local promoters to take the Chief's measure we cannot say but the fans want either Al Hussen or Ed Don George the Winnipeg heavyweight, who made such an impression on a local ring two years ago. Estabrook is eastward bound we understand and doubtlessly would be glad to return to Belleville for a bout with Chief Lynx. Jimmy Lewis is also in the land and would also be a welcomed wrestler, despite the fact he was at on time the village villain locally. Incidentally Irish Steve Taylor, local wrestler who defeated Frank Bauer last night, is getting to be quite an exponent of the famous Irish whip hold, so successfully used by his fellow-countryman, Jack O'Mahoney, Taylor won his last two professional bouts with the famed Irish whip, much to the delight of the patrons of the game.

The Kingston sport scribe summed up the Pontes' loss to the Tigers in a nutshell and as follows—"Ponte had a great chance to become senior O.B.A.A. champions at the Fair Grounds yesterday, but they missed out when they allowed Galt to win by 9 to 6 and thereby force a third game. They outhit the Terriers and really should have won the game, but fitful fielding and impotency in the pinches brought about their defeat."

QUEENS - VARSITY GAME HIGHLIGHT OF EARLY SEASON

Toronto Invades Kingston to Wipe Out Defeat of Last Year

TIGERS AT ARGOS

Leadership of Big Four at Stake in This Contest

By Elmer Dolmage

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Football hits a new early-season high in importance tomorrow when Toronto's undefeated challengers for two crowns—Argonaute of the Big Four and University of Toronto intercollegiate champions—in the day's headline gridiron struggles. Three other contests can only achieve equal prominence by resulting in upsets.

Riding a three-game winning streak, Argos will take on Hamilton Tigers before a crowd of about 15,000 in Varsity Stadium, Toronto. The big rivals, the clan of the Big Four race so far, are expected to stage a sensational battle with wins won't be stopped easily and Abe Zvonkin, best lineman in the Intercollegiate. But mostly he has balance and a fine spirit in his team, and the blues haven't what that combination yet.

The type of man South Hastings needs in public life. Vote Chas. Cameron.

COLDSTREAM FAVORITE IN BELMONT FUTURITY

Associated Press Sport Writer

New York, Oct. 11.—(AP)— Despite his performance four days ago, in which he failed to show championship calibre, C. V. Whitney's Red Rain rallied nicely on support today as upwards of a score of two-years olds were pointed for the $100,000 futurity at Belmont Park tomorrow.

Although badly beaten in the Nursery stakes, his chestnut colt appeared more like the horse that came from behind to take the hopeful at Saratoga, when he reeled off five furlongs in 59 3-5 seconds yesterday.

Alfred Robertson, piping his trade in New England, will be brought in especially to ride the Whitney son. The lanky jockey was up on Red Rain in the colt's debut at Saratoga and trainer T. J. Healy believes he

SYNOD PROTESTS PROPOSED CHANGE IN BASIS OF TAXES

Provincial Body Hears Report on Proposed Seal

The adoption of the report on the separate School taxation was debated at the session of the Provincial Synod of the Church of England (Ecclesiastical Province of Ontario) late Thursday afternoon in St. Thomas' Parish House. The council of the Synod had dealt with the matter some months ago and written to the Premier of the province, protesting against the proposed change in the basis of taxation. When the question was brought before the Synod, the Honourable Chief Justice Rose of Toronto and His Honor Judge E. R. McLean of Picton, disagreed to themselves with the action of the Synod and withdrew as they felt it incumbent upon their positions as judges to refrain from questions which had political implications. After consideration the action of the council of Synod and of the Metropolitan was endorsed by the adoption of the report.

Algoma Diocese Finances

Very Rev. Dean E. A. Riley of Hamilton presented the section of the Council's report on the Algoma Diocese financial situation. He was followed by the Lord Bishop of the Diocese of Algoma, Rt. Rev. E. F. Palmer of Bracebridge, Rev. H. A. Sims of North Bay, Ven. Archdeacon G. W. Belfour of Port William, Mr. F. W. Major of Sault Ste. Marie, Archdeacon A. J. Burt of Parry Sound, Rupsing District, and Dr. G. F. Bridgman of Trinity College, Toronto. The recommendation from the Provincial Council that an appeal be launched at an opportune time after the Restoration Fund for the Diocese of Superior Land is completed to place the Diocese of Algoma on a sounder footing, was passed.

Mr. James Nicholson of Toronto presented the report on the proposed seal and Armorial Bearings of the Synod. The report was adopted by which action the Provincial Synod secures under the Coat of Arms its seal. Mr. Nicholson has donated the Synod for his trouble and generosity.

Greetings of Diverse

Ven. Archdeacon Gauntlett of London, presented the statistics of Church in the Province of Ontario. In 1931 there were two divorces granted and in 1934 there were over 300.

At the evening session His Grace Archbishop Roper presented a congratulatory report on the Church's work among girls preventive and redemptive and took occasion to show the progressive programme of the Welfare Department of the Government. The Primate, His Grace Archbishop Owen, expressed the thanks of the Synod for the generous manner in which the committee had accomplished in this important department of the church's work. He called it both vital and monumental. The soul of the committee he asserted was the chairman, the Metropolitan, Archbishop Roper.

A.T.P.A. Week

The report on the Anglican Young People's Association showed that there are some 541 branches in Ontario and 30 local councils. The coming Provincial Council in Toronto expects some 500 delegates at its three days' conference. The Synod went on record as approving heartily the work of A.T.P.A. The resolution was supported by many of the clergy and laity the Metropolitan, the Synod and the Bishops.

A hearty resolution of congratulation was given to the Woman's Auxiliary on the attainment of their Jubilee. Coupled with it was a warm commendation of their work.

The assessors to the Court of Appeal of the Provincial Synod were appointed as follows: Mr. Chief Justice Rose, Mr. Chancellor Symonds, K.C., and Judge Thompson.

Synod's Thanks

Hearty expressions of the thanks of the Synod were given to the Mayor and council of the City of Belleville, to the Ministerial Association, the citizens generally, His Grace the Archbishop presented for his sermon at the opening service, the ladies of St. Thomas' and Christ Church parishes, the Vicar and wardens of St. Thomas' Church, the Rector and wardens of Christ Church, the Synod officials mentioned, the former rector Rev. Canon Perkins, to the Prolocutor and his deputy, to the bilingual secretaries and the kind hostesses for the hearty reception and generous hospitality extended to the parish guilds of Christ Church and St. Thomas' Church for the daily luncheons provided in Christ Church parish hall to the choirs of St. Thomas' Church and Christ Church for the excellent singing at the services and to the organists and choir masters who so generously gave of their services.

A very special vote of appreciation was given to His Grace Archbishop Roper, the Metropolitan, for his kindness, courtesy and keen interest in all matters affecting the welfare of the Church and province generally.

The Vicar of St. Thomas' Church, the Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne, expressed to the synod the pleasure it had been to the members of the church in Belleville to have the synod meet here. It was, he said, an honor and had been a great inspiration.

At the close of the business of the evening meeting the 85th session of the Provincial Synod of the Ecclesiastical Province of Ontario was prorogued by His Grace Archbishop Roper, the Metropolitan.

WILLIAM CLARENCE SILLS

William Clarence Sills, a former resident of Belleville, died at his home at Topsfield, Mass., Thursday morning, October 10th, after a brief illness.

The late Mr. Sills was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jason Sills and was born at Lonsdale. When a young man he came to Belleville to reside and after attending the Belleville Business College he was engaged in the C.P.R. Express Office which at that time was managed by the late Mr. S. Burrows in connection with his insurance business. During his residence in this city he was popular with many friends and news of his death will be learned with regret by those who knew him.

Eventually Mr. Sills left Belleville and in New York City and Boston his pleasing personality, ability and tireless energy enabled him to make a rapid advancement in the business world. For a considerable period he filled the responsible position of Sales Manager with the Chevrolet branch of General Motors. He won marked success in his business activities and for some years now he has been living retired.

Surviving are his wife, formerly Miss Charlotte (Lotie) Martin, daughter of the late Adam Martin of Belleville, and one brother, Mr. J. C. Sills of Buffalo.

Announcement of funeral is made elsewhere in this paper.

WIFE ENDS QUARRELS BY CUTTING DOWN RUNS

YOUNG COUPLE has another scene about stocking bills! "How can I help it if stockings go into runs like nobody's business!" cries Mrs. Elton Lord. "Don't you say another word—I'm fed up!"

ELTON LORD wonders if every wife is as extravagant as his—Ruth thinks her husband's just a "brute." A little quarrel becomes a big one, until . . .

NEIGHBOR brings help! "You can cut down on runs, save Elton's money, if you wash stockings in Lux." Lux saves the elasticity of the silk so it gives, instead of breaking into runs so often. Cake-soap rubbing—soaps with harmful alkali—weaken elasticity.

RIFT ENDED! Ruth and Elton find Lux does cut down run troubles. "I bet we nearly paid for this week-end trip out of what I've saved on stockings," Ruth boasts as they roll along the boardwalk at the shore. Elton's as thrilled as she is. Every husband is—when thrifty wives stick to Lux!

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Biggar and Crawford by Financial Service.

Reno gold mines — September output $15,500 ounces. Reason for lower tonnage and output is that a forest fire in the district necessitated calling out all crews in the area to fight the fire. Also a short delay due to labor disturbances. Development is being concentrated on opening ninety from ninth to eighth and from eighth to seventh while crosscutting on two levels and sinking on the lower level of the Mookeridge property continues. Production figures are now running at new fiscal year company as follows:

	Tons Mined	Tons Milled
	Fiscal years beginning
	July 1, 1935	July 1, 1934
July	43,835	68,000
August	58,700	61,286
September	48,672	34,333

First 3 months $152,727 $164,186

The new find on the 3,000-foot level is becoming really important with ore opened up generally for a length of 250 ft. to date. The management confesses that the find is one of the most important finds ever made at Macassa. Production figures for the September show output at $67,648 slightly down from August $69,000 heads of $15.60 were higher and were only exceeded once, in April last. Production per ton mined has been as follows:

1935	Tons Milled Millheads Output
March	16,500 $14.13 $233,906
April	18,942 15.53 $81,966
May	19,000 15.82 279,336
June	18,243 15.52 $81,966
July	19,835 15.82 279,336
September	15,000 15.19 $70,067
	9 mths . 50,746 15.19 $70,067

In their bulletin of yesterday, Burns Brothers and Denton state that "recent selling in Hollinger seems to have abated. General strength in the mine showing signs of improvement and frequency extra dividends in the future appear more likely than in past few months."

Pamour Gold Mines under development in Rowanda Mines, is making rapid headway with work at its property in the Porcupine district, according to latest reports from the north. From reliable sources it is learned that within the next week or ten days the company will begin taking on a moderate num ber under development. At present work is being confined to shaft sinking and construction work.

It is also stated that a T. and N. O. railway has been completed to the headframe and store house, and the Ontario government has also built a modern highway from the Dane-South Porcupine to the property. Those interested in the Pamour company is erecting poles and stringing wires to the field.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 11—(CP)—Liquor stocks on Toronto Industrial market today displayed strength on good volume, highlight of which Distillers Corporation-Seagrams was likely to vote a dividend of $1 while over the board gains and losses were about even at mainly small fractions.
Oil stocks were offered in quantity in the morning session and they sold off fractions up to 3-4 but the losses were reduced in the early afternoon as the New York market tightened up again. Ford A dipped and base metal and Utilities, constructions and banks harbored a good showing of gains.
The market was strong for the metal stocks, particularly Consolidated Smelters which added more than two points.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Oct. 11—(CP)—A general rote of strength ruled in the mining shares on the Toronto Exchange today with buying heavy in spots and the aggregate turnover moderate. Profit-taking came along in Hollinger which earlier had registered a minor gain in the morning session and the close showed most of the base metals and silvers also flattened out in the early afternoon. Hollinger was down a point at 49 1-2, dropping the morning gain and Kirkland Lake Gold was off a fraction of about 10 cents turned quiet in the afternoon and dropped most of a point. Other offerings and base metals were quiet. Morris-Kirkland maintained its strength most of the day and touched 34, off 13 cents before fractions.

WALL STREET FINANCIAL

New York, Oct. 11 (AP)—Leading stock market issues soared to further gains today before closing or later today before encountering sufficient profit taking to check the upward flight.
Among Canadian stocks, Dome and McIntyre were a trifle lower while International Nickel and Canadian Pacific displayed irregularity. On the curb Hiram Walker gained a point, Canada Dry three points and even. Dominion Government 4's were slightly lower. Canadian funds were unchanged at 98¾ omis.
Shares of Chrysler led the forward pack with a gain of 3. Air Reduction and Du Pont got up 4. Others substantially to the good were Advanced included Auburn, General Motors, Electric Auto Lite, Johns-Manville, United Gas, American Can, Case, Westinghouse and Beechnut. Off 1 to fractions were U. S. and Bethlehem, were slightly improved. Among the rails were Canadian Telephone and Columbia Gas.

NEW YORK CLOSES

New York, Oct. 11—(AP)—Profit-taking and some selling in the rails stemmed another sharp upward movement in today's stock market.
The industries took the play from the opening when the first hour's turnover was the largest to drop behind floor transactions. Some gains of 1 to 3 points were recorded before the trading slowed down, and then moderate price shading began The majority of the leaders, however, held around their best levels.
Gainers of fractions to 3 or more points included Chrysler, General Motors, Du Pont, Case, Air Reduction, Johns-Manville, Allied Chemical, Sears Roebuck and Johns-Manville. The steels and utilities were mixed. Union Pacific declined nearly 3 points and Pullman and Greyhound were down about 1 each. The late tone was firm. Transfers approximated 1,000,000 shares.

SINISTER SHADOW

by JOHN GOODWIN

CHAPTER LX

Jude instinctively stepped in through the open door, quietly as a shadow. He had been watching and listening at the window; Sonia, then wife, picked up the pistol.

Bannister glared at the three of them. His eyes were drawn back from his wife to the pistol. An animal rage in his eyes that turned slowly to terror as that moment he looked like nothing human grew about his mouth. His cheeks grew white. His jaw slid dropped at the back of the chair, against the back of the chair, breathing heavily.

Jude stared at him, awe-struck. "My God," he also whispered.

Howe beat over the captive. All the focus and fury had gone out of the three and they were with the handthat powered the arms, legs and cuffs on his wrists, tying him as a rag; nor was he slumping. He had passed into unconsciousness.

Howe stepped back, pulled out a large bandanna handkerchief, and wiping his forehead, looked respectfully at Sonia. He took the revolver from her hand and slipped it into his jacket pocket. Then he completed her and Jude out through the doorway.

"And that's that", he said. "Mrs. Chalmers, I wouldn't go through it again for a commonwealth. Ought'n't to have sat there and let you do it."

"Why not?" asked Sonia. She seemed far less disturbed than Howe. "I felt as safe as a church—with you sitting by."

"You certainly seemed it, right," replied Howe. "Still, I'm glad the United Empire as anything I ever saw, in the Canadian Rockies, of course, she's allowed to use it—officially."

"Of course I know Bannister was shamming. And I mightn't have been able to prove it, except for one thing that I told him. I know Bannister pretty well, and how he reacts when you get him cornered—as I've seen it before. And then, I've seen it before. And if, after all, they mightn't bring some chairs against Bannister? Now they don't. Don't look so old-fashioned, Howe. You know very well that in certain cases, you approve. You're only objecting to the way I did it. That's Britain's wife, and I believe in making sure."

Howe nodded.

"If anybody asked to get my choice I'd be all for making sure too. She's right, Jude—see what comfortable ship had to you, Mr. Howe."

"Oh, I know she was right. The thing's complete, book, line and sinker," said Howe. "But nothing's going to get me that room again."

"I don't want to," conceded Sonia with a shiver. "I'm done with Bannister. He's yours. Leave me out of it."

Howe scribbled a note on a leaf of his pocket-book and gave it to Jude.

"Do you know where the village constable in this little place hangs out?" he asked.

"I can find out. Got a surprise packet for him, Howe?"

"Give him this. Hurry. Hell phone through—get a doctor, too." said Howe. "Mrs. Louth station-house and report. In the morning, Mrs. Chalmers, I'll drive you back to King's Head."

The automobile was singing homeward along the south-bound road at an easy pace with Sonia at the wheel. Sergeant Howe and Jude stubbings sat together in the back seat.

"Remember Howe," said Sonia. "I'm your corpse once more."

"I never had any doubt but what you were right," returned Howe. "There wasn't one false step in it. What I want to know is: did Jude track him up? Red-headed fluffs are lucky; but don't tell me that was chance."

"It was Mrs. Chalmers, explained Jude. "She suggested what to look for. I picked up the scent in Bond street as she told me, and lost it a dozen times. It seemed to me he might be anywhere; and only go on lookin' till it was due for my old-age pension. But—"

"It was your hat that showed us the way, Howe," said Sonia. "When you said you'd spoken after checking up every man of about the right age who'd moved to the northern county areas since the night of the 6th, during the search for Bannister, I'm had been tarrowed down to about fifty wagoner; but all of them passed over because they certainly weren't Bannister. Then you mentioned having for either of them; we were left with Bannister. Jude, with the help of that list—and cutting out a few mistakes I'd made—Jude was able to track him down."

"There was one man on the list," said Howe, "a Mr. Granger, a tall, white hair, who might have been Jude. Jude got wind of him early, and let him again. Not her fault. It was like hunting a ghost."

"Oh, I'm glad you've got to take a line and stick to it. I'm right from the beginning," remarked that self-memory child. It was the only way Bannister could get with it. It's been played before. Putting myself in his place I couldn't see there was anything else for him to do. He'd be bound to play it, especially if he was innocent."

"To expect Jude to find Bannister himself seemed pretty hopeless. Even a trace of him, a suspicion that he was alive, would be enough. Without it, we might challenge them open to their grave. But what if I was wrong?"

"After you'd taped the thing out" said Jude, "I knew you were right. What I don't see, is where you first hit the line. Who gave it you?"

"You did. The night I stood with you beside Cooke's grave. In the past, I'd talked over with Granger, with McGregor, and struck him off the list. I'd taken something over it for a week. I'd all the people in my hands, before the inquiry; Selby painting. Why? Where was they? Bannister, the most dangerous man of the three . . . dead! Was that his body, or the body of the man I'd seen it. I'd laid my tongue, for Britain's sake, and a lot of things happened since then; I had all the threads in my hands.

"Remember, I was an eye-witness. I'd seen the struggle between Bannister and Hewitt. It was only a glimpse in the flare of the lighting, while I was on the far side of the ceiling. I saw the pistol-flash—the aftermath. For your life, I couldn't tell; it must have been merely seconds to half an hour afterwards while I was wandering, groping in the dark, getting lying up in hedged ditches, trying to find my way down to the Rock, crazed with horror, insensible of anything about anything. The truth is I wasn't anywhere near Bannister then, a little spit of fire away in the dark; a snap that might have been a shot.

"I saw those things. It'd that much pull over those who saw nothing. Perhaps I was dense, then, not to have found the answer; blind as well as dumb; for I didn't dare to speak. There was one thing which, though I took it for granted, I hadn't seen, and that was Bannister. He'd left on to the line. Neither saw, nor heard it. That was the answer to the whole mystery. Bannister had covered his tracks so thoroughly that it never came home to me till that night when I stood beside the grave.

"Barker and Selby dead. Bannister the survivor. You may say I couldn't have been sure, but I was. I was absolutely certain of it. Though all the evidence was to his identity, he was not the man in that grave. I went all cold on the ground again the same night, pecting it legend.

"Once I'd got it fixed that Bannister was living, everything else fell into line, by degrees quite easily. There was only one way it could have been done. He couldn't have done it in the time, single-handed; he certainly had help, and the help was Selby's. It all fitted in. I had everything; except the two definite proofs—Bannister himself was one. The other was underground; sealed down with half a ton of granite—Barker. That was where I was beaten. I hadn't enough better to show who would believe me. How could I blame any one for turning it down?"

"There, there, Joe—it is now," declared Howe. "But Granger was right not to call you as a witness; the chance had to come from him if it came at all. In two days they'll open the grave. They'll have been enough anyway; but they know now that we've got our man. I doubt if they'll try him for murder."

"Try him!" exclaimed Jude. "Of course they'll try him—and hang him."

Howe shook his head.

"At Louth they think not. They say it's odds against Cooke living long enough to stand his trial. Cooke told us one thing that's true; he's a sick man."

"Him!" exclaimed Jude bitterly. "He's shamming! That big tough nearly downed you before you had the cuffs on him; he'd have shot the pair of you rather than be taken. He's a strong as a bull."

"He has been as strong as a bull, but he was in the station infirmary when I left the policeman rested. Old his heart's rotten; I had it from the surgeon last night. He might be wrong; doctors sometimes are. There's one thing sure, if he isn't the rope's waiting for him."

Sonia was silent.

"There's nothing to him that isn't Mrs." said Jude. "I don't see how a man with a heart as black as Cooke's could be any other way; I wouldn't trust him dead. Still, they don't try dead men."

"Who wants him tried?" asked Sonia. "That's out of our hands; I'd only one interest in it all through—Howe. Now, I think there's nothing that even the law can do to him now, is there?"

"No—defending himself against a crook who had murdered two men, and who tried to do the hanging on him?" replied Howe. "Nothing."

"Then I'm not going to be sorry," said Sonia.

Howe stepped down at the gate of the cottage as soon as they reached King's Elm. He had sat very silent during the last ten miles, and remarkably close to Sonia. As the car drove on after setting him down he climbed into the back beside Sonia who put an arm round her shoulders.

"It's been great!" said Jude, "I wouldn't have missed it for half a fortune!"

"That let's talk about that," returned Sonia. "Did I tell you that you win five thousand pounds?"

"What!" gasped Jude. "Are you kiddin'?"

"Not the contract price I fixed for Wolsberg's if they found me" explained Sonia, "I guess they only had Bannister's photo. They didn't earn it. You did and you get it."

Jude did not speak. He merely ran-

"You'll be quite the little heiress!" said Howe. "I'll be plenty to run-nin' after me now—red hair and An expression of incredulity crossed the face of the old priest of Opar as his eyes fell upon La. "That is right," said the old man, shaking his head. "There are many more, O La, who are loyal to the High-priestess La, but they are afraid. Oah us. Gosh—I'm Tired!

"How many are there who may be depended upon?" demanded La. "Oh, very many," replied Dar-un; and as the Flaming God goes to his rest they will be there!" asked Daura.

"I shall be thire," replied La. "Your dagger shal be the signal. When you see La plunge it into the breast of Oah, fall upon those who are La's enem ies. "It shall be done as you say," Daura answered, "and now I must throw meat to the lion and go."

PROPER MATURITY OF CHEESE URGED

District Grader Warns Makers Concerning Curing

Cheesemakers of this district are being warned this week by Mr. J.L. Irwin, Dominion dairy grader to keep step with the present cold-er weather and provide sufficiently high and continued temperature in their curing rooms to ensure proper maturing of the product.

Recent drop in temperatures, it was pointed out by the local grader have caught many of them napping.

"To mature cheese properly at this time, especially with the fodder September and October milk, it is absolutely necessary to keep temperatures at about 65 or 70 degrees in the curing rooms. If they don't, colder weather keeps the cheese from maturing as it should and we graders have no option but to defer grading on them", declared Mr. Irwin today.

"In some of the factories I have visited it has been found that makers are adopting a hit or miss attitude toward warming up the curing rooms. Often they throw a few sticks of wood on the fire and then forget about it. In some instances there is no fire at all during the night and temperatures have dropped to a very low point. They have all been notified and now it is up to them. It should never be colder than 60 degrees in the day."

One of the biggest faults with overseas shipments has resulted from this immature cheese and complaints have been received from Dominion graders now stationed in England checking the incoming shipments, Mr. Irwin reported.

Clock Face More Easy to Read, That is What Front Street Says

Comments by one or two local citizens that the new color scheme applied to the four faces of the city's clock on the tower opposite the post office called a hazy outline of the hours on the dial from a distance, and found an echo of denial that this was so from eight other Front street merchants and citizens who were impartially questioned this morning.

The majority of those questioned were unanimous whose stores were along upper Front street where it has been difficult at best to tell the exact time by the town clock in the daytime. Seven agreed that it was easier now to tell the time, one unaudibly placed his stamp of approval on the new painting of the clock but modernistic and two others remarked that they "could not see much difference".

The clock faces have now been painted at the rear, with the hands and numerals outlined in dark paint. Contrasting coats of aluminum paint have been given the iron bands circling the clock.
